43 ^bWhen the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he ^cwalketh through dry places, seeking rest, and findeth none.

44 Then he saith, I will return into my house from whence I came out; and, when he is come, he findeth it ^dempty, swept, and garnished.

45 ^eThen goeth he, and taketh with himself seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter in and dwell there: and the last ^fstate of that man is worse than the first. Even so shall it be also unto this wicked generation.

46 ¶ While he yet talked to the people, ^gbehold, his mother and his brethren stood without, desiring to speak with him.

47 Then one said unto him, Behold, thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to speak with thee.

48 But he answered and said unto him that told him, Who is my mother? and who are my brethren?

49 And he stretched forth his hand toward ^hhis disciples, and said, Behold my mother and my brethren!

50 ⁱFor whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother.

CHAP. XIII.

Here is (1) Christ teaching multitudes in parables, and the reasons why; 1—3, 10—17, 34, 35. (2) Seven parables of the sower, tares, net, mustard seed, leaven, hidden treasure, pearl, delivered to them: representing the different success of the gospel on the hearers; the mixture of saints and hypocrites in the church till the last judgment; the small beginnings of the gospel church, and its gradual, but extensive, spread; and that gospel blessings render men willing to part with all for their sake; 3—9, 24—30, 47—50, 31—33, 43—46. (3) The parable of the sower or soils, and of the tares, explained to the disciples; 18—23, 36—43: who are also directed how to use their knowledge in the parable of the householder; 51, 52. (4) Christ basely condemned by his countrymen on account of his mean relations; 53 than ever; and, by filling them with more obstinate hardness of heart, render their wickedness and ruin altogether remediless.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XII.—Be content, my soul, to endure hardships or hunger, and to live on coarse fare, and to put up with ignorant reproaches in following Christ. And in all let me rejoice that he is my advocate and justifier, and the Lord of the Sabbath, who can prescribe the work of it at his pleasure; and has appointed it as his great opportunity of distributing blessings to sinful men. If either diseases or devils plague me, let me cast my burden on the Lord. And, if my heart or hand be withered, let me stretch it forth at his power-conveying call. Let me copy his example of constant and humble activity in doing good, or of meekly bearing the vilest reproaches. And let me never check them by passionate returns, or by revengeful recrimination, but by unanswerable, and especially practical refutation. Empty professors are very prone to carp at things trifling or lawful, while they indulge an ignorance of the oracles of God. But full of blindness, prejudice, and malignity, against Jesus Christ and the gospel, must they be, and fearful is their guilt and dreadful their danger, who, contrary to strong evidence and deep convictions, blaspheme Jesus Christ and his Spirit. No heathens can sin so heinously, nor be damned so dreadfully! There is an absolute necessity of almighty power and grace to convert men from Satan to God; and to have gracious principles implanted in our hearts, in order to practical holiness. No gracious acts can ever take place till gracious qualities be divinely created in us. But surely we should be very careful to act always as under God's eye, when our final account is to be so strict, and the issues of it so infinitely important! Near relations, or even real saints, are often Satan's instruments to hinder Jesus or his faithful servants in their work. Yet great is his love to, and care for, such as truly believe and obey him: and, if I be spiritually related and conformed to him, let the world condemn and reject me as they please. But it is very desirable and honourable that all the lovers of Jesus should be as united in promoting the interest of the gospel as Satan and his subjects are in their opposition to it.

2 And great multitudes were gathered together unto him, so that he went into a ship, and sat; and the whole multitude stood on the shore.

3 And he spake many things unto them in parables, saying, Behold, a sower went forth to sow:

4 And, when he sowed, some seeds fell by the way side; and the fowls came and devoured them up:

5 Some fell upon stony places, where they had not much earth: and forthwith they sprung up, because they had no deepness of earth:

6 And when the sun was up they were scorched: and, because they had not root, they withered away.

7 And some fell among thorns: and the thorns sprung up and choked them:

8 But others fell into good ground, and brought forth fruit, some an hundred fold, some sixty fold; some thirty fold.

9 Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.

10 ¶ And the disciples came, and said unto him, Why speakest thou unto them in parables?

11 He answered and said unto them, Because it is given unto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given.

12 For whosoever hath, to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance: but whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken away even that he hath.

13 Therefore speak I to them in parables: because they seeing see not; and hearing they hear not, neither do they understand.

14 And in them is fulfilled the prophecy of Esaias, which saith, By hearing ye shall hear and shall not understand; and seeing ye shall see and shall not perceive:

15 For this people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and should understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them.

16 But blessed are your eyes, for they see; and your ears, for they hear.

17 For verily I say unto you, that many prophets and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them.

18 ¶ Hear ye therefore the parable of the sower.

19 When any one heareth the word of the kingdom, and understandeth it not, then cometh the wicked one, and catcheth away that which was sown in his heart. This is he which received seed by the way side.

20 But he that received the seed into stony places, the same is he that heareth the word, and anon with joy receiveth it;

21 Yet hath he not root in himself, but dureth for a while: for when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by he is offended.

22 He also that received seed among the thorns is he that heareth the word; and the care of this world and the deceitfulness of riches choke the word, and he becometh unfruitful.

23 But he that received seed into the good ground is he that heareth the word, and understandeth it; which also beareth fruit, and bringeth forth some an hundred fold, some sixty, some thirty.

24 ¶ Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man who sowed good seed in his field:

25 But, while men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way.

26 But when the blade was sprung up, and brought forth fruit, then appeared the tares also.

27 So the servants of the householder came and said unto him, Sir, didst not thou sow good seed in thy field? from whence then hath it tares?

28 He said unto them, An enemy hath done this. The servants said unto him, Wilt thou then that we go and gather them up?

29 But he said, Nay; lest, while ye gather up the tares, ye root up also the wheat with them.

30 Let both grow together until the harvest; and in the time of harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather ye together first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them; but gather the wheat into my barn.

31 ¶ Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and sowed in his field;

32 Which indeed is the least of all seeds; but, when it is grown, it is the greatest among herbs, and becometh a

CHAP. XII. Ver. 10—15. Our Saviour taught much in parables. (1) That he might fulfil Old Testament predictions; Psal. lxxviii. 1, 2; and xlix. 3, 4; ver. 34, 35. (2) That, in manifesting the spiritual turn of his own mind, he might set us an example to improve every thing as a mean of spiritual instruction; John iii. 12, 13. (3) That he might the more effectually reprove the Jews, without putting them into a rage; chap. xxi. 28—46. (4) That he might the more easily instruct the attentive and thoughtful, in a manner, much used in the East, delightful to the mind and helpful to the memory; Hos. xii. 10. (5) That he might justly permit the blindness and ruin of such as hated instruction; ver. 13. Ver. 3—9, 18—23. The parable of the soils or sower represents the different issues of the gospel ministrations on different sorts of hearers, and the causes of them. The sower is Jesus Christ, by himself and his ministers painfully, carefully, and faithfully, preaching gospel truths, which, like good seed, are precious, uncorrupted, and calculated to produce fruits of faith and holiness, glory to God, and eternal happiness to men. The way side denotes careless hearers, who never seriously regard or think about those divine truths which they hear; while the devil and his agents divert their mind with other thoughts, to make them entirely forget them. The stony ground denotes them who hear the gospel with some delightful conceptions of its glories, sudden flashes of joy in their affections, and some slight purposes and desires towards that which is good; but, their hearts never being savingly renewed, they do not receive it by faith and love, as an abiding and governing principle of action: and hence, whenever they meet with violent and lasting temptations or persecutions for the sake of religion, they apostatize from it. The thorny ground denotes them who hear the gospel with remarkable attention, and are so affected by it that, for a considerable time, they appear to make progress in the knowledge, profession, and practice, of religion; but at last their cares about worldly things, and expectations and desires of happiness in them, and their eager pursuits after riches and pleasure, so entangle, deceive, and overset them, that they never attain to any true holiness of heart or life. The good ground denotes those hearers who receive the truths of the gospel into their hearts, renewed by the Spirit of God; and through the daily influences of his grace, improve them to their spiritual fruitfulness in holy dispositions, thoughts, words, and actions, in different degrees. 24—30, 36—43. The sowing of the good seed represents Christ as planting his grace in the hearts of men by the ministry of the gospel, to render them true members of his church: these, in due time, discover themselves by their open profession of their faith, and by their holy practice. The tares denote hypocritical professors, or ministers; these Satan, especially in a tree, so that the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches thereof.

33 ¶ Another parable spake he unto them; The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened.

34 ¶ All these things spake Jesus unto the multitude in parables; and without a parable spake he not unto them:

35 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying, 'I will open my mouth in parables, I will utter things which have been kept secret from the foundation of the world.

36 ¶ Then Jesus sent the multitude away, and went into the house: and his disciples came unto him, saying, 'Declare unto us the parable of the tares of the field.

37 He answered and said unto them, 'He that soweth the good seed is the Son of man;

38 'The field is the world; the good seed are the children of the kingdom, but the tares are the children of the wicked one;

39 'The enemy that sowed them is the devil; the harvest is the end of the world; and the reapers are the angels.

40 As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire, so shall it be in the end of this world.

41 'The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity;

42 'And shall cast them into a furnace of fire: there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

43 'Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. 'Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.

44 ¶ Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto treasure hid in a field; the which when a man hath found he hideth, and for joy thereof goeth and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field.

45 ¶ Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a merchant man seeking goodly pearls:

46 Who, when he had found one pearl of great price, went and sold all that he had, and bought it.

47 ¶ Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a net that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind:

48 'Which, when it was full, they drew to shore, and sat down, and gathered the good into vessels, but cast the bad away.

49 So shall it be at the end of the world: the angels shall come forth, and sever the wicked from among the just,

50 And shall cast them into the furnace of fire: there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

51 Jesus saith unto them, 'Have ye understood all these things? They say unto him, Yea, Lord.

52 Then said he unto them, 'Therefore every scribe, which is instructed unto the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an householder, who bringeth forth out of his treasure things new and old.

53 ¶ And it came to pass, that, when Jesus had finished these parables, he departed thence.

54 'And, when he was come into his own country, he taught them in their synagogue, insomuch that they were astonished, and said, Whence hath this man this wisdom and these mighty works?

55 'Is not this the carpenter's son? is not his mother called Mary? and his brethren, James, and Joses, and Simon, and Judas?

56 And his sisters, are they not all with us? Whence then hath this man all these things?

57 And they were offended in him. But Jesus said unto them, 'A prophet is not without honour, save in his own country, and in his own house.

58 'And he did not many mighty works there, because of their unbelief.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIII.—Astonishing was the care, the condescension, the labours, of our Redeemer to instruct men in the important truths of the gospel. And inestimably valuable and useful is his gospel, especially in its New Testament dispensation. As seed, it produces saints and good works; as leaven, it happily impregnates and captivates our hearts; as a treasure and a pearl, its blessings enrich and deck us for time and eternity; and as a net, it draws us to him, his church, and his throne. It is openly preached to all sorts of sinful men. But, through the want of inward principles of grace, the temptations of Satan and influence of the world, how diversified is its success! While God, in high sovereignty, withholds or exerts his almighty power, it is to some, through their obstinacy and perverseness, the occasion of blindness and the savour of death, and to others the mean of light and the savour of life. Nor can man expect true blessedness unless they really understand it. But, alas, many by their careless hearing, tempt Satan to carry away gospel truths from their memories, understandings, or consciences. And many, though better than others, rest short of the one thing needful. Never in this world will Satan and indwelling lusts suffer either hearts or churches to be perfectly pure. And never are either more ready to be fearfully infected than in a time of sloth, unwatchfulness, and outward prosperity. But dreadful is their destruction who, after a profession and some experience of gospel truth, die in their sins. Let me therefore take heed how I have received and heard; and think, as a member of the church, what I am. If grace be really planted in my heart, it will continue and grow notwithstanding all opposition. And, if Jesus Christ be my root, my righteousness, my riches, my ornament, great, inexpressibly great, shall be my everlasting happiness and honour! While millions are connected together for their additional misery, and are tormented in hell, I, with the ransomed of the Lord, shall triumph in the praises of his sovereign grace!—But, alas, how many, by their unbelieving prejudices against the Redeemer, obstruct their own salvation! And none are more ready to do so than they who have long, without effect, enjoyed distinguished means of grace.

time of prosperity, and when ministers and people are unwatchful, secretly raises up in the church, and causes gradually to discover themselves. It is a grief to the faithful servants and people of Christ to see the gospel so perverted and abused, by any of its preachers or professors, to the introducing of errors and immoralities into the church or world; and yet, till the harvest of the last judgment, such can never be wholly separated from the godly and faithful. 31, 32. The marvellous growth of the grain of mustard-seed represents Christ's gospel and church in the world, and his grace in the soul; extremely small and obscure in their beginnings, but gradually increasing, till they fill the heart and even the earth; so that both Jews and Gentiles find refreshment and rest in them. 33. The hidden leaven, infecting three measures of meal, represents Christ's gospel and grace implanted in the hearts of men, and secretly working with such divine efficacy as to sanctify all the faculties of the soul and members of the body, and gradually spreading themselves through all nations, to captivate them to the obedience of faith. 44. The treasure hid in the field, &c. represents Christ and the rich blessings of the gospel as lying hid in the oracles of God from carnal men; but when manifested by the Spirit, eagerly apprehended, and joyfully received into the heart; and an interest in them esteemed so valuable, that a man is ready to part with all things in the world to enjoy fellowship therein through the word. 45, 46. The pearl of great price denotes Christ and his inestimable blessings, which, being once discovered by earnest seekers after true happiness, renders them willing to part with all the riches and enjoyments of this world rather than not obtain a property therein. 47—50. The net cast into the sea, &c. represents the gospel as laboriously and faithfully preached in this confused, wicked, and unquiet world, and as being the mean of gathering multitudes, some saints and some hypocrites, into a visible church state, in which they shall remain connected till the angels make an awful separation between them in the last judgment. 52. The householder represents preachers treasuring up divine truths in their minds and hearts, that, out of the Old and New Testaments, and out of their new and old instructions, observations, and experiences, they may seasonably and profitably bring forth doctrines suited to all persons and cases.

15.AT that time ^aHerod the tetrarch heard of the fame of Jesus,2 And said unto his servants, This is John the Baptist; he is risen from the dead; and therefore mighty works ^ado shew forth themselves in him.3 ¶ ^bFor Herod had laid hold on John, and bound him, and put him in prison for Herodias' sake, his brother Philip's wife.

4 For John said unto him, 'It is not lawful for thee to have her.

5 And when he would have put him to death he feared the multitude, ^abecause they counted him as a prophet.6 But, [†]when ^aHerod's birthday was kept, the daughter of Herodias danced before them, and pleased Herod.7 Whereupon ^ahe promised with an oath to give her whatsoever she would ask.

8 And she, being before instructed of her mother, said, 'Give me here John Baptist's head in a charger.

9 And the king was ^bsorry: ^anevertheless, for the oath's sake and them which sat with him at meat, he commanded it to be given her.10 And he sent, and ^kbeheaded John in the prison.11 And his head was brought in a charger, and given to the damsel: and she brought it to her mother.12 ^aAnd his disciples came, and took up the body, and buried it, and went and told Jesus.13 ¶ ^aWhen Jesus heard of it, he departed thence by ship into a desert place apart: and, when the people had heard thereof, they followed him on foot out of the cities.14 ^aAnd Jesus went forth, and saw a great multitude, and was moved with compassion toward them, and he healed their sick.15 ^aAnd when it was evening his disciples came to him, saying, This is a desert place, and the time is now past; send the multitude away, that they may go into the villages, and buy themselves victuals.16 But Jesus said unto them, ^pThey need not depart; give ye them to eat.

17 And they say unto him, We have here but five loaves and two fishes.

18 He said, Bring them hither to me.

19 And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the grass, and took the five loaves, and the two fishes, and, ^alooking up to heaven, he blessed, andbroke, and gave the loaves to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude.20 And they ^adid all eat, and were filled: and they took up of the fragments that remained twelve baskets full.

21 And they that had eaten were about five thousand men, beside women and children.

22 ¶ ^aAnd straightway Jesus constrained his disciples to get into a ship, and to go before him unto the other side, while he sent the multitudes away.23 And, when he had sent the multitudes away, he went up ^ainto a mountain apart to pray: and when the evening was come he was there alone.

24 But the ship was now in the midst of the sea, tossed with waves; for the wind was contrary.

25 And in ^athe fourth watch of the night Jesus went unto them, walking on the sea.26 And, when the disciples saw him walking on the sea, they ^awere troubled, saying, It is a spirit: and they cried out for fear.27 But straightway Jesus spake unto them, saying, ^aBe of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid.28 And Peter answered him, and said, Lord, if it be thou, ^abid me come unto thee on the water.

29 And he said, Come. And, when Peter was come down out of the ship, he walked on the water, to go to Jesus.

30 But, ^awhen he saw the wind [†]boisterous, he was afraid; and, beginning to sink, he cried, saying, Lord, save me!31 And ^aimmediately Jesus stretched forth his hand, and caught him, and said unto him, 'O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?32 And ^awhen they were come into the ship the wind ceased.33 ^aThen they that were in the ship came and worshipped him, saying, Of a truth thou art the Son of God.34 ¶ ^aAnd, when they were gone over, they came into the land of [¶]Genesaret.35 And, when the men of that place had knowledge of him, ^athey sent out into all that country round about, and brought unto him all that were diseased;36 And besought him that they might ^aonly touch the hem of his garment: and as many as touched were made perfectly whole.

CHAP. XV.

Christ here (1) Reproves the scribes and Pharisees for traditions which led them to violate God's law and dissemble in his wor-

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIV.—God's faithful ministers are great tormentors to them who, like devils, continue in penitence under awful convictions. Faithful reproofs, especially of great men, often procure the most inveterate resentment; in the prosecution of which all bounds of humanity, honour, justice, or gratitude, are trampled under foot; and profane swearing, cruelty, and murder, are combined to resent the distinguished kindness. Never are the lusts of sinners more ready to rage than when intoxicated with carnal mirth; and none are more cruel and bloody monsters than abandoned women. But if friends die and enemies rage, let us go to Jesus, and pour out our complaints to him; and, if he withdraw, let us follow him the more eagerly. In so doing we may be reduced to straits, but never to ruin. His compassion is as unbounded as his power. And none need ever depart from him to seek happiness or subsistence from the creature. It is his to feed the hungry, to save the drowning, and to heal the diseased, when brought to the utmost extremity. Let me then cast all my care upon him, rest contented with my lot, and readily distribute to others. None ever lost, but gained, by prudently giving to the Lord and the poor. His blessing multiplies provision, but never allows to make waste. Yea, the truly liberal will be the best economists. After sermons and miracles, as well as before, let me give myself to solemn prayer. Let me never be stumbled if I meet with terrible storms in the way of my duty, never dread Christ's hatred of, or unconcern about me; nor ever start back from my mercy, as if I took my Saviour for Satan. If he comfort me, cheerfully should I trust in, and cry to him; but never tempt his providence, even through desire to be with him. My staggering, though unfailing, faith will quickly bewray my rashness, and draw out his sharp, but kind, rebuke. Thrice happy are they who live near to Jesus, and employ him in every distress. No storm, no disease, can defy his power or kindness.

I am indeed vile, worthless, and undeserving! yet, as there are blessings enough for the Jews, and to spare for us Gentiles, let me have this one so necessary mercy.

CHAP. XVI.

Contains four of Christ's discourses. (1) He reproveth the stupidity and perverseness of the Pharisees and Sadducees, who challenged him to give them a sign from heaven, to attest his commission; 1—4. (2) Warns his disciples to beware of the infectious errors of the Pharisees; and upbraids them for not understanding him; 5—12. (3) After enquiring who he was thought to be, he owns himself the Messiah, and the foundation on which he would build his gospel church, and make his disciples ministers in it; 13—20. (4) With a rebuke to Peter, he foretells his own sufferings for his people; 21—23: and what they must suffer for his sake, in hopes of being glorified together with him; 24—28.

THE Pharisees also with the Sadducees came, and, tempting, desired him that he would shew them a sign from heaven.

2 He answered and said unto them, When it is evening, ye say, It will be fair weather; for the sky is red.

3 And in the morning, It will be foul weather to-day; for the sky is red and lowring. O ye hypocrites, ye can discern the face of the sky; but can ye not discern the signs of the times?

4 A wicked and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign; and there shall no sign be given unto it, but the sign of the prophet Jonas. And he left them, and departed.

5 And, when his disciples were come to the other side, they had forgotten to take bread.

6 Then Jesus said unto them, Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees.

7 And they reasoned among themselves, saying, It is because we have taken no bread.

8 Which when Jesus perceived, he said unto them, O ye of little faith, why reason ye among yourselves, because ye have brought no bread?

9 Do ye not yet understand, neither remember the five loaves of the five thousand, and how many baskets ye took up?

10 Neither the seven loaves of the four thousand, and how many baskets ye took up?

11 How is it that ye do not understand that I spake it not to you concerning bread, that ye should beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees?

12 Then understood they how that he bade them not beware of the leaven of bread, but of the doctrine of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees.

13 ¶ When Jesus came into the coasts of Cesarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, Whom do men say that I the Son of man am?

14 And they said, Some say that thou art John the Baptist; some, Elias; and others, Jeremias, or one of the prophets.

15 He saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am?

16 And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ the Son of the living God.

17 And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona; for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven.

18 And I say also unto thee, that thou art Peter; and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.

19 And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven.

20 Then charged he his disciples that they should tell no man that he was Jesus the Christ.

21 ¶ From that time forth began Jesus to shew unto his disciples how that he must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised again the third day.

22 Then Peter took him, and began to rebuke him, saying, Be it far from thee, Lord: this shall not be unto thee.

23 But he turned, and said unto Peter, Get thee behind me, Satan thou art an offence unto me; for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men.

24 ¶ Then said Jesus unto his dis-of miseries and wants, let us bring all to Christ, that, to his own glory, he may heal the former and supply the latter.

CHAP. XVI. Ver. 3. What amazing blindness and obstinacy hinders your discerning, from the ancient prophecies fulfilled in me, and from my numerous miracles, that the Messiah is now come to set up his kingdom among you, and that your ruin is hastening apace for rejecting him. 18, 19. Upon this my person, and the truth which you have confessed concerning it, will I establish my gospel church, in all its ordinances, and believing members, as upon a sure, immovable, and everlasting foundation: and neither the policy nor force of devils or men, nor the power of death, can remove them from it, nor root my interest out of the world. And I will authorize you and your fellow disciples, and other faithful ministers, in my name to declare what practices are lawful and what not; and so to charge men with, or acquit them from, guilt in your preaching; and to inflict censures on the scandalous, and absolve the penitent. And, whatever is done agreeably to my laws, shall be ratified in heaven, and confirmed in the last judgment.

20. He prohibited them from declaring that he was the Messiah, lest his enemies should be too early provoked to destroy him; lest his carnal admirers should tumultuously attempt to make him a king; and lest the Jews should, beforehand, be prejudiced against the testimony of the disciples. 23. In this, actuated by Satan, and serving his interest, you act the part of an adversary to me, from a regard to carnal honour, ease, or pleasure, attempting to rob me and my Father of our intended honour in the salvation of

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XV.—The contemners of God's laws are ordinarily mad with zeal for the traditions and ceremonies of men.—A certain mark of detestable hypocrisy; All human inventions in religion invade the authority, and pollute the worship, of God; and mislead the hearts, and corrupt the practices, of men. May God root them out of his church and out of our heart, that we ourselves may not, on their account, be excluded from his kingdom. How certainly sinners shall be damned! and false teachers push themselves and followers hastily into the depths of hell! Yea, none are further from the light of God's truth than implicit votaries of profane ministers, and especially preachers who are puffed up with a conceit of their own wisdom. How dull, how slow of heart, to conceive the things of practical religion, are even real saints! And, alas, what a sink, what a source, of abominations is the human heart! Dreadful and extensive is the defilement which it spreads abroad into the life! And infinitely important and necessary is the purification from it, by the word, the Spirit, and the blood of Christ! Kind and honourable are those parents who bring their children to Jesus, and will not be denied his blessings. Graciously he travels to meet distressed sinners; and yet he often tries those most for whom he has the strongest affection, and for whom he intends the most speedy deliverances and most distinguished honours. Strong is the power of faith, when he animates and strengthens it under trials. It breaks through every discouragement, and lays hold on the most indirect hints of mercy. And great is the honour it gains in thus honouring Christ. His repeated apparent disregards do but usher in the most advantageous fulfilment of all its requests. And since this world is so full ciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.

25 ^aFor whosoever will save his life shall lose it; and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it.

26 ^bFor what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

27 ^cFor the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works.

28 Verily I say unto you, ^dThere be some standing here who shall not taste of death till they see the Son of man coming in his kingdom.

CHAP. XVII.

Here (1) Christ is gloriously transfigured on the mount, before Peter, James, and John; he charges them to conceal it, and shews them that John Baptist was the predicted Elias; 1—13. (2) He casts out a stubborn devil from a child, which his disciples, through their own and the spectators' unbelief, could not; 14—21. (3) He repeatedly foretells his own sufferings and resurrection; 9, 12, 22, 23. (4) With money, brought by a fish, he pays tribute to the Romans, or the temple; 24—27.

A^d after six days Jesus taketh ^bPeter, James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into an high mountain apart, 2 ^cAnd was transfigured before them: and his face did shine as the sun, and his raiment was white as the light.

3 ^dAnd, behold, there appeared unto them Moses and Elias talking with him.

4 Then answered Peter, and said unto Jesus, Lord, it is good for us to be here: if thou wilt, let us make here three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias.

5 ^eWhile he yet spake, behold, a bright cloud overshadowed them: and, behold, a voice out of the cloud, which said, This is ^fmy beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; ^ghear ye him.

6 And when the disciples heard ^hit they fell on their face, and were sore afraid.

7 And Jesus came and ⁱtoucheth them, and said, Arise, and be not afraid.

8 And when they had lifted up their eyes they saw no man, save Jesus only.

9 And as they came down from the mountain Jesus ^kcharged them, saying, sinners. 24—26. And, as I must be perfected by sufferings, every one that heartily resolves to be my disciple must deny his own carnal interests, wisdom, and will, and with faith and patience, and resignation to God's will, readily submit to whatever losses and persecution he may meet with in following my example and obeying my commands; for he that attempts to preserve his temporal enjoyments, or life, by sinful compliances and apostasy, shall thereby plunge himself into endless destruction; and he that, on account of his faith in, or obedience to, me, readily parts with his temporal life, shall obtain everlasting life in heaven, as his gracious reward; for what could all the riches, honours, and pleasures, which this world affords, avail a man, if, through his inordinate affection to them, he should lose the welfare, peace, and happiness of his immortal soul! or by what could he redeem his soul from the damnation of hell! 27, 28. For I, who am now attended with all the mean circumstances and sinless infirmities of human nature, will, in the last day, gloriously appear, and adjudge men to eternal life or death, according as their works shall manifest them righteous or wicked: as an earnest of which, some of you present shall, before they die, see me appear gloriously transfigured, and powerfully erecting my gospel church in the abolition of ceremonial ordinances, and awfully destroying the city, temple, and nation of the Jews, for their obstinacy and unbelief.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVI.—Wicked men of every sort heartily unite against Jesus, his interests, and people. And men, who condemn sufficient evidence of divine truth, generally insist upon more. The wisest, with respect to temporal concerns, are often quite blind and stupid with respect to what is plain, but spiritual. And it is just that Christ should quickly abandon men who remain obstinate in their unbelief. It is very absurd for the children of God to Tell the vision to no man, until the Son of man be risen again from the dead.

10 ¶ And his disciples asked him, saying, Why then say the scribes that ^lElias must first come?

11 And Jesus answered and said unto them, ^mElias truly shall first come, and restore all things:

12 But I say unto you, that Elias is come already, and they knew him not, but have done unto him whatsoever they listed: ⁿlikewise shall also the Son of man suffer of them.

13 Then the disciples understood that he spake unto them of John the Baptist.

14 ¶ And when they were come to the multitude there came to him a ^ocertain man, kneeling down to him, and saying,

15 ^pLord, have mercy on my son: ^qfor he is lunatic, and sore vexed: for oft times he falleth into the fire, and oft into the water.

16 And ^rI brought him to thy disciples, and they could not cure him.

17 Then Jesus answered and said, ^sO faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I suffer you? bring him hither to me.

18 ^tAnd Jesus rebuked the devil, and he departed out of him: and the child was cured from that very hour.

19 ^uThen came the disciples to Jesus apart, and said, Why could not we cast him out?

20 And Jesus said unto them, ^vBecause of your unbelief: for verily I say unto you, ^wIf ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove: and ^xnothing shall be impossible unto you.

21 Howbeit, this kind goeth not out but by ^yprayer and fasting.

22 ¶ And while they abode in Galilee Jesus said unto them, The Son of man shall be betrayed into the hands of men:

23 And they shall kill him, and the third day he shall be raised again. And ^zthey were exceeding sorry.

24 ¶ And, when they were come to Capernaum, they that received ^{aa}tribute money came to Peter, and said, Doth not your master pay tribute?

indulge carnal fears about the necessities of this life, when his remarkable former interpositions have outdone every expectation or wish. Alas, what diversified and ignorant conceptions of Christ prevail with many church members! But happy are they who are divinely enlightened, united to, and built on him, as their sure foundation. No plots, no attempts of hell or earth, can ruin them. All the powers, all the ordinances or officers, which he has granted to his church, concur to their establishment and happiness. His sufferings purchased it, and his glories secure it. God lifts up his people, and casts them down again. And never are they more ready to stumble than after they have been highly honoured by God. Left but a moment to themselves, they bend under the power of the devil. Maxims of carnal policy, and desires of temporal ease and honour, strongly tempt them to shun hardships in religion. But self-denial and obedidential submission to crosses are principal articles in following of Christ. If we hope to live and reign with him in his kingdom and glory, we must be ready to endure tribulation and death for his sake. To ruin our soul in denying our Redeemer is infinitely criminal and foolish: nor can created enjoyments ever balance or retrieve our loss. Let me then never barter my soul for a few trifles! For, if it be once lost, it is lost—it is damned—for ever! And even the glories of a Saviour will but secure and aggravate my eternal misery.

CHAP. XVII. Ver. 17. He here rebukes the father and his disciples for their weakness of faith, and the audience for their obstinate unbelief, and readiness to reflect upon him in the weakness of his disciples. 20—21. By a sincere faith in my power and promise, and through my assistance, ye shall be able to discharge and approve your office in doing things seemingly impossible. But such kind of faith must be exercised in the use of much fervent prayer and humiliation, without which you cannot expect to dislodge devils of so powerful and obstinate a kind as this is.

CHAP. XVIII.

Contains Christ's discourses. (1) By the emblem of a little child, he inculcates humility in disposition and behaviour; 1—6. (2) Solemnly warns us against making ourselves or others offend, or stumble into sin; 7—14. (3) Directs how to reprove and purge out scandalous offences; 15—20. (4) Inculcates, and, by the parable of the indebted servants, enforces the cheerful forgiveness of personal injuries; 21—35.

AT the same time came the disciples unto Jesus, saying, Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?

2 And Jesus called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them,

3 And said, Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.

4 Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven.

5 And whoso shall receive one such little child in my name receiveth me.

6 But whoso shall offend one of these little ones who believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea.

7 ¶ Wo unto the world because of offences! for it must needs be that offences come; but wo to that man by whom the offence cometh!

8 Wherefore, if thy hand or thy foot offend thee, cut them off, and cast them from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life halt or maimed, rather than, having two hands or two feet, to be cast into everlasting fire.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVII.—How mixed was the lot of our Redeemer in this world! How quickly lifted up and cast down again! Now he shines in glory; anon he is plunged into sufferings and death. Now devils and distempers flee before his infinite power and grace; anon he is discredited, or ill understood, by weak disciples, and despised by faithless and perverse Jews. Possessed of all the fulness of Godhead—of all the riches of heaven and earth—he humbly, but miraculously, borrows his tribute money from a fish, to avoid giving offence. But his resurrection from the dead wiped away all his reproach, and rendered illustrious his deepest debasement. If Moses and Elias have, in solemn manner, resigned to him all their powers and honours, let me hear him as my great, my only divine prophet! Let me rejoice in his dearness to God, and exalted dominion over men! Let me lift up my heart, and retire from the world, to hold fellowship with him, and prolong his visits to the utmost! Let no danger, no guilt, terrify my heart, while I enjoy the great Propitiation and Saviour! If the choicest saints forsake me, it is enough that Jesus remains to comfort me. Ravishing discoveries of him on earth are indeed but short lived; and suffering is the certain fate of all his followers.—I must return to depths of temptation, desertion, and trouble, in which my fellow Christians have often laboriously struggled with stubborn devils and indwelling lusts. But, if I or my friends experience their uncommon cruelty, let me with fervour and humility supplicate Jesus for relief. And let want or weakness of faith, which marr my duty and obstruct my mercies, be the grief, the burden, the detestation of my heart. And, while through manifold tribulations I follow him to his kingdom and glory, let me carefully avoid whatever could prejudice others against him, his doctrines, or ways. It is better to wave my right, and open my purse, than dishonour my Redeemer.

CHAP. XVIII. Ver. 1—6. His disciples having contended which of them should be preferred to the highest places of honour and trust in the temporal kingdom which they imagined he would quickly set up, Jesus presented a little child before them, and told them that, unless their minds were graciously weaned from such carnal ambition, and rendered truly humble, after the appearance of 9 And, if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye, rather than, having two eyes, to be cast into hell fire.

10 ¶ Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; for I say unto you, that in heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father who is in heaven.

11 For the Son of man is come to save that which was lost.

12 How think ye? if a man have an hundred sheep, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leave the ninety and nine, and goeth into the mountains, and seeketh that which is gone astray?

13 And, if so be that he find it, verily I say unto you, he rejoiceth more of that sheep than of the ninety and nine which went not astray.

14 Even so it is not the will of your Father who is in heaven that one of these little ones should perish.

15 ¶ Moreover, if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone: if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother:

16 But, if he will not hear thee, then take with thee one or two more, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established.

17 And, if he shall neglect to hear them, tell it unto the church: but, if he neglect to hear the church, let him be unto thee as an heathen man and a publican.

18 Verily I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever ye shall loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven.

19 Again I say unto you, That, if two of you shall agree on earth as touching any thing that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father who is in heaven.

20 For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them.

21 ¶ Then came Peter to him, and said, Lord, how oft shall my brother sin that child, they could neither be members nor honoured officers in his gospel kingdom, nor be admitted into the glories of the heavenly state; and that whoever of them affectionately regarded any of his humble, however mean, disciples, as such, should be esteemed as honouring himself; and that whoever should dishearten such weak, but humble believers, and cause them to stumble into sin, should be exposed to the most certain and fearful punishments. 7—9. Dreadful hurt shall the world sustain through the corrupt opinions and practices by which Satan and his instruments will attempt to discourage, injure, and ensnare weak believers; but most dreadful shall be the punishment of that man whose sinful and mischievous behaviour perverts and draws others into evil. If therefore any thing, however useful or dear to you, tend to make you injure the cause of truth, peace, and holiness, to the grieving or tempting of my people, it would be much better for you to part with it, by the most self-denying and painful mortification, than, by indulging it, to hazard your own eternal damnation. 10—14. It is infinitely criminal and dangerous to contemn or discourage weak believers, whom the angels of God, on all occasions, watch over and minister unto; whom the Son of God came to save from the depths of ruin, and takes an especial pleasure in preserving and recovering when they have gone astray; and whom the Father, with infinite pleasure, hath determined to render eternally happy. 15—17. If any of your fellow professors of the true religion by any sinful conduct grieve or tempt you to sin, deal freely with him in a secret manner, in order to render him truly sensible of and penitent for it: and, if he appear so, with joy renew your affection, and conceal his transgression from others. If he appear obstinate, take one or two prudent Christians along with you, and deal earnestly and plainly with his conscience, to render him penitent. If he still continue obstinate in his sin, lay his case before that church judicatory to which he is immediately subjected; and if, notwithstanding all they can do to convince and reclaim him, he still continue obstinate, let him be solemnly cast out of the church by excommunication; and let all her members avoid all unnecessary fellowship with him, even in civil things, that he may be ashamed and made to consider his conduct. 18—20. And that the censures may be confirmed and ratified by me and my Father, it is necessary that they be regularly

CHAP. XIX.

Christ comes from Galilee near Judea, and heals multitudes;
1, 2. (2) States the case of divorces and marriages; 3—12.
(3) Blesses young children brought to him; 13—15. (4) Discovers the defect of the rich young man who desired to know the way to eternal life, and pretended that he had kept all the commandments; 16—22. (5) Represents the difficulty of rich men's salvation, and the rich reward of leaving all worldly enjoyments for his sake; 23—30.

AND it came to pass ^athat, when Jesus had finished these sayings, he passed in my name, and carried on with much fervent prayer. 23—35. The scope of this parable is to represent that nothing is more base, criminal, and dangerous, than for such as profess to believe God's remission of all their high crimes against him, to resent the petty injuries done to themselves; and that, though the revengefulness of believers shall not be punished with eternal damna-tion, it will expose them to fearful chastisements in this life.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVIII.—An eager ambition after worldly honour is very unlike the disciples and kingdom of Christ. And there is great need of a daily conversion to God from the errors of our way. What tender care Jesus takes of his saints, especially if weak and humble! His angels watch over, protect, and minister to them. At his Father's commandment he died for them, and seeks them out when they wander. He hears their prayers, and attends their societies. It is inexpressibly dangerous to grieve their hearts, or to make them stumble into sin, or for them to indulge any darling corruption. But it is very base and criminal for Christians to pay so little regard to their God, their departed from Galilee, and came into the coasts of Judea beyond Jordan :

2^b And great multitudes followed him ;
and he healed them there.

3 ¶ ^c The Pharisees also came unto him, tempting him, and saying unto him, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause ?

4 And he answered and said unto them,
Have ye not read, ^d that he which made them at the beginning made them male and female ;

5 And said, ^e For this cause shall a man leave father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife ; and ^f they twain shall be one flesh ?

6 Wherefore they are no more twain, but one flesh. What therefore God hath joined together ^g let not man put asunder.

7 They say unto him, ^h Why did Moses then command to give a writing of divorcement, and to put her away ?

8 He saith unto them, Moses, because of ⁱ the hardness of your hearts, ^{*} suffered you to put away your wives : ^k but from the beginning it was not so.

9 ^l And I say unto you, Whosoever shall put away his wife, except it be for fornication, and shall marry another, committeth adultery : and whoso marrieth her which is put away doth commit adultery.

10 His disciples say unto him, If the case of the man be so with his wife, ^m it is not good to marry.

11 But he said unto them, ⁿ All men cannot receive this saying, save they to whom it is given.

12 For there are some ^o eunuchs which were so born from their mother's womb :
and there are some eunuchs which were made eunuchs of men : and there be eunuchs which have made themselves eunuchs for the kingdom of heaven's sake. He that is able to receive it, let him receive it.

13 ¶ ^p Then were there brought unto him little children, that he should put his hands on them, and pray. And the disciples rebuked them.

14 But Jesus said, ^q Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me ; for of such is the kingdom of heaven.

15 And ^r he laid his hands on them, and departed thence.

16 ¶ ^s And, behold, one came, and said unto him, Good master, ^t what good thing shall I do that I may have eternal life ?

17 And he said unto him, Why callest

Saviour's rules for removing of scandals ; and to be more careful to render an offender infamous than to bring him to repentance. Thrice happy are the churches where these rules are attended to without passion or prejudice, and with a readiness to forgive. Awful are church censures when regularly passed :
and heinous is their guilt, and infinite their danger, who dare wilfully incur, or profanely despise, what is ratified in heaven. How inconceivably great and many are our offences against God ! He keeps an exact account of them all, in every circumstance of them ! And infinite is the mercy of a reprieve, and especially of a redemption, from their awful consequences in hell. But detestable both to God and men is a revengeful temper or conduct in a professed Christian ; and such may expect great plagues and torments from God in time or eternity.

CHAP. XIX. Ver. 17. Why do you call me good in this emphatic manner, when you conceive me to be a mere man ? There is none good in and from himself but God alone. But, if you desire to work righteousness in order to procure a title to eternal life, you must perfectly keep all to commandments of thou me good? there is none good but one, that is God: but, if thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments.

18 He saith unto him, Which? Jesus said, Thou shalt do no murder, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, 19 Honour thy father and thy mother: and, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

20 The young man saith unto him, All these things have I kept from my youth up: what lack I yet?

21 Jesus said unto him, If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come and follow me.

22 But, when the young man heard that saying, he went away sorrowful: for he had great possessions.

23 ¶ Then said Jesus unto his disciples, Verily I say unto you, that a rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven.

24 And again I say unto you, It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

25 When his disciples heard it they were exceedingly amazed, saying, Who then can be saved?

26 But Jesus beheld them, and said unto them, With men this is impossible, but with God all things are possible.

27 ¶ Then answered Peter and said unto him, Behold, we have forsaken all, and followed thee; what shall we have therefore?

28 And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, that ye which have followed me in the regeneration, when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

29 And every one that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive an hundred fold, and shall inherit everlasting life.

30 But many that are first shall be last; and the last shall be first.

God. 21. To mark your perfect love to your neighbour, and that your affections are weaned from earthly enjoyments, go sell your whole estate, and give it to the poor in these distressing times, and come and follow me in my poverty and sufferings. 22—30. Ye, who through the regenerating influences of my Spirit, have attended and assisted me in my attempts to reform the nation, and introduce the gospel dispensation, shall, upon my ascension to heaven, be honoured with the distinguished effusion of the Holy Ghost, to render you leading officers in founding the gospel church: and in my appearing to destroy Jerusalem, your predictions shall be fulfilled, and your characters vindicated. In the latter days, your Jewish brethren shall be converted by your doctrines; and, in the last judgment, ye shall be most honoured approvers of the sentence which I shall pass according to my gospel dispensed by you. And all they, who conscientiously suffer losses in their temporal interests or enjoyments for my sake, shall in this life have their losses graciously compensated, to their unspeakable advantage, in inward contentment, and divine consolations and hopes, if not in other external comforts; and in eternal glories in the future state. And yet, to manifest the sovereignty of redeeming grace in all this, many Jews, who are first called, and apparently more fitted to receive me, shall be rejected for their unbelief, while the Gentile strangers to the covenants of promise shall, through faith, be admitted to all the blessings of my kingdom of grace and glory. And even some Jews, more early converted, shall have less honour or usefulness in my church, than some Gentiles who shall be afterwards brought to believe.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIX.—Indefatigable was the gracious Redeemer in doing good wherever he came: prudent in avoiding the snares of his malicious enemies; careful to honour, regulate, and perpetuate, every divine institution which related to the raising up of an holy seed in his church; and de-

CHAP. XX.

Here (1) Christ illustrates the last verse of the preceding chapter by the parable of the labourers in the vineyard; 1—16. (2) Again foretells his approaching sufferings and resurrection; 17—19. (3) Sharply reproves an ambitious petition, in favour of James and John, for distinguished honours in his kingdom; and allots them a likeness to him in suffering; 20—28. (4) Grants the petition of two blind men, and opens their eyes; 29—34.

FOR the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an householder, who went out early in the morning to hire labourers into his vineyard.

2 And, when he had agreed with the labourers for a penny a day, he sent them into his vineyard.

3 And he went out about the third hour, and saw others standing idle in the market place;

4 And said unto them, Go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you. And they went their way.

5 Again he went out about the sixth and ninth hour, and did likewise.

6 And about the eleventh hour he went out, and found others standing idle, and saith unto them, Why stand ye here all the day idle?

7 They say unto him, Because no man hath hired us. He saith unto them, Go, ye also into the vineyard; and whatsoever is right that shall ye receive.

8 So when even was come the lord of the vineyard saith unto his steward, Call the labourers, and give them their hire, beginning from the last unto the first.

9 And when they came that were hired about the eleventh hour, they received every man a penny.

10 But, when the first came, they supposed that they should have received more; and they likewise received every man a penny.

11 And when they had received it they murmured against the good man of the house, 12 Saying, These last have wrought but one hour, and thou hast made them equal unto us who have borne the burden and heat of the day.

13 But he answered one of them, and said, Friend, I do thee no wrong: didst not thou agree with me for a penny?

lighted with the early and earnest dedication of children to himself. It is cruel then to deprive young subjects of his kingdom, of the seal of his covenant; and criminal to pretend that his incarnation, labours, and glory, abridge the privileges of his chosen. Very important and necessary is a deep concern about the true way to everlasting life; nor can it be obtained but by a perfect righteousness, answerable to the whole law of God: and where can this be found but in Christ? Alas, that multitudes should hope to find it in their own works! and yet those who highly extol and heartily trust in their good works, very seldom remarkably abound in them. And their defect quickly appears if they be tried in what lies opposite to their carnal inclinations and interests. The riches and love of this world are most powerful hindrances to our care about, or progress towards, heaven; and only Almighty grace can conquer the heart and remove the difficulty. In faithfully following Christ, we must expect manifold losses and troubles in this world. But, if we undergo them from love to him, his truths and ways, his blessings here and glories hereafter will inexpressibly more than compensate. And, whether we be first or last in time or in dignity, all must be regulated by the exceeding riches of his grace.

CHAP. XX. Ver. 1—16. The vineyard here is the church, formed by infinite wisdom, power, and grace, from the world that lieth in wickedness, and furnished with divine oracles, ordinances, and officers; hedged about by God's special protection, government, and discipline, and cultivated by his Spirit, ministers, and people. The 3d, 6th, 9th, and 11th hours, may represent the patriarchal, Mosaic, apostolic, and millennial periods of the church; or the periods of human life, childhood, youth, middle and old age, in which different persons are called and converted to Christ, that they may serve him in his church. But, as the kingdom of heaven chiefly denotes the gospel church, the 3d, 6th, and

THE MOTHER OF ZEBEDEE'S CHILDREN PETITIONING FOR HER TWO SONS.

Matthew 20:20.

London Printed for Tho^s Kelly, 17, Paternoster Row.

14 Take that thine is, and go thy way: I will give unto this last even as unto thee.

15 "Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? 'is thine eye evil because I am good?"

16 "So the last shall be first, and the first last: for many be called, but few chosen.

17 ¶ And Jesus, going up to Jerusalem, took the twelve disciples apart in the way, and said unto them,

18 Behold, we go up to Jerusalem, and the Son of man shall be betrayed unto the chief priests and unto the scribes, and they shall condemn him to death, 19 And shall deliver him to the Gentiles to mock, and to scourge, and to crucify him: and the third day he shall rise again.

20 ¶ Then came to him the "mother of Zebedee's children, with her sons, worshipping him, and desiring a certain thing of him.

21 And he said unto her, What wilt thou? She saith unto him, Grant that these my two sons may sit, the one on thy right hand and the other on the left in thy kingdom.

22 But Jesus answered and said, Ye know not what ye ask. Are ye able to drink of the cup that I shall drink of, and to be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with? they say unto him, We are able.

23 And he saith unto them, Ye shall drink indeed of my cup, and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with: but to sit on my right hand and on my left is not mine to give, but to them for whom it is prepared of my Father.

24 And when the ten heard it they were moved with indignation against the two brethren.

25 But Jesus called them unto him, and said, Ye know that the princes of the Gentiles exercise dominion over them, and they that are great exercise authority upon them.

26 But it shall not be so among you: but whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister;

27 And whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant:

28 "Even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.

29 ¶ And as they departed from Jericho a great multitude followed him.

30 And, behold, two blind men sitting by the way side, when they heard that Jesus passed by, cried out, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou Son of David!

31 And the multitude rebuked them, because they should hold their peace: but they cried the more, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou Son of David!

32 And Jesus stood still, and called them, and said, What will ye that I shall do unto you?

33 They say unto him, Lord, that our eyes may be opened.

34 So Jesus had compassion on them, and touched their eyes: and immediately their eyes received sight, and they followed him.

CHAP. XXI.

Brings us to the last week of Christ's life. (1) He triumphantly enters Jerusalem riding on an ass, amidst the loud acclamations of the people; 1—11. (2) As Head of the church, he again expels the buyers and sellers from the temple; 12—16. (3) In making the barren fig-tree to wither by his curse, he represented what would quickly come upon the Jewish church and nation; 17—22. (4) He justifies his own authority, by appealing to the baptism of John, which his enemies durst not say was of men; 23—27. (5) He shames the infidelity of the chief priests and elders by the repentance of the publicans, illustrated in the parable of the two sons; 29—32. (6) He foretells the fearful doom of the Jewish church for its unfruitfulness in the parable of the vineyard let out to husbandmen; 33—46.

AND when they drew nigh unto Jerusalem, and were come to Bethphage, unto the mount of Olives, then sent Jesus two disciples,

2 Saying unto them, Go into the village over against you, and straightway ye shall find an ass tied, and a colt with her: loose them, and bring them unto me.

3 And if any man say ought unto you, ye shall say, The Lord hath need of them; and straightway he will send them.

4 All this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying, was to be most humble, self-denied, and active, in doing even the meanest services for the benefit of others;—even as he himself, notwithstanding his infinite glory, had come into this world to submit to the meanest services, and even an ignominious death, for the redemption of multitudes of poor sinners.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XX.—Free and sovereign is the redeeming grace of God: the most unlikely are often effectually called, and that sooner or later, according to his good pleasure. And the latest called and converted often attain the highest privileges of grace and glory; while others, who seemed to stand fair for them, fall short. But how absurd is it for any to complain, when all is a gift of free grace! Gospel hearers have great need to take heed, and to strive to enter in at the strait gate, when so few of their number are ever effectually called according to the purpose of God! While I enjoy my life, and have the offers of salvation, let me flee to the once suffering, but now exalted, Redeemer for relief! In old age I may perhaps be converted; but after death it is impossible—all is then lost for ever! Alas, that the followers of the lowly and suffering Jesus should so indulge themselves in carnal imaginations and worldly ambition; and that clergymen, by their pride, should so plague that church which he hath purchased by his blood, and taught humility by his example! Let me vie with others in humility, holiness, and usefulness, and in patient suffering, in hopes of a crown of life. Deeply sensible of my maladies, let me always apply to Jesus Christ for relief. Confident faith, deep humility, and fervent prayer, never return from him without a gracious answer. And, the more he does for me, let me cleave the closer to his word, his Spirit, his person, his example, his ordinances, and cause.

9th, hours, chiefly denote those periods in which the Jews were called and converted by the ministry of John and Christ, or of his apostles, for some years after his ascension. The 11th hour may denote that period in which the Gentiles have, or shall be, converted to Christ by the apostles, and other gospel ministers, after they had been, for many ages, abandoned to idolatries, and destitute of the ordinances and calls of the gospel. The penny of reward denotes all the privileges of the gospel church, and all the blessings of grace and glory. At God's giving these to the Gentiles equally as to themselves, who had been long the peculiar people of God, and who had long served him in burdensome ceremonies, the Jews, and even the real converts among them, exceedingly murmured: not considering that all the favours of God spring entirely from his own free grace; and that many are outwardly called by the ministry of the gospel, and made members of the visible church, who fall short, through their self-conceit and unbelief, while few are chosen of God to eternal life, and effectually called according to his purpose. 21—23. Let my sons, who are now thy constant favourites, be next in honour and authority to thyself in that kingdom which thou art about to erect. Jesus replied, that they appeared quite ignorant of the nature and honours of his kingdom, and that they must expect terrible persecutions, reproaches, and distresses, as he himself had, or should suffer; but that all the honours of his kingdom would be conferred by him merely as had from eternity been settled in the purpose of God. 24—28. The other ten apostles being filled with envy and resentment against the two brothers, for attempting to procure a pre-eminence above themselves, Jesus meekly reproveth them altogether; and told them that a carnal and heathenish ambition for lordly dominion over others was very contrary to the nature and design of his spiritual kingdom; and that their only proper way to become truly great and honourable in his church

6 And the disciples went, and did as Jesus commanded them;

7 And brought the ass, and the colt, and put on them their clothes, and they set him thereon.

8 And a very great multitude spread their garments in the way; others cut down branches from the trees, and strewed them in the way.

9 And the multitudes that went before, and that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna to the Son of David: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord; Hosanna in the highest!

10 And, when he was come into Jerusalem, all the city was moved, saying, Who is this?

11 And the multitude said, This is Jesus the prophet of Nazareth of Galilee.

12 And Jesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the money changers, and the seats of them that sold doves, 13 And said unto them, It is written, My house shall be called the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves.

14 And the blind and the lame came to him in the temple; and he healed them.

15 And when the chief priests and scribes saw the wonderful things that he did, and the children crying in the temple, and saying, Hosanna to the Son of David! they were sore displeased, 16 And said unto him, Hearest thou what these say? And Jesus saith unto them, Yea; have ye never read, Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise?

17 And he left them, and went out of the city into Bethany, and he lodged there.

18 Now in the morning, as he returned into the city, he hungered.

19 And, when he saw a fig tree in the way, he came to it, and found nothing thereon, but leaves only, and said unto it, Let no fruit grow on thee henceforward for ever. And presently the fig tree withered away.

20 And, when the disciples saw it, they marvelled, saying, How soon is the fig tree withered away!

21 Jesus answered and said unto them, Verily I say unto you, If ye have faith, and doubt not, ye shall not only do this which is done to the fig tree; but also, if ye shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into sea; it shall be done.

22 And all things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer believing, ye shall receive.

23 And, when he was come into the temple, the chief priests and the elders of the people came unto him as he was teaching, and said, By what authority dost thou these things? and who gave thee this authority?

24 And Jesus answered and said unto them, I also will ask you one thing, which if ye tell me, I in likewise will tell you by what authority I do these things.

25 The baptism of John, whence was it? from heaven, or of men? And they reasoned with themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven; he will say unto us, Why did ye not then believe him?

26 But if we shall say, Of men; we fear the people: for all hold John as a prophet.

27 And they answered Jesus, and said, We cannot tell. And he said unto them, Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things.

28 But what think ye? A certain man had two sons; and he came to the first, and said, Son, go work to-day in my vineyard.

29 He answered and said, I will not: but afterward he repented, and went.

30 And he came to the second, and said likewise. And he answered and said, I go, sir; and went not.

31 Whether of them twain did the will of his father? They say unto him, The first. Jesus saith them, Verily I say unto you, that the publicans and the harlots go into the kingdom of God before you.

32 For John came unto you in the way of righteousness, and ye believed him not; but the publicans and the harlots believed him: and ye, when ye had seen it, repented not afterward, that ye might believe him.

33 Hear another parable: There was a certain householder, who planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about, and digged a wine press in it, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country:

34 And, when the time of the fruit drew near, he sent his servants to the husbandmen, that they might receive the fruits of it.

35 And the husbandmen took his servants, and beat one, and killed another, and stoned another.

36 Again, he sent other servants more than the first: and they did unto them likewise.

37 But last of all he sent unto them his son, saying, They will reverence my son.

CHAP. XXI. Ver. 13. By their merchandise in the temple they robbed God of his due honour, and at the same time they defrauded their neighbours in their dealings with them. 19—22. This tree represents the Jews, who made great professions of their regard to God and readiness to receive the Messiah, but nevertheless brought forth no good fruits of faith or holiness; wherefore our Redeemer, by his curse, quickly ejected them from their church state, and rendered them fearfully miserable. 28—32. The first of these sons represents the notorious sinners of the Gentiles, who, after long professed rebellion against God their Creator and Preserver, did, at last, repent and turn to the Lord by the gospel: and the second represents the Jews, who, notwithstanding their high profession of readiness to serve God, did not believe in his Son, nor bring forth good works. 33—41, 43. This vineyard denotes the church-state given to the Jews, furnished with God's oracles, ordinances, protection, and privileges. After withdrawing from them the cloudy pillar, and other miraculous tokens of his presence, he sent his prophets to remind them of their duty, direct them in it, and encourage them to it: but all of these they persecuted and murdered one after another. After a long interval, he sent his Son, as the last expedient for rendering them penitent and fruitful. But, when they saw him speaking and acting with divine power and authority, and extolled by the people as the Messiah, their rulers, in church and state, resolved to establish their own authority, by excommunicating, persecuting, and murdering him:—on account of which, God, about forty years after his death, deprived them of all their pri-

38 But, when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance.

39 And they caught him, and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him.

40 When the Lord therefore of the vineyard cometh, what will he do unto those husbandmen?

41 They say unto him, He will miserably destroy those wicked men, and will let out his vineyard unto other husbandmen, who shall render him the fruits in their seasons.

42 Jesus saith unto them, Did ye never read in the scriptures, The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner: this is the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes?

43 Therefore say I unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof.

44 And whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken: but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder.

45 And, when the chief priests and Pharisees had heard his parables, they perceived that he spake of them.

46 But, when they sought to lay hands on him, they feared the multitude, because they took him for a prophet.

47 And when he was departed thence, he said unto his disciples, Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy.

CHAP. XXII.

(1) By the parable of the marriage feast and wedding garment, Christ represents the rejection of the Jews for their obstinacy, the calling of the Gentiles, and the danger of hypocrisy; 1—14. (2) Debates with the Pharisees, Sadducees, and scribes, concerning the payment of tribute to the Roman emperor; 15—22: concerning the resurrection of the dead and the future state; 23—33: the great commandment of the law; 34—40: and the Messiah's relation to David; 41—46: on each of which he silences his opposers.

AND Jesus answered and spake unto them again by parables, and said,

2 The kingdom of heaven is like unto a certain king who made a marriage for his son,

3 And sent forth his servants to call them that were bidden to the wedding: and they would not come.

4 Again, he sent forth other servants, saying, Tell them who are bidden, Behold, I have prepared my dinner: my oxen and my fatlings are killed, and all things are ready: come unto the marriage.

5 But they made light of it, and went their ways, one to his farm, another to his merchandise:

6 And the remnant took his servants, and entreated them spitefully, and slew them.

7 But when the king heard thereof he was wroth: and he sent forth his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and burned up their city.

8 Then saith he to his servants, The wedding is ready, but they who were bidden were not worthy.

9 Go ye therefore into the highways, and as many as ye shall find bid to the marriage.

10 So those servants went out into the highways, and gathered together all as many as they found, both bad and good: and the wedding was furnished with guests.

11 And, when the king came in to see the guests, he saw there a man who had not on a wedding garment:

12 And he saith unto him, Friend, how camest thou in hither, not having a wedding garment? And he was speechless.

13 Then said the king to the servants, Bind him hand and foot, and take him away, and cast him into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

14 For many are called, but few are chosen.

15 ¶ Then went the Pharisees, and took counsel how they might entangle him in his talk.

16 And they sent out unto him their disciples, with the Herodians, saying, Master, we know that thou art true, and teachest the way of God in truth, neither carest thou for any man; for thou regardest not the person of men.

17 Tell us therefore, What thinkest thou? Is it lawful to give tribute unto Caesar, or not?

18 But Jesus perceived their wickedness, and said, Why tempt ye me, ye hypocrites?

19 Shew me the tribute money. And they brought unto him a penny.

20 And he saith unto them, Whose is this? And they say unto him, Caesar's.

21 And he saith unto them, Give ye unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's, and unto God the things which are God's.

vilages in church and state, and by sword, famine, pestilence, and captivity, rendered them dreadfully miserable; and admitted the Gentiles into the gospel church in their stead. 42, 44. Notwithstanding all the abuse and persecution which Christ suffered from the Jewish rulers till he was put to death upon the cross, yet was he exalted to glory, and made Head over all things to his church. They, who, through ignorance and prejudice, undervalued him in his state of humiliation, endangered their souls: but they, who obstinately reject him in his exalted state after the wonderful effusion of his Spirit, draw down upon themselves fearful and inevitable misery.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXI.—Let me at once behold in Jesus the omniscient, the all-commanding, the temple purifying, the miracle-working, God; and the weak man pinched with poverty and hunger! Yea, the true Messiah riding on an ass, attended with shouts of salvation, in order to die for the people! But what ignorant and diversified views men have of him! And how is the church of God often corrupted, and her ordinances profaned, while they, who ought to reform others, hate to be reformed, or to hear of others more devout than themselves, or to see God perform his promises to, and glorify, his Son! Yea, careless clergymen are apt to oppose every faithful administration of the truth, unless shame or fear restrain them. And the most ignorant and notorious sinners are frequently turned to the Lord and his ways, when forward professors draw back unto their everlasting perdition. But, if God bestow his means of salvation upon men, he will demand their careful improvement of them. And, if his ministers be contemned and persecuted, he will unchurch the persecutors at last, and put others in their room. Yea, let men trample the Redeemer under foot as they may, God will cause him to be highly exalted, and made the Con-nector and glory of his church. If men will not bow to the outstretched sceptre of his grace, they must, self-condemned, fearfully perish under the weight of his wrath. And awful is the prospect when faithful reproofs do but exasperate the reprov'd; and when God must make the awe of inferiors restrain the rage of persecuting superiors!

CHAP. XXII. Ver. 1—14. The marriage feast denotes the gospel dispensation, in which Jesus Christ, as the Bridegroom of souls, and all the rich fulness of God in him, are offered by God to sinful men. The servants are John Baptist, Christ and his apostles and ministers, who invite and encourage men to receive the same. All things were ready when Christ had suffered, risen again, and ascended to glory, and the Holy Ghost was poured out in a plentiful and mira-culous manner. The refusers and contemners of the feast, and murderers of the messengers, are the Jews, who not only rejected the offers of the gospel, but persecuted and murdered the preachers of it; and on that account their cities and temple were soon afterwards burnt, themselves murdered in mul-titudes, their land desolated, and their constitution, in both church and state, miserably broken to pieces. Those called from the highways are the sinful Gentiles of every rank and condition, or greater and lesser sinners, who, by the preaching of the gospel, are invited and converted to Christ and his church. The man without the wedding garment denotes hypocritical professors, who take their place as members of the church without receiving Christ and his righteousness, or being renewed in holiness after his image; and whose end will be redoubled and everlasting destruction. 20, 21. Since, by your using the Roman emperor's money, ye have acknowledged yourselves his subjects, therefore ye ought, in civil concerns, to return him the tribute of that which, by the authority and protection of his government, ye receive from him; as well as, in religious concerns, to render unto God the homage and acknowledgments which are due to him as Lord of all. 31, 32. God's calling himself the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, after they had been long dead, plainly imported that they continued still the sons of God, waiting for the redemption of their bodies; and that their bodies, which still remained in covenant with him, as well as their souls, could not be suffered always to abide in a state of death. 40. These two commandments include the substance of the whole moral law, which is fundamental to all true religion. They include the whole natural law, which was originally written in the heart of man; the obligation of which can never be dissolved, and which all the revelations of God are founded on and designed to enforce. 46. The scribes and Pharisees were either ignorant or unwilling to acknowledge that the Messiah who in his human nature was a descendant of David, in his divine nature was God over all.

CHAP. XXIII.

Here (1) Christ warns his hearers not to imitate the scribes and Pharisees in their hypocrisy and pride; 1—12. (2) Denounces eight woes against them for their enmity to the gospel; their making religion a cloak for covetous practices; their industry in perverting others; their preferring their own gain to God's glory, even in the most solemn things; their looseness in important duties, while pretending great strictness in lesser matters; their caring only for external religion, while they indulged secret wickedness; and their persecuting present prophets, while they pretended great regard to ancient ones; 13—33. (3) Denounces fearful ruin upon Jerusalem, both its city and temple, chiefly for the persecution of the Lord's prophets; 34—39.

kind; and that his invitations to partake of it are so unlimited, earnest, and so often repeated! Fearful then is their guilt, and dreadful their punishment, who decline his offers, persecute his ministers; or presume to be Christians without Jesus' righteousness imputed to, and his grace implanted in, their soul. Why should we dissemble before the all-seeing Redeemer? Rather let us tremble to reflect that so many are outwardly, and so few effectually, called according to his purpose;—that many, instead of believing the gospel, should occupy themselves in disputes against the truth, or endeavour to entangle its preachers. And all, but especially ministers, have great need to answer captious questions with caution; and duly to connect our duty to magistrates with that which we owe to God. And it is no wonder that men are embarrassed who are ignorant of God's power and word.—Happy is that new covenant relation to God, which secures blessedness here and to eternity, when all the fashions and connections of this world shall be no more! But how extensive is our duty to God and to men—and how delightful to a renewed heart! Love to my God and my neighbour is the fulfilling of the law. Great is the mystery of godliness—God made manifest in the flesh! What think I of this Christ? Is he my Saviour, and my ALL IN ALL? Let me then, in holy diligence, in cautious prudence, and in readiness to render a reason of the hope that is in me, follow him while I live: and endeavour to turn every perplexing question into important and useful hints and inquiries, for my real instruction.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXIII.—The highest offices in both church and tate, are often filled up with the worst of men, who are apt to make others tumble at the ordinances or truths of God for their sake. Yea they, who make the greatest noise about morality and virtue, and its influence to recommend us to God, are in general extremely destitute of it. Rigid imposers of human invention are rarely strict in their own lives. Let then the servants of Jesus Christ always endeavour to manifest the utmost humility, uprightness, and contempt of this world. Let them practise the doctrines they preach, and ever attempt to lord it over their hearers or brethren in office. With what that which is within the cup and platter, that the outside of them may be clean also.

27 Wo unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are 'like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones and of all uncleanness.

28 Even so ye also outwardly appear righteous unto men, but within ye are full of hypocrisy and iniquity.

29 Wo unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! because 'ye build the tombs of the prophets, and garnish the sepulchres of the righteous, 30 And say, if we had been in the days of our fathers, we would not have been partakers with them 'in the blood of the prophets.

31 Wherefore 'ye be witnesses unto yourselves, that ye are 'the children of them which killed the prophets.

32 'Fill ye up then the measure of your fathers.

33 'Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, how can ye escape the damnation of hell?

34 ¶ Wherefore, behold, "I send unto you prophets, and wise men, and scribes: and some of them ye shall kill and crucify, and some of them shall ye scourge in your synagogues, and persecute them from city to city:

35 That "upon you may come all the righteous blood shed upon the earth, from the blood of righteous Abel unto the blood of Zacharias son of Barachias, whom ye slew between the temple and the altar.

36 Verily I say unto you, "All these things shall come upon this generation.

37 "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, 'how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and 'ye would not!

38 Behold, 'your house is left unto you desolate.

39 For I say unto you, 'Ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, "Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.

CHAP. XXIV.

After shewing the occasion (ver. 1) represents (1) Christ's prediction of the destruction of the Jewish nation about forty years after his death, with the preparations for, and attendants and consequences of, that awful event, in which there is frequently a further view of the last judgment; 2—35. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xviii. xix.] (2) A solemn warning to his disciples to be always ready for these events, especially the last, as the time of it was absolutely unknown and uncertain to them, and as pitiful pretences do men varnish over their neglect of real godliness, their dishonesty, persecution, and murder! And fearful are the discoveries which shall be made in the last judgment! Aggravated will be their damnation who oppose the gospel, and hinder others from believing it; and who pervert the oracles of God, seduce their neighbours into wickedness, neglect their hearts, varnish over their wickedness with pretences of devotion and zeal, profane the most solemn worship of God, and conduct all their religion by selfish and secular designs! Infinite is the patience of our Redeemer in long bearing with such; and great his mercy in giving them plain and timely warnings of their danger.

CHAP. XXIV. Before the destruction of Jerusalem, many false teachers and pretended messiahs appeared, ver. 2, 4, 5, 11, 23—26. There were many wars, commotions, famines, pestilences, and earthquakes, 6, 7. Ministers and other Christians were terribly persecuted; and much apostasy from, and decay of, religion, ensued in many places, 9—13. The gospel was preached through the Roman empire and the nations adjacent, 14. The Roman army invaded and laid siege to Jerusalem; and the Christians fled with the utmost haste to the mountains around Judea, 15—20. That destruction was terrible, 21; especially to mothers, 19; threatened ruin to the whole Jewish nation, 22, 27, 28. It was foreboded by signs in the heavens, and quite dissolved the constitution of the Jewish church and state, 27—30. It took place while that very generation among whom Christ taught partly survived, 32—35; and was followed by a remarkable spread of the gospel, 30, 31. Many of the wicked Jews were preserved for the sake of those who were to descend from them after many generations, 22. Ver. 27, 28. denotes the spread of the gospel among the Gentiles, and the gathering of multitudes to Jesus to feed on his flesh and

CHAP. XXV.

Continues our Saviour's discourse (1) In the parable of the ten virgins, to excite us to a perpetual readiness to attend Christ: 1—13. (2) In the parable of the talents, distributed to three servants to be traded with,—to prompt us to a constant readiness to give account of our improvements; 14—30. (3) In a more plain representation of the last judgment, calculated to promote our constant readiness to receive our final sentence and take our eternal portion; 31, 46.

THEN ^ashall ^bthe kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten ^cvirgins, who took their lamps, and went forth ^dto meet the bridegroom.

2 ^eAnd five of them were wise, and five ^fwere foolish.

3 They that ^gwere foolish ^htook their lamps, and took no oil with them:

4 ⁱBut the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps.

5 ^jWhile the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept.

6 ^kAnd at midnight there was a cry made, Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him.

7 ^lThen all those virgins arose, and trimmed their lamps.

8 And the foolish said unto the wise, Give us of your oil, for ^mour lamps are ⁿgone out.

9 But the wise answered, saying, ^oNot so; lest there be not enough for us and you: but go ye rather to ^pthem that sell, and buy for yourselves.

10 And while they went to buy ^qthe bridegroom came; ^rand they that were ready went in with him to the marriage; ^sand the door was shut.

11 Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, ^tLord, Lord, open to us.

12 But he answered and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not.

13 ^uWatch therefore; for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh.

14 ¶ ^vFor the kingdom of heaven is as a man travelling into a far country, who called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods:

finally deluded. Thrice happy are they who, in times of trial, are preserved in Christ, and kept faithful and lively when iniquity abounds, and the love of many waxes cold! and happy are they who discover greater regard to God's ordinances than to their own ease. For graciously shall they at last be crowned with glory and honour. But dreadful will it be if, after we have been intrusted with offices and gifts, we should be found, in death or judgment, unfaithful in using them:—none shall share a more certain or deeper damnation.

CHAP. XXV. Ver. 1—13. This and the subsequent parable may have some relation to the time of Christ's coming to destroy the Jewish nation, but especially to his coming to the last judgment. As the Jews had ordinarily their weddings at night, and seldom fewer than ten bridesmaids, that custom is here alluded to. Christ, who betrothes and unites sinners to himself in the day of his power is the glorious bridegroom. His tarrying denotes his deferring the Jewish destruction, and death, and the last judgment, till the due season. His coming at midnight, and with a great cry, denotes how unexpected and alarming his coming is. The ten virgins denote multitudes of apparently real Christians. Their slumbering denotes their common sloth and security while Christ withdraws his presence. The foolish virgins, who had only lamps, but no oil in them, represent nominal Christians, who have a profession of gospel truth but no real grace. The wise virgins are true believers, whose external blood; 29, 30, represent the terrible appearances of Jesus' power, in destroying the Jewish church and state. 37—41. The destruction of Jerusalem, as well as the last judgment, will take place while most men are indulging themselves in sensuality and carnal cares, and are no way provided for it; and of persons, in seemingly equal danger, some will be miserably destroyed and others graciously preserved. 42—51. Since therefore you are so uncertain of the time of this destruction and the last judgment, ye need always to be watching over your hearts and lives, that ye may be ready for it; especially as great shall be the gracious and honorary reward of such are then found faithful and diligent in their proper work.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXIV.—Even real saints are often puffed up with the external and quickly-fading glories of religion. But how manifest is the omniscience of our Redeemer, who could so circumstantially foretell the events which befell the Jews and the nations around! And wonderfully has God proved him the Messiah, by fulfilling his predictions upon his opposers. Yea, for the confirmation of our faith, Josephus, one of them, was almost miraculously saved, and included to give us the history of the fulfilment. Novelties in religion are always to be suspected; and inconceivable are the arts by which Satan and his instruments labour to deceive men, pervert the gospel, and dishonour Christ. But great is the mercy that none of the elect can be fully and 15 And unto one he gave five [†]talents, to another two, and to another one: to every man according to his several ability; and straightway took his journey.

16 Then he that had received the five talents [†]went and traded with the same, and made them other five talents.

17 And likewise he that had received two, he also gained other two.

18 But he that had received one went and [†]digged in the earth, and hid his lord's money.

19 [†]After a long time the lord of those servants cometh, and reckoneth with them.

20 And so he that had received five talents came and brought other five talents, saying, Lord, thou deliverdst unto me five talents: [†]behold, I have gained beside them five talents more.

21 His lord said unto him, [†]Well done, thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, [†]I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord.

22 He also that had received [†]two talents came and said, Lord, thou deliverdst unto me two talents: behold, I have gained two other talents beside them.

23 His lord said unto him, [†]Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord.

24 Then he which had received the one talent came and said, [†]Lord, [†]I knew thee that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where thou hast not strawed:

25 And I was [†]afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth: lo, there thou hast that is thine.

26 His lord answered and said unto him, Thou wicked and slothful servant, thou knewest that I reap where I sowed not, and gather where I have not strawed:

27 [†]Thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers, and then at my coming I should have received mine own with usury.

28 [†]Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him who hath ten talents.

29 [†]For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not [†]shall be taken away even that which he hath.

30 [†]And cast ye the unprofitable

31 ¶ [†]When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory:

32 And before him [†]shall be gathered all nations: and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats:

33 [†]And he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left.

34 [†]Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.

35 [†]For I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in:

36 Naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me.

37 Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungered and fed thee? or thirsty, and gave thee drink?

38 When saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in? or naked, and clothed thee?

39 Or when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee?

40 And the king shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, [†]In as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.

41 Then shall he say unto them also on the left hand, [†]Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels.

42 [†]For I was an hungered, and ye gave me no meat: I was thirsty and ye gave me no drink:

43 I was a stranger, and ye took me not in: naked, and ye clothed me not: sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not.

44 Then shall they also answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungered, or athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto thee?

45 Then shall he answer them saying, Verily I say unto you, [†]In as much as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me.

46 [†]And these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal.

profession of Christ arises from real grace in their hearts, and who are in an habitual readiness to meet with Christ. 14—30. The Master is Christ, who in his ascension travelled into a far country. The servants are ministers and people. The talents are offices, gifts, and opportunities, given by Christ to men in different degrees for the good of the church, and to be accounted for at the last day. 32, 33. He will fully and exactly separate the righteous from the wicked. 34—40. They are called to the kingdom, not as the reward of their works, but as the inheritance to which they are entitled as adopted children of God through Christ.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXV.—It is absurd to esteem any as Christians who have not the appearance of real saintship. And inestimable is the worth of real grace implanted in the heart by a new creation in Christ. It makes a wide difference between true believers and mere nominal professors. Safe is their meeting with Christ, and certain their admission to glory who have it: but dreadful their exclusion from Christ, and deep their damnation in hell, who die without it! Happy are they who with diligence use whatever they receive to his glory; inexpressibly great shall be their honour and their reward: but miserable are they, who, through unbelieving hard thoughts of God, take up with a mere hypocritical profession. Every plea of innocence, prudence, or of wonted assistances, will issue in their confusion.—How certain—how sudden—how awful how glorious—will be the appearance of Jesus to judgment; exact and final shall be his separation of the righteous and the wicked; and impartial his trial of human works. Gracious and heart-ravishing will be his last invitation to saints; high his regard to them, and every kindness shewn to them! But awful indeed his dismission of sinners from him, whom they now so hate and condemn. And how fixed—how important—how lasting—is men's future state! May these awful, these eternal realities, sink deep into my heart!

Contains (1) Preparations made for Christ's last sufferings, in his again foretelling them to his disciples as at hand; 1, 2: in the rulers' conspiracy to murder him; 3—5: in the costly anointing of his head by Mary, to the great displeasure of his disciples, particularly Judas; 6—13: in Judas' bargain with the priests to betray him; 14—16: in his eating the passover with his disciples, after due preparation made for it, and discovering Judas' treachery and fearful doom; 17—25: in his instituting the Lord's supper, and warning his disciples, particularly Peter, of their approaching fall; 26—35. (2) His entrance on them, in his agony and fervent prayers in the garden, while his disciples, whom he took to witness it, sinfully slept; 36—46: in the seizing of him by the officers, with the help of Judas, notwithstanding Peter's rash attempt to defend him; 47—56: in his arraignment before the high-priest, the false witnessing against, and condemnation of, him as a blasphemer; 57—68: and in Peter's threefold denial of him, of which he quickly repented; 69—75.

intimate that the former, having been long a type, should now be fulfilled in his death; and that the other should succeed as a memorial of his finished sufferings till the end of the world. The bread represents him as God-man, chosen, appointed, and furnished by, his Father, and suffering unto death for the redemption of his people. The wine represents his fulfilling all righteousness for the purchasing and securing of all promised new covenant blessings, particularly the full remission of sins to his numerous followers. 29. I will never more feast with you in this manner, never more so indulge you with my bodily presence; but, instead thereof, will hold fellowship with you in a far more spiritual and comfortable manner in the gospel dispensation, and especially in the heavenly state.

36 ¶ Then cometh Jesus with them unto a place called Gethsemane, and saith unto the disciples, Sit ye here while I go and pray yonder.

37 ¶ And he took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee: and began to be sorrowful and very heavy.

38 Then saith he unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death: tarry ye here, and watch with me.

39 And he went a little further, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt.

40 And he cometh unto the disciples, and findeth them asleep, and saith unto Peter, What, could ye not watch with me one hour?

41 Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation. The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.

42 He went away again the second time, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if this cup may not pass away from me except I drink it, thy will be done.

43 And he came and found them asleep again; for their eyes were heavy.

44 And he left them and went away again, and prayed the third time, saying the same words.

45 Then cometh he to his disciples, and saith unto them, Sleep on now, and take your rest: Behold, the hour is at hand, and the Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners.

46 Rise, let us be going: behold, he is at hand that doth betray me.

47 ¶ And, while he yet spake, lo, Judas, one of the twelve, came, and with him a great multitude with swords and staves from the chief priests and elders of the people.

48 Now he that betrayed him gave them a sign, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that same is he; hold him fast.

49 And forthwith he came to Jesus, and said, Hail, Master; and kissed him.

50 And Jesus said unto him, Friend, wherefore art thou come? Then came they and laid hands on Jesus, and took him.

51 ¶ And, behold, one of them who were with Jesus stretched out his hand, and drew his sword, and struck a servant of the high priest's, and smote off his ear.

52 Then said Jesus unto him, Put up again thy sword into his place; for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword.

53 Thinkest thou that I cannot now pray to my Father, and he shall presently give me more than twelve legions of angels?

54 But how then shall the scriptures be fulfilled, that thus it must be?

55 In that same hour said Jesus to the multitudes, Are ye come out as against a thief with swords and staves for to take me? I sat daily with you teaching in the temple, and ye laid no hold on me.

56 But all this was done that the scriptures of the prophets might be fulfilled. Then all the disciples forsook him, and fled.

57 ¶ And they that had laid hold on Jesus led him away to Caiaphas the high priest, where the scribes and the elders were assembled.

58 But Peter followed him afar off, unto the high priest's palace, and went in, and sat with the servants to see the end.

59 Now the chief priests and elders, and all the council, sought false witness against Jesus to put him to death;

60 But found none: yea, though many false witnesses came, yet found they none. At the last came two false witnesses, 61 And said, This fellow said, I am able to destroy the temple of God, and to build it in three days.

62 And the high priest arose, and said unto him, Answerest thou nothing? what is it which these witness against thee?

63 But Jesus held his peace. And the high priest answered and said unto him, I adjure thee by the living God, that thou tell us whether thou be the Christ the Son of God.

64 Jesus saith unto him, Thou hast said: nevertheless I say unto you, Hereafter shall ye see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven.

65 Then the high priest rent his clothes, saying, He hath spoken blasphemy; what further need have we of witnesses? behold, now ye have heard his blasphemy.

66 What think ye? They answered and said, He is guilty of death.

67 Then did they spit in his face, and buffeted him; and others smote him with the palms of their hands, 68 Saying, Prophecy unto us, thou Christ, who is he that smote thee?

69 ¶ Now Peter sat without in the palace: and a damsel came unto him, saying, Thou also wast with Jesus of Galilee.

70 But he denied before them all, saying, I know not what thou sayest.

71 And when he was gone out into the porch another maid saw him, and said unto them that were there, This fellow was also with Jesus of Nazareth.

72 And again he denied with an oath, I do not know the man.

73 And after awhile came unto him they that stood by, and said to Peter, Surely thou also art one of them, for thy speech bewrayeth thee.

74 Then began he to curse and to swear, saying, I know not the man. And immediately the cock crew.

75 And Peter remembered the word of Jesus, who said unto him, Before the cock crow thou shalt deny me thrice. And he went out and wept bitterly.

CHRIST BEFORE PILATE.

CHAP. XXVII.

Represents (1) The prosecution of Christ. He is early delivered up to Pilate the Roman governor; 1, 2: Judas avows him innocent; in desperate grief murders himself; and a field is bought with the returned reward of his treachery; 3—10. Jesus is arraigned and tried before Pilate; 11—14. Instigated by the clamours of the people, Pilate, notwithstanding his conviction of his innocence, and his wife's dream and warning, sentences him to be crucified; 15—26. (2) The execution of Christ; his barbarous usage in the hall; 27—31: his being led to the place of execution; 31—33: his being there crucified, insulted, and reviled, while his Father deserted him and darkness covered him; 34—50. (3) The remarkable events which attested the extraordinary nature of his death; 45, 50—56. (4) His honourable burial by Joseph of Arimathea; and the malice of the Jewish rulers in setting a watch on his grave; 57—66.

WHEN the morning was come, all the chief priests and elders of the people took counsel against Jesus to put him to death:

2 And, when they had bound him, they led him away, and delivered him to Pontius Pilate the governor.

3 ¶ Then Judas, who had betrayed him, when he saw that he was condemned, repented himself, and brought again the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders,

4 Saying, I have sinned, in that I have betrayed the innocent blood. And they said, What is that to us? see thou to that.

5 And he cast down the pieces of silver in the temple, and departed, and went and hanged himself.

6 And the chief priests took the silver pieces, and said, It is not lawful for to put them into the treasury, because it is the price of blood.

7 And they took counsel, and bought with them the potter's field, to bury strangers in.

8 Wherefore that field was called, The field of blood, unto this day.

9 Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremy the prophet, saying,

And they took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of him that was valued, whom they of the children of Israel did value;

10 And gave them for the potter's field, as the Lord appointed me.

11 ¶ And Jesus stood before the governor: and the governor asked him, saying, Art thou the king of the Jews?

And Jesus said unto him, Thou sayest.

12 And, when he was accused of the chief priests and elders, he answered nothing.

13 Then saith Pilate unto him, Hearest thou not how many things they witness against thee?

14 And he answered him to never a word, insomuch that the governor marvelled greatly.

15 ¶ Now at that feast the governor was wont to release unto the people a prisoner, whom they would.

16 And they had then a notable prisoner, called Barabbas.

17 Therefore, when they were gathered together, Pilate said unto them, Whom will ye that I release unto you?

Barabbas, or Jesus who is called Christ?

18 For he knew that for envy they had delivered him.

19 ¶ When he was sat down on the judgment seat his wife sent unto him, saying, Have thou nothing to do with that just man; for I have suffered many things this day in a dream because of him.

20 ¶ But the chief priests and elders persuaded the multitude that they should ask Barabbas, and destroy Jesus.

21 The governor answered and said unto them, Whether of the twain will ye that I release unto you? They said, Barabbas.

22 Pilate saith unto them, What shall I do then with Jesus who is called Christ?

They all say unto him, Let him be crucified.

23 And the governor said, Why, what evil hath he done? But they cried out the more, saying, Let him be crucified.

24 When Pilate saw that he could prevail nothing, but that rather a tumult was made, he took water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this just person: see ye to it.

25 Then answered all the people, and said, His blood be on us, and on our children.

26 Then released he Barabbas unto them: and, when he had scourged Jesus, he delivered him to be crucified.

27 ¶ Then the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the common hall, and gathered unto him the whole band of soldiers.

28 And they stripped him, and put on him a scarlet robe.

29 And, when they had platted a crown of thorns, they put it upon his head, and a reed in his right hand: and they bowed the knee before him, and mocked him, saying, Hail, king of the Jews!

30 And they spit upon him, and took the reed, and smote him on the head.

demand, gladly let me receive him into my house and heart. A deep sense of my sinfulness should make me always ready to suspect the worst of myself. If I indulge self-confidence, if I disregard a Saviour's warning, I shall quickly fall, fearfully fall, before the slightest temptations. If I indulge one sin, it will quickly plunge me into a worse. If then I have been overtaken in a fault, let me quickly and bitterly repent. It is not the greatness or number of my sins that can ruin me, but my obstinate impenitence and unbelief.

CHAP. XXVII. Crucifixion was the most cruel, shameful, and cursed, death, that could be devised; was not at all used by the Jews; and by the Romans inflicted only upon slaves, and the basest of the people, who were capital offenders. The person was nailed to the cross, as it lay upon the ground, through each hand, extended to its utmost stretch, and through both the feet together; then the cross was erected; and the foot of it, with a violent thrust, which disjointed the whole body of the sufferer, placed into a hole of the ground prepared to receive it. The whole weight of the body thus hung upon the nails, which went through the hands and feet, till the person expired by mere dint of terrible pain.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXVII.—Unbounded was the foreknowledge of our Redeemer, and astonishing his delight in the view of his sufferings for his people. Great is his care to vindicate their good conduct, to honour them that honour him, and to direct them to opportunities of doing good to their brethren; and infinite his regard to his Father's oracles and ordinances, and the salvation of his people. In view of death—a dreadful death—he joins with them in the seals of the covenant, and appoints them a permanent feast for spiritual nourishment; representing all his labours of love, and sealing and applying his person and righteousness to their soul! And faithful and reasonable were his warnings against temptation.—How heavy the weight of our sins lay on him! How fearful his agonies! how fervent his prayers! Yet great was his submission to his Father's will: marvellous his readiness to suffer, and kind his rebukes ever to the worst!—But, alas, how was he hated by men—plotted against without cause—envied of his honours—betrayed for a trifle—shamefully discredited and contradicted, even by his saints—presumptuously apprehended—despitefully abused—and basely denied, after the most solemn warning! Let me learn to watch and pray against temptation. I know not whither Satan may drag, or my corruptions drive, me. Let me always honour Jesus, whatever be the expense; be liberal to his poor, and always given to embrace his preached gospel. And, on his 32 ^c And, as they came out, they found a man of Cyrene, Simon by name : him they compelled to bear his cross.

33 ¶ And, when they were come unto a place called Golgotha, that is to say, a place of a skull, 34 ^d They gave him vinegar to drink, mingled with gall : and, when he had tasted thereof, he would not drink.

35 And they crucified him, and parted his garments, casting lots : that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, 'They parted my garments among them, and upon my vesture did they cast lots.

36 And, sitting down, they watched him there ;

37 And set up over his head his accusation written, 'THIS IS JESUS THE KING OF THE JEWS.

38 ^e Then were there two thieves crucified with him ; one on the right hand, and another on the left.

39 ¶ And they that passed by reviled him, wagging their heads,

40 And saying, 'Thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days, save thyself. If thou be the Son of God, come down from the cross

41 Likewise also the chief priests, mocking him, with the scribes and elders, said, 42 He saved others ; himself he cannot save. ^k If he be the King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him.

43 'He trusted in God ; let him deliver him now, if he will have him : for he said, ^m I am the Son of God.

44 ⁿ The thieves also, who were crucified with him, cast the same in his teeth.

45 ¶ Now ^o from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land unto the ninth hour.

46 And about the ninth hour ^p Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani ? that is to say, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me ?

47 Some of them that stood there, when they heard that, said, 'This man calleth for Elias.

48 And straightway one of them ran, and took a sponge, ^r and filled it with vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink.

49 The rest said, Let be, let us see whether Elias will come to save him.

50 ^s Jesus, when he had cried again with a loud voice, yielded up the ghost.

51 ¶ And, behold, the vail of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom ; ^t and the earth did quake, and the rocks rent ;

52 And the graves were opened ; ^u and many bodies of the saints which slept, arose, 53 And came out of the graves after his resurrection, and went into the holy city, and appeared unto many.

54 ^v Now when the centurion, and they that were with him, watching Jesus, saw the earthquake, and those things that were done, they ^z feared greatly, saying, ^a Truly this was the Son of God.

55 ^b And many women were there, beholding afar off, who followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering unto him :

56 Among whom was ^c Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Josés, and the mother of Zebedee's children.

57 ¶ ^d When the even was come there came a rich man of Arimathea, named Joseph, who also himself was Jesus' disciple :

58 He went to Pilate, and begged the body of Jesus. Then Pilate commanded the body to be delivered.

59 And, when Joseph had taken the body, he wrapped it in a clean linen cloth, 60 And laid ^e it in his own new tomb, which he had hewn out in the rock : and he rolled a great stone to the door of the sepulchre, and departed.

61 And there was Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary, sitting over against the sepulchre.

62 ¶ Now, the next day that followed the ^f day of the preparation, ^g the chief priests and Pharisees came together unto Pilate, 63 Saying, Sir, we remember that ^h that deceiver said, while he was yet alive, ⁱ After three days I will rise again.

64 Command therefore that the sepulchre be made sure until the third day, lest his disciples come by night, and steal him away, and say unto the people, He is risen from the dead : || so the last error shall be worse than the first.

65 Pilate said unto them, Ye have ^k a watch : go your way, make it as sure as you can.

66 So they went and made the sepulchre sure, ^l sealing the stone, and setting a watch.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXVII.—Men, especially wicked rulers, are awfully set upon mischief. Not only commanded devotion, but even necessary sleep, must give way to it. But dreadful is the reward of treachery to Christ. And the price of blood, the horrors of conscience, and the damnation of hell, are closely linked together. Yet no alarming convictions, no pretences to piety, can restrain men abandoned to wickedness.—Dreadful from earth, from hell, from heaven, were the sufferings of our Redeemer. Hypocritical rulers, the lately extolling mob, the inwardly-convicted Heathen governor, the profane soldiers, concur to abuse and murder him. But, alas, at what expense of misery to themselves and posterity, for many ages, do the hardened Jews, who had witnessed his benevolent miracles, and heard his saving doctrines, cry for his blood ! In the most dreadful manner they tempt him to abandon his work of redemption. But willingly and steadily he persevered in his ransoming of sinful men ! Yea, the malice of the priests and elders, the treachery of Judas, the insolence and imprecations of the mob, the indulgence and obstinacy of Pilate, the insults of the soldiers, the attempt to imprison him in his grave, were all marvellously overruled to accomplish the oracles of God, and for the honour of Jesus and redemption of his church. With pleasure and triumph he therefore breathed out his last. And the most honourable attestations were given to his death. Thrice happy are they who sleep in Jesus !—Them will God, through his death, bring with him, that they may be glorified together.—Stand in awe, then, my soul ! avoid sin, lest it bring thee to a miserable end, and entail a curse on my seed. Never value thyself on popular applause, which may so quickly be turned into contempt, malice, and murder. Let me never account any thing too much to be given, or to be suffered, for the sake of my dying Redeemer. While others prefer Barabbas, let me adhere to, look on, and weep with, him in every difficulty and danger. Let me never come down from my cross, till I can say, It is finished. And let neither death nor the grave terrify me, since Jesus the forerunner hath for me passed through and entered into his glory.—See now, my soul, the dreadful punishment, and in that the nature, of my sin. What is a drowned world, a burning Sodom, a plagued Egypt, an opened hell, in comparison of the Son of God accursed—troubled in spirit, till he knew not what to say—amazed and very heavy—sorrowful, even unto death—in an agony, sweating great drops of blood—tormented and insulted by men—harassed by devils—deserted by God—groaning, and giving up the ghost, under the weight of infinite wrath !—Listen, O my soul, how, by every debasement, every strait, every labour, every reproach, every wound, every groan, every tear, every drop of blood, Jesus charges me to come to him, that I may have life. Behold how my debt is paid, my happiness purchased, my peace with God procured and confirmed, and my comfort enhanced ! There divine righ-

CHAP. XXVIII.

(1) Christ being risen from the dead with great solemnity, an angel terrifies the guard and attests his resurrection to the women who had come to embalm his body; 1—8. (2) He himself appears to the women as they were returning from the sepulchre; 9, 10. (3) The soldiers attest his resurrection, but are bribed to affirm that his disciples had stole away his body; 11—15. (4) According to his own and the angel's promise; 10, 7: he appears to the eleven disciples in Galilee, and gives them an apostolic commission to preach and baptize every where; 16—20.

IN the ^aend of the sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre.

^bAnd, behold, there ^bwas a great earthquake; for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.

^dAnd for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men.

^eAnd the angel answered and said unto the women, ^eFear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus who was crucified.

^fHe is not here: ^ffor he is risen, as he said. Come see the place where the Lord lay.

^gAnd ^ggo quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead; and, behold, he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him; lo, I have told you.

^hAnd they departed quickly from the sepulchre, with fear and great joy; and did run to bring his disciples word.

ⁱAnd, as they went to tell his disciples, behold, Jesus met them, saying, teousness is fulfilled, transgression finished, the curse exhausted, the law magnified, God reconciled, death vanquished, and hell extinguished—and all for me!

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXVIII.—Jesus, who was delivered for our offences, rises again for our justification! In the most solemn and seasonable manner JEHOVAH liberates our Surety when our debt is paid. And great earthquakes, mighty angels, risen saints, suspicious disciples, terrified soldiers, and an empty grave are made joint witnesses of this leading article of our Christian faith. Yea, even the self-destructive lie, contrived by the Jewish rulers to re-

All hail! And they came and held him by the feet, and worshipped him.

^kThen said Jesus unto them, ^kBe not afraid: ^kgo tell my brethren that they go into Galilee, and there shall they see me.

^l¶ Now when they were going, behold, ^lsome of the watch came into the city, and shewed unto the chief priests all the things that were done.

^mAnd, ^mwhen they were assembled with the elders, and had taken counsel, they gave large money unto the soldiers, ⁿSaying, Say ye, His disciples came by night and stole him away while we slept.

^oAnd, if this come to the governor's ears, we will persuade him and secure you.

^pSo ^pthey took the money and did as they were taught: and this saying is commonly reported among the Jews until this day.

^q¶ Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountain where Jesus had appointed them.

^rAnd when they saw him they ^rworshipped him: but some ^rdoubted.

^s¶ And Jesus came, and spake unto them, saying, ^sAll power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.

^tGo ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; fute it, indirectly confirms it. But O how great was his kindness in acknowledging those for brethren who had lately forsaken him, and solemnly to visit those who had so shamefully deserted and so sinfully suspected him! Great are the joys which spring from his being, as God-man, made Governor of all things in heaven and earth for the good of his church. What extending of her limits! What discipling of the Gentiles! What solemn admission of them into the family, and instruction of them in the things, of God! We have need then to hold fellowship with him in every ordinance, and obey him in every command; and even under the best ministry to try every thing by his laws, and to depend on him in every circumstance for his promised presence.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO

S T. M A R K.

CHAP. I.

Coincides with Mat. iii. iv. viii. and exhibits (1) The ministry and success of John Baptist, answerable to Isaiah's predictions; 1—8. (2) Christ's baptism by John, and attestation from heaven; 9—11. (3) His temptation by Satan, and assistance from angels in the wilderness; 12, 13. (4) His labours in preaching; 14, 15, 21, 22, 38, 39: and prayer; 35. (5) His calling of disciples; 16—20. (6) His rebuking and casting out an unclean spirit, to the astonishment of the spectators; 23—28. (7) His curing Peter's mother-in-law of a fever; 29—31. (8) His healing all that came to him; 32—35. (9) His healing a leper, and charging him to conceal the cure; 40—45.

THE ^bbeginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ ^cthe Son of God; ^dAs it is written in the prophets, ⁱAnd there went out unto him all the land of Judea, and they of Jerusalem, and were all baptized of him in the river of Jordan, confessing their sins.

^gJohn did baptize in the wilderness, and preach the baptism of repentance ^hfor the remission of sins.

6 And John was ^bclothed with camel's hair, and with a girdle of a skin about his loins: and he did eat locusts and wild honey:

7 And preached, saying, 'There cometh one mightier than I after me, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to stoop down and unloose.

8 ^kI indeed have baptized you with water: but he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost.

9 ¶ And it came to pass in those days that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized of John in Jordan.

10 And straightway, coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens [†]opened, and the Spirit like a dove descending upon him:

11 And ^mthere came a voice from heaven, saying, Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

12 ¶ And immediately the spirit driveth him into the wilderness.

13 And he was there in the wilderness forty days tempted of Satan, and was ^owith the wild beasts, and the angels ^pministered unto him.

14 ¶ Now, after that ^qJohn was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching ^rthe gospel of the kingdom of God, 15 And saying, 'The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand: ^rrepent ye, and believe the gospel.

16 ¶ Now, as he walked by the sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and Andrew his brother casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers.

17 And Jesus said unto them, Come ye after me, and I will make you to become ^yfishers of men.

18 And straightway they forsook their nets, and followed him.

19 And, when he had gone a little further thence, he saw James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, who also were in the ship mending their nets.

20 And straightway he called them: and they ^rleft their father Zebedee in the ship with the hired servants, and went after him.

21 ^aAnd they went into Capernaum: and straightway on the sabbath day he entered into the synagogue and taught.

22 ^bAnd they were astonished at his doctrine: for he taught them as one that had authority, and not as the scribes.

23 ¶ And there was in their synagogue a man with an unclean spirit, and he cried out, 24 Saying, ^dLet us alone; what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art, ^ethe Holy One of God.

25 And Jesus ^frebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him.

26 ^gAnd when the unclean spirit had torn him, and cried with a loud voice, he came out of him.

27 ^hAnd they were all amazed, inso-much that they questioned among themselves, saying, What thing is this? what new doctrine is this? for with authority commandeth he even the unclean spirits, and they do obey him.

28 ⁱAnd immediately his fame spread abroad throughout all the region round about Galilee.

29 ¶ And forthwith, when they were come out of the synagogue, they entered into the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John.

30 But Simon's wife's mother lay sick of a fever, and anon they tell him of her.

31 And he came and took her by the hand, and lifted her up; ^jand immediately the fever left her, and she ^mministered unto them.

32 ¶ And ⁿat even, when the sun did set, they brought unto him all that were diseased, and them that were possessed with devils.

33 And all the city was gathered together at the door.

34 And he healed many that were sick of divers diseases, and cast out many devils, ^oand suffered not the devils [†]to speak, because they knew him.

35 ¶ And ^pin the morning, rising up a great while before day, he went out and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed.

36 And Simon and they that were with him, followed after him.

37 And when they had found him they said unto him, ^qAll men seek for thee.

38 And he said unto them, ^rLet us go into the next towns, that I may preach there also: for therefore came I forth.

39 And he preached in their synagogues throughout all Galilee, and ^scast out devils.

40 ¶ And there came a leper to him, beseeching him, and kneeling down to him, and saying unto him, ^tIf thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

41 And Jesus, ^umoved with compassion, put forth ^uhis hand, and touched him, and saith unto him, I will; be thou clean.

42 And, as soon as he had spoken, ^vimmediately the leprosy departed from him, and he was cleansed.

43 And he straitly charged him, and forthwith sent him away;

44 And saith unto him, ^wSee thou say nothing to any man: but go thy way, shew thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing those things which Moses commanded for a testimony unto them.

45 ^xBut he went out, and began to publish ^xit much, and to blaze abroad the matter, insomuch that Jesus could no more openly enter into the city, but was without in desert places: and they came to him from every quarter.

if I am tempted as a Christian, it is in conformity to him:—if I resist the devil, and he flee from me, it is through his having been tempted, that he might succour them that are tempted:—if angels minister to me, it is at his command and for his sake:—if I am called or qualified as a Christian or minister, it is by him:—if I am delivered from diseases or devils, I owe all to him! Let me then never act the part of a devil in asking,—what have I to do with him? And if I have experienced his grace, let me gratefully employ all that I have in his service and praise.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—Let me always attend Jesus' ordinances, that I may honour him and receive his blessing, that he may speak to my heart, give me the faith which he will approve, forgive my sins, and heal my plagues. And let no impediment hinder me from his grace. While proud sinners are ever and sinners sat also together with Jesus and his disciples: for there were many, and they followed him.

16 And, when the scribes and Pharisees saw him eat with publicans and sinners, they said unto his disciples, 'How is it that he eateth and drinketh with publicans and sinners?

17 When Jesus heard it he saith unto them, 'They that are whole have no need of the physician, but they that are sick: I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.

18 ¶ And the disciples of John and of the Pharisees used to fast: and they come and say unto him, 'Why do the disciples of John and of the Pharisees fast, but thy disciples fast not?

19 And Jesus said unto them, Can the children of the 'bride-chamber fast while the 'bridegroom is with them? as long as they have the bridegroom with them they cannot fast.

20 But the days will come when the bridegroom 'shall be taken away from them, and then 'shall they fast in those days.

21 'No man also seweth a piece of †new cloth on an old garment: else the new piece that filled it up taketh away from the old, and the rent is made worse.

22 And no man putteth new wine into old bottles: else the new wine doth burst the bottles, and the wine is spilled, and the bottles will be marred: but new wine must be put into new bottles.

23 ¶ And it came to pass that he went through the corn fields on the sabbath day; and his disciples began as they went to pluck the ears of corn.

24 And the Pharisees said unto him, Behold, 'why do they on the sabbath day that which is not lawful?

25 And he said unto them, Have ye never read 'what David did, when he had need, and was an hungered, he, and they that were with him?

26 How he went into the house of God, in the days of 'Abiathar the high priest, and did eat the shew-bread, 'which is not lawful to eat but for the priests, and gave also to them which were with him?

27 And he said unto them, 'The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath:

28 'Therefore the Son of man is Lord also of the sabbath.

CHAP. III.

Coincides with Mat. x. xii. (1) The Pharisees hate him, and consult together how they may murder him for his healing a man's withered hand on the sabbath; 1—6. (2) Great multitudes follow him, diseases are healed, devils dislodged, and forbidden objecting against him, to their own destruction, it becomes me to esteem, receive, admire, and honour him, to my eternal salvation. And, if he call me to himself by his grace, diligently should I exert all my influence in bringing others along with me. Sinners, as such, he came to save: sinners, as such, he calls in his gospel: and him that cometh unto him he will in no wise cast out. The more sinful and wretched I feel myself to be, the more evident is my gospel right to receive the Redeemer, who came to seek and to save that which is lost. No publican nor sinner is too bad for him to save, nor too obstinate for him to conquer. And he does, and must seek us before we seek him.—Wisely he connects every duty with its proper season, and proportions his people's services to their ability. Let then his word be my rule, and his authority my obligation, in observing his sabbaths and ordinances: and let his grace make me prize his service, since all is designed for my profit.

to confess him; 7—12. (3) He ordains twelve disciples to be his constant attendants, and to preach the gospel; 13—21. (4) Refutes the blasphemous pretence that he wrought his miracles by collusion with the devil; and warns the blasphemers of their danger; 22—30. (5) Is represented the troublesome officiousness of his relations, and his regard to his real followers; 21, 31—35.

AND ^ahe entered again into the synagogue, and there was a man there who had a withered hand.

2 ^bAnd they watched him, whether he would heal him on the sabbath day, that they might accuse him.

3 And he saith unto the man who had the withered hand, ^cStand forth.

4 And he saith unto them, ^dIs it lawful to do good on the sabbath days, or to do evil? to save life, or to kill? But they held their peace.

5 And, when he had looked round about on them with ^eanger, being grieved for the hardness of their hearts, he saith unto the man, ^fStretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it out: and his hand was restored whole as the other.

6 ^gAnd the Pharisees went forth, and straightway took counsel with the Herodians against him, how they might destroy him.

7 But ^hJesus withdrew himself with his disciples to the sea: and a great multitude from ⁱGalilee followed him, and from ^jJudea,

8 And from Jerusalem, and from ^kIdumea, and ^lfrom beyond Jordan, and they about ^mTyre and Sidon, a great multitude, when they had heard what great things he did, came unto him

9 And he spake to his disciples, that a small ship should wait on him ⁿbecause of the multitude, lest they should throng him.

10 For he had healed many, insomuch that they ^opressed upon him for ^pto touch him, as many as had ^qplagues.

11 And unclean spirits, when they saw him, ^rfell down before him, and cried, saying, Thou art the Son of God.

12 And ^she straitly charged them that they should not make him known.

13 ^tAnd he goeth up into a mountain, and calleth unto ^uhim whom he would: and they came unto him.

14 And he ordained twelve, that they should be with him, and that he might send them forth to preach,

15 And to have power to heal sicknesses, and to cast out devils:

16 And ^vSimon he surnamed Peter;

17 And ^wJames the son of Zebedee, and John the brother of James; and he surnamed them Boanerges, which is, ^xThe sons of thunder:

18 And ^yAndrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and ^zMatthew, and ^{aa}Thomas, and ^{ab}James the son of Alphaeus, and ^{ac}Thaddeus, and ^{ad}Simon the Canaanite, 19 And ^{ae}Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him: and they went ^{af}into an house.

20 ^{ag}And the multitude cometh together again, so that ^{ah}they could not so much as eat bread.

ther again, so that ^bthey could not so much as eat bread.

21 And, when his ⁱfriends heard of it, they went out to lay hold on him: for they said, ^kHe is beside himself.

22 ^lAnd the scribes who came down from Jerusalem said, ^mHe hath Beelzebub, and by the prince of the devils casteth he out devils.

23 And he called them unto ⁿhim, and said unto them in ^oparables, ^pHow can Satan cast out Satan?

24 And if a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand.

25 And, if a house be divided against itself, that house cannot stand.

26 And, if Satan rise up against himself, and be divided, he cannot stand, but hath an end.

27 No man can ^qenter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he will first bind the strong man, and then he will spoil his house.

28 ^rVerily I say unto you, All sins shall be forgiven unto the sons of men, and blasphemies wherewith soever they shall blaspheme:

29 But he that shall blaspheme against the Holy Ghost hath never forgiveness, but is in danger of eternal damnation:

30 ^sBecause they said, He hath an unclean spirit.

31 ^tThere came then his brethren and his mother, and, standing without, sent unto him, calling him.

32 And the multitude sat about him; and they said unto him, Behold, ^uthy mother and thy brethren without seek for thee.

33 And he answered them, saying, Who is my mother or my brethren?

34 And he looked round about on them who sat about him, and said, ^vBehold my mother and my brethren!

35 For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister, and mother.

CHAP. IV.

Coincides with Mat. xiii. and relates (1) Christ's parable of the sower or soils sown; 1—9: with the explication of it; 10—20. (2) His parable of the candle publicly exhibited, inculcating the attentive improvement of what we hear or receive; 21—25. (3) His parable of the insensible growth of corn; 26—29. (4) The parable of the grain of seed, and a general account of his parables; 30—34. (5) His miracle in suddenly stilling a storm at sea; 35—41.

AND ^ahe began again to teach by the sea side: and there was gathered unto him a great multitude, so that he ^bentered into a ship, and sat in the sea, and the whole multitude was by the sea on the land.

2 And he taught them many things ^cby parables, and said unto them in his doctrine,

3 ^dHearken; Behold, there went out ^ea sower to sow:

4 And it came to pass, as he sowed, some fell by the way side, and the fowls of the air came and devoured it up.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—Attendance on Christ, for his healing power and grace, is always hopeful. No day is unseasonable for works of mercy, especially in dealing with him. And if he bid us to give dead hearts, or stretched out withered hands, himself must afford the ability. The most earnest gospel calls are in vain without the effectual power of his grace. Many, alas, by their obstinacy and hardness of heart provoke his grief and indignation, and return him hatred, murder, and blasphemy, for his kindness!—and men deny and abuse him whom even devils confess and obey! But it is highly absurd to pretend his connection with Satan, when their interests are so evidently contrary. And dreadful is that presumption which leads to the unpardonable sin. Professors should carefully avoid this infallible cause of damnation. Very honourable is a spiritual relation to Christ, and an active faithfulness in his service. If then he sovereignly call me to his work, let no censures of men deter, or importunity of friends divert, me from it.

5 And some fell on stony ground, where it had not much earth; and immediately it sprang up, because it had no depth of earth:

6 But, when the sun was up, it was scorched; and, because it had no root, it withered away.

7 And some fell among thorns; and the thorns grew up, and choked it, and it yielded no fruit.

8 And other fell on good ground, and did yield fruit that sprang up, and increased, and brought forth some thirty, and some sixty, and some an hundred.

9 And he said unto them, ^dHe that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

10 ¶ And ^ewhen he was alone, they that were about him with the twelve asked of him the parable.

11 And he said unto them, ^fUnto you it is given to know the mystery of the kingdom of God: but unto them ^gthat are without all these things are done in parables:

12 ^hThat seeing they may see, and not perceive; and hearing they may hear, and not understand; lest at any time they should be converted, and their sins should be forgiven them.

13 And he said unto them, ⁱKnow ye not this parable? and how then will ye know all parables?

14 ¶ ^kThe sower soweth the word.

15 And these are ^lthey by the way side, where the word is sown; but, when they have heard, ^mSatan cometh immediately, and taketh away the word that was sown in their hearts.

16 And these are ⁿthey likewise which are sown on stony ground; who, when they have heard the word, immediately receive it with gladness:

17 And ^ohave no root in themselves, and so endure but for a time: afterward, when affliction or persecution ariseth for the word's sake, immediately they are offended.

18 And ^pthese are they which are sown among thorns: such as hear the word;

19 And the cares of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things, entering in, choke the word, and it becometh unfruitful.

20 And ^qthese are they which are sown on good ground; such as hear the word and receive it, and bring forth fruit, some thirty fold, some sixty, and some an hundred.

21 ¶ And he said unto them, Is a candle brought to be put under a bushel or under a bed? and not to be set on a candlestick?

22 ^rFor there is nothing hid which shall not be manifested; neither was any thing kept secret but that it should come abroad.

23 ^sIf any man have ears to hear, let him ear.

24 And he said unto them, ^tTake heed what ye hear: ^uwith what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you; and unto you that hear shall more be given.

25 ^vFor he that hath, to him shall be given: and he that hath not, from him shall be taken even that which he hath.

26 And he said, So is the ^wkingdom of God, as if a man should cast ^xseed into the ground;

27 And should sleep and rise night and day, and the seed should ^yspring and grow up, he knoweth not know.

28 For the earth bringeth forth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear.

29 But, ^zwhen the fruit is ^{aa}brought forth, immediately ^{ab}he putteth in the sickle because the harvest is come.

30 ¶ And he said, ^{ac}Whereunto shall we liken the kingdom of God? or with what comparison shall we compare it?

31 It is like a grain of mustard seed, which, when it is sown in the earth, is less than all the seeds that be in the earth:

32 But when it is sown it ^{ad}groweth up, and becometh greater than all herbs, and shooteth out great branches; so that the fowls of the air may lodge under the shadow of it.

33 ^{ae}And with many such parables spake he the word unto them, as they were able to hear it.

34 But ^{af}without a parable spake he not unto them: and, when they were alone, he expounded all things to his disciples.

35 ¶ And the same day, when the even was come, he saith unto them, Let us pass over unto the other side.

36 And, when they had sent away the multitude, they took him ^{ag}even as he was in the ship. And there were also with him other little ships.

37 ^{ah}And there arose a great storm of wind, and the waves beat into the ship, so that it was now full.

38 And he was in the hinder part of the ship, ^{ai}asleep on a pillow: and they awake him, and say unto him, ^{aj}Master, carest thou not that we perish?

39 And he arose, and ^{ak}rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, Peace, be still. And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm.

40 And he said unto them, ^{al}Why are ye so fearful? how is it that ye have no faith?

41 And they ^{am}feared exceedingly, and said one to another, What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?

EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. IV. Ver. 26—29. As Mark very commonly relates the same facts as Matthew, so this is the only parable which Mark relates that is not mentioned by Matthew. The scope of it is to shew that the gospel, being once published in the world in a gradual and mysterious manner, should produce a large church therein before the end of time;—and that a vital principle of grace, being once planted in a soul, gradually and insensibly increases in strength, vigour, and appearance, and in fruits of holiness, which shall be graciously rewarded in the day of judgment.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—Alas, that so much of God's truth should be sown in our world to so little purpose! Unfruitful hearers of the gospel are every where numerous; and they who mix faith with the word to the salvation and sanctification of their souls are, alas, very few! There is great need therefore to watch carefully against Satan, and the snares which arise from the pleasures, cares, and terrors of this world. Diligently should we consider how and what we hear; and look well to our hearts, that they be truly sincere and upright; yea, look upward for God's grace, to render us fruitful in the works of

CHAP. VI.

Coincides with Mat. xiv. Here we observe (1) Christ contemned by his countrymen, because one of themselves, and their mercies hindered by their unbelief; 1—6. (2) The twelve disciples sent off, by pairs, to preach and work miracles; and an account of their success; 7—13. (3) Herod's opinion of Christ; and his imprisonment and murder of John the Baptist; 14—29. (4) Christ returning into a desert place, and followed by multitudes, whom he instructs, and feasting 5000 of them on five loaves and two small fishes; 30—44. (5) Christ walking on the sea to his disciples; and the miraculous cures he wrought on the other side, in the land of Gennesaret; 45—56.

AND ^ahe went out from thence, and came into his own country; and his disciples follow him.

2 And, ^bwhen the sabbath day was come, he began to teach in the synagogue: and many hearing him were astonished, saying, From whence hath this man these things? and what wisdom is this which is given unto him, that even such mighty works are wrought by his hands?

3 ^cIs not this the carpenter, the son of Mary, the brother of James and Joses, and of Juda, and Simon? and are not his sisters here with us? And they were offended at him.

4 But Jesus said unto them, ^dA prophet is not without honour, but in his own country, and among his own kin, and in his own house.

5 ^eAnd he could there do no mighty work, save that he laid his hands upon a few sick folk, and healed them.

6 And ^fhe marvelled because of their unbelief. ^gAnd he went round about the villages, teaching.

7 ¶ ^hAnd he calleth unto him the twelve, and began to send them forth by ⁱtwo and two, and gave them power over unclean spirits;

8 And commanded them that they ^kshould take nothing for their journey, save a staff only; no scrip, no bread, no ^lmoney in their purse:

9 But ^mbe shod with ⁿsandals; and not put on two coats.

10 And he said unto them, ^oIn what place soever ye enter into an house, there abide till ye depart from that place.

11 ^pAnd whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear you, when ye depart thence shake off the dust under your feet for a testimony against them. ^qVerily I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, than for that city.

12 And they went out, and preached ^rthat men should repent.

13 ^sAnd they cast out many devils, and anointed with oil many that were sick, and healed them.

14 ¶ ^tAnd king Herod heard of him; (for his name was spread abroad); and he said, That John the Baptist was risen from the dead, and therefore mighty works do shew forth themselves in him.

15 ^uOthers said, That it is Elias. And others said, That it is a prophet, or as one of the prophets.

16 ^vBut, when Herod heard thereof, he said, It is John, whom I beheaded: he is risen from the dead.

17 ¶ ^wFor Herod himself had sent forth, and laid hold upon John, and bound him in prison for Herodias' sake, his brother Philip's wife: for he had married her.

18 For John had said unto Herod, ^xIt is not lawful for thee to have thy brother's wife.

19 Therefore ^yHerodias had ^zta quarrel against him, and would have killed him; but she could not:

20 For Herod ^afeared John, knowing that he was a just man, and an holy, and ^bobserved him; and when he heard him he did many things, and heard him gladly.

21 And when ^ca convenient day was come, that Herod on his birthday made a supper to his lords, high captains, and chief estates of Galilee;

22 And when ^dthe daughter of the said Herodias came in, and danced, and pleased Herod and them that sat with him, the king said unto the damsel, Ask of me whatsoever thou wilt, and I will give it thee.

23 And he sware unto her, ^eWhatsoever thou shalt ask of me, I will give it thee, unto the half of my kingdom.

24 And she went forth, and said unto her mother, What shall I ask? And she said, ^fThe head of John the Baptist.

25 And she came in straightway ^gwith

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. V.—Dreadful is the case of natural men, who are filled with and governed by devils. Cruelly they tyrannize over their vassals, and furiously work in them, so that no restraints of human laws, solemn vows, awful or engaging providences, nor even common operations of the Holy Ghost, can in the least avail! But great is the mercy that Christ's compassion is infinitely greater than Satan's implacable malice, and his saving power infinitely superior to all his fury: and when he casts out the unclean spirit, he puts a new heart and a right spirit within us. In the most fearful forms he sometimes punishes worldlings by the hand of their own master, for the manifestation of his own justice and grace. And great is their folly and wickedness who prefer their secular interests to Jesus Christ and his salvation, and, from inordinate love to the world, desire him to depart from them. If he take them at their word, how dismal is the consequence! But, if some reject him, he will make others ready to receive him. And no distance, no filthiness, no shame, no fear, no discouragement, no derision, no death, shall hinder their health, their comfort, their life, who apply to him; while vain, and even hurtful, are all other means of relief, when used without due subordination to him. Even saints are ready to tremble when they ought to triumph: for Jesus often, by voluntary delays, lets the case, even of his most earnest supplicants, become apparently desperate before he grants relief. And justly he excludes scoffers from the means of their conviction. But, if his mighty works must sometimes be only the subjects of private adoration and praise, cheerfully ought we to proclaim them, when it is most seasonable, and subservient to his and his Father's glory and the benefit of mankind.

haste unto the king, and asked, saying, I will that thou give me by and by in a charger the head of John the Baptist.

²⁶ And the king ¹was exceeding sorry ; ²yet for his oath's sake, and for their sakes which sat with him, he would not reject her.

²⁷ And ¹immediately the king sent ¹¹an executioner, and commanded his head to be brought : and he went and beheaded him in the prison, ²⁸ And brought his head in a charger, and gave it to the damsel : and the damsel gave it to her mother.

³⁰ ¶ ^kAnd the apostles gathered themselves together unto Jesus, and told him all things, both what they had done and what they had taught.

³¹ And he said unto them, ¹Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place, and rest a while : for there were many coming and going, and they had no leisure so much as to eat.

³² And they departed into a desert place by ship privately.

³⁴ ¶ ⁿAnd Jesus, when he came out, saw much people, and was moved with compassion toward them, because they were as sheep not having a shepherd : and ^ohe began to teach them many things.

³⁵ ^pAnd when the day was now far spent his disciples came unto him, and said, This is a desert place, and now the time is far passed :

³⁶ Send them away, that they may go into the country round about, and into the villages, and buy themselves bread : for they have nothing to eat.

³⁷ He answered and said unto them, ^qGive ye them to eat. And they say unto him, ^rShall we go and buy two hundred ^spennyworth of bread, and give them to eat ?

⁴⁰ And they sat down in ranks, by hundreds, and by fifties.

⁴¹ And, when he had taken the five loaves and the two fishes, ^uhe looked up to heaven, and blessed, and brake the loaves, and gave ^{them} to his disciples to set before them ; and the two fishes divided he among them all.

⁴² ^vAnd they did all eat, and were filled.

⁴³ And they took up twelve baskets full of the fragments, and of the fishes.

⁴⁴ And they that did eat of the loaves were about five thousand men.

⁴⁷ ^aAnd when even was come the ship was in the midst of the sea, and he alone on the land,

⁵¹ ^fAnd he went up unto them into the ship, and the wind ceased : and they were ^gsore amazed in themselves beyond measure, and wondered.

⁵² ^hFor they considered not ^{the miracle} of the loaves ; for their heart was hardened.

⁵⁴ And, when they were come out of the ship, straightway they knew him, ⁵⁵ And ^lran through that whole region round about, and began to carry about in beds those that were sick, where they heard he was.

⁵⁶ And whithersoever he entered, into villages, or cities, or country, they laid the sick in the streets, and besought him that they might ^mtouch, if it were but the border of his garment : and as many as touched [†]him were made whole.

CHAP. VII.

Coincides with Mat. xv. ; and represents (1) Christ's dispute with the Pharisees about meats and washing their hands ; and his charging them with making void the commandments of God, through their traditions ; 1—13. (2) His instructing his disciples, and the multitude, that what really defiled them before God proceeded from their wicked hearts ; 14—23. (3) His dislodging the devil from the Canaanitish maid after he had tried the faith of her importunate mother ; 24—30. (4) His curing a deaf man, who had an impediment in his speech ; 31—37.

of men. Terrible is their case who hear, but reject, the gospel. And most deplorable the situation of those who are under the direction of ignorant and unfaithful ministers. Men's lusts will drive them to the most fearful lengths when once they are fully entangled. And none are more base than abandoned women. Yea, carnal pretences to fidelity and honour often plunge men into the most bloody crimes, and at last into the depths of hell. But if men seek Jesus, even with natural seriousness, how great his tender compassion to them, and his concern that neither soul nor body should suffer hurt in his service. He is ready to heal every disease, and to supply every want. And he can feed them in a wilderness, or walk on floods for their help. If then he manifest his power and his glory in our deliverance, let us never turn again to folly, nor give way to hardness and unbelief.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VI.—It is strange that sinners should so cavil at, condemn, and rage against, the Redeemer ; and labour to lay hindrances in the way of their own mercy. And amazing is his grace and patience in sending forth other ministers, when those formerly sent have been so basely contemned and persecuted. Men indeed are often astonished and affected by the word of God, who are never savingly changed by it. And, while they reverence the preacher and hear him gladly, they yet continue in their sins. But ministers must execute their commission, whether men will hear or forbear. And he who sends them on their errand will furnish them for it, own them in it, and make it the duty and inclination of hearers to honour and support them for their works' sake. On him therefore they ought to depend for maintenance and protection, neither entangling themselves with the affairs of this life, nor fearing the faces

5. Gal. 1. 14.
2 And when they saw some of his disciples eat bread with *defiled (that is to say, with unwashen) hands, ^bthey found fault.

3 For the Pharisees, and all the Jews, except they wash their hands †oft, eat not, holding the tradition of the elders.

4 And when they come from the market, except they ^cwash, they eat not.
And many other things there be which they have received to hold, as the washing of cups, and ‡pots, brazen vessels, and of ||tables.

5 Then the Pharisees and scribes asked him, ^dWhy walk not thy disciples according to the tradition of the elders, but eat bread with unwashen hands?

6 He answered and said unto them,
Well hath Esaias prophesied of you ^ehypocrites, as it is written, ^fThis people honoureth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me.

7 Howbeit, in vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.

8 For, laying aside the commandment of God, ye hold the tradition of men, as the washing of pots and cups :
and many other such like things ye do.

9 And he said unto them, ^gFull well ye ^hreject the commandment of God, that ye may keep your own tradition.

10 For Moses said, ⁱHonour thy father and thy mother ; and, Whoso curseth father or mother, let him die the death :

11 But ye say, If a man shall say to his father or mother, It is ^jCorban, that is to say, a gift, by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me ; he shall be free.

12 And ye suffer him no more to do ought for his father or his mother :

13 ^kMaking the word of God of none effect through your tradition, which ye have delivered : and many such like things do ye.

14 ¶ And, when he had called all the people unto him, he said unto them, Hearken unto me every one of you, and understand :

15 ^mThere is nothing from without a man that entering into him can defile him ; but the things which come out of him, those are they that defile the man.

16 ⁿIf any man have ears to hear, let him hear.

17 ^oAnd, when he was entered into the house from the people, his disciples asked him concerning the parable.

18 And he saith unto them, ^pAre ye so without understanding also? Do ye not perceive that whatsoever thing from without entereth into the man, it cannot defile him ;

19 ^qBecause it entereth not into his heart, but into the belly, and goeth out into the draught, purging all meats?

20 And he said, ^rThat which cometh out of the man, that defileth the man.

21 ^sFor from within, out of the heart of men, proceed evil thoughts, adulteries, fornications, murders,

22 Thefts, covetousness, wickedness, deceit, lasciviousness, an evil eye, blasphemy, pride, foolishness :

23 All these evil things come from within, and defile the man.

24 ¶ And from thence he arose, and went into the borders of Tyre and Sidon, and ^tentered into an house, and would have no man know it : but he could not be hid.

25 For ^ua certain woman, whose young daughter had an unclean spirit, heard of him, and came and fell at his feet :

26 The woman was a ^vGreek, a Syrophenician by nation, and ^wshe besought him that he would cast forth the devil out of her daughter.

27 But Jesus said unto her, ^xLet the children first be filled : for it is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it unto the dogs.

28 And she answered and said unto him, Yes, Lord : ^yyet the dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs.

29 And he said unto her, ^zFor this saying, go thy way ; the devil is gone out of thy daughter.

30 And, ^awhen she was come to her house, she found the devil gone out, and her daughter laid upon the bed.

31 ¶ And again, departing from the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, he came unto the sea of Galilee, through the midst of the coasts of †Decapolis.

32 And ^bthey bring unto him one that was deaf, and had an impediment in his speech : and they beseech him to put his hand upon him.

33 And he took him ^caside from the multitude, and put his fingers into his ears, and he spit, and touched his tongue ;

34 And, ^dlooking up to heaven, he sighed, and saith unto him, Ephphatha, that is, Be opened.

35 And ^estraightway his ears were opened, and the string of his tongue was loosed, and he spake plain.

36 And ^fhe charged them that they should tell no man : but the more he charged them, so much the more a great deal they published it ;

37 ^gAnd were beyond measure astonished, saying, He ^hhath done all things well : he maketh both the deaf to hear, and the dumb to speak.

CHAP. VIII.

Coincides with Mat. xv. xvi. Here (1) Christ miraculously feeds 4000 with seven loaves and a few small fishes ; 1—9. (2) Re-insults and denials of help. And Jesus sometimes tries the faith of his people by great discouragements, even while he secretly upholds and animates it, till at last, he crown it with the full enjoyment of all that it can wish. What complicated diseases spring from our complicated lusts and crimes! And it is a great mercy that Jesus Christ has power over all plagues. Let me then, conscious of sinful pollutions and miseries unnumbered, look up to him for relief in his own time and way. No hardened heart, deaf ears, nor stammering tongue, can withstand his healing words of power. Let me listen to his instructions with an obedient ear ; and ascribe to him, as he shall direct, the glory due to his name, who is wonderful in counsel and excellent in working.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VII.—What self-deceivers are human hearts!
The most trifling superstitions are often substituted in place of the substantial duties of religion and morality. But no devotion which is not commanded by God, and offered up in faith and sincerity, can be acceptable to him, or profitable to us. Alas, what an infernal fountain of wickedness is every unregenerate heart! It is ready to burst forth on every occasion. And there is an absolute necessity of God's implanting an abiding principle of life, light, faith, and love, in opposition to our natural corruption. His grace indeed makes a wonderful change even in the weakest believer. It gives the highest and most honourable views of Christ; the tenderest compassion to afflicted friends; earnest importunity in prayer for their relief; and great humility and patience under seeming fuses to give the Pharisees a sign from heaven; 10—13. (3) Warns his disciples to beware of the doctrine of the Pharisees and Herodians; and rebukes their misapprehension of his words; 14—21. (4) Gives sight to a blind man at Bethsaida; 22—26. (5) By his inquiries, makes Peter confess him to be the Christ; 27—30. (6) Foretells his own suffering, and rebukes Peter for his carnal aversion to it; 31—33. (7) Warns his disciples and hearers that they must not expect salvation and honour from him, but in the way of suffering and self-denial; 34—38.

Mat. 15. 32—39.

IN those days the multitude being very great, and having nothing to eat, Jesus called his disciples unto him, and saith unto them,

2 ^bI have compassion on the multitude, because they have now been with me three days, and have nothing to eat:

3 And, if I send them away fasting to their own houses, they will faint by the way: for divers of them came from far.

4 And his disciples answered him, From whence can a man satisfy these men with bread here in the wilderness?

5 And he asked them, How many loaves have ye? And they said, Seven.

6 And he commanded the people to sit down on the ground: and he took the seven loaves, and gave thanks, and brake, and gave to his disciples to set before them: and they did set them before the people.

7 And they had a few small fishes: and he blessed, and commanded to set them also before them.

8 So they did eat, and were filled: and they took up of the broken meat that was left seven baskets.

9 And they that had eaten were about four thousand: and he sent them away.

10 ¶ And straightway he entered into a ship with his disciples, and came into the parts of Dalmanutha.

11 And the Pharisees came forth, and began to question with him, seeking of him a sign from heaven, tempting him.

12 And he sighed deeply in his spirit, and saith, Why doth this generation seek after a sign? Verily I say unto you, There shall no sign be given unto this generation.

13 And he left them; and, entering into the ship again, departed to the other side.

14 ¶ Now the disciples had forgotten to take bread, neither had they in the ship with them more than one loaf.

15 And he charged them saying, Take heed, beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, and of the leaven of Herod.

16 And they reasoned among themselves, saying, It is because we have no bread.

17 And, when Jesus knew it, he saith unto them, Why reason ye because ye have no bread? perceive ye not yet, neither understand? have ye your heart yet hardened?

18 Having eyes, see ye not? and having ears, hear ye not? and do ye not remember?

19 When I brake the five loaves among five thousand, how many baskets full of fragments took ye up? They say unto him, Twelve.

20 And, when the seven among four thousand, how many baskets full of fragments took ye up? And they said, Seven.

21 And he said unto them, How is it that ye do not understand?

22 ¶ And he cometh to Bethsaida, and they bring a blind man unto him, and besought him to touch him.

23 And he took the blind man by the hand, and led him out of the town; and when he had spit on his eyes, and put his hands upon him, he asked him if he saw ought.

24 And he looked up, and said, I see men as trees walking.

25 After that he put his hands again upon his eyes, and made him look up: and he was restored, and saw every man clearly.

26 And he sent him away to his house, saying, Neither go into the town, nor tell it to any in the town.

27 ¶ And Jesus went out, and his disciples, into the towns of Cesarea Philippi: and by the way he asked his disciples, saying unto them, Whom do men say that I am?

28 And they answered, John the Baptist: but some say, Elias; and others, One of the prophets.

29 And he saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am? And Peter answereth and saith unto him, Thou art the Christ.

30 And he charged them that they should tell no man of him.

31 ¶ And he began to teach them that the Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected of the elders, and of the chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and after three days rise again.

32 And he spake that saying openly. And Peter took him, and began to rebuke him.

33 But, when he had turned about, and looked on his disciples, he rebuked Peter, saying, Get thee behind me, Satan: for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but the things that be of men.

34 ¶ And, when he had called the people unto him with his disciples also, he said unto them, Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.

35 For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it.

36 For what shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?

37 Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

38 Whosoever therefore shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him also shall the Son of man be ashamed when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels.

Coincides with Mat. xvii. xviii. Here (1) Christ is gloriously transfigured on the mount; charges Peter, James, and John, who beheld it, to conceal it till after his resurrection; and declares John Baptist to have been the promised Elias; 1—13. (2) After rebuking the unbelief of all present, and causing the father to profess his faith, he casts out a most cruel and stubborn devil from a young man, whom his disciples could not eject; 14—29. (3) He again foretells his own sufferings, death, and resurrection; 30—32. (4) He rebukes his disciples for their carnal ambition after distinguished honours in his kingdom; 33—37: and John, for forbidding a man to cast out devils in his name; 38—41. (5) He shews his disciples the danger of offending his weak followers, and of indulging any thing that might cause them to sin; 42—50.

never misinterpret his words or providences, nor ever forget his former mighty works. It is highly absurd to reject the most plain and proper evidences which he gives of his dignified character, and insist to be gratified with others, far less useful, merely because they are of our own contriving. Yea, infidelity, and impenitent hardness of heart will work the most fearful ruin for those who indulge them! And Jesus will perform no miracles to gratify men's humours; but will abandon those who insist upon them to the heavy judgments which they deserve. But great is his readiness to bear with, help, heal, and save, them who, sensible of their wants and maladies, apply to him for relief; and in an instant, or more gradually,—in public or private,—as best promotes his glory and their good,—kindly will he bestow it. What mean thoughts men have of Christ! and what carnal views have some real saints of the real glories of his office and work! And never doth Satan more readily cast the saints down, than after some signal token of Jesus' regard. Nothing doth Jesus more detest than low thoughts of his sufferings and death: and in nothing does he manifest more true love than in administering sharp rebukes. If we expect glory with him, we must now take up our cross and follow him; for if we be ashamed of him now, we must not expect to be honoured by him in the last judgment. And if, in forsaking him, we court worldly profits, pleasures, or honours, we shall fall into everlasting perdition. In death or judgment it will little avail us what our external circumstances in life were. And surely our great concern ought to be what shall become of our immortal souls in the eternal state.

34 But they held their peace : for by the way they had disputed among themselves who should be the greatest.

35 And he sat down, and called the twelve, and saith unto them, If any man desire to be first, the same shall be last of all, and servant of all.

36 And he took a child, and set him in the midst of them : and, when he had taken him in his arms, he said unto them, 37 Whosoever shall receive one of such children in my name, receiveth me : and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth not me, but him that sent me.

38 ¶ And John answered him, saying, Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name, and he followeth not us : and we forbad him, because he followeth not us.

39 But Jesus said, Forbid him not : for there is no man who shall do a miracle in my name that can lightly speak evil of me.

40 For he that is not against us is on our part.

41 For whosoever shall give you a cup of water to drink in my name, because ye belong to Christ, verily I say unto you, he shall not lose his reward.

42 And whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in me, it is better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he were cast into the sea.

43 And, if thy hand offend thee, cut it off : it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two hands to go into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched :

44 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

45 And, if thy foot offend thee, cut it off : it is better for thee to enter halt into life, than having two feet to be cast into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched :

46 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

47 And, if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out : it is better for thee to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire :

48 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

49 For every one shall be salted with fire, and every sacrifice shall be salted with salt.

50 Salt is good : but, if the salt have lost its saltness, wherewith will ye season it ? Have salt in yourselves, and have peace one with another.

CHAP. X.

Coincides with Mat. xix. xx.; and represents (1) Christ's debate with the Pharisees concerning divorce; 1—12. (2) His kind entertainment of the little children, whom their parents brought to him for his blessing; 13—16. (3) His trial of the rich young man, who had asked him what he must do to procure heaven; 17—22. (4) His representation of the danger of worldly riches; 23—27: and the advantage of being impoverished for his sake; 28—31. (5) The repeated notice he gave his disciples of his approaching sufferings, death, and resurrection; 32—34. (6) His advice to James and John, to think of suffering with him, rather than of carnal honours in this world; 35—45. (7) His cure of poor blind Bartimeus; 46—52.

AND he arose from thence, and cometh into the coasts of Judea by the farther side of Jordan : and the people resort unto him again ; and, as he was wont, he taught them again.

2 ¶ And the Pharisees came to him, and asked him, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife ? tempting him.

3 And he answered and said unto them, What did Moses command you ?

4 And they said, Moses suffered to write a bill of divorcement, and to put her away.

5 And Jesus answered and said unto them, For the hardness of your heart he wrote you this precept :

6 But from the beginning of the creation God made them male and female.

7 For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife ;

8 And they twain shall be one flesh : so then they are no more twain, but one flesh.

9 What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder.

10 And in the house his disciples asked him again of the same matter.

11 And he saith unto them, Whosoever shall put away his wife, and marry another, committeth adultery against her.

12 And if a woman shall put away her husband, and be married to another, she committeth adultery.

13 ¶ And they brought young children to him, that he should touch them : and his disciples rebuked those that brought them.

14 But when Jesus saw it he was much displeased, and said unto them, Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not : for of such is the kingdom of God.

CHAP. IX. Ver. 44—48. The fire denotes the eternal torments of hell ; and the never-dying worm denotes conscience, perpetually accusing, upbraiding, and condemning. 49. Every one in hell is preserved incorruptible, by the very nature of the torments ; even as, in saints the principle of grace, received in regeneration, secures eternal holiness and happiness.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IX.—O the transcendent glories of our Redeemer ! How delightful are the manifestations thereof ! Happy are they who are much favoured with them : but happier they who in heaven always behold his face ! The ravishing displays of God on earth are indeed quickly passed : but it is enough to hear his Son when we see him not. He is risen from the dead, and ascended to glory ; and will quickly return, without sin, unto our salvation. Let us then exercise ourselves, not in curious questions, but in humble faith and ardent desires. And let all the opposition we receive from devils and men render his return doubly welcome !—Alas, how early Satan enters into men ! But, when once entered, he holds fast his possession, and cruelly and basely abuses his subjects. And yet, in cases the most alarming, multitudes take his part against Christ and his disciples. Invaluable are the mercies that unbelief detests or deprives men of. And near, though sometimes terribly introduced, is our relief, when unbelief is once made our burden. Yea, often the clearest views of the cause of our miseries come after our deliverance. How Jesus delighted in suffering for men, and yet how ill his sufferings are relished by men under the power of carnal ambition ! Many proudly conceal their ignorance till it ruins them ; and contend in angry debates till they have lost all sight of the truth. And it is a mercy if Jesus rebuke them, and shame them out of their ambition into peace and humility. It is base for Christians to take it ill, that God's work prospers in any hands but those of their particular party. And it is very dangerous to oppose that which is ratified by the blessing of God. Yea, if nothing appear contrary to the faith of the gospel, charity requires us to hope the best. God resists the proud, but giveth grace to the humble. The favour which he shew to any for Christ's sake he will take as done to himself, and it shall not lose its reward. Better is it to go to heaven through much self-denial, than to hell in a course of self-indulgence. Let therefore the terrors and eternity of hell torments, heartily believed, be a powerful check to our raging passions. And, unless we wish to be through eternity salted with God's wrath, as sacrifices to his avenging justice, let us, as acceptable sacrifices to his mercy and kindness, pray to have our hearts salted with grace, and our lives ordered as becometh the gospel.

15 Verily I say unto you, ^pWhosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein.

16 ^aAnd he took them up in his arms, put his hands upon them, and blessed them.

17 ¶ ^aAnd, when he was gone forth into the way, there came one running, and kneeled to him, and asked him, 'Good Master, 'what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?

18 And Jesus said unto him, ^a'Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is, God.

19 ^a'Thou knowest the commandments; Do not commit adultery, Do not kill, Do not steal, Do not bear false witness, Defraud not, Honour thy father and mother.

20 And he answered and said unto him, Master, 'all these have I observed from my youth.

21 ^a'Then Jesus, beholding him, loved him, and said unto him, One thing thou lackest: go thy way, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor; and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, 'take up the cross, and follow me.

22 ^bAnd he was sad at that saying, and went away grieved: for he had great possessions.

23 ¶ And Jesus looked round about, and saith unto his disciples, 'How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!

24 And the disciples were astonished at his words. But Jesus answereth again, and saith unto them, Children, how hard is it for them 'that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God!

25 It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

26 And they were astonished out of measure, saying among themselves, 'Who then can be saved?

27 And Jesus, looking upon them, saith, 'With men it is impossible, but not with God: for with God all things are possible.

28 ¶ ^aThen Peter began to say unto him, Lo, we have left all, and have followed thee.

29 And Jesus answered and said, Verily I say unto you, ^b'There is no man that hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake and the gospel's, 30 But he shall receive 'an hundred-fold now in this time, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands, ^k'with persecutions; and in the world to come eternal life.

31 ^a'But many that are first shall be last, and the last first.

32 ¶ ^aAnd they were in the way going up to Jerusalem: and Jesus went before them; and they were amazed: and as they followed they ^awere afraid. ^aAnd he took again the twelve, and began to tell them what things should happen unto him,

33 ^aSaying, ^p'Behold, we go up to Jerusalem, and the Son of man shall be delivered unto the chief priests, and unto the scribes; and they shall condemn him to death, and shall deliver him to the Gentiles:

34 And they shall mock him, and shall scourge him, and shall spit upon him, and shall kill him: and the third day he shall rise again.

35 ¶ ^aAnd James and John, the sons of Zebedee, come unto him, saying, Master, 'we would that thou shouldest do for us whatsoever we shall desire.

36 And he said unto them, What would ye that I should do for you?

37 They said unto him, Grant unto us that we may sit, one 'on thy right hand, and the other on thy left hand, in thy glory.

38 But Jesus said unto them, 'Ye know not what ye ask: can ye drink of 'the cup that I drink of? and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with?

39 And they said unto him, 'We can. And Jesus said unto them, 'Ye shall indeed drink of the cup that I drink of; and with the baptism that I am baptized withal shall ye be baptized:

40 ^a'But to sit on my right hand and on my left hand is not mine to give, but to them for whom it is prepared.

41 And ^a'when the ten heard it they began to be much displeased with James and John.

42 But Jesus called them to him, and saith unto them, ^b'Ye know that they which ^a'are accounted to rule over the Gentiles exercise lordship over them; and their great ones exercise authority upon them.

43 ^a'But so shall it not be among you: but whosoever will be great among you shall be your minister:

44 And whosoever of you will be the chiefest shall be servant of all.

45 ^a'For even the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.

46 ¶ ^aAnd they came to Jericho: and as he went out of Jericho with his disciples, and a great number of people, blind Bartimeus, the son of Timeus, sat by the highway side begging.

47 And, when he heard that it was 'Jesus of Nazareth, he began to cry out, and say, Jesus, thou ^a'son of David, have mercy on me.

48 And ^b'many charged him that he should hold his peace: but he cried the more a great deal, Thou son of David, have mercy on me.

49 ^a'And Jesus stood still, and commanded him to be called. And they call the blind man, saying unto him, ^k'Be of good comfort; rise, he calleth thee.

50 ^a'And he, casting away his garment, rose, and came to Jesus.

51 And Jesus answered and said unto him, ^a'What wilt thou that I should do unto thee? The blind man said unto REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. X.—What an example of unwearied patience and labour, of wisdom and prudence, of humility and condescension, of tenderness and compassion, has Jesus set before us in himself! And under what an excellent dispensation of purity, light, and grace, do we now live in the gospel period. Its various truths are set forth in the most evident light, and all its precepts recommended by the strongest arguments. The laws of marriage are plainly settled for preventing confusion and for promoting conjugal faithfulness and affection. And the privileges of believers' children are clearly established, and themselves made emblems of the true heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ. But self-confidences, proud ambition, and a worldly spirit, are great hindrances to real religion and happiness. And God's grace rarely recovers men from their influence, or teaches them that the only use of riches is to do good with them.

Alas, how many have several amiable qualities, and yet, for want of indwelling grace, land at last in eternal torments! But rich are the rewards of self-denial and multiplied losses for Christ's sake. And yet it is only believing views of his sufferings that will make us to delight in them. It is shameful for the disciples of a crucified Redeemer repeatedly to contend about the imaginary trifles of worldly grandeur. And great is his compassion in bearing with the infirmities, ignorance, and frowardness of his people. Yea, he is ready to heal such as apply to him for relief in the firm faith of his infinite ability and willingness to save. No meanness, no distemper, can stop the egress of his special love. And, if he welcome, no matter how many thousands wickedly discourage me. And, if he succour, supply, save, and enlighten, my soul or body, cheerfully should I follow him in my way to eternal rest.

them well, asked him, Which is the first commandment of all?

29 And Jesus answered him, The first of all the commandments is, ^oHear, O Israel, the Lord our God is one Lord:

30 And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength. This is the first commandment.

31 And the second is like, namely, this, ^oThou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. There is none other commandment greater than these.

32 And the scribe said unto him, Well, Master, thou hast said the truth: for there is one God, and there is none other but he:

33 And to love him with all the heart, and with all the understanding, and with all the soul, and with all the strength, and to love his neighbour as himself, ^his more than all whole burnt-offerings and sacrifices.

34 And, when Jesus saw that he answered discreetly, he said unto him, ⁱThou art not far from the kingdom of God. ^kAnd no man after that durst ask him any question.

35 ¶ And Jesus answered and said, while he taught in the temple, How say the scribes that Christ is the son of David?

36 For David himself said, ^mby the Holy Ghost, The LORD said to my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand till I make thine enemies thy footstool.

37 David therefore himself, calleth him Lord; and ⁿwhence is he then his son? And the common people heard him gladly.

38 ¶ And he said unto them in his doctrine, ^oBeware of the scribes, who love to go in long clothing, and love salutations in the market places,

39 And the chief seats in the synagogues, and the uppermost rooms at feasts:

40 ^pWho devour widows' houses, and for a pretence make long prayers: ^qthese shall receive greater damnation.

41 ¶ And Jesus sat over against the treasury, and beheld how the people cast ^rmoney into the treasury: and many that were rich cast in much.

42 And there came a certain poor widow, and she threw in two ^tmites, which make a farthing.

43 And he called unto him his disciples, and saith unto them, ^vVerily I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast more in than all they which have cast into the treasury.

44 For all they did cast in of their abundance: but she of her want did cast in all that she had, even all her living.

CHAP. XIII.

Coincides with Mat. xxiv. (1) The disciples admire the buildings of the temple, and inquire into the time and signs of its destruction; 1—4. (2) Jesus foretells the rise of deceivers; 5, 6, 21—23: the wars, and other miseries, of nations; 7, 8: the persecution of Christians; 9—13: the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans, and the miseries attending it, along with the events of the last judgment; 14—27. (3) He hints that the destruction of Jerusalem would quickly happen; but that the time of the last judgment was unknown; 28—33. (4) He directs to prepare for both events, by watchfulness, diligence, and prayer; 33—37.

AND ^aas he went out of the temple ^bone of his disciples saith unto him, Master, see what manner of stones and what buildings are here!

2 And Jesus answering, said unto him, Seest thou these great buildings? ^bthere shall not be left one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down.

3 ¶ And as he sat upon the mount of Olives, over against the temple, ^cPeter, and James, and John, and Andrew, asked him ^dprivately, 4 ^eTell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign when all these things shall be fulfilled?

5 And Jesus, answering them, began to say, ^fTake heed lest any man deceive you:

6 ^gFor many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many.

7 ^hAnd when ye shall hear of wars, and rumours of wars, be ye not troubled: for such things must needs be; but ⁱthe end shall not be yet.

8 ^kFor nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be earthquakes in divers places, and there shall be famines and troubles: ^lthese are the beginnings of ^msorrows.

9 ⁿBut take heed to yourselves: for they shall deliver you up to councils; and in the synagogues ye shall be beaten: and ye shall be brought before rulers and kings for my sake, for a testimony against them.

10 ^oAnd the gospel must first be published among all nations.

11 ^pBut, when they shall lead you, and deliver you up, take no thought beforehand what ye shall speak, neither do ye premeditate: but whatsoever shall be given you in that hour, that speak ye: for it is not ye that speak, but the Holy Ghost.

less most kindness. Yet nothing can conceal their wickedness from God. Men often pretend a regard to the scriptures, that they may undermine their credit. And there is no error so extravagant but they, who live ignorant of the scriptures and the power of God, may affirm. The word of revelation sets the just bounds to civil and religious concerns: it gives the clearest certainty of a general resurrection, makes the plainest discoveries of the eternal state, and honourably and delightfully connects our duties to God and to men. They, who improve the light which God gives them, bid fair to be rendered more knowing; or even led into all truth. Yea, babes in Christ understand more of the mystery of godliness than the graceless learned. Alas, that many are never more than almost Christians! An inordinate desire of human respect marks their carnal and unmortified heart. But the greater men's hypocrisy and wickedness, the more terrible will be their condemnation.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XII.—Sovereign is the kindness of God in planting a church among men, and astonishing his patience towards obstinate and rebellious sinners. Thousands of the most shocking affronts to himself, his messengers, and messages, he endures before he executes his wrath upon them. Yea, marvellous above all is his grace in sending his Son to seek and save such sinners and call them to repentance! And just and unavoidable their ruin who reject him! But, if some will tread on the Redeemer, God will make others to receive him and bring forth fruits answerable to their privileges. And, in spite of all the rage of his enemies, Jesus shall be honoured, and his kingdom established,—to the astonishment and joy of all those who have experienced his power, and the influence of his grace, in their hearts. But if any remain unconcerned, no wonder that at last they become exasperated against his message and ministers.—They who heartily hate one another, more heartily unite against him and his cause: Nor are their designs ever more malignant than when they pro-

13 And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake: ^abut he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved.

14 ^bBut when ye shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, standing ^cwhere it ought not, (let him that readeth understand,) then let them that be in Judea flee to the mountains:

15 ^dAnd let him that is on the house-top not go down into the house, neither enter therein, to take any thing out of his house:

16 And let him that is in the field not turn back again for to take up his garment.

17 ^eBut wo to them that are with child, and to them that give suck in those days!

18 And pray ye that your flight be not in the winter.

19 ^fFor in those days shall be affliction, such as was not from the beginning of the creation which God created unto this time, neither shall be.

20 ^gAnd, except that the Lord had shortened those days, no flesh should be saved: but for the elect's sake, whom he hath chosen, he hath shortened the days.

21 ^hAnd then, if any man shall say to you, Lo, here is Christ; or, lo, he is there: believe him not:

22 ⁱFor false Christs and false prophets shall rise, and shall shew signs and wonders, to seduce, ^jif it were possible, even the elect.

23 ^kBut take ye heed: behold, I have foretold you all things.

24 ¶ ^lBut in those days, after that tribulation, the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, 25 And the stars of heaven shall fall, and the powers that are in heaven shall be shaken.

26 ^mAnd then shall they see the Son of man coming in the clouds, with great power and glory.

27 ⁿAnd then shall he send his angels, and shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from the uttermost parts of the earth to the uttermost part of heaven.

28 Now learn a parable of the fig tree: When her branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, ye know that summer is near:

29 So ye in like manner, when ye shall see these things come to pass, ^oknow that it is nigh, even at the doors.

30 Verily I say unto you, that this generation shall not pass till all these things be done.

31 ^pHeaven and earth shall pass away: but my words shall not pass away.

32 ¶ ^qBut of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father.

33 ^rTake ye heed, watch and pray: for ye know not when the time is.

34 For the Son of man is ^sas a man taking a far journey, who left his house, and gave authority to his servants, and to every man his work, and commanded the porter to watch.

35 ^tWatch ye therefore: for ye know not when the master of the house cometh; at even, or at midnight, or at the cock-crowing, or in the morning:

36 Lest, coming suddenly, he find you ^usleeping.

37 And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIII.—If external privileges be abused, they but aggravate our guilt and hasten our ruin: and national sins will bring on national judgments. Nothing can happen, but as Jesus foresaw and predetermined. And great is his kindness in warning men, before their contempt of himself and his gospel bring on them those temporal miseries which presage their eternal destruction. Kindly he chastens his own faithful servants and people, that they may not be condemned with the world: and graciously he warns them of their danger, and directs them how to conduct themselves for his honour and their own security. Safely he preserves his elect, that even in the worst of times not one of them can be ruined. And many, who abhor and persecute them, owe their temporal preservation to them and their prayers.—If men bear his image, they must expect hatred from the world, even from their nearest carnal relations. The enmity between the seed of the woman and the seed of the serpent will never cease. But let them do their worst, God will cause his gospel to spread through the world, and will support his faithful servants and followers; guide them by his counsel while here, and afterwards receive them to glory. And nothing is more proper to preserve us steady and faithful in evil times, than constant watchfulness and fervent prayer. In so doing we shall be able, at Jesus' tribunal, to give our account with joy and not with grief.

9. Verily I say unto you, 'Whosoever this gospel shall be preached throughout the whole world, this also that she hath done shall be spoken of, for a memorial of her.

10 ¶^k And Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, went unto the chief priests, to betray him unto them.

11 And when they heard it they were glad, and promised to 'give him money. And he sought how he might conveniently betray him.

12 ¶^m And the first day of unleavened bread, when they killed the passover, his disciples said unto him, Where wilt thou that we go and prepare, that thou mayest eat the passover?

13 And he sendeth forth two of his disciples, and saith unto them, Go ye into the city, and there shall meet you a man bearing a pitcher of water: follow him.

14 And whosoever he shall go in, say ye to the good man of the house, 'The Master saith, Where is the guest chamber, where 'I shall eat the passover with my disciples?

15 And he will shew you a large upper room furnished and prepared: there make ready for us.

16 And his disciples went forth, and came into the city, and 'found as he had said unto them: and 'they made ready the passover.

17 And 'in the evening he cometh with the twelve.

18 'And, as they sat and did eat, Jesus said, Verily I say unto you, 'One of you which eateth with me shall betray me.

19 And they began to be 'sorrowful, and to say unto him one by one, Is it I? and another said, Is it I?

20 And he answered and said unto them, It is one of the twelve that 'dip-peth with me in the dish.

21 The Son of man indeed goeth, 'as it is written of him: but 'wo to that man by whom the Son of man is betrayed! good were it for that man if he had never been born.

22 ¶^b And as they did eat Jesus took bread, and blessed, and brake it, and gave to them, and said, Take, eat: this is my body.

23 And he took the cup; and, when he had given thanks, he gave it to them: and they all drank of it.

24 And he said unto them, This is my 'blood of the New Testament, which is shed for many.

25 Verily I say unto you, I will drink no more of the 'fruit of the vine until that day that I drink it new in the 'king-dom of God.

26 ¶ And when they had sung an 'hymn they 'went out into the mount of Olives.

27 'And Jesus saith unto them, All ye shall be offended because of me this night: for it is written, 'I will smite the Shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered.

28 But after that I am risen 'I will go before you into Galilee.

29 ^m But Peter said unto him, Although all shall be offended, yet will not I.

30 And Jesus saith unto him, Verily I say unto thee, that this day, even in this night, before the cock crow twice, thou shalt deny me thrice.

31 ⁿ But he spake the more vehemently, If I should die with thee, I will not deny thee in any wise. ^o Likewise also said they all.

32 ¶^p And they came to a place which was named Gethsemane: and he saith to his disciples, Sit ye here, while I 'shall pray.

33 And he taketh with him 'Peter, and James, and John, and began to be 'sore amazed, and to be very heavy;

34 And saith unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful unto death: tarry ye here, and 'watch.

35 And he went forward a little, and 'fell on the ground, and prayed that, if it were possible, the hour might pass from him.

36 'And he said, Abba, Father, 'all things are possible unto thee: 'take away this cup from me: nevertheless, not what I will, but what thou wilt.

37 And he cometh, and findeth them sleeping, and saith unto Peter, Simon, sleepest thou? 'couldst not thou watch one hour?

38 ^b Watch ye and pray, lest ye enter into temptation. The spirit truly is ready, but the flesh is weak.

39 And 'again he went away, and prayed, and spake the same words.

40 And when he returned, he found them 'asleep again; for their eyes were heavy; neither wist they what to answer him.

41 And he cometh the third time, and saith unto them, 'Sleep on now, and take your rest: it is enough, the hour is come: 'behold, the Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners.

42 Rise up, let us go: lo, he that betrayeth me is at hand.

43 ¶^e And immediately, while he yet spake, cometh Judas, one of the twelve, and with him a great multitude with swords and staves, from the chief priests and the scribes and the elders.

44 And he that betrayed him had given them a token, saying, Whomsoever 'I shall kiss, that same is he; take him, and lead him away safely.

45 And, as soon as he was come, he goeth straightway to him, and saith, 'Master, master; and kissed him.

46 ^k And they laid their hands on him, and took him.

47 'And one of them that stood by drew a sword, and smote a servant of the high priest, and cut off his ear.

48 And Jesus answered and said unto them, Are ye come out as against a thief, with swords and with staves, to take me?

49 ^m I was daily with you in the temple, teaching, and ye took me not: but the scriptures must be fulfilled.

50 ^a And they all forsook him, and fled.

51 And there followed him a certain young man, having a linen cloth cast about his naked body; and the young men laid hold on him:

52 And ^ahe left the linen cloth, and fled from them naked.

53 ¶ ^a And they led Jesus away to the high priest: and with him were assembled all the chief priests and the elders and the scribes.

54 ^a And Peter followed him afar off, even unto the palace of the high priest: and he sat with the servants, and warmed himself at the fire.

55 ^a And the chief priests and all the council sought for witness against Jesus to put him to death: and ^afound none.

56 For many bare false witness against him, but their witness agreed not together.

57 And there arose certain, and bare false witness against him, saying, 58 We heard him say, 'I will destroy this temple that is made with hands, and within three days I will build another made without hands.

59 But neither so did their witness agree together.

60 And the high priest stood up in the midst, and asked Jesus, saying, Answerest thou nothing? what is it which these witness against thee?

61 ^a But he held his peace, and answered nothing. Again the high priest asked him, and said unto him, Art thou ^athe Christ, the Son of the Blessed?

62 And Jesus said, I am: ^aand ye shall see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven.

63 Then the high priest ^arent his clothes, and saith, What need we any further witnesses?

64 Ye have heard ^athe blasphemy: what think ye? And they all condemned him to be guilty of death.

65 ^b And some began to spit on him, and to cover his face, and to buffet him, and to say unto him, Prophecy: and the servants did strike him with the palms of their hands.

66 ¶ ^c And, as Peter was beneath in the palace, there cometh one of ^dthe maids of the high priest:

67 And, when she saw Peter warming himself, she looked upon him, and said, And thou also wast with Jesus ^eof Nazareth.

68 But he denied, saying, I know not, neither understand I what thou sayest. And he went out into the porch; and the cock crew.

69 ^f And a maid saw him again; and began to say to them that stood by, This is one of them.

70 And he denied it again. And a little after they that stood by said again to Peter, Surely thou art one of them: for thou art ^ga Galilean, and thy speech agreeth thereto.

71 ^h But he began to curse and to swear, saying, I know not this man of whom ye speak.

72 ⁱ And the second time the cock crew. And Peter called to mind the word that Jesus said unto him, Before the cock crow twice thou shalt deny me thrice. And ^kwhen he thought thereon he wept.

CHAP. XV.

Coincides with Mat. xxvii. Here we have Christ (1) Arraigned and accused before Pilate the Roman governor; 1—5. (2) Cried out against by the common people, at the instigation of the priests; 6—14. (3) Condemned to be crucified; 15. (4) Battered and abused as a mock king by the Roman soldiers; 16—19. (5) Led out to the place of execution with all possible disgrace; 20—24. (6) Nailed to the cross between two thieves; 25—28. (7) Reviled and abused by all that passed by; 29—32. (8) For a time deserted by his Father; 33—36. (9) Dying and rending the vail; 37, 38. (10) Attested by the centurion, and attended by the women; 39—41. (11) Honourably buried in Joseph of Arimathea's sepulchre; 42—47.

AND ^astraightway in the morning the chief priests held a consultation with the elders and scribes and the whole council, and bound Jesus, and carried him away, and delivered him to Pilate.

2 ^b And Pilate asked him, Art thou the king of the Jews? And he answering said unto him, Thou sayest it.

3 ^c And the chief priests accused him of many things: but he answered nothing.

4 ^d And Pilate asked him again, saying, Answerest thou nothing? behold how many things they witness against thee.

5 But Jesus yet answered nothing; so that Pilate marvelled.

6 ¶ ^e Now at that feast he released unto them one prisoner, whomsoever they desired.

7 ^f And there was one named Barabbas, which lay bound with them that had made insurrection with him, who had committed murder in the insurrection.

8 And the multitude, crying aloud, began to desire him to do as he had ever done unto them.

9 But Pilate answered them, saying, ^g Will ye that I release unto you the King of the Jews?

10 (For he knew that the chief priests had delivered him ^hfor envy.)

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIV.—Redeeming love applied to the heart inflames it with the strongest gratitude. Nothing is thought too costly to manifest regard to the Redeemer. And they that honour him shall be sufficiently vindicated and honoured: wherever the fame of Jesus goes, thither shall theirs go at last. And in whatever point we have his orders, we may go forth, depending on his providence for success.—Never is the church on earth altogether free from treacherous hypocrites! and they who are most so are the most backward to suspect themselves. But O how astonishing is the love of Jesus, who put an end to the passover by being sacrificed himself; and instituted his supper, in which we might remember and feast on his expiatory and heaven-purchasing death! Great was his love in warning his disciples of their danger, in reproving and pitying their weakness, and in submitting to such sufferings in soul, in body, and in reputation, for the sake of his enemies; and good the confession which he boldly witnessed before many witnesses!—But how amazing is the wickedness of men! Jewish rulers plot to murder the Messiah, on whom hangs the life, the eternal salvation, of millions unnumbered—For a paltry bribe, Judas deliberately betrays him—Upon a small temptation, Peter repeatedly and most awfully denies him—and through an ill-grounded fear of man, the other disciples shamefully desert him in his suffering condition! What then must sin be, that can make men such monsters, and the divine Saviour so miserable!—There is great need of fervent and frequent prayer in a time of trouble. Nothing is worse than slothfulness therein. And none are more active instruments of hell than apostates from Christ. No fall of eminent professors ought to make us stumble at the ways of Christ. Nor need we think it strange, though, notwithstanding our innocence, we should be treated as the vilest miscreants; or though our nearest relations and most intimate friends should desert us, or turn our inveterate opposers. Let us in silent patience possess our souls. If God be glorified, if the scripture be fulfilled, if the church be edified, and if God at last rise up to vindicate us, it is enough: and if, through self-confidence, we have denied our Redeemer, let us without delay think thereon, and weep.

11 But the chief priests moved the people, that he should rather release Barabbas unto them.

12 And Pilate answered, and said again unto them, What will ye then that I shall do unto him whom ye call the King of the Jews?

13 And they cried out again, Crucify him.

14 Then Pilate said unto them, Why, what evil hath he done? And they cried out the more exceedingly, Crucify him.

15 And so Pilate, willing to content the people, released Barabbas unto them; and delivered Jesus, when he had scourged him, to be crucified.

16 ¶ And the soldiers led him away into the hall called Pretorium; and they call together the whole band.

17 And they clothed him with purple, and platted a crown of thorns, and put it about his head;

18 And began to salute him, Hail, King of the Jews!

19 And they smote him on the head with a reed, and did spit upon him, and bowing their knees worshipped him.

20 And when they had mocked him they took off the purple from him, and put his own clothes on him, and led him out to crucify him.

21 And they compel one Simon a Cyrenian, who passed by, coming out of the country, the father of Alexander and Rufus, to bear his cross.

22 And they bring him unto the place Golgotha, which is, being interpreted, the place of a skull.

23 And they gave him to drink wine mingled with myrrh: but he received it not.

24 ¶ And when they had crucified him they parted his garments, casting lots upon them, what every man should take.

25 And it was the third hour, and they crucified him.

26 And the superscription of his accusation was written over, THE KING OF THE JEWS.

27 And with him they crucify two thieves; the one on his right hand, and the other on his left.

28 And the scripture was fulfilled which saith, And he was numbered with the transgressors.

29 ¶ And they that passed by railed on him, wagging their heads, and saying, Ah, thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days, 30 Save thyself, and come down from the cross.

31 Likewise also the chief priests, mocking, said among themselves with the scribes, He saved others, himself he cannot save.

32 Let Christ the king of Israel descend now from the cross, that we may see and believe. And they that were crucified with him reviled him.

33 ¶ And when the sixth hour was come there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour.

34 And at the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani? which is, being interpreted, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?

35 And some of them that stood by, when they heard it, said, Behold, he calleth Elias.

36 And one ran, and filled a sponge full of vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink, saying, Let alone; let us see whether Elias will come to take him down.

37 And Jesus cried with a loud voice, and gave up the ghost.

38 ¶ And the vail of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom.

39 ¶ And when the centurion, which stood over against him, saw that he so cried out and gave up the ghost, he said, Truly this man was the Son of God.

40 There were also women looking on afar off: among whom was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James the less, and of Joses, and Salome:

41 (Who also, when he was in Galilee, followed him, and ministered unto him); and many other women who came up with him unto Jerusalem.

42 ¶ And now when the even was come, because it was the preparation, that is, the day before the sabbath, 43 Joseph of Arimathea, an honourable counsellor, who also waited for the kingdom of God, came and went in boldly unto Pilate, and craved the body of Jesus.

44 And Pilate marvelled if he were already dead: and, calling unto him the centurion, he asked him whether he had been any while dead.

45 And, when he knew it of the centurion, he gave the body to Joseph.

46 And he bought fine linen, and took him down, and wrapped him in the linen, and laid him in a sepulchre which was hewn out of a rock, and rolled a stone unto the door of the sepulchre.

47 And Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of Joses, beheld where he was laid.

REFLECT-ONE UPON CHAP. XV.—What shocking wickedness is it for men, for the professed people of God, to calumniate, to persecute, to deride, to murder, the meek, the innocent, the divine Jesus, the Saviour of mankind! It was strange that the HOSANNAS of the mob should be so quickly turned into murderous clamours and cruel derisions!—That, contrary to reason, contrary to proof, contrary to convictions, almost every one should concur to abuse our gracious Redeemer! Inexpressible were his sufferings from men, from devils, and from his offended Father! Alas, how vilified was his character, how tormented his body, while his soul was deserted and distressed. And yet with astonishing and silent resignation he bore all for the salvation of his betrayers and murderers. What honourable attestations Providence procured for him in the deepest debasement! Prodiges attended his death; Pilate, his judge, repeatedly declared him innocent, and the Jewish Messiah: and the centurion acknowledged him to be the Son of God. Joseph of Arimathea boldly begged, and honourably buried, his corpse. The women attended, in order to embalm him. And shall not my soul love and honour him, who so loved me and gave himself for me!

AND, when the sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, had bought sweet spices, that they might come and anoint him.

2 And very early in the morning, the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun.

3 And they said among themselves, Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre?

4 And when they looked they saw that the stone was rolled away; for it was very great.

5 And, entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted.

6 And he saith unto them, Be not affrighted: ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, who was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him.

7 But go your way, tell his disciples, and Peter, that he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him, as he said unto you.

8 And they went out quickly, and fled from the sepulchre; for they trembled, and were amazed: neither said they any thing to any man; for they were afraid.

9 ¶ Now when Jesus was risen early, the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils.

10 And she went and told them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVI.—Saints, in love, sometimes prepare that for Christ which he will never need. And they often fear where there is matter of joy in a risen Redeemer. The weaker sex, over which Satan at first triumphed, sometimes appear the veriest heroes in the cause of Christ. Apprehending difficulties which they know not how to surmount, they go forward, depending on God, and find them removed: and readily, amidst fear and confusion, they obey the heavenly direction.—Happy are they who have a risen Redeemer as theirs, with all mercy in his heart and all power in his hand! How marvellous his love in appearing first to Mary Magdalene, who had been lately so notorious a sinner; and so early to disciples who had so shamefully deserted him! How careful was he to establish the truth of his resurrection by repeated appearances to his incredulous followers! He conquered their unreasonable diffidence, and shamed them out of their unbelief. But great was his grace in granting his apostles an unlimited commission to preach the gospel in all the world, and miraculous powers to attest it. And astonishing is his glory in heaven, and the blessed effects of it in the descent of his Spirit.—Let me now then believe the gospel, to the saving of my soul. Let my faith and hope be in God through him. Let me rejoice in my risen, my ascended Saviour; and eagerly ask, and abundantly receive, the gifts which he received for men, even for the rebellious. And let my affections be set on things above, where Jesus is at the right hand of God,

S T. L U K E.

Luke was a physician; Col. iv. 14: and attended Paul about seventeen years after his coming into Macedonia; Acts xvi. 10: probably till his death; 2 Tim. iv. 11. He wrote this history of the life of Christ, perhaps about twenty-two or rather thirty years after his ascension; and includes therein a multitude of things, not mentioned by Matthew nor Mark, concerning the birth and private life of John the Baptist and Jesus Christ; chap. i. ii.: Christ's genealogy; chap. iii.: his preaching and persecution at Nazareth; chap. iv.: his sermon on the plain; chap. vi.: his raising the widow's son, and parable of the debtors; vii.: his mission of the seventy; direction of the lawyer as to the way of eternal life; parable of the Samaritan, and reproof of Martha; x.: his directions to pray; parable of the importunate friend; xi.: and of the rich fool; xii.: his alarm to repentance, &c.; his parable of the barren fig tree; his healing the deformed woman; xiii.: his cure of the dropsy; parables of the supper; builder; and king intending to make war; xiv.: his parables of the lost sheep, piece of silver, prodigal son, unjust steward, and of Lazarus; xv. xvi.; his parable of the servant; his healing ten lepers; his warning as to the awful manner of setting up his kingdom; xvii.: his parable of the importunate widow; and of the Pharisee and publican; xviii.: the conversion of Zaccheus; parable of the pounds; mournful prediction of Jerusalem's ruin; xix.: his abuse by Herod; xxiii.: and conversation with the disciples going to Emmaus; and with the eleven, &c. xxiv.

CHAP. I.

Contains (1) Luke's preface, dedicating his gospel to Theophilus; 1—4. (2) The angel Gabriel's prediction of the birth and work of John the Baptist, the dumbness of Zacharias his father, and Elisabeth's conception; 5—25. (3) Gabriel's annunciation of the birth of Christ to the virgin Mary, and her ready belief thereof; 26—38. (4) The joyful meeting of Elisabeth and Mary, and their praises and prophecies; 39—56. (5) The birth, circumcision, and naming, of John the Baptist; 57—66. (6) Zacharias' song of praise and predictions on that occasion; 67—79. (7) A short history of John the Baptist's private life; 80.

FORASMUCH as many have taken in hand to set forth in order a declaration of ^athose things which are most surely believed among us,

2 Even as they delivered them unto us, who from the beginning were ^beye-witnesses, and ministers of the word;

3 ^cIt seemed good to me also, having had perfect understanding of all things from the very first, to write unto thee in order, ^dmost excellent Theophilus,

4 ^eThat thou mightest know the certainty of those things wherein thou hast been instructed.

5 ¶ THERE was ^fin the days of Herod, the king of Judea, a certain priest named Zacharias, ^gof the course of Abia: and his wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elisabeth.

6 ^hAnd they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless.

7 ⁱAnd they had no child, because that Elisabeth was barren; and they both were now well stricken in years.

8 And it came to pass that, while ^khe executed the priest's office before God in the order of his course, 9 ^lAccording to the custom of the priest's office, his lot was to burn incense when he went into the temple of the Lord.

10 ^mAnd the whole multitude of the people were praying without at the time of incense.

11 ⁿAnd there appeared unto him an angel of the Lord standing on the right side of ^othe altar of incense.

12 And when Zacharias saw ^phim ^qhe was troubled, and fear fell upon him.

13 But the angel said unto him, ^rFear not, Zacharias: ^sfor thy prayer is heard; and thy wife Elisabeth shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name John.

14 And ^tthou shalt have joy and gladness, and many shall rejoice at his birth.

15 For he shall be ^ugreat in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink; and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost, even from his mother's womb.

16 ^vAnd many of the children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord their God.

17 And he shall go before him in the spirit and power of Elias, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient ^wto the wisdom of the just, to make ready a people prepared for ^xthe Lord.

18 ¶ And Zacharias said unto the angel, ^yWhereby shall I know this? for I am an old man, and my wife well stricken in years.

19 And the angel answering said unto him, ^zI am Gabriel that stand in the presence of God; and am sent to speak unto thee, and to shew thee these glad tidings.

20 And, behold, ^{aa}thou shalt be dumb, and not able to speak, until the day that these things shall be performed, ^{ab}because thou believest not my words, which shall be fulfilled in their season.

21 And the people ^{ac}waited for Zacharias, and marvelled that he tarried so long in the temple.

22 And when he came out he could not speak unto them: and they perceived that he had seen a vision in the temple: for he beckoned unto them, and remained speechless.

23 And it came to pass that, as soon as the ^{ad}days of his ministration were accomplished, he departed to his own house.

24 ¶ And after those days his wife Elisabeth ^{ae}conceived, and hid herself five months saying, 25 Thus hath the Lord dealt with me in the days wherein ^{af}he looked on me, to take away my reproach among men.

26 ¶ And in the ^{ag}sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto ^{ah}a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, 27 ^{ai}To a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary.

28 And the angel came in unto her, and said, ^{aj}Hail, thou that art ^{ak}highly favoured, ^{al}the Lord is with thee: ^{am}blessed art thou among women.

29 And when she saw ^{an}him ^{ao}she was troubled at his saying, and cast in her mind what manner of salutation this should be.

30 And the angel said unto her, ^{ap}Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favour with God.

31 ^{aq}And, behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus.

32 ^{ar}He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him ^{as}the throne of his father David:

33 ^{at}And he shall reign over the house of ^{au}Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end.

34 Then said Mary unto the angel, ^{av}How shall this be, seeing I know not a man?

35 And the angel answered and said unto her, ^{aw}The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called ^{ax}the Son of God.

EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. I. Ver. 16, 17. By his doctrine and example he shall be an happy instrument, in the hand of the Spirit, of turning many from their iniquities and false opinions to the Messiah. In his coarse and severe manner of life, and by his plentiful endowment with the Holy Spirit, he shall resemble the ancient Elijah; and shall be the means of reconciling men one to another, even Jews to Gentiles, yea, he shall make the most stubborn sinners

- 37 For ^bwith ^cGod nothing shall be impossible.
- 38 And Mary said, ^cBehold the handmaid of the Lord, be it unto me according to thy word. And the angel departed from her.
- 39 ¶ And Mary arose in those days, and went into the ^dhill country with haste, into a ^ecity of Judah ;
- 40 And entered into the house of Zacharias, and saluted Elisabeth.
- 41 And it came to pass that, when Elisabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the ^fbabe leaped in her womb : and Elisabeth was ^gfilled with the Holy Ghost :
- 42 And she spake out with a loud voice, and said, ^hBlessed ⁱart thou among women, and ^jblessed is the fruit of thy womb.
- 43 ^kAnd whence is this to me, that the mother of ^lmy Lord should come to me ?
- 44 For, lo, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in mine ears, the babe leaped in my womb for joy.
- 45 ^mAnd blessed is she ⁿthat believed : for there shall be a performance of those things which were told her from the Lord.
- 46 ¶ And Mary said, ⁿMy soul doth magnify the Lord,
- 47 And my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour
- 48 ^oFor he hath regarded the ^plow estate of his handmaiden : for, behold, from henceforth all generations ^qshall call me blessed.
- 49 ^rFor he that is mighty hath done to me great things, and holy is his name.
- 50 ^sAnd his mercy is on them that fear him, from generation to generation.
- 51 ^tHe hath shewed strength with his arm ; ^uhe hath scattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts.
- 52 ^vHe hath put down the mighty from ^wtheir seats, and exalted them of low degree.
- 53 ^xHe hath filled the hungry with good things, and the rich he hath sent empty away.
- 54 ^yHe hath holpen his servant Israel, in remembrance of ^zhis mercy ;
- 55 ^aAs he spake to our fathers, to Abraham, and to his seed for ever.

- 60 And his mother answered and said, Not so ; ^fbut he shall be called John.
- 61 And they said unto her, There is none of thy kindred that is called by this name.
- 62 And they made signs to his father, how he would have him called.
- 63 And he asked for a writing table, and wrote, saying, His name is John. And they marvelled all.
- 64 ^gAnd his mouth was opened immediately, and his tongue ^hloosed, and he spake, and praised God.
- 65 ⁱAnd fear came on all that dwelt round about them : and all these ^jsayings were noised abroad throughout all the hill country of Judea.
- 66 And all they that heard ^kthem ^llaid them up in their hearts, saying, ^mWhat manner of child shall this be ! ⁿAnd the hand of the Lord was with him.
- 67 ¶ And his father Zacharias was ^ofilled with the Holy Ghost, and prophesied, saying,
- 68 ^pBlessed ^qbe the Lord God of Israel, for he hath ^rvisited and redeemed his people,
- 69 ^sAnd hath raised up an horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David ;
- 70 ^tAs he spake by the mouth of his holy prophets, which have been since the world began ;
- 71 ^uThat we should be saved from our enemies, and from the hand of all that hate us :
- 72 ^vTo perform the mercy ^wpromised to our fathers, and ^xto remember his holy covenant ;
- 73 The oath which he sware to our father Abraham,
- 74 That he would grant unto us, ^ythat we, being delivered out of the hand of our enemies, might serve him without fear,
- 75 ^zIn holiness and righteousness before him all the days of our life.
- 76 And thou, child, shalt ^abe called the prophet of the Highest : for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways ;
- 77 ^bTo give knowledge of salvation unto his people ^cby the remission of their sins,
- 78 Through the ^dtender mercy of our God ; whereby the ^eday-spring from on high hath visited us, wise unto salvation ; and, by conviction of sin, prepare them to receive the divine Saviour. 51—53. He has marvellously exerted his power in helping and showing mercy to his people, in casting down self-righteous and self-sufficient sinners, and in putting high honours upon the poor and debased. He has granted the desire of such as were earnestly inquiring after a Saviour, and enriched them with his favour ; but has denied the blessings of his kingdom to such as are rich in this world, or abound in self-confidence and self-conceit. 68. Let all praise, honour, and blessing, be ascribed to that God, who after a long apparent neglect of his people, is now, in infinite kindness, sending his Son to save and redeem them, and who is now raising up his long-promised Messiah, to exalt and protect his elect ones, and to cast down their enemies, spiritual or temporal ; 74, 75 : that being, by his merit, power, and grace, redeemed from sin, Satan, and the world, we may while we live constantly serve God, without slavish fear of him, or tormenting fear of our enemies, in all the duties of piety, righteousness, and sobriety, as in his sight, and depending on him for assistance and gracious reward. 76—79. Thou shalt be the prophetic forerunner of the incarnate God, the Messiah, to publish his appearance, and to direct and excite men to receive him ;—to show them that they must be saved, not by

CHAP. II.

(1) Christ is born at Bethlehem in a stable, and laid in a manger; 1—7. (2) An angel publishes his birth to the shepherds, and an heavenly host attend with songs of praise; 8—14. (3) The shepherds visit him, and spread the report; 15—20. (4) He is circumcised, named, and presented in the temple; 21—24. (5) Simeon and Anna attest his Messiahship, and prophesy concerning him; 25—39. (6) We are informed of his progress in gifts and grace, observance of the passover, dispute with the doctors, and obedience to his parents; 40—52.

AND it came to pass in those days that there went out a decree from Cesar Augustus, that all the world should be ^{*}taxed.

2 (And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.)

3 And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

4 And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto ^athe city of David, which is called Bethlehem; (because he was ^bof the house and lineage of David;)

5 To be taxed with Mary ^chis espoused wife, being great with child.

6 ¶ And so it was, that, ^dwhile they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

7 And ^eshe brought forth her first-born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and ^flaid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

8 ¶ And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping ^gwatch over their flock by night.

9 And, lo, ^hthe angel of the Lord came upon them, and the ^kglory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid.

10 And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

11 ^mFor unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

12 And this shall be a sign unto you; ⁿYe shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

13 And suddenly there was with the angel ^oa multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, their own legal righteousness, but by the remission of their sins through Jesus' blood, according to the mere undeserved and compassionate kindness of God, by which Christ, the heavenly Sun of Righteousness, comes into our world, to enlighten, revive, and save, not only us Jews, but also the Gentiles, who have been long destitute of the means of grace, and enveloped with ignorance, error, and wickedness; and to direct us to the true methods of enjoying peace with God, with our own consciences, and our neighbours, till we arrive at perfect and everlasting happiness.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—The wonderful things of the gospel are declared with the greatest care and certainty, that we may clearly understand and firmly believe them. And for the same purpose a train of miracles introduced our Immanuel into our world, by which the ancient predictions concerning him and his forerunner were exactly accomplished. Delightful, distinguished, and unexpected mercies, will come at last to those who in a distinguished manner fear God. Those that are humble, and honour him, he will honour; nothing is too hard for him to effect. And saints' unbelief of his promises must meet with sharp rebukes. The revival of miracles and prophecies pleasingly opened the way for the gospel dispensation. And with what reverence ought we always to think of Jesus Christ, as the Son of God, as the Lord our God; and of the 15 ¶ And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, ^rLet us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

16 And they came ^swith haste, and found Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

17 And, when they had seen it, ^tthey made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.

18 And all they that heard it, ^uwondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

19 But ^vMary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart.

20 And the shepherds returned, ^wglorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them.

21 ¶ And, when eight days were accomplished for the circumcising of the child, his name was called ^xJESUS, which was so named of the angel before he was conceived in the womb.

22 ¶ And, when the days of her purification according to the law of Moses were accomplished, they brought him to Jerusalem, to present him to the Lord;

23 (As it is written in the law of the Lord, ^yEvery male that openeth the womb shall be called ^zholy to the Lord;)

24 And to offer a sacrifice according to ^athat which is said in the law of the Lord, a pair of turtle doves, or two young pigeons.

25 ¶ And, behold, there was a man in Jerusalem whose name was Simeon; and the same man was ^bjust and devout, ^cwaiting for the consolation of Israel: and ^dthe Holy Ghost was upon him.

26 ^eAnd it was revealed unto him by the Holy Ghost that he should not see death before he had seen ^fthe Lord's Christ.

27 And he came ^gby the Spirit into the temple: and, when the parents brought in the child Jesus ^hto do for him after the custom of the law,

28 Then ⁱtook he him up in his arms, and ^jblessed God, and said, 29 Lord, ^know lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word:

30 For mine eyes have seen ^lthy salvation,

Holy Ghost, who exerts the whole power of the Godhead!—But how sweetly astonishing it is to behold God's eternal Son made of a woman!—to behold the infinite JEHOVAH personally united to the likeness of sinful flesh, in order to save his enemies of mankind. Permanent and glorious is his spiritual kingdom. From the riches of sovereign mercy all the blessings of it originally proceed, and are bestowed on us by almighty power, notwithstanding all our unwillingness and unworthiness. It is this which lays the surest ground for the firmest faith, the deepest humility, the profoundest admiration, the most ravishing joy, and exalted praise. Thrice blessed is it to rejoice in a Saviour born for us, and received into our heart, and in that great salvation which he brings near to multitudes. Thrice happy are true believers in the pardon of their sins, the acceptance of their prayers, and their deliverance from their enemies. And in the highest praise and filial service of God should they improve these benefits. Never does God send any upon important work without proper qualifications. And rarely do men addicted to carnal company make an agreeable figure in the church.—Let me, in every state, learn to be fervent in my devotions. Let me offer all my services through Jesus' mediation. Let me acquaint myself with God and his word, and always credit whatever he says. Let me vie with angels in readiness to speak of my Redeemer. And, if God honour me, let me humble myself, and rejoice in his mercy

31 Which thou hast prepared before the face of all people;

32 A light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel.

33 And Joseph and his mother marvelled at those things which were spoken of him.

34 And Simeon blessed them, and said unto Mary his mother, Behold, this child is set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel; and for a sign which shall be spoken against;

35 (Yea, a sword shall pierce through thy own soul also); that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed

36 And there was one Anna a prophetess, the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Aser: she was of a great age, and had lived with an husband seven years from her virginity;

37 And she was a widow of about fourscore and four years: who departed not from the temple, but served God with fastings and prayers night and day.

38 And she, coming in that instant, gave thanks likewise unto the Lord, and spake of him to all them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem.

39 And, when they had performed all things according to the law of the Lord, they returned into Galilee to their own city Nazareth.

40 And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom; and the grace of God was upon him.

41 Now his parents went to Jerusalem every year at the feast of the passover.

42 And when he was twelve years old they went up to Jerusalem, after the custom of the feast.

43 And, when they had fulfilled the days, as they returned, the child Jesus tarried behind in Jerusalem; and Joseph and his mother knew not of it.

44 But they, supposing him to have been in the company, went a day's journey; and they sought him among their kinsfolk and acquaintance.

45 And, when they found him not, they turned back again to Jerusalem, seeking him.

46 And it came to pass that, after three days, they found him in the temple sitting in the midst of the doctors, both hearing them and asking them questions.

47 And all that heard him were astonished at his understanding and answers.

48 And, when they saw him, they were amazed: and his mother said unto him, Son, why hast thou thus dealt with us? behold, thy father and I have sought thee sorrowing.

49 And he said unto them, How is it that ye sought me? wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?

50 And they understood not the saying which he spake unto them.

51 And he went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them: but his mother kept all these sayings in her heart.

52 And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man.

NOW in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberias Cesar, Pontius Pilate being governor of Judea, and Herod being tetrarch of Galilee, and his brother Philip tetrarch of Iturea and of the region of Trachonitis, and Lysanias the tetrarch of Abilene,

2 Annas and Caiaphas being the high priests, the word of God came unto John the son of Zacharias, in the wilderness.

3 And he came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins;

4 As it is written in the book of the words of Esaias the prophet, saying, The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.

5 Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be brought low; and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough ways shall be made smooth;

6 And all flesh shall see the salvation of God.

7 Then said he to the multitude that came forth to be baptized of him, O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?

8 Bring forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance, and begin not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father: for I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.

9 And now also the ax is laid unto the root of the trees: every tree thereto sinners in the gospel. And with sincerity and grateful praise ought they to be received by us, and commended to others. A safe child-birth ought to be esteemed a great mercy: and both mother and child ought gratefully to be devoted to God. Thrice happy are they who long wait for the Lord! He will at last appear for their comfort, and open their lips in his praise. And it is only believing views of Jesus Christ that can render death and eternity truly pleasant and hopeful. But unhappy are they to whom this light, this Saviour of the world, becomes an occasion of greater sin and more terrible ruin. Even they who have distinguished honours allotted them have frequently some bitter trials annexed to them. And even they who live nearest to Jesus Christ must often seek him. It is enough that they find him at last, and lay up his words in their hearts.—While parents consider how carefully they ought to attend the ordinances of God, and bring their children along with them, let children ponder what a delightful pattern of early knowledge, devotion, trust in God, and obedience to mean parents, is represented to them in our Redeemer.

CHAP. II. Ver. 34, 35. He is ordained of God, and brought into the world, as an occasion of the stumbling and falling of many Israelites, and as the effectual means of raising up many to eternal life and happiness. And such shall be his wonderfully mean and suffering circumstances, that many will speak against him with bitter enmity and blasphemy; and you, his mother, shall be tormented with anguish and pain, to see him so contemned, reviled, persecuted, and murdered; yet, by these means, it will clearly be discovered who are his friends that shall be saved, and who his enemies that shall be lost for ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—The taxing pride of a Roman emperor in a wonderful manner occasions our Redeemer's birth at the place long before marked in prophecy; and the enrolment of him and his family as descendants of David. And O how infinite was the debasement of the Son of God to save men! Yet pregnant with the greatest glory to himself and his Father, and with grace to men. Delightful are the tidings, the gracious offers, of him and his salvation

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—The season of important events ought to be exactly marked. In great wisdom and grace Jesus appears to erect his kingdom when rulers almost every where are monsters of wickedness. And God, by his forerunner, honourably introduces him to his work. Great need have sinners to hasten to him when death and damnation are just at their heels. Dreadful is their case who fall into the hands of the living God. And none bid fairer for hell than they who have the strongest carnal or legal hopes of heaven. No outward privilege can avail those who have unrenewed hearts and unholy lives. And no repentance can be justly reckoned sincere that does not make men cease from, and detest, the sins to which they are most tempted or addicted. God often renders the most unlikely the distinguished monuments of his power and grace. But at best the state of the church is but imperfect and mixed in this world. In the next God will, to the joy of saints and terror of obstinate sinners, make a full separation; and many, who, like Herod, did many good things, and heard God's ministers gladly, shall be cast into eternal fire. It is a delightful sight when great honours render men humble; and humility is rewarded with more abundant honours. How solemn was our Saviour's consecration to his work, and his attestation by God! And it is plainly manifest that he is the seed of the woman and of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Judah, Jesse, and David, according to the promise.

3 And the devil said unto him, 'If thou be the Son of God, 'command this stone that it be made bread.

4 And Jesus answered him, saying, 'It is written, That man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God.

5 'And the devil, taking him up into an high mountain, shewed unto him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time.

6 And the devil said unto him, 'All this power will I give thee, and the glory of them: for that is delivered unto me, and to whomsoever I will I give it.

7 If thou therefore wilt *worship me, all shall be thine.

8 And Jesus answered and said unto him, 'Get thee behind me, Satan: for it is written, 'Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.

9 'And he brought him to Jerusalem, and set him on a pinnacle of the temple, and said unto him, 'If thou be the Son of God, 'cast thyself down from hence:

10 'For it is written, He shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee.

11 And in their hands they shall bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone.

12 And Jesus answering said unto him, 'It is said, 'Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.

13 And, *when the devil had ended all the temptation, he departed from him for a season.

14 ¶ And Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee: and there went out a fame of him through all the region round about.

15 And *he taught in their synagogues, being glorified of all.

16 ¶ And he came to 'Nazareth, where he had been brought up: and, as his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the sabbath day, and ^bstood up for to read.

17 And there was delivered unto him the book of the prophet Esaias. And, when he had opened the book, he found the place where it was written,

18 'The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, and to set at liberty them that are bruised, 19 To preach the 'acceptable year of the Lord.

20 And he closed the book, and he gave it again to the minister, and sat down. And the eyes of all them that were in the synagogue were fastened on him.

21 And he began to say unto them, This day is the scripture fulfilled in your ears.

22 And all bare him witness, and wondered at the 'gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth. And they said, 'Is not this Joseph's son?

23 And he said unto them, Ye will surely say unto me this proverb, Physician, heal thyself: 'whatsoever we have heard done in Capernaum, do also here in thy country.

24 And he said, Verily I say unto you, No ^bprophet is accepted in his own country.

25 But I tell you of a truth, 'many widows were in Israel in the days of Elias, when the heaven was shut up three years and six months, when great famine was throughout all the land:

26 But unto none of them was Elias sent, save unto Sarepta, a city of Sidon, unto a woman that was a widow.

27 'And many lepers were in Israel in the time of 'Eliseus the prophet: and none of them was cleansed, saving Naaman the Syrian.

28 And all they in the synagogue, when they heard these things, ^mwere filled with wrath, 29 'And rose up, and thrust him out of the city, and led him unto the †brow of the hill whereon their city was built, that they might cast him down headlong.

30 'But he, passing through the midst of them, went his way, 31 'And came down to Capernaum, a city of Galilee, and taught them on the sabbath days.

32 And they were astonished at his doctrine: 'for his word was with power.

33 ¶ And in the synagogue there was a man who had a spirit of an unclean devil, and cried out with a loud voice, 34 Saying, †Let us alone; 'what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art; 'the Holy One of God.

35 And 'Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him. And, when the devil had *thrown him in the midst, he came out of him, and hurt him not.

36 'And they were all amazed, and spake among themselves, saying, What a word is this! for with authority and power he commandeth the unclean spirits, and they come out.

37 'And the fame of him went out into every place of the country round about.

38 ¶ And he arose out of the synagogue, and entered into Simon's house. And Simon's wife's mother was taken with a great fever: and they besought him for her.

39 'And he stood over her, and rebuked the fever, and it left her: 'and immediately she arose and ministered unto them.

40 ¶ Now when the sun was setting, all they that had any sick with divers diseases brought them unto him: and he laid his hands on every one of them, and healed them.

41 ¶ And devils also came out of many, crying out, and saying, Thou art Christ the Son of God. And he, rebuk-

CHAP. V.

Here (1) Christ preaches to the people out of Peter's boat; 1—3. (2) Recompenses Peter for the loan of his boat by a miraculous draught of fishes; and intimates that this presaged his being instrumental in the conversion of multitudes; 4—11. (3) Heals a leper; charges him to offer his ceremonial purification, and conceal the manner of his cure; 12—15. (4) After private prayer, heals a palsy, to the grief of the Pharisees and lawyers present, and the astonishment of the multitude; 16—26. (5) Calls Matthew Levi the publican, and displeases the Pharisees by feasting with publicans; 27—32. (6) Vindicates his disciples in not fasting so frequently as the disciples of John and the Pharisees; and shews that they were not yet fit for austerities in the practice of religion; 33—38.

Acts 16. 13.
ch. 8. 4. Mark
4. 1.

AND it came to pass that, as the people pressed upon him to hear the word of God, he stood by the lake of Gennesaret,

2 And saw two ships standing by the lake: but the fishermen were gone out of them, and were washing their nets.

3 And he entered into one of the ships, which was Simon's, and prayed him that he would thrust out a little from the land. And he sat down, and taught the people out of the ship.

4 ¶ Now, when he had left speaking, he said unto Simon, Launch out into the deep, and let down your nets for a draught.

5 And Simon answering said unto him, Master, we have toiled all the night and have taken nothing: nevertheless, at thy word I will let down the net.

6 And, when they had this done, they enclosed a great multitude of fishes: and their net brake.

7 And they beckoned unto their partners, which were in the other ship, that they should come and help them. And they came, and filled both the ships, so that they began to sink.

8 When Simon Peter saw it, he fell down at Jesus' knees, saying, Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord.

9 For he was astonished, and all that were with him, at the draught of the fishes which they had taken:

10 And so was also James and John, the sons of Zebedee, who were partners with Simon. And Jesus said unto Simon, Fear not; from henceforth thou shalt catch men.

11 And, when they had brought their ships to land, they forsook all, and followed him.

12 ¶ And it came to pass, when he was in a certain city, behold, a man full of leprosy; who, seeing Jesus, fell on his face, and besought him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

13 And he put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will; be thou clean. And immediately the leprosy departed from him.

14 And he charged him to tell no man: but go, and shew thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing, according as Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them.

15 But so much the more went there a fame abroad of him: and great multitudes came together to hear, and to be healed by him of their infirmities.

16 ¶ And he withdrew himself into the wilderness, and prayed.

17 ¶ And it came to pass on a certain day, as he was teaching, that there were Pharisees and doctors of the law sitting by, who were come out of every town of Galilee, and Judea, and Jerusalem: and the power of the Lord was present to heal them.

18 And, behold, men brought in a bed a man who was taken with a palsy: and they sought means to bring him in, and to lay him before him.

19 And, when they could not find by what way they might bring him in, because of the multitude, they went upon the house top, and let him down through the tiling with his couch into the midst before Jesus.

20 And, when he saw their faith, he said unto him, Man, thy sins are forgiven thee.

21 And the scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying, Who is this that speaketh blasphemies? Who can forgive sins but God alone?

22 But, when Jesus perceived their thoughts, he answering said unto them, What reason ye in your hearts?

23 Whether is easier to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Rise up and walk?

24 But, that ye may know that the Son of man hath power upon earth to forgive sins, (he said unto the sick of the palsy), I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy couch, and go unto thine house.

25 And immediately he rose up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own house, glorifying God.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—The most fearful temptations and troubles may quickly succeed to the most distinguished testimonies of God's love. And it is highly improper for the best of saints to hope to escape even the most horrible seductions, when Jesus was called to suffer them. How shocking is the impudence of Satan, how fixed his perseverance in harassing the saints, and how implacable his malice in tempting where he is certain not to succeed. He is very subtle in contriving the form and choosing the seasons of his temptation. And it is necessary to resist him always with the sword of the Spirit. Thus only can we prove conquerors through him that loved us, and is able and ready to succour us. But what fearful work hath sin made in the world!—It hath transformed angels into unclean spirits, perverted human nature, and subjected it to the tyranny of the devil and to diseases unnumbered.—Alas, into what debasement and suffering it plunged our divine Saviour! But infinite is his grace; and, as appointed of God to save us, in him all fulness dwells answerable to all our need. And often, by his word, he exerts his power on the most unworthy. With great toil and danger he went about to heal human maladies, spiritual and temporal. But, alas, where he should be most readily received he is often most obstinately rejected; and almost every where few are turned to him! Many never believe more than devils, who never had his blessings offered to them; and, though they hear his words with attention and wonder, they quickly envy, and seek to destroy, him or his interests; but terrible is their situation when he abandons them to their own hearts' lusts.—It is a great mercy that he can restrain furious persecutors, and casts out malicious and subtle devils, even when they almost transform themselves into angels of light. And it is delightful when they, who have much public work in hand, prepare for it by much fervent prayer; and when they, who have enjoyed Christ's presence and ordinances, earnestly desire the continuance of them!

26 ^mAnd they were all amazed, and they glorified God, and were filled with fear, saying, We have seen strange things to-day.

27 ¶ ^mAnd after these things he went forth, and saw a publican named Levi, sitting at the receipt of custom: and he said unto him, ^oFollow me.

29 ¶ ^mAnd Levi made him a great feast in his own house: and there was a great company of publicans and of others that sat down with them.

30 But ^rtheir scribes and Pharisees murmured against his disciples, saying, Why do ye eat and drink with publicans and sinners?

31 And Jesus answering said unto them, ^sThey that are whole need not a physician, but they that are sick.

32 I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.

33 ¶ And they said unto him, ^tWhy do the disciples of John fast often, and make prayers; and likewise the disciples of the Pharisees; but thine eat and drink?

34 And he said unto them, Can ye make ^uthe children of the ^vbride-chamber fast while the ^vbridegroom is with them?

35 But the days will come when the bridegroom shall be ^ytaken away from them, and then ^zshall they fast in those days.

36 ¶ And he spake also a parable unto them; ^aNo man putteth a piece of a new garment upon an old; if otherwise, then both the new maketh a rent, and the piece that was taken out of the new agreeth not with the old.

37 And no man putteth new wine into old bottles; else the new wine will burst the bottles, and be spilled, and the bottles shall perish.

38 But new wine must be put into new bottles; and both are preserved.

39 No man also having drunk old wine ^bstraightway desireth new: for he saith, ^cThe old is better.

CHAP. VI.

- (1) Christ, in vindicating his disciples for plucking ears of corn, and his own healing a withered hand on the sabbath, shews that works of necessity and mercy are lawful on that day; 1—11.
(2) After retirement for solemn prayer, he calls his twelve apostles to be his stated attendants; 12—16. (3) Cures multitudes of differently-diseased persons who applied to him; 17—19.
(4) In the plain, preaches over the substance of the sermon which he had formerly preached in the mount, and declares the happiness of distressed saints and misery of prosperous worldlings;—the profit and honour of equity and charity, the need of charitably judging, forgiving of injuries, and of laying the foundation of religion in a real change of nature and state; 20—49.

AND ^dit came to pass, on the ^esecond sabbath after the first, that he went through the corn fields; and his disciples plucked the ears of corn, and did eat, rubbing them in their hands.

2 And certain of the Pharisees said unto them, ^fWhy do ye that which is not lawful to do on the sabbath days?

3 And Jesus answering them said, Have ye not read so much as this, ^gwhat David did when himself was hungered and they which were with him;

4 How he went into the house of God, and did take and eat the shew-bread, and gave also to them that were with him; ^hwhich it is not lawful to eat but for the priests alone?

5 And he said unto them, ⁱThat the Son of man is Lord also of the sabbath.

6 ¶ And it came to pass also, on another sabbath, that he entered into the synagogue, and taught: and there was a man whose ^jright hand was withered.

7 And the scribes and Pharisees ^kwatched him, whether he would heal on the sabbath day; that they might find an accusation against him.

8 ^lBut he knew their thoughts, and said to the man who had the withered hand, ^kRise up, and stand forth in the midst. And he arose and stood forth.

9 Then said Jesus unto them, I will ask you one thing; ^lIs it lawful on the sabbath days to do good or to do evil? to save life or to destroy it?

10 And, looking round about upon them all, he said unto the man, ^mStretch forth thy hand. And he did so. And his hand was restored whole as the other.

11 ⁿAnd they were filled with madness; and communed one with another what they might do to Jesus.

12 ¶ And it came to pass in those days that ^ohe went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God.

13 And ^pwhen it was day he called unto him his disciples: and of them he chose twelve, whom also he named apostles:

14 ^qSimon, (whom he also named Peter,) and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew, 15 Matthew and Thomas, James the son of Alphaeus, and Simon called Zelotes, 16 And ^rJudas the brother of James, and ^sJudas Iscariot, who also was the traitor.

17 ¶ And he came down with them, and stood ^tin the plain; and the company of his disciples, and ^ua great multitude of people out of all Judea and Jerusalem, and from the sea coast of Tyre and Sidon, which came to hear him, and to be healed of their diseases;

18 And they that were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed.

19 And the whole multitude sought to touch him: for there went virtue out of him, and healed them all.

20 ¶ And he lifted up his eyes on his disciples, and said, ^vBlessed be ye poor; for your's is the kingdom of God.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. V.—The most diligent and laborious have often little success. And all that comes is vanity and vexation of spirit. How base and polluted men appear to themselves when viewed in the light of Christ's glory! But nothing is more absurd or wicked than to make our sinfulness a reason against fellowship with him who is the Saviour from sin. Great is his power who can command multitudes of fishes into a net, and multitudes of souls into a reception of the gospel. None who taste his goodness can forbear following him. The firm faith of his ability betokens our deliverance at hand, and promotes a regard to his ordinances. Great is the mercy that his prayers are effectual, and his power present to save men; and that he readily grants remission and healing to such as believe. If he forgive us, neither envious men nor malicious devils, can reverse his sentence. And every mercy to ourselves and others should fill our hearts with wonder and praise. If he call and save the chief of sinners, none can keep or shut them out from his favour. But unbounded is his condescension to become their Husband, upon whose presence all their joys depend and to proportion their duties to their strength and circumstances.

21 ^aBlessed are ye that hunger now; for ye shall be filled. ^aBlessed are ye that weep now; for ye shall laugh.

22 ^bBlessed are ye when men shall hate you, and when they shall separate you from their company, and shall reproach you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of man's sake:

23 Rejoice ye in that day, and leap for joy; for, behold, your reward is great in heaven: for in the like manner did their fathers unto the prophets.

24 ^cBut wo unto you that are rich! for ye have received your consolation.

25 ^cWo unto you that are full! for ye shall hunger. Wo unto you that laugh now! for ye shall mourn and weep.

26 ^bWo unto you when all men shall speak well of you! for so did their fathers to the false prophets.

27 ¶ ⁱBut I say unto you who hear, Love your enemies, do good to them which hate you.

28 Bless them that curse you, and pray for them who despitefully use you.

29 ^kAnd unto him that smiteth thee on the one cheek offer also the other; and him that taketh away thy cloak forbid not to take thy coat also.

30 ⁱGive to every man that asketh of thee; and of him that taketh away thy goods ask them not again.

31 ^mAnd as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise.

32 ⁿFor if ye love them who love you, what thank have ye? for sinners also love those that love them.

33 And if ye do good to them who do good to you, what thank have ye? for sinners also do even the same.

34 ⁿAnd if ye lend to them of whom ye hope to receive, what thank have ye? for sinners also lend to sinners, to receive as much again.

35 ^pBut love ye your enemies, and do good, and lend, hoping for nothing again; and your reward shall be great, and ye shall be the children of the Highest: for he is kind unto the unthankful and to the evil.

36 ^qBe ye therefore merciful, as your Father also is merciful.

37 ^rJudge not, and ye shall not be judged: condemn not, and ye shall not be condemned: forgive, and ye shall be forgiven:

38 ^rGive, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom. ^sFor with the same measure that ye mete withal, it shall be measured to you again.

39 And he spake a parable unto them; ^tCan the blind lead the blind? shall they not both fall into the ditch?

40 ^aThe disciple is not above his Master: but every one that is perfect shall be as his Master.

41 ^bAnd why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but perceivest not the beam that is in thine own eye?

42 Either how canst thou say to thy brother, Brother, let me pull out the mote that is in thine eye, when thou thyself beholdest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, cast out first the beam out of thine own eye, and then shalt thou see clearly to pull out the mote that is in thy brother's eye.

43 ^dFor a good tree bringeth not forth corrupt fruit; neither doth a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.

44 For every tree is known by his own fruit: for of thorns men do not gather figs, nor of a bramble bush gather they grapes.

45 ^eA good man, out of the good treasure of his heart, bringeth forth that which is good; and an evil man, out of the evil treasure of his heart, bringeth forth that which is evil: for of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaketh.

46 ¶ ^fAnd why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?

47 ^gWhosoever cometh to me, and heareth my sayings, and doeth them, I will shew you to whom he is like:

48 He is like a man who built an house, and digged deep, and laid the foundation on a rock: and, when the flood arose, the stream beat vehemently upon that house, and could not shake it; for it was founded upon a rock.

49 But he that heareth, and doeth not, is like a man that without a foundation built an house upon the earth; against which the stream did beat vehemently, and immediately it fell; and the ruin of that house was great.

CHAP. VII.

Here Christ (1) Confirms his own doctrine by the miraculous cure of the believing centurion's servant at a distance; 1—10: and the raising of the widow's only son from the dead; 11—18. (2) Confirms the faith of John the Baptist and his disciples by an account of his miracles; 19—23: commends John, and reproves the Jews for their contempt of him and his doctrine; 24—35. (3) Comforts a sorrowful penitent woman, declares her sins pardoned, and justifies his favour to her against the cavils of Simon, a proud Pharisee, by the parable of the two insolvent debtors; 36—50.

NOW, when he had ended all his sayings, in the audience of the people, he entered into Capernaum.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VI.—Works of real necessity and mercy, but no other, may consist with a proper observance of the sabbath. And it is base when Christ's kind indulgence is abused to carnal licentiousness; and when the rigid accusers of the innocence of others are the most indulgent to their own crimes. If we desire to have our spiritual maladies healed, we must attend Christ's ordinances; and neither our own inability, nor other men's perverseness, must hinder us from our duty. If Jesus command, he can enable to perform. Where passion reigns, neither conscience nor reason can be regarded: but it is in vain to devise mischief against an all-seeing Redeemer. Important work ought always to be introduced with fervent and solemn prayer, and Jesus' prayers and power can easily furnish his church with plenty of gospel ministers! Marvellous and free are the effects of his mercy: and infinitely distant his views of real happiness and mercy from those of carnal men. Happy are they whom he blesses, and miserable are they whom he curses, be their outward circumstances what they will. And it is eternity, not time, that properly distinguishes the lot of saints and sinners. Honourable and beneficent is the spirit and tendency of the Christian religion, which so calls us to imitate JEHOVAH in his most endearing perfections and work. How important is it to be a Christian indeed! It is a great reproach for the professors of the true religion to do no more in duty toward God or men than mere heathens. And we need to live always under a deep sense of our own weakness and pollution, and in daily repentance and forgiveness; so shall we be induced to candid and charitable conceptions of others. It is absurd to attempt raising good works out of unrenewed hearts; or to expect a blessing with teachers whom Christ never sent. Let us, therefore, take heed what, how, and whom, we hear. Let us receive Christ's word into our heart; and resting on him by faith, practise it in our lives; so shall we persevere unto the end, and safely arrive in glory, notwithstanding all the storms that may befall us by the way.

2 And a certain ^bcenturion's servant, who was dear unto him, was sick and ready to die.

3 And, when he heard of Jesus, ^dhe sent unto him the elders of the Jews, beseeching him that he would come and heal his servant.

4 And, when they came to Jesus, they besought him instantly, saying, That he was worthy for whom he should do this:

5 For he loveth our nation, and he hath built us a synagogue.

6 Then Jesus went with them. And, when he was now not far from the house, the centurion sent ^efriends to him, saying unto him, Lord, trouble not thyself; for ^fI am not worthy that thou shouldst enter under my roof:

7 Wherefore neither thought I myself worthy to come unto thee: ^gbut say in a word, and my servant shall be healed.

8 For I also am a man set under authority, having under me soldiers; and I say unto ^hone, ^bGo, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doth it.

9 When Jesus heard these things he ⁱ marvelled at him, and turned him about, and said unto the people that followed him, I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not ^kin Israel.

10 And they that were sent, returning to the house, found the servant whole that had been sick.

11 ¶ And it came to pass the day after, that he went into a city called Nain:
and many of his disciples went with him, and much people.

12 Now, when he came nigh to the gate of the city, behold, there was a dead man carried out, the ^monly son of his mother, and she was a widow: and much people of the city was with her.

13 And when the Lord saw her he ⁿhad compassion on her, and said unto her, ^oWeep not.

14 And he came and touched the ^pbier; and they that bare ^{him} stood still.
And he said, Young man, ^pI say unto thee, Arise.

15 And he that was dead sat up, and began to speak. And he delivered him to his mother.

16 And there came a fear on all: and they glorified God, saying, That ^ra great prophet is risen up among us; and, That God hath ^svisited his people.

17 And this rumour of him went forth throughout all Judea, and throughout all the region round about.

18 ¶ And the disciples of John shewed him of all these things.

19 And John, calling unto ^{him}, ^ttwo of his disciples, sent ^{them} to Jesus, saying, Art thou ^{he} that should come, or look we for another?

20 When the men were come unto him they said, John Baptist hath sent us unto thee, saying, Art thou ^{he} that should come, or look we for another?

21 And in the same hour he cured many of ^{their} infirmities and plagues, and of evil spirits; and unto many ^{that were} blind he gave sight.

22 Then Jesus answering said unto them, Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard; ^{how that} the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached.

23 And blessed is ^{he} whosoever shall not ^{be} offended in me.

24 ¶ And, when the messengers of John were departed, he began to speak unto the people concerning John; What went ye out into the ^{wilderness} for to see? ^{A reed shaken with the wind?}

25 But what went ye out for to see?
^{A man clothed in soft raiment?} Behold, they who are gorgeously apparelled, and live delicately, are in kings' courts.

26 But what went ye out for to see?
^{A prophet?} Yea, I say unto you, and much more than a prophet.

27 This is ^{he} of whom it is written, ^{Behold, I send my messenger before thy} face, who shall prepare thy way before thee.

28 For I say unto you, ^{Among those} that are born of women there is not a greater prophet than John the Baptist:
but he that is least in the kingdom of God is ^{greater} than he.

29 And ^{all} the people that heard ^{him}, and the publicans, justified God, being baptized with the baptism of John.

30 But the Pharisees and lawyers ^{rejected} the counsel of God ^{against} themselves, being not baptized of him.

31 ¶ And the Lord said, ^{Whereunto} then shall I liken the men of this generation? and to what are they like?

32 They are like unto children sitting in the market place, and calling one to another, and saying, We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced: we have mourned to you, and ye have not wept.

33 For John the Baptist came ^{neither} eating bread nor drinking wine; and ye say, He hath a devil.

34 The Son of man is come ^{eating} and drinking; and ye say, Behold a gluttonous man and a wine-bibber, a friend of publicans and sinners!

35 But wisdom is ^{justified} of all her children.

36 ¶ And one of the Pharisees desired him that he would eat with him. ^{And} he went into the Pharisee's house, and sat down to meat.

37 And, behold, a ^{woman} in the city, who was a sinner, when she knew that ^{Jesus} sat at meat in the Pharisee's house, brought an ^{alabaster-box} of ointment,

38 And ^{stood} at his feet behind ^{him} weeping, and began to wash his feet with tears, and did wipe ^{them} with the hairs of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed ^{them} with the ointment.

39 Now, when the Pharisee who had bidden him saw ^{it}, he spake within himself, saying, ^{This man, if he were a pro-}

CHAP. VIII.

Here is (1) A general account of Christ's preaching and healing, and how he and his disciples were charitably supported; 1—3. (2) His parable of the sower and four different soils, and the explication and application of it; 4—15. (3) His parable of the lighted candle; 16—18. (4) His preferring his obedient disciples to his nearest natural relations; 19—21. (5) His stilling a storm by a word; 22—25. (6) His casting out a legion of devils from a possessed man, and permitting them to enter into the Gadarenes' swine; 26—39. (7) His healing a woman that had a bloody issue, and restoring Jairus' daughter to life; 40—56.

AND it came to pass afterward ^athat he went throughout every city and village preaching, and shewing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God: and the ^btwelve were with him,

2 And ^ccertain women who had been healed of evil spirits and infirmities, Mary called Magdalene, out of whom went seven devils,

3 And Joanna the wife of Chuza, Herod's steward, and Susanna, and many others, who ^eministered unto him of their substance.

4 ¶ And when much people were gathered together, and were come to him out of every city, he spake by a parable:

5 ^gA sower went out to sow his seed: and, as he sowed, some fell ^hby the wayside; and it was trodden down, and the fowls of the air devoured it.

6 And some fell upon ⁱa rock; and, as soon as it was sprung up, it withered away, because it lacked moisture.

7 And some fell among ^kthorns; and the thorns sprang up with it, and choked it.

8 And other fell on ^lgood ground, and sprang up, and bare fruit an hundred-fold. And when he had said these things he ^mcried, He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

9 ¶ And his disciples asked him, saying, ⁿWhat might this parable be?

10 And he said, ^oUnto you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God: but to others in parables; that ^pseeing they might not see, and hearing they might not understand.

11 ¶ Now the parable is this: The ^qseed is the word of God.

12 Those by the wayside are ^rthey that hear; then cometh the devil, and taketh away the word ^sout of their hearts, lest they should believe and be saved.

13 ^tThey on the rock are they who, when they hear, receive the word with joy; and these have no root; who for a while believe, and in time of temptation fall away.

14 And ^uthat which fell among thorns are they who, when they have heard, go forth, and are choked with cares and riches and pleasures of this life, and bring no fruit to perfection.

15 ^vBut that on the good ground are they who, in an honest and good heart, having heard the word, keep it, and bring forth fruit with patience.

16 ¶ ^wNo man, when he hath lighted a candle, covereth it with a vessel, or putteth it under a bed; but setteth it on a candlestick, that they who enter in may see the light.

17 ^xFor nothing is secret that shall not be made manifest; neither any thing hid that shall not be known and come abroad.

18 ^yTake heed therefore how ye hear: ^zfor whosoever hath, to him shall be instruct and satisfy humble inquirers. Nor should we ever doubt of his excellency because we suffer for his sake, and others condemn and oppose him.—The meek will he teach his way, that they may be witnesses for God and religion, when proud and self-righteous men shall be left to reject his admonitions, to their own destruction. Resolute cavillers will always find a handle in the different tempers and manners of ministers. Hatred of Christ's word will lead them to quarrel either with the deliverer or delivery of it.—O what a change God's almighty grace makes on the heart and life of the most atrocious sinners! And, the more abundantly the grace of the gospel is believed and applied, the more abundant love to God, repentance, and deep humility, will be manifested in our whole temper and conduct. Alas, that any should ever quarrel with the sovereignty of God's mercy towards sinners, or with their uncommon affection towards him while impressed with a sense of his mercy!

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VII.—Masters ought to take tender care of their faithful servants: and such indeed will in general ensure their attention and regard in the time of distress or affliction. It is a great advantage to interest the fervent prayers of Christ's favourites in our behalf. And great is the influence, and distinguished the humility and honour, of a strong faith. Unanswerably has Jesus demonstrated his divine and mediatorial characters in healing all manner of diseases, raising the dead, and forgiving sins; with infinite efficacy and authority. Tender is his regard to Gentile believers, and his compassion to the afflicted and destitute: and sovereign, free, and plenteous, his mercy to all sorts of sinners, however guilty or miserable. What exalting thoughts ought we then to have of him, and what abasing thoughts of ourselves before him! With great earnestness ought we to call on him in every distress, and to imitate him in always doing good. Spiritually to know who and what he is, cannot but create love to him, and remove every prejudice against him: and he is ever ready to given; and whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken even that which he seemeth to have.

19 ¶ Then came to him his mother and his brethren, and could not come at him for the press.

20 And it was told him by certain who said, Thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to see thee.

21 And he answered and said unto them, My mother and my brethren are these who hear the word of God and do it.

22 ¶ Now it came to pass, on a certain day, that he went into a ship with his disciples: and he said unto them, Let us go over unto the other side of the lake. And they launched forth.

23 But as they sailed he fell asleep: and there came down a storm of wind on the lake; and they were filled with water, and were in jeopardy.

24 And they came to him, and awoke him, saying, Master, Master, we perish! Then he arose, and rebuked the wind and the raging of the water: and they ceased, and there was a calm.

25 And he said unto them, Where is your faith? and they, being afraid, wondered, saying one to another, What manner of man is this! for he commandeth even the winds and water, and they obey him.

26 ¶ And they arrived at the country of the Gadarenes, which is over against Galilee.

27 And, when he went forth to land, there met him out of the city a certain man who had devils long time, and ware no clothes, neither abode in any house, but in the tombs.

28 When he saw Jesus he cried out, and fell down before him, and with a loud voice said, What have I to do with thee, Jesus thou Son of God most high? I beseech thee, torment me not.

29 (For he had commanded the unclean spirit to come out of the man. For oftentimes it had caught him: and he was kept bound with chains and in fetters; and he brake the bands, and was driven of the devil into the wilderness).

30 And Jesus asked him, saying, What is thy name? And he said, Legion: because many devils were entered into him.

31 And they besought him that he would not command them to go out into the deep.

32 And there was there an herd of many swine feeding on the mountain: and they besought him that he would suffer them to enter into them. And he suffered them.

33 Then went the devils out of the man, and entered into the swine: and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the lake, and were choked.

34 When they that fed them saw what was done they fled, and went and told it in the city and in the country.

35 Then they went out to see what was done; and came to Jesus, and found the man, out of whom the devils were departed, sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind: and they were afraid.

36 They also who saw it told them by what means he that was possessed of the devils was healed.

37 Then the whole multitude of the country of the Gadarenes round about besought him to depart from them; for they were taken with great fear. And he went up into the ship, and returned back again.

38 Now the man out of whom the devils were departed besought him that he might be with him: but Jesus sent him away, saying, 39 Return to thine own house, and shew how great things God hath done unto thee. And he went his way, and published throughout the whole city how great things Jesus had done unto him.

40 And it came to pass, that when Jesus was returned, the people gladly received him: for they were all waiting for him.

41 ¶ And, behold, there came a man named Jairus, and he was a ruler of the synagogue: and he fell down at Jesus' feet, and besought him that he would come into his house:

42 For he had one only daughter, about twelve years of age, and she lay a dying. But as he went the people thronged him.

43 ¶ And a woman, having an issue of blood twelve years, who had spent all her living upon physicians, neither could be healed of any,

44 Came behind him, and touched the border of his garment: and immediately her issue of blood stanch'd, 45 And Jesus said, Who touched me? When all denied, Peter, and they that were with him, said, Master, the multitude throng thee, and press thee, and sayest thou, Who touched me?

46 And Jesus said, Some body hath touched me: for I perceive that virtue is gone out of me.

47 And, when the woman saw that she was not hid, she came trembling; and falling down before him, she declared unto him before all the people for what cause she had touched him, and how she was healed immediately.

48 And he said unto her, Daughter, be of good comfort: thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace.

49 ¶ While he yet spake there cometh one from the ruler of the synagogue's house, saying to him, Thy daughter is dead; trouble not the Master.

50 But, when Jesus heard it, he answered him, saying, Fear not: believe only, and she shall be made whole.

51 And when he came into the house he suffered no man to go in, save Peter, and James, and John, and the father and the mother of the maiden.

CHAP. IX.

Here we have (1) The temporary commission which Christ gave his twelve disciples to go and preach the gospel and confirm it by miracles; 1—6. (2) The terror of Herod, tetrarch of Galilee, at the growing greatness of Christ; 7—9. (3) Christ's retirement with his returned disciples, in which multitudes resort to him; and he feeds five thousand with five loaves and two fishes: 10—17. (4) His discourse with his disciples concerning himself, and his sufferings for them, and their's for him; 18—27. (5) His transfiguration before Peter, James, and John, on the mount, and converse with Moses and Elias; 28—36. (6) His dislodging of a stubborn devil from a lunatic child when his disciples could not; 37—42. (7) His repeated notification of his approaching sufferings to his disciples; 43—45. (8) His rebuke of his disciples' ambition, and desire to monopolize miraculous powers to themselves; 46—50. (9) His rebuke of their over-due resentment of the affront given him by some Samaritans; assuring them that he came to save, not to destroy; 51—56. (10) The check which he gave to some inconsiderate and unstable pretenders to following him; 57—62.

THEN ^ahe called his twelve disciples together, and ^bgave them power and authority over all devils, and to cure diseases.

2 And he sent them to ^cpreach the kingdom of God, and to heal the sick.

3 And he said unto them. ^dTake nothing for your journey, neither staves, nor scrip, neither bread, neither money, neither have two coats apiece.

4 ^eAnd whatsoever house ye enter into, there abide, and thence depart.

5 ^fAnd whosoever will not receive you, when ye go out of that city, shake off the very dust from your feet for a testimony against them.

6 ^gAnd they departed, and went through the towns, preaching the gospel, and healing every where.

7 ¶ ^hNow Herod the tetrarch heard of all that was done by him: and he was perplexed, because that it was said of some that John was risen from the dead;

8 ⁱAnd of some, that Elias had appeared; and of others, that one of the old prophets was risen again.

9 And Herod said, ^kJohn have I beheaded: but who is this, of whom I hear such things? ^lAnd he desired to see him.

10 ¶ ^mAnd the apostles, when they were returned, told him all that they had done. ⁿAnd he took them, and went aside privately into a desert place belonging to the city called ^oBethsaida.

11 And the people, when they knew it, followed him: and ^phe received them, and spake unto them of the kingdom of God, and healed them that had need of healing.

12 ¶ ^qAnd, when the day began to wear away, then came the twelve, and said unto him, Send the multitude away, that they may go into the towns and country round about, and lodge, and get victuals: for we are here in a desert place.

13 But he said unto them, ^rGive ye them to eat. And they said, We have no more but five loaves and two fishes; except we should go and buy meat for all this people.

14 For they were about five thousand men. And he said to his disciples, ^sMake them sit down by fifties in a company.

15 And they did so, and made them all sit down.

16 Then he took the five loaves and the two fishes; and, ^tlooking up to heaven, he blessed them, and brake, and gave to the disciples to set before the multitude.

17 ^uAnd they did eat, and were all filled: and ^vthere was taken up of fragments that remained to them twelve baskets.

18 ¶ ^wAnd it came to pass, as he was ^xalone praying, his disciples were with him: and he asked them saying, Whom say the people that I am?

19 They answering said, ^yJohn the Baptist; but some say, Elias: and others say, that one of the old prophets is risen again.

20 He said unto them, But ^zwhom say ye that I am? Peter answering said, ^{aa}The Christ of God.

21 ^{ab}And he straitly charged them, and commanded them, to tell no man that thing;

22 Saying, ^{ac}The Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be slain, and be raised the third day.

23 ¶ ^{ad}And he said to them all, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me.

24 For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: but whosoever will lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it.

25 ^{ae}For what is a man advantaged, if he gain the whole world, and lose himself, or be cast away?

26 ^{af}For whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my words, of him shall the Son of man be ashamed when he shall come in his own glory, and in his Father's, and of the holy angels.

27 ^{ag}But I tell you of a truth, there

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VIII.—O the infinite, but voluntary debasement of our Redeemer, that he must live on the liberality of others, even of those who had lately been infamous sinners! But cheerfully they, who get good by the gospel, will contribute to maintain the preacher. And they, who have been healed by Jesus' grace, will eagerly follow him in the way. But Satan and our inward corruptions most awfully hinder the efficacy of the gospel on most of the hearers of it. It is but a remnant that are renewed, according to the election of grace, and rendered fruitful in holiness. Let us then take heed how we hear, and whether we have the habits and principles of true grace implanted in our soul. And let us improve the light and grace that we have for our own and others' advantage. If we cordially embrace the gospel, we are Christ's favourites; and neither raging winds nor devouring devils shall be able to deprive us of his love and care. If storms try our faith, his presence will secure our safety.

Let us therefore in dangers ever flee to, trust in, and adore, our ever merciful, ever mindful, God and Saviour. If Satan should exert all his power and malice to render us miserable, Jesus can rescue us and restrain him at pleasure. Alas, that ever love to this world, or slavish fear, should make his presence disagreeable! Happy are they, who, sensible of sin, weakness, and danger, eagerly press towards and cleave to him, notwithstanding every discouragement. In what Godlike manner he triumphed over diseases, devils, and death; and yet with the greatest self-denial laboured to conceal his miraculous works!—And still abundant is his grace, that never casts out any. With the greatest compassion he spies our griefs and shame, and with delight raises up the trembling, and comforts the poor in spirit. In all cases let me not fear, but only believe and obey however contrary his declarations or commands may seem to my carnal heart.

be some standing here who shall not taste of death till they see the kingdom of God.

28 ¶ And it came to pass, about an eight days after these sayings, he took Peter and John and James, and went up into a mountain to pray.

29 And, as he prayed, the fashion of his countenance was altered, and his raiment was white and glistering.

30 And, behold, there talked with him two men, who were Moses and Elias:

31 Who appeared in glory, and spake of his decease which he should accomplish at Jerusalem.

32 But Peter, and they that were with him, were heavy with sleep: and when they were awake they saw his glory, and the two men that stood with him.

33 And it came to pass, as they departed from him, Peter said unto Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias: not knowing what he said.

34 While he thus spake there came a cloud, and overshadowed them: and they feared as they entered into the cloud.

35 And there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son: hear him.

36 And, when the voice was past, Jesus was found alone. And they kept it close, and told no man in those days any of those things which they had seen.

37 ¶ And it came to pass that, on the next day, when they were come down from the hill, much people met him.

38 And, behold, a man of the company cried out, saying, Master, I beseech thee, look upon my son; for he is mine only child.

39 And, lo, a spirit taketh him, and he suddenly crieth out, and it teareth him that he foameth again, and, bruising him, hardly departeth from him.

40 And I besought thy disciples to cast him out, and they could not.

41 And Jesus answering said, O faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you, and suffer you? Bring thy son hither.

42 And, as he was yet a coming the devil threw him down, and tare him. And Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, and healed the child, and delivered him again to his father.

43 ¶ And they were all amazed at the mighty power of God. But, while they wondered every one at all things which Jesus did, he said unto his disciples, 44 Let these things sink down into your ears: for the Son of man shall be delivered into the hands of men.

45 But they understood not this saying, and it was hid from them, that they perceived it not: and they feared to ask him of that saying.

46 ¶ Then there arose a reasoning among them, which of them should be greatest.

47 And Jesus, perceiving the thought of their heart, took a child, and set him by him, 48 And said unto them, Whosoever shall receive this child in my name receiveth me; and whosoever shall receive me receiveth him that sent me: for he that is least among you all, the same shall be great.

49 ¶ And John answered and said, Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name; and we forbade him, because he followeth not with us.

50 And Jesus said unto him, Forbid him not: for he that is not against us is for us.

51 ¶ And it came to pass, when the time was come that he should be received up, he stedfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem, 52 And sent messengers before his face: and they went, and entered into a village of the Samaritans to make ready for him.

53 And they did not receive him, because his face was as though he would go to Jerusalem.

54 And, when his disciples James and John saw this, they said, Lord, wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven, and consume them, even as Elias did?

55 But he turned, and rebuked them, and said, Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of.

56 For the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them. And they went to another village.

57 ¶ And it came to pass that, as they went in the way, a certain man said unto him, Lord, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest.

58 And Jesus said unto him, Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head.

59 And he said unto another, Follow me. But he said, Lord, suffer me first to go and bury my father.

60 Jesus said unto him, Let the dead bury their dead; but go thou and preach the kingdom of God.

61 And another also said, Lord, I will follow thee: but let me first go bid them farewell who are at home at my house.

62 And Jesus said unto him, No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God.

heaven. But dreadful is their eternal state who prefer the honours, profits, and pleasures, of a present world, to him and his everlasting salvation; or who are ashamed of his truths and ways.—Astonishing is the influence of close fellowship with God. Easily it could even overset our mortal constitution. And how delightful then is heaven, where Jesus and all his saints shall for ever appear in their glory, and for ever, with joy inexpressible, contemplate his expiatory sufferings. In hopes of it, let me love his person, obey his directions, and trust all my cares and maladies to his power and skill. Let me accurately observe REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IX.—With authority Jesus commissions his gospel ministers; with faithfulness and care they must labour; and men's eternal state must be fixed as they hear or reject their messages. In times of scarcity and distress we should cast all our care on God, and be always ready to divide the little subsistence that we have with the hungry. By his blessing restored through Christ, we may live comfortably and in a Christian manner on a little. Happy are they who boldly confess the Redeemer, whatever they may suffer on his account. What is lost for him on earth will be more than compensated in

CHAP. X.

Here (1) Christ gives an ample commission to seventy other disciples to preach the gospel and work miracles, with proper instructions and encouragements; 1—16. (2) Upon their reporting their success, he hints to them the happiness of the elected, the sovereignty of saving grace, his own mediatorial powers, and the advantages of the gospel dispensation; 17—24. (3) He shews a lawyer the way to eternal life; and, by the parable of the kind Samaritan, informs him that every man was his neighbour, whom he ought to love; 25—37. (4) At an entertainment reproves Martha for her anxious care about worldly things, and commends Mary for her distinguished care for her soul; 38—42.

AFTER these things the Lord appointed other ^bseventy also, and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place whither he himself would come.

2 Therefore said he unto them, ^cThe harvest truly is great, but the labourers ^dare few: pray ye therefore the ^dLord of the harvest that ^ehe would send forth labourers into his harvest.

3 ^fGo your ways: ^gbehold, I send you forth as lambs among wolves.

4 ^hCarry neither purse, nor scrip, nor shoes: and salute no man by the way.

5 ⁱAnd, into whatsoever house ye enter, first say, Peace ^jbe to this house.

6 And, if the Son of peace be there, your peace shall rest upon it; if not, it shall turn to you again.

7 ^kAnd in the same house remain, eating and drinking such things as they give: for the labourer is worthy of his hire. ^lGo not from house to house.

8 And into whatsoever city ye enter, and they receive you, eat such things as are set before you:

9 And ^mheal the sick that are therein, and say unto them, ⁿThe kingdom of God is come nigh unto you.

10 But into whatsoever city ye enter, and they receive you not, go your ways out into the streets of the same, and say, 11 ^oEven the very dust of your city, which cleaveth on us, we do wipe off against you: ^pnotwithstanding, be ye sure of this, that the kingdom of God is come nigh unto you.

12 But I say unto you that ^qit shall be more tolerable in that day for Sodom than for that city.

13 ¶ ^rWo unto thee, Chorazin! wo unto thee, Bethsaida! for, if the mighty works had been done in Tyre and Sidon which have been done in you, they had a great while ago ^srepented, sitting in sackcloth and ashes.

14 ^tBut it shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the judgment than for you.

15 And thou, Capernaum, ^uwhich art exalted to heaven, shalt be thrust down to hell.

16 ^vHe that heareth you heareth me; and he that despiseth you despiseth me; and he that despiseth me despiseth him that sent me.

17 ¶ And the ^wseventy returned again with joy, saying, Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name.

18 And he said unto them, I beheld ^xSatan as lightning fall from heaven.

19 Behold, ^yI give unto you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy: and nothing shall by any means hurt you.

20 Notwithstanding, in this rejoice not, that the spirits are subject unto you; but rather rejoice because ^zyour names are written in heaven.

21 ¶ In that hour Jesus ^arejoiced in spirit, and said, I thank thee, O Father, ^bLord of heaven and earth, that thou ^chast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes: even so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight.

22 ^dAll things are delivered to me of my Father: and no man knoweth who the Son is but the Father; and who the Father is but the Son, and ^ehe to whom the Son will reveal ^fhim.

23 ¶ And he turned him unto ^ghis disciples, and said privately, ^hBlessed ⁱare the eyes which see the things that ye see:

24 For I tell you that many prophets and kings have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen ^jthem; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard ^kthem.

25 ¶ And, behold, a certain lawyer stood up, and tempted him, saying, ^lMaster, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?

26 He said unto him, ^mWhat is written in the law? how readest thou?

27 And he answering said, ⁿThou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbour as thyself.

28 And he said unto him, Thou hast answered right: ^othis do, and thou shalt live.

29 But he, ^pwilling to justify himself, said unto Jesus, And who is my neighbour?

30 And Jesus answering said, A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and ^qfell among thieves, who stripped him of his raiment, and wounded ^rhim, and departed, leaving ^shim half dead.

31 ^tAnd by chance there came down a certain priest that way: and, when he saw him, he passed by on the other side.

32 And likewise a Levite, when he was at the place, came and looked ^uon him, and passed by on the other side.

33 But a certain ^vSamaritan, as he journeyed, came where he was: and when he saw him he had compassion ^won him,

34 And went to ^xhim, and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine, and

EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. X. Ver. 30—37. In allusion, this wounded man may be viewed as an emblem of a lost sinner, to whom neither moral nor ceremonial laws can afford relief, and whom Jesus alone can tenderly pity and save by means of his gospel. But the real scope of the parable is to shew that, whatever provocations we have met with, we ought cordially to love, and kindly to help and relieve, our very enemies, even when their own professed friends overlook them whether I have true faith, and in what degree; and into what debates I enter, and with what manner of spirit. Alas, what defects, prejudices, pride, and passion, he finds in the very best on earth! Heartily he detests them; and much more to have his gospel propagated by their means. But with great tenderness he treats the meek and humble, pities their infirmities, and cherishes their good intentions concerning him.

set him on his own beast, and brought him to an inn, and took care of him.

35 And on the morrow, when he departed, he took out two pence, and gave them to the host, and said unto him, Take care of him; and whatsoever thou spendest more, when I come again, I will repay thee.

36 Which now of these three thinkest thou was neighbour unto him that fell among the thieves?

37 And he said, "He that shewed mercy on him. Then said Jesus unto him, "Go, and do thou likewise.

38 ¶ Now it came to pass, as they went, that he entered into a certain village: and a certain woman named Martha received him into her house.

39 And she had a sister called Mary, who also sat at Jesus' feet, and heard his word.

40 But Martha was cumbered about much serving; and came to him, and said, Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? bid her therefore that she help me.

41 And Jesus answered and said unto her, Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things:

42 But one thing is needful: and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her.

CHAP. XI.

Here (1) Christ again directs his disciples what to pray for; 1—4. and, by the parables of the borrowing friend and kind father, encourages to be persevering and importunate in prayer; 5—13. (2) Casts out a dumb devil; and shews the absurdity, wickedness, and danger, of pretending that he cast out devils by collusion with Beelzebub; 14—26. (3) Shews that obedience to his word is more honourable than even to be his mother; 27, 28. (4) Upbraids the Jews for their obstinate infidelity, notwithstanding all the means of conviction afforded them; 29—36. (5) At a dinner, rebukes and threatens the Pharisees and lawyers, for their hypocrisy, pride, and oppression of men's consciences, and persecution of those who opposed these their vices; 37—54.

AND it came to pass that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples.

2 And he said unto them, When ye pray, say, "Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth.

3 Give us day by day our daily bread.

4 And forgive us our sins; for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil.

5 And he said unto them, "which of you shall have a friend, and shall go unto him at midnight, and say unto him, Friend, lend me three loaves;

6 For a friend of mine in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him:

7 And he from within shall answer and say, Trouble me not: the door is now shut, and my children are with me in bed; I cannot rise and give thee?

8 I say unto you, though he will not rise and give him because he is his friend, yet because of his importunity he will rise and give him as many as he needeth.

9 And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.

10 For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

11 If a son shall ask bread of any of you that is a father, will he give him a stone? or, if he ask a fish, will he for a give him a serpent?

12 Or, if he shall ask an egg, will he offer him a scorpion?

13 If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?

unto him at midnight, and say unto him, Friend, lend me three loaves;

6 For a friend of mine in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him:

7 And he from within shall answer and say, Trouble me not: the door is now shut, and my children are with me in bed; I cannot rise and give thee?

8 I say unto you, though he will not rise and give him because he is his friend, yet because of his importunity he will rise and give him as many as he needeth.

9 And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.

10 For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

11 If a son shall ask bread of any of you that is a father, will he give him a stone? or, if he ask a fish, will he for a give him a serpent?

12 Or, if he shall ask an egg, will he offer him a scorpion?

13 If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?

14 ¶ And he was casting out a devil, and it was dumb. And it came to pass, when the devil was gone out, the dumb spake; and the people wondered.

15 But some of them said, "He casteth out devils through Beelzebub the chief of the devils.

16 And others, tempting him, sought of him a sign from heaven.

17 But he knowing their thoughts, said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and a house divided against a house falleth.

18 If Satan also be divided against himself, how shall his kingdom stand? because ye say that I cast out devils through Beelzebub.

19 And if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your sons cast them out? therefore shall they be your judges.

20 But if I with the finger of God cast out devils, no doubt the kingdom of God is come upon you.

21 When a strong man armed keepeth his palace, his goods are in peace:

22 But when a stronger than he shall come upon him, and overcome him, he taketh from him all his armour wherein he trusted, and divideth his spoils.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. X.—Great are the difficulties of faithful gospel ministers, and proportionate their assistance. Alas, that so few should be laborious, skilful, and faithful, or successful! If their authority, qualifications, help, and success, depend wholly on Christ, with what earnestness should their ministrations be attended to and improved! and cheerfully ought their hearers to provide them a subsistence. Ministers ought to appear altogether disentangled from carnal cares and pursuits. And dreadful is their case who reject a purely-preached gospel and the faithful preachers of it.—Happy is it to be instrumental in advancing the kingdom of Christ and depressing that of Satan. But more so to be enrolled in heaven as the special favourites of God and heirs of his glory. How exhilarating are the views of that sovereign grace which, by the almighty influence of the Holy Ghost, God bestows on whom he will;—the saving blessings and distinguished honours of the new covenant! But it is absurd for men to seek righteousness and life by a law which they can never fulfil; or to attempt reducing the broad law of God to the standard of their own heart and life. Never ought any to inquire concerning eternal salvation from a captious or even curious intention, but with the most serious concern. And it is comely when love to God and to men streams powerfully through every action of life, and the miseries of strangers and enemies awaken our tender compassion. Never should ministers or others make visits, without leaving a savour of Christ behind them. Every where they should labour to render men wise unto salvation. And no secular cares should ever hinder spiritual concern. Thrice happy are they who have the saving knowledge of, and an interest in, Christ! If once we have this, neither hell nor earth can deprive us of it: and Jesus will encourage our solicitous care about it, and secure our eternal possession of it.

23 ^eHe that is not with me is against me: and he that gathereth not with me scattereth.

24 ^bWhen the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, seeking rest: and, finding none, he saith, I will return unto my house whence I came out.

25 And, when he cometh, he findeth it swept and garnished.

26 ^kThen goeth he, and taketh to him seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter in and dwell there: and the last state of that man is worse than the first.

27 ¶ And it came to pass, as he spake these things, a certain woman of the company lifted up her voice, and said unto him, ^lBlessed is the womb that bare thee, and the paps which thou hast sucked.

28 But he said, Yea, ^mrather blessed are they that hear the word of God and keep it.

29 ¶ ⁿAnd when the people were gathered thick together, he began to say, This is ^oan evil generation: they seek a sign; and there shall no sign be given it, but the sign of Jonas the prophet.

30 For, as ^pJonas was a sign unto the Ninevites, so shall also the Son of man be to this generation.

31 ^qThe queen of the south shall rise up in the judgment with the men of this generation, and condemn them: for she came from the utmost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and, behold, ^ra greater than Solomon is here.

32 ^sThe men of Nineveh shall rise up in the judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it: for they repented at the preaching of Jonas; and, behold, ^ta greater than Jonas is here.

33 ^uNo man, when he hath lighted a candle, putteth it in a secret place, neither under a bushel; but on a candlestick, that they who come in may see the light.

34 ^vThe light of the body is the eye: therefore, when thine eye is single, thy whole body also is full of light: ^wbut, when ^xthine eye is evil, thy body also is full of darkness.

35 Take heed therefore ^ythat the light which is in thee be not darkness.

36 ^bIf thy whole body therefore be full of light, having no part dark, the whole shall be full of light, as when the bright shining of a candle doth give thee light.

37 ¶ And, as he spake, ^aa certain Pharisee besought him to dine with him: and he went in, and sat down to meat.

38 And, when the Pharisee saw it, he marvelled that ^dhe had not first washed before dinner.

39 And the Lord said unto him, ^eNow do ye Pharisees make clean the outside of the cup and the platter; but your inward part is full of ravening and wickedness.

40 Ye ^ffools, did not he that ^gmade that which is without make that which is within also?

41 But rather ^hgive alms ⁱof such things as ye have; and, behold, all things are clean unto you.

42 ^jBut wo unto you, Pharisees! for ye tithe mint and rue and all manner of herbs, and pass over judgment and the love of God: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone.

43 ^kWo unto you, Pharisees! for ye love the uppermost seats in the synagogues, and greetings in the markets.

44 Wo unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ^lye are as graves which appear not, and the men that walk over ^mthem are not aware of them.

45 Then answered one of the lawyers, and said unto him, Master, thus saying thou reproachest us also.

46 ⁿAnd he said, Wo unto you also, ye lawyers! for ye lade men with burdens grievous to be borne, and ye yourselves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers.

47 ^oWo unto you! for ye build the sepulchres of the prophets, and your fathers killed them.

48 Truly ^pye bear witness that ye allow the deeds of your fathers: for ^qthey indeed killed them, and ye build their sepulchres.

49 Therefore also said the ^rwisdom of God, ^sI will send them prophets and apostles, and ^tsome of them they shall slay and persecute:

50 ^uThat the blood of all the prophets, which was shed from the foundation of the world, may be required of this generation:

51 From the blood of ^vAbel unto the blood of Zacharias, which perished between the altar and the temple: verily I say unto you, it shall be required of this generation.

52 ^wWo unto you, lawyers! for ye have taken away the key of knowledge: ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in ye ^xhindered.

53 And, as he said these things unto them, ^ythe scribes and the Pharisees began to urge ^zhim vehemently, and to provoke him to speak of many things;

54 ^aLaying wait for him, and seeking to catch something out of his mouth, that they might accuse him.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XI.—There is great need that Jesus Christ should teach us to pray to God, as our gracious and heavenly Father, for all temporal, and especially spiritual blessings, with holy reverence and adoration; with firm faith, strong fervour, and persevering importunity; and with a charitable and forgiving temper of spirit; that God in all things may be glorified. If we thus pour out our requests in the name of our Redeemer, it is impossible they should fail of a gracious answer. But, while some learn to pray, how many, contrary to all means used with them, reject, and learn to blaspheme, the glorious Deliverer from sin and Satan. None are held neuter in religion, but are either Jesus' friends or enemies. They, therefore, who seemed to be once reformed, often become the vilest apostates, and distinguished slaves of Satan. How ready are others to imagine real happiness to consist in outward connexions with Christ. But it is only they who believe and obey the gospel that are happy indeed. How dark is the gospel to persons destitute of faith and depraved in judgment! But aggravated is their guilt, and inexpressible their misery, who remain wilfully blinded by pitiful prejudices amidst the clearest gospel light; and who are influenced by a superstitious, hypocritical, and persecuting temper. Fearful vengeance awaits them who prefer external ceremonies to the substantial duties of love and obedience; or who are zealous of fair shews of religion while they secretly indulge themselves in the vilest abominations; or, who, condemning ancient persecutors, do themselves rage against and persecute Christ, his gospel, and followers. Perseverance in national sins certainly issues in national ruin. And it is highly criminal and dangerous to hate, conceal, or misinterpret, the scriptures, or to hate reproof, and rage against Jesus Christ and his word for condemning our faults.

CHAP. XII.

(1) Christ warns his disciples against hypocrisy and cowardice in their profession and preaching; 1—12. (2) Upon a covetous request being made to him, he warns them against covetousness, and enforces it by the parable of the rich fool, suddenly cut off by death in the midst of his worldly projects and hopes; 13—21. (3) Directs them to cast all their care upon God's kind providence, and to make religion their principal business; 22—34. (4) From the consideration of the reward of faithfulness, and punishment of unfaithfulness, he enforces the duty of watchfulness for his coming; 35—48. (5) He warns them to expect trouble and persecution on account of their profession of and obedience to his gospel, however pacific in itself; 49—53. (6) He admonishes the people to make sure their reconciliation to God and peace with men while they had an opportunity; 54—59.

IN the mean time, when there were gathered together an innumerable multitude of people, insomuch that they trode one upon another, he began to say unto his disciples first of all, ^bBeware ye of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy.

2 For there is nothing covered, that shall not be revealed; neither hid, that shall not be known.

3 Therefore whatsoever ye have spoken in darkness shall be heard in the light; and that which ye have spoken in the ear in closets shall be proclaimed upon the house tops.

4 And I say unto you, my friends, Be not afraid of them that kill the body and after that have no more that they can do.

5 But I will forewarn you whom ye shall fear: Fear him who, after he hath killed, hath power to cast into hell; yea, I say unto you, Fear him.

6 Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings, and not one of them is forgotten before God?

7 But even the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear not therefore: ye are of more value than many sparrows.

8 Also I say unto you, Whosoever shall confess me before men, him shall the Son of man also confess before the angels of God:

9 But he that denieth me before men shall be denied before the angels of God.

10 And whosoever shall speak a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him: but unto him that blasphemeth against the Holy Ghost it shall not be forgiven.

11 And when they bring you unto the synagogues, and unto magistrates, and powers, take ye no thought how or what thing ye shall answer, or what ye shall say:

12 For the Holy Ghost shall teach you in the same hour what ye ought to say.

13 ¶ And one of the company said unto him, Master, speak to my brother, that he divide the inheritance with me.

14 And he said unto him, Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you?

15 And he said unto them, Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth.

16 And he spake a parable unto them, saying, The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully:

17 And he thought within himself, saying, What shall I do, because I have no room where to bestow my fruits?

18 And he said, This will I do: I will pull down my barns, and build greater; and there will I bestow all my fruits and my goods.

19 And I will say to my soul, Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry.

20 But God said unto him, Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things be which thou hast provided?

21 So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God.

22 ¶ And he said unto his disciples, Therefore I say unto you, Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat; neither for the body, what ye shall put on.

23 The life is more than meat, and the body is more than raiment.

24 Consider the ravens: for they neither sow nor reap; which neither have storehouse nor barn; and God feedeth them. How much more are ye better than the fowls?

25 And which of you with taking thought can add to his stature one cubit?

26 If ye then be not able to do that thing which is least, why take ye thought for the rest?

27 Consider the lilies how they grow: they toil not, they spin not; and yet I say unto you, that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.

28 If then God so clothe the grass, which is to day in the field, and to morrow is cast into the oven; how much more will he clothe you, O ye of little faith?

29 And seek not ye what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; neither be ye of doubtful mind.

30 For all these things do the nations of the world seek after: and your Father knoweth that ye have need of these things.

31 But rather seek ye the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto you.

32 Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom.

33 ¶ Sell that ye have, and give alms; provide yourselves bags which wax not old, a treasure in the heavens that faileth not, where no thief approacheth, neither moth corrupteth.

34 For where your treasure is there will your heart be also.

35 ¶ Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning;

36 And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their Lord, when he will return from the wedding; that, when he cometh and knocketh, they may open unto him immediately.

37 Blessed are those servants, whom the Lord when he cometh shall find watching: verily I say unto you, that he shall gird himself, and make them to sit down to meat, and will come forth and serve them.

38 And, if he shall come in the second watch, or come in the third watch, and find them so, blessed are those servants.

39 ^dAnd this know, that, if the good man of the house had known what hour the thief would come, he would have watched, and not have suffered his house to be broken through.

40 ^eBe ye therefore ready also: for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not.

41 ¶ Then Peter said unto him, Lord, speakest thou this parable 'unto us, or even to all?

42 And the Lord said, ^eWho then is that faithful and wise steward, whom his lord shall make ruler over his household, to give them their portion of meat in due season?

43 ^bBlessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing.

44 Of a truth I say unto you, that he will make him ruler over all that he hath.

45 But ^kand if that servant say in his heart, My lord delayeth his coming; and shall begin to beat the men servants and maidens, and to eat and drink, and to be drunken;

46 ^mThe Lord of that servant will come in a day when he looketh not for him, and at an hour when he is not aware, and will cut him in sunder, and will appoint him his portion with the unbelievers.

47 ^oAnd that servant, who knew his lord's will, and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes.

48 But he that knew not, and did commit things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few stripes. For unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall much be required: and to whom men have committed much, of him they will ask the more.

49 ¶ ^pI am come to send fire on the earth; and what will I, if it be already kindled?

50 But ^qI have a baptism to be baptized with; and how am I straitened till it be accomplished!

51 ^rSuppose ye that I am come to give peace on earth? I tell you, Nay; but rather division.

52 For from henceforth there shall be five in one house divided, three against two, and two against three.

53 The father shall be divided against the son, and the son against the father: the mother against the daughter, and the daughter against the mother: the mother in law against her daughter in law, and the daughter in law against her mother in law.

54 ¶ And he said also to the people, ^sWhen ye see a cloud rise out of the west, straightway ye say, There cometh a shower; and so it is.

55 And, ^twhen ye see the south wind blow, ye say, There will be heat; and it cometh to pass.

56 ^uYe hypocrites, ye can discern the face of the sky and of the earth; but how is it that ye do not discern ^ythis time?

57 ^vYea, and why even of yourselves judge ye not what is right?

58 ¶ ^aWhen thou goest with thine adversary to the magistrate, ^{as} thou art in the way, give diligence that thou mayest be delivered from him; lest he hale thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and the officer cast thee into prison.

59 I tell thee, ^bthou shalt not depart thence till thou hast paid the very last mite.

CHAP. XIII.

(1) By the emblem of the massacred Galileans, and of the Jews accidentally killed by the tower of Siloam, Christ warns the Jews of the sudden and alarming manner of their impending destruction, unless they repented; 1—5. (2) By the parable of the barren fig-tree he forewarns them that after a little more forbearance, they would be utterly destroyed, unless they improved the gospel dispensation in good works; 6—9. (3) He heals a deformed woman on the sabbath, and justifies his conduct; 11—17. (4) Repeats the parable of the grain of mustard seed and the leaven; 18—22. (5) In contemplation of the few that are saved, and the rejection of the Jews to make way for the conversion of the Gentiles, he warns every one to make sure his own union to, and regeneration by, him; 23—30. (6) Slights the malice and threatenings of Herod; foretells his death at Jerusalem, and the terrible ruin of that city and temple; 31—35.

THERE were present at that season some that told him of the ^aGalileans, whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices.

2 And Jesus answering said unto them, ^bSuppose ye that these Galileans were sinners above all the Galileans, because they suffered such things?

3 I tell you, Nay: but, ^cexcept ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.

4 Or those eighteen upon whom the tower in Siloam fell, and slew them, think ye that they were ^dsinners above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem?

5 I tell you, ^eNay: but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.

if we be persecuted for a prudent and disinterested adherence to truth, he will enable us to defend our conduct. How perversely men are set against the Saviour, when they hate and persecute their nearest relations for his sake! And many are very prudent with respect to temporal, and fools with respect to spiritual and eternal, concerns. — Sinners are in unceasing danger of falling into the hand of God's just vengeance. And if, in their present day of grace, they do not, through faith, obtain reconciliation with him, unavoidable, unsupportable, and endless, must be their ruin. Alas, who amongst us can abide with devouring fire, or dwell with everlasting burnings!

CHAP. XIII. Ver. 1—9. The ruin of the Jewish nation, about forty years after Christ, was, like that of the Galileans and the Jews crushed by the tower of Siloam, most sudden and dreadful, chiefly occasioned by their attendance on their ceremonial services, and near to the temple.—The parable of the fig tree imports that, notwithstanding their long continued barrenness of good tempers and works, yet by means of the intercession of Christ and his ministers, they should for about forty years enjoy a gospel dispensation, and afterwards be fearfully destroyed, on account of their unfruitfulness and wickedness.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XII.—How absurd is hypocrisy, seeing God is omniscient, and will in the last judgment publicly expose our whole conduct! It is highly unbecoming to distrust his care for, and assistance of, us in every duty, or to fear men more than him; and infinitely dangerous, not to prefer the care of our soul to every thing else. There is great need of watchfulness and fidelity in religion, since Christ will certainly own or reject us in the other world as we do him in this. And with humble confidence may we commit our souls to that Saviour who eagerly desired to undergo the worst of deaths for the salvation of sinners; and to that heavenly Father whose kind providence extends to the meanest creature, and has prepared for us an everlasting kingdom. Surely this is worthy to be sought for as our principal treasure, and prepared for as our inexpressible happiness. Why should we set our hearts on worldly portions, which only procure envy and contention; or which, by their abundant increase, precipitate their owners into everlasting perdition. And it is base and shameful when ministers neglect their infinitely-important work, and perplex their minds, or waste their time, in civil affairs. Yea, the more light men sin against, the greater will be their punishment. Alas that, while Jesus Christ died to reconcile men to God, and to one another, men's lusts, passions, and prejudices, should make his conciliating gospel an occasion of strife and confusion! But,

6 ¶ He spake also this parable: A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard: and he came and sought fruit thereon, and found none.

7 Then said he unto the dresser of his vineyard, Behold, these three years I come seeking fruit on this fig tree, and find none; cut it down, why cumbereth it the ground?

8 And he answering said unto him, Lord, let it alone this year also, till I shall dig about it and dung it:

9 And, if it bear fruit, well: and, if not, then after that thou shalt cut it down.

10 ¶ And he was teaching in one of the synagogues on the sabbath.

11 And, behold, there was a woman who had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise lift up herself.

12 And when Jesus saw her he called her to him, and said unto her, Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity.

13 And he laid his hands on her: and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God.

14 And the ruler of the synagogue answered with indignation, because that Jesus had healed on the sabbath day, and said unto the people, There are six days in which men ought to work: in them therefore come and be healed, and not on the sabbath day.

15 The Lord then answered him, and said, Thou hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the sabbath loose his ox or his ass from the stall, and lead him away to watering?

16 And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo, these eighteen years, to be loosed from this bond on the sabbath day?

17 And when he had said these things all his adversaries were ashamed: and all the people rejoiced for all the glorious things that were done by him.

18 ¶ Then said he, Unto what is the kingdom of God like? and whereunto shall I resemble it?

19 It is like a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and cast into his garden; and it grew, and waxed a great tree; and the fowls of the air lodged in the branches of it.

20 ¶ And again he said, Whereunto shall I liken the kingdom of God?

21 It is like leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal till the whole was leavened.

22 And he went through the cities and villages, teaching, and journeying towards Jerusalem.

23 ¶ Then said one unto him, Lord, are there few that be saved? And he said unto them, 24 * Strive to enter in at the strait gate: for many, I say unto you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able.

25 When once the master of the house is risen up, and hath shut to the door, and ye begin to stand without, and to knock at the door, saying, Lord, Lord, open unto us; and he shall answer and say unto you, I know you not whence ye are:

26 Then shall ye begin to say, We have eaten and drunk in thy presence, and thou hast taught in our streets.

27 But he shall say, I tell you, I know you not whence ye are; depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity.

28 There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out.

29 And they shall come from the east, and from the west, and from the north, and from the south, and shall sit down in the kingdom of God.

30 And, behold, there are last who shall be first, and there are first who shall be last.

31 ¶ The same day there came certain of the Pharisees, saying unto him, Get thee out, and depart hence: for Herod will kill thee.

32 And he said unto them, Go ye, and tell that fox, Behold, I cast out devils, and I do cures to-day and to-morrow, and the third day I shall be perfected.

33 Nevertheless, I must walk to-day and to-morrow, and the day following: for it cannot be that a prophet perish out of Jerusalem.

34 O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, and stonest them that are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings, and ye would not!

35 Behold, your house is left unto you desolate. And verily I say unto you, ye shall not see me until the time come when ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the LORD.

CHAP. XIV.

(1) Christ heals a dropsy on the sabbath day, and justifies his conduct; 1—6. (2) Inculcates humility, when he saw some ambitious of the more honourable seats; 7—11. (3) Inculcates charity on such as feasted the rich and neglected the poor; 12—14. (4) By the parable of the guests and supper, foretells the different reception of the gospel dispensation, rejection of the Jews, and calling of the Gentiles; 15—24. (5) Inculcates self-denial, deliberate fixing in religion, and steady perseverance in it, as necessary laws of discipleship and the ministerial office; 25—35.

curious inquiries about the number of the saved, but earnest care about my own believing in Jesus Christ, be the labour of my soul. And, to quicken my diligence, let me remember that few comparatively are saved: and, to raise my admiration, and encourage my faith, let me think how often the most improbable in appearance are converted, while others are left to perish in their sins. And let me behold how ready Jesus was to instruct the ignorant, alarm the careless and heal the diseased. Indefatigable was he in his labours. Highly he regarded his Father's ordinances, and contemned the terrors of wicked men; and was even ready to die for his people. Carefully was he preserved by providence till his hour came. And the most tremendous ruin has or will overtake his obstinate opposers. Yea, the greater our privileges abused, the greater the miseries we shall incur.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIII.—With great care should we guard against uncharitable censures of those whom God hath sorely afflicted, remembering that his strokes on them are warnings to us, and that nothing short of evangelical repentance can prevent our eternal ruin. Severe censures of others but prepare ourselves for unmixed wrath from God. He takes the most exact notice of every season and means of grace we enjoy, and of our unprofitableness under the same. The opportunities of his mercy and patience are often unexpectedly lengthened out through the mediation of his Son and the prayers of his ministers. And, if he spare, ministers ought to be diligent. The most unfruitful sinners may be renewed and turned to God by the gospel: but the obstinate abuse of this will at last issue in men's just and inexpressible ruin. Cries for mercy will then become vain, hopes and pleas from external privileges will be defeated, and there will be none to intercede for the sinner. Let not therefore

AND it came to pass, as he went into the house of one of the chief Pharisees to eat bread on the sabbath day, that they watched him.

2 And, behold, there was a certain man before him who had the dropsy.

3 And Jesus answering spake unto the lawyers and Pharisees, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath day?

4 And they held their peace. And he took him, and healed him, and let him go;

5 And answered them, saying, Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not straightway pull him out on the sabbath day?

6 And they could not answer him again to these things.

7 ¶ And he put forth a parable to those who were bidden, when he marked how they chose out the chief rooms; saying unto them,

8 When thou art bidden of any man to a wedding, sit not down in the highest room; lest a more honourable man than thou be bidden of him;

9 And he that bade thee and him come and say to thee, Give this man place; and thou begin with shame to take the lowest room.

10 But, when thou art bidden, go and sit down in the lowest room; that when he that bade thee cometh he may say unto thee, Friend, go up higher: then shalt thou have worship in the presence of them that sit at meat with thee.

11 For whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.

12 ¶ Then said he also to him that bade him, When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, neither thy kinsmen, nor thy rich neighbours; lest they also bid thee again, and a recompence be made thee.

13 But, when thou makest a feast, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind:

14 And thou shalt be blessed; for they cannot recompense thee: for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just.

15 ¶ And, when one of them that sat at meat with him heard these things, he said unto him, Blessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God.

16 Then said he unto him, A certain man made a great supper, and bade many:

17 And sent his servant at supper time, to say to them that were bidden, Come; for all things are now ready.

18 And they all with one consent began to make excuse. The first said unto him, I have bought a piece of ground, and I must needs go and see it: I pray thee have me excused.

19 And another said, I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I go to prove them: I pray thee have me excused.

20 And another said, I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come.

21 So that servant came, and shewed his lord these things. Then the master of the house, being angry, said to his servant, Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor, and the maimed, and the halt, and the blind.

22 And the servant said, Lord, it is done as thou hast commanded, and yet there is room.

23 And the Lord said unto the servant, Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled.

24 For I say unto you, that none of those men who were bidden shall taste of my supper.

25 ¶ And there went great multitudes with him: and he turned, and said unto them, 26 If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple.

27 And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple.

28 For which of you, intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first, and counteth the cost, whether he have sufficient to finish it?

29 Lest haply, after he hath laid the foundation, and is not able to finish it, all that behold it begin to mock him, 30 Saying, This man began to build, and was not able to finish.

31 Or what king, going to make war against another king, sitteth not down first, and consulteth whether he be able with ten thousand to meet him that cometh against him with twenty thousand?

32 Or else, while the other is yet a great way off, he sendeth an ambassage, and desireth conditions of peace.

33 So likewise, whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple.

34 ¶ Salt is good: but, if the salt have lost its savour, wherewith shall it be seasoned?

35 It is neither fit for the land, nor yet for the dunghill; but men cast it out. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIV.—There is great need of divine instruction how to observe the weekly sabbath, and how to connect works of necessity and mercy with acts of devotion. And at our meals, and every other season, our talk ought to turn upon the important points of religion, and tend to the glory of God. Nor should the presence of enemies, who watch for our halting, deter us from our duty. In their nature and tendency, how base is pride and how valuable humility, both before God and men! And earthly honours and esteem are contemptible when compared with the honours of humble souls at the last day, and in the eternal state. Luxurious feasting marks men's pride and sensuality, robs the poor, and abuses the bounty of God. But astonishing is the grace of God in preparing a feast, a gospel dispensation, and an eternal happiness, on the flesh and blood of his Son, and the fulness of his covenant; and in inviting and beseeching sinners, Gentile sinners, even the chief, to share thereof! And, however many Jews or others, on the highest carnal pretences, reject it, multitudes, even of the most unlikely, shall be brought in, till Christ's church on earth, and mansions in heaven, be filled. With great faithfulness and labour ought ministers to teach every man, and warn every man, and call every man, for this effect. For strict is the account they must give of their conduct and success. But redoubled vengeance and tremendous exclusion from God's mercy await those who refuse Christ. And, if we would be interested in his blessings, he must have the highest preference in our heart above self and every thing earthly. And practical religion must begin on such consideration and principles as will dispose us to endure every thing for his sake. Dreadful and eternal shame shall cover those professors who are at last found empty and graceless. How valuable

THEN drew near unto him all the publicans and sinners for to hear him.

2 And the Pharisees and scribes murmured, saying, This man receiveth sinners, and eateth with them.

3 ¶ And he spake this parable unto them, saying,

4 °What man of you, having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness, and go after that which is lost, until he find it?

5 And, when he hath found it, he layeth it on his shoulders rejoicing.

6 And, when he cometh home, he calleth together his friends and neighbours, saying unto them Rejoice with me; for I have found my sheep which was lost.

7 I say unto you, that likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons who need no repentance.

8 ¶ Either what woman having ten pieces of silver, if she lose one piece, doth not light a candle, and sweep the house, and seek diligently till she find it?

9 And, when she hath found it, she calleth her friends and her neighbours together, saying, Rejoice with me; for I have found the piece which I had lost.

10 Likewise I say unto you, There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth.

11 ¶ And he said, °A certain man had two sons:

12 And the younger of them said to his father, °Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me. And he divided unto them his living.

13 And, not many days after, the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living.

14 And, when he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine in that land; and he began to be in want.

15 And he went and joined himself to a citizen of that country; and he sent him into his fields to feed swine.

16 And he would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the swine did eat: and no man gave unto him.

17 And, when he came to himself, he said, How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger!

18 I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against Heaven, and before thee, 19 And am no more worthy to be called thy son: make me as one of thy hired servants.

20 And he arose, and came to his father. But, when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kissed him.

21 And the son said unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son.

22 But the father said to his servants, Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him; and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet.

23 And bring hither the fatted calf, and kill it; and let us eat and be merry:

24 °For this my son was dead, and is alive again: he was lost, and is found. And they began to be merry.

25 Now his elder son was in the field; and, as he came and drew nigh to the house, he heard music and dancing.

26 And he called one of the servants, and asked what these things meant.

27 And he said unto him, Thy brother is come; and thy father hath killed the fatted calf, because he hath received him safe and sound.

28 And he was angry, and would not go in: therefore came his father out, and entreated him.

29 And he answering said to his father, °Lo, these many years do I serve thee, neither transgressed I at any time thy commandment; and yet thou never gavest me a kid, that I might make merry with my friends:

30 But, as soon as this thy son was come, who hath devoured thy living with harlots, thou hast killed for him the fatted calf.

31 And he said unto him, Son, thou are the doctrines and graces of our Redeemer, when lodged in the heart and practised in the life! and what a preserving, purifying, and savoury, blessing they render us to all around! But very pernicious are all errors; and unprofitable and hurtful now, and miserable hereafter, are loose, carnal, corrupt, careless, and erroneous, ministers and professors of the true religion. O my soul, consider these things, and take heed that I never draw back unto perdition! And, if I think I stand, let me take heed lest I fall.

CHAP. XV. The scope of all these parables is to represent the exceeding riches of God's grace to sinners, especially the Gentiles. The lost sheep brought back represents them as elected and given to Christ, the chief Shepherd, to be saved by him; but stupidly wandering on in deserts of ignorance, idolatry, and other wickedness and misery, but followed after by a laborious and faithful dispensation of the gospel, apprehended by Christ's Spirit, and by his power and grace converted to God, instated in his covenant, and made members of his church. The lost piece of silver recovered represents them as dear and precious in God's account, and wholly incapable of doing any thing for their own relief; but, by means of shaking providences, the gospel dispensation, and conscience-convincing and heart-renewing influences, converted to Christ. The prodigal son reformed represents them as God's honoured creatures apostatizing from him, and perverting their natural powers, and the blessings of providence, to the basest purposes of iniquity, till they had rendered themselves slaves and worshippers of Satan, wicked and miserable to the last degree; but at last, by strokes of affliction, and convictions of conscience, encouraged by gospel invitations, made to apply to God for his free and full salvation:—graciously drawn and received by him, clothed with the imputed righteousness of Christ, endowed with his Spirit and grace, as a pledge of their eternal inheritance; qualified by gospel promises and influences to walk in God's ways; and feasted on the flesh, blood, and fulness, of Christ, and made glad with the light of his countenance. The joy attending the recovery of the lost sheep, piece of silver, or prodigal son, imports that God is more glorified in the redemption of men than in the preservation of angels who never sinned;—in the conversion of the Gentiles than in the preservation of the Jewish church;—in the conversion of notorious sinners than of such as have been always civilized;—and in the conversion of all ranks and degrees of sinners than in the pretended religion of self-righteous persons; and that he and his angels more rejoice therein. The elder son denotes the Jews, particularly the scribes and Pharisees, who took such offence at God's calling the Gentiles into his gospel church, and honouring them above themselves, who had long been his peculiar people, that they obstinately refused to embrace the gospel, and unite with them in one church. He may also represent all self-righteous professors, and even peevish believers, who take offence at God's vouchsafing his singular favours to persons converted from notorious wickedness.

CHAP. XVI.

(1) Christ represents the right use of worldly enjoyments for our eternal advantage in the parable of the unjust steward and the application of it; 1—13. (2) Rebukes the scoffing Pharisees for their pride, covetousness, and hypocrisy; 14, 15. (3) Declares that his New Testament dispensation, the blessings of which, both Jews and Gentiles, were beginning ardently to desire, would not annul, but fulfil, the law, whether ceremonial or moral; 16—18. (4) In the parable of the rich man and Lazarus he represents that riches abused do but secure and enhance eternal torments, and that no other means of conversion can be granted to such as neglect the warnings of scripture; 19—31.

AND he said also unto his disciples, ^aThere was a certain rich man who had a steward; and the same was accused unto him that he had wasted his goods.

2 And he called him, and said unto him, How is it that I hear this of thee? ^dgive an account of thy stewardship; for thou mayest be no longer steward.

3 Then the steward said within himself, What shall I do? for my lord taketh away from me the stewardship: ^eI cannot dig; to beg I am ashamed.

4 ^fI am resolved what to do; that, when I am put out of the stewardship, they may receive me into their houses.

5 So he called every one of his lord's debtors unto him; and said unto the first, How much owest thou unto my lord?

6 And he said, An hundred ^gmeasures of oil. And he said unto him, Take thy bill, and sit down quickly, and write fifty.

7 Then said he to another, And how much owest thou? And he said, An hundred ^hmeasures of wheat. And he said unto him, Take thy bill, and write four-score.

8 And the lord commended the unjust steward, because he had done ⁱwisely: ^jfor the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light.

9 And I say unto you, ^kMake to yourselves friends of the ^lmammon of unrighteousness; that, when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations.

10 ^mHe that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much: and he that is unjust in the least is unjust also in much.

11 If therefore ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous ⁿmammon, who will commit to your trust the ^otrue riches?

12 And, if ye have not been faithful in ^pthat which is another man's, who shall give you that ^qwhich is your own?

13 ^rNo servant can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. ^sYe cannot serve God and mammon.

14 ¶ And the Pharisees also ^twho were covetous, heard all these things: and they ^uderided him.

15 And he said unto them, Ye are they who ^vjustify yourselves before men: but ^wGod knoweth your hearts: ^xfor that which is highly esteemed amongst men is abomination in the sight of God.

16 ^yThe law and the prophets were until John: since that time the kingdom of God is preached, and every man presseth into it.

17 ^zAnd it is easier for heaven and earth to pass than one tittle of the law to fail.

18 ^{aa}Whosoever putteth away his wife, and marrieth another, committeth adultery; and whosoever marrieth her that is put away from ^{ab}her husband, committeth adultery.

19 ¶ There was a certain rich man, who was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day:

20 ^{ac}And there was a certain beggar named Lazarus, who was laid at his gate, ^{ad}full of sores, 21 ^{ae}And desiring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table: moreover, ^{af}the dogs came and licked his sores.

22 And it came to pass that the beggar died, and ^{ag}was carried by the angels into ^{ah}Abraham's bosom: the rich man also died, and ^{ai}was buried.

23 And in hell he lift up his eyes, being in torments; and ^{aj}seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XV.—Great is the grace and condescension of Jesus Christ to the very chief of sinners, and base the heart that rages against his love. Alas! how bent are sinners to wander from God, and expose themselves to danger and ruin! Unable to recover themselves, they are plunged in, and covered with, wretchedness and guilt. Yet, madly prodigal, and haters of God's presence and government, they are puffed up with a self-conceit of their excellency and merit, and, imagining all that they have their own, covetous of a present portion, and regardless of every thing eternal, they apostatize more and more from God, and become slaves to their lusts, abusing every gift of God to their service. Yea, though destitute of every thing holy, honourable, or gladdening, they are quickly involved in disappointment, perplexity, and wretchedness, and exposed to everlasting destruction: yet still obstinately will they pursue every folly, however base or ruinous, rather than return to a gracious God!—Infinite is the love of God, in seeking the lost and converting prodigals! Quick-sighted is his mercy, to spy our necessities and mark our cares and desires; and alert, in hastening to our relief. Active and generous is he in drawing us to himself, embracing the polluted, pardoning our iniquity, accepting us in the Beloved, giving us his Spirit, renewing our nature, shedding abroad his love in our hearts, and supplying all our wants with his benefits.—What a change his grace makes! The most thoughtless consider their ways, and become wise unto salvation; the proud become humble; the lost are recovered to every thing useful and glorious; and the dead in trespasses and sins are made alive to God and his service! What ground of inexpressible joy is this to saints, to ministers, to angels, to God himself! But detestable is it, from a principle of malice and self-conceit, to take offence at the freedom, extent, and sovereignty, of his grace; or to murmur at the happiness of sinners by means of it. Marvellous is it that God should court such froward trans-gressors with overtures of mercy! But wo, wo, wo, to their souls if they obstinately reject them!

CHAP. XVI. In the parable of the steward we are taught that God will call us to an account for our use of every temporal enjoyment; and that, by a Christian foresight of this, we ought so to improve our uncertain riches, in acts of piety and charity, as that, when we die God and his angels may conduct us, as faithful stewards, to everlasting mansions of happiness; and the saints, whom we had relieved, may honourably welcome us thither, as an answer to their prayers for us:—and that, if we be not faithful in using the perishing enjoyments of this world, which God has merely committed to us as a trust, to be used for his glory and the good of others, we can have no proper evidence of our possessing the more excellent and substantial riches of true grace, which God gives men for their own, never to be taken from them.

In the parable of the rich man and Lazarus, Christ teaches us that, let true saints be as poor and contemned as they may in this world, they shall have an honourable entrance into, and station in, heaven with him; and that rich men, who wallow in sensual pleasures here, shall, in the other world, fall into the most aggravated miseries; and that, however damned men may wish to prevent their partners in guilt coming thither to torment them, no means of conversion but the scripture shall ever be allowed them.—Perhaps too he represented to these Pharisees, that, however much they now contemned him in his poor and debased estate, he should quickly be exalted to glory; and they who now rioted in wealth and honour, be thrust down into hell, and the generality of their nation be reduced, for many ages, to the most deplorable and unpitied wretchedness on earth, in which they should earnestly wish for the now contemned appearances of the Messiah, but they should be utterly denied them.

24 And he cried and said, "Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am tormented in this flame.

25 But Abraham said, Son, remember that thou in thy life-time receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things: but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented.

26 And, besides all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed: so that they who would pass from hence to you cannot; neither can they pass to us that would come from thence.

27 Then he said, I pray thee therefore, father, that thou wouldest send him to my father's house;

28 For I have five brethren; that he may testify unto them, lest they also come into this place of torment.

29 Abraham said unto him, They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them.

30 And he said, Nay, father Abraham; but, if one went unto them from the dead, they will repent.

31 And he said unto him, If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead.

CHAP. XVII.

(1) Christ teaches to avoid giving offence; to forgive injuries; to study an increase of faith; and, by the parable of the obedient servant, to have an humble apprehension of our best works; 1—10. (2) Heals ten lepers; only one of which, being a Samaritan, glorified God, and returned to thank him; 11—19. (3) Shews the Pharisees and his disciples that his kingdom was not to be of a carnal, but spiritual, nature: as an evidence of which, the Jewish nation should, after he had suffered and been rejected by them, be generally destroyed, in an unexpected, sudden, and tremendous, manner, as the inhabitants of the old world and the Sodomites had been; 20—37. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xviii.]

THEN said he unto the disciples, "It is impossible but that offences will come: but wo unto him through whom they come!"

2 "It were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he cast into the sea, than that he should offend one of these little ones.

3 ¶ "Take heed to yourselves: If thy brother trespass against thee, rebuke him; and, if he repent, forgive him.

4 "And if he trespass against thee seven times in a day, and seven times in a day turn again to thee, saying, I repent; thou shalt forgive him.

5 ¶ And the apostles said unto the Lord, "Increase our faith.

6 "And the Lord said, If ye had faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye might say unto this sycamine tree, Be thou plucked up by the root, and be thou planted in the sea; and it should obey you.

7 But which of you, having a servant plowing or feeding cattle, will say unto him by and by, when he is come from the field, Go and sit down to meat?

8 And will not rather say unto him, Make ready wherewith I may sup, and gird thyself, and serve me, till I have eaten and drunken; and afterward thou shalt eat and drink?

9 Doth he thank that servant because he did the things that were commanded him? I trow not.

10 So likewise ye, when ye shall have done all those things which are commanded you, say, We are unprofitable servants: we have done that which was our duty to do.

11 ¶ And it came to pass, as he went to Jerusalem, that he passed through the midst of Samaria and Galilee.

12 And, as he entered into a certain village, there met him ten men that were lepers, who stood afar off:

13 And they lifted up their voices, and said, "Jesus, Master, have mercy on us.

14 And when he saw them he said unto them, "Go shew yourselves unto the priests. And it came to pass, that as they went they were cleansed.

15 And one of them, when he saw that he was healed, turned back, and with a loud voice glorified God;

16 And fell down on his face at his feet, giving him thanks: and he was a Samaritan.

17 And Jesus answering said, Were there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine?

18 "There are not found that returned to give glory to God, save this stranger.

19 And he said unto him, "Arise, go thy way; thy faith hath made thee whole.

20 ¶ And, when he was demanded of the Pharisees when the kingdom of God should come, he answered them and said, the kingdom of God cometh not with observation:

21 Neither shall they say, "Lo here! or lo there! for, behold, the kingdom of God is within you.

22 ¶ And he said unto the disciples, "The days will come when ye shall desire to see one of the days of the Son of man, and ye shall not see it.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVI.—Whatever things we enjoy in this world are but a trust committed to us by God to do good with. We cannot long hold them; but quickly, in an hour we think not, our reckoning for them must come. O that we may then be found faithful! It is self-contradicting and absurd to pursue earthly riches with more earnestness and industry than eternal treasures; and dangerous to neglect a single opportunity or advantage in favour of everlasting happiness. It is necessary to watch against all unfaithfulness and injustice in worldly enjoyments, which so many make instruments of unrighteousness. Lesser sins lead to greater; and pride and laziness often plunge men into the vilest dishonesty. The abuse of less important trusts provokes God to withhold what is more excellent. And, as none can serve both God and the world, it is wise to prefer God in due time. But proud covetous hypocrites, enslaved by their own lusts, hate and scoff at instruction.—What is most esteemed and desired by men is generally abominable before God. His gospel dispensation does not make void, but establish, the law. And blessed be God that both Jews and Gentiles have with earnestness crowded into the New Testament church. Happy are the poorest of its true members: their adversities will quickly issue in everlasting honour and unutterable delight. God lightly values the wealth and honour of this world, which he frequently bestows upon the vilest miscreants, to ripen them for redoubled damnation. Awful thought! to have only uncertain and unsatisfying enjoyments, which shall quickly issue in insupportable and everlasting torments! Inexpressibly different, and irreversibly fixed, is the future state of both saints and sinners. How delightful is it for the one to review his conversion to and walking with Christ; and how dreadful for the other to remember in what an absurd manner he lost his soul for the sake of sensual or carnal trifles! And terrible companions will they make in hell, who had been partners in sin upon earth. With great diligence should we now earnestly search, believe, and practise, God's word; for, if it be neglected, no other means of salvation will ever be afforded us.

CHAP. XVII. Ver. 20, 21. The kingdom of the Messiah will not be erected by temporal authority or force, nor make any pompous appearance in temporal riches or grandeur. Nor will he confine his throne and court to any particular place or nation; but his kingdom, being spiritual in its nature, power, and tendency, suited to the benefit of the soul, and for another world, works inwardly in men's hearts and consciences; and is already begun in the preaching of the gospel, and conversion of some among you.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVII.—Alas, that so many offences and injuries should be found among professed Christians! Many are grieved, stumbled, and eternally ruined, by means of them. And tremendous woes must fall on their heads whose corrupt principles or practices occasion such things. How prone are most to offend God and cause their neighbour to stumble out of his way! Yet most offenders are very averse to repent, and, if offended, to forgoe injuries. Yea, it is impossible to perform self-denying duties without strong faith: and great is the need that Jesus should be daily increasing it. With great humility ought we to perform every commanded duty, and with great gratitude to receive distinguished mercies. And yet often both are wanting where they might have been most, and found where they could have been least, expected. How many amuse themselves about the circumstances of Jesus' kingdom, instead of earnestly receiving him into their heart, that he may subdue their lusts and govern their spirits! But the erection of his spiritual kingdom in the world is generally attended with some fearful judgments on its opposers. Self-indulgence in sensual gratifications is a common forerunner of fearful and sudden destruction. And none are more certainly exposed than hardened apostates, who refuse to take warning from the calamities of others before them. But, if men will not heartily part with the world as their portion, they must perish with it.—In great wisdom and mercy the spread of God's vengeance among the obstinate Jews was made a mean of spreading the gospel among, and of saving, the Gentiles. Fearfully he resents the injuries done to his faithful servants, and pities and rewards them that suffer for his sake. Yea, marvellously he distinguishes them in his protections here and his eternal glories hereafter.

21 And he said, 'All these have I kept from my youth up.

22 Now when Jesus heard these things he said unto him, 'Yet lackest thou one thing: sell all that thou hast, and distribute unto the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me.

23 And when he heard this he was very sorrowful; for he was very rich.

24 ¶ And, when Jesus saw that he was very sorrowful, he said, 'How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!

25 For it is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

26 And they that heard it said, 'Who then can be saved?

27 And he said, 'The things which are impossible with men are possible with God.

28 ¶ Then Peter said, Lo, we have left all, and followed thee.

29 And he said unto them, 'Verily I say unto you, there is no man that hath left house, or parents, or brethren, or wife or children, for the kingdom of God's sake, 30 Who shall not receive manifold more in this present time, and in the world to come life everlasting.

31 ¶ Then he took unto him the twelve, and said unto them, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem, and all things that are written by the prophets concerning the Son of man shall be accomplished.

32 For he shall be delivered unto the Gentiles, and shall be mocked, and spitefully entreated, and spitted on;

33 And they shall scourge him, and put him to death; and the third day he shall rise again.

34 And they understood none of these things: and this saying was hid from them, neither knew they the things which were spoken.

35 ¶ And it came to pass that, as he was come nigh unto Jericho, a certain blind man sat by the way side begging:

36 And, hearing the multitude pass by, he asked what it meant.

37 And they told him that 'Jesus of Nazareth passeth by.

38 And he cried, saying, 'Jesus, thou son of David, have mercy on me.

39 And they who went before rebuked him, that he should hold his peace: but he cried so much the more, 'Thou son of David, have mercy on me.

40 And Jesus stood, and commanded him to be brought unto him: and when he was come near he asked him,

41 Saying, 'What wilt thou that I shall do unto thee? And he said, Lord, that I may receive my sight.

42 And Jesus said unto him, 'Receive thy sight; thy faith hath saved thee.

43 And immediately he received his sight, and followed him, glorifying God: and all the people, when they saw it, gave praise unto God.

CHAP. XIX.

(1) Christ converts, reforms, and encourages Zaccheus the publican; 1—10. (2) By the parable of the pounds represents what different gifts would be given to men in the gospel church, and their being called to account for, and rewarded according to, their improvement of them; 11—27. (3) Rides in triumph to Jerusalem upon a borrowed ass amidst the acclamations of the people, to the grief of the Pharisees; 28—40. (4) Laments the approaching ruin of Jerusalem for their obstinate rejection of his salvation, offered in the gospel; 14—27, 41—44. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xviii.] (5) Casts out the buyers and sellers, and teaches daily in the temple, while the priests and rulers seek to murder him; 45—48.

AND Jesus entered and passed through Jericho.

2 And, behold, there was a man named Zaccheus, who was the chief among the publicans, and he was rich.

3 And he sought to see Jesus who he was, and could not for the press, because he was little of stature.

4 And he ran before, and climbed up into a sycamore tree to see him; for he was to pass that way.

5 And, when Jesus came to the place, he looked up, and saw him, and said unto him, Zaccheus, make haste, and come down: for to-day I must abide at thy house.

6 And he made haste, and came down, and received him joyfully.

7 And when they saw it they all murmured, saying that he was gone to be guest with a man that is a sinner.

8 And Zaccheus stood, and said unto the Lord, Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and, if I have taken any thing from any man by false accusation, I restore him fourfold.

9 And Jesus said unto him, This day is salvation come to this house, forasmuch as he also is the son of Abraham.

10 For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.

11 ¶ And, as they heard these things, he added and spake a parable, because he was nigh to Jerusalem, and because they thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear.

12 He said therefore, A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return.

13 And he called his ten servants, and delivered them ten pounds and said unto them, Occupy till I come.

14 But his citizens hated him, and REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVIII.—The fervent and importunate prayer of faith is always effectual at last. A gracious answer cannot be delayed beyond the best time. And all the injuries done to the saints shall be fearfully resented, though God often patiently delays his vengeance till religion be almost utterly extirpated. What a mixture is in our worshipping assemblies on earth! Different tempers, manners, and ends, have different effects on the very same duty. Pride, formality, and hypocrisy, indulged, render men's persons and worship detestable to God. But not the greatest sinner, who humbly asks mercy through Jesus' righteousness, shall be denied a full justification unto eternal life. It is criminal for professors to withhold children from Christ, who delights to bless them. And very honourable to be like them in teachableness and humility. No external privileges or duties are in the least to be rested in. Men may go inconceivable lengths in apparent holiness, and yet their heart remain unre-newed, and attached to the world. Awful is the state when God's law does not convince men that they need a better righteousness than their own to justify them; and when love to Christ cannot wear their hearts from the world. Earthly enjoyments indeed often entangle and ensnare men, to their everlasting ruin. And there is need of almighty power to deliver us from a carnal mind, and to make us content to forego all for Christ. But every thing suffered for his sake, from principles of faith and love, will be gain at last. And nothing is too much to suffer for him, who suffered so much for us. Yet, alas, how slow of heart are men to conceive aright of his sufferings and glory! It is a great mercy to be awakened to prayer by curiosity or any means. Jesus is ready to take notice of and grant relief under all our troubles. And a deep sense of sin, and earnest desires of mercy, will quickly issue in grateful praise and holy obedience.

sent a message after him, saying, We will not have this man to reign over us.

15 And it came to pass that, when he was returned, having received the kingdom, * then he commanded these servants to be called unto him to whom he had given the money, that he might know how much every man had gained by trading.

16 Then came the first, saying, Lord, thy pound hath gained ten pounds.

17 And he said unto him, * Well, thou good servant; because thou hast been faithful in a very little, have thou authority over ten cities.

18 And the second came, saying, Lord, thy pound hath gained five pounds.

19 And he said likewise to him, * Be thou also over five cities.

20 And another came, saying, * Lord, behold, here is thy pound which I have kept laid up in a napkin:

21 For I *feared thee, *because thou art an austere man: thou takest up that thou layedst not down, and reapest that thou didst not sow.

22 And he saith unto him, * Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee, thou wicked servant. Thou knewest that I was an austere man, taking up that I laid not down, and reaping that I did not sow:

23 Wherefore then gavest not thou my money into the bank, that at my coming I might have received mine own with usury.

24 And he said unto them that stood by, * Take from him the pound, and give it to him that hath ten pounds.

25 (And they said unto him, Lord, he hath ten pounds.)

26 For I say unto you, * That unto every one which hath shall be given; and from him that hath not, even that he hath shall be taken away from him.

27 * But those mine enemies, who would not that I should reign over them, bring hither, and slay them before me.

28 ¶ And, when he had thus spoken, * he went before, ascending up to Jerusalem.

29 * And it came to pass when he was come nigh to Bethphage and Bethany, at the mount called The mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples, 30 Saying, Go ye into the village over against you; in the which at your entering ye shall find a colt tied, whereon yet never man sat: loose him, and bring him hither.

31 And if any man ask you, Why do ye loose him? thus shall ye say unto him, Because * the Lord hath need of him.

32 And they that were sent went their way, and found even as he had said unto them.

33 And, as they were loosing the colt, the owners thereof said unto them, Why loose ye the colt?

34 And they said, The Lord * hath need of him.

35 And they brought him to Jesus: and * they cast their garments upon the colt, and they * set Jesus thereon.

36 And as he went they spread their clothes in the way.

37 And when he was come nigh, even now at the descent of the * mount of Olives, * the whole multitude of the disciples began to rejoice and praise God with a loud voice for all the mighty works that they had seen;

38 Saying, * Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord: peace in heaven, and glory in the highest.

39 * And some of the Pharisees from among the multitude said unto him, Master, rebuke thy disciples.

40 And he answered and said unto them, I tell you that, if these should hold their peace, * the stones would immediately cry out.

41 ¶ And, when he was come near, he beheld the city, and * wept over it.

42 Saying, * If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in * this thy day, * the things which belong unto thy peace! but now * they are hid from thine eyes.

43 * For the days shall come upon thee that thine enemies shall cast a trench about thee, and compass thee round, and keep thee in on every side;

44 And shall lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee: and they shall not leave in thee one stone upon another; because thou knewest not the time of thy visitation.

45 ¶ And he went into the temple, and began to cast out them that sold therein, and them that bought;

46 Saying unto them, It is written, * My house is the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves.

47 ¶ And he taught daily in the temple. But the chief priests and the scribes, and the chief of the people, * sought to destroy him;

48 And could not find what they might do: for all the people were very attentive to hear him.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIX.—In religion it is necessary for men to hear and see for themselves. And even curiosity may issue in saving faith and repentance. Christ spies out his chosen sheep wherever they are: and in rich mercy he seeks them out, and touches their hearts however hard: and his Spirit and grace, implanted therein, quickly makes great reformation. The covetous, cruel, and haughty, oppressor is rendered humble, honest, and merciful: and the power of grace is clearly discovered by deadness to the world—and by the affections being weaned from its pursuits. But pardon ought never to be expected without restitution of our ill-gotten goods. Yea, every thing we have ought to be at Jesus' call: and it is better to give to pious uses while we live, than defer it to be given after our death.—His free grace is sufficient, both to seek and save us, be our guilt or malady what it will. And abundant are the gifts and privileges which Jesus hath given to the ministers and members of his gospel church. His exaltation to glory issues in blessings to men. But all that is received must be improved and accounted for. Happy are they who, with deep humility and dependance on Christ, improve it well; and infinitely glorious, as well as free, their eternal reward. But fearful is their punishment, who, through hard thoughts of God, abandon themselves to sinful inactivity. No where is sloth more criminal and ruinous than in the church of God. If men will not improve God's gifts, they must be deprived of them. And, if Jews and others dare to reject an ascended Redeemer, they must be destroyed in the most public and fearful manner. Dreadful indeed is their condition whom even his compassion cannot deliver. It is strange that any should envy him a lowly triumph; that professors should hate him for purifying his temple, instructing the ignorant, and healing the diseased; and that nought but the fear of inferiors should hinder some from murdering the divine Saviour, or persecuting his people!

Roman emperor, in subordination to God; 20—26. (4) From God's speech to Moses at the bush proves the resurrection of the dead and a future state, against the cavils of the Sadducees; 27—38. (5) Puzzles the scribes with a question, how the Messiah could be at once David's son and his Lord; 39—44. (6) Cautions his disciples to beware of the hypocritical, proud, and cruelly dishonest, scribes; 45—47.

AND it came to pass that, on one of those days, as he taught the people in the temple, and preached the gospel, the chief priests and the scribes came upon him, with the elders,

2 And spake unto him, saying, Tell us, by what authority dost thou these things? or who is he that gave thee this authority?

3 And he answered and said unto them, I will also ask you one thing; and answer me:

4 The baptism of John, was it from heaven, or of men?

5 And they reasoned with themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven; he will say, Why then believed ye him not?

6 But and if we say, Of men; all the people will stone us: for they be persuaded that John was a prophet.

7 And they answered, that they could not tell whence it was.

8 And Jesus said unto them, Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things.

9 ¶ Then began he to speak to the people this parable: A certain man planted a vineyard, and let it forth to husbandmen, and went into a far country for a long time.

10 And at the season he sent a servant to the husbandmen, that they should give him of the fruit of the vineyard: but the husbandmen beat him, and sent him away empty.

11 And again he sent another servant: and they beat him also, and entreated him shamefully, and sent him away empty.

12 And again he sent a third: and they wounded him also, and cast him out.

13 Then said the Lord of the vineyard, What shall I do? I will send my beloved Son: it may be they will reverence him when they see him.

14 But, when the husbandmen saw him, they reasoned among themselves, saying, This is the heir: come, let us kill him, that the inheritance may be our's.

15 So they cast him out of the vineyard, and killed him. What therefore shall the Lord of the vineyard do unto them?

16 He shall come and destroy these husbandmen, and shall give the vineyard to others. And when they heard it they said, God forbid.

17 And he beheld them, and said, What is this then that is written, The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner?

18 Whosoever shall fall upon that stone shall be broken; but on whomsoever it shall fall it will grind him to powder.

19 ¶ And the chief priests and the scribes the same hour sought to lay hands on him; and they feared the people: for they perceived that he had spoken this parable against them.

20 And they watched him, and sent forth spies, who should feign themselves just men, that they might take hold of his words, that so they might deliver him unto the power and authority of the governor.

21 And they asked him, saying, Master, we know that thou sayest and teachest rightly, neither acceptest thou the person of any, but teachest the way of God truly:

22 Is it lawful for us to give tribute unto Cesar, or no?

23 But he perceived their craftiness, and said unto them, Why tempt ye me?

24 Shew me a penny. Whose image and superscription hath it? They answered and said, Cesar's.

25 And he said unto them, Render therefore unto Cesar the things which be Cesar's, and unto God the things which be God's.

26 And they could not take hold of his words before the people: and they marvelled at his answer, and held their peace.

27 ¶ Then came to him certain of the Sadducees, who deny that there is any resurrection, and they asked him, 28 Saying, Master, Moses wrote unto us, If any man's brother die, having a wife, and he die without children, that his brother should take his wife, and raise up seed unto his brother.

29 There were therefore seven brethren: and the first took a wife, and died without children.

30 And the second took her to wife, and he died childless.

31 And the third took her; and in like manner the seven also. And they left no children, and died.

32 Last of all the woman died also.

33 Therefore in the resurrection whose wife of them is she? for seven had her to wife.

34 And Jesus answering said unto them, The children of this world marry, and are given in marriage:

35 But they who shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage:

36 Neither can they die any more: for they are equal unto the angels, and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection.

37 Now that the dead are raised, even Moses shewed at the bush, when he calleth the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.

38 For he is not a God of the dead, but of the living: for all live unto him.

39 Then certain of the scribes answering said, Master, thou hast well said.

40 And after that they durst not ask him any question at all.

41 ¶ And he said unto them, How say they that Christ is David's son?

(1) Christ observes, and approves, a poor widow for casting two mites into the treasury; 1—4. (2) In answer to his disciples' inquiry as to the destruction of the temple, foretells the forerunners of it, viz. false Christs, bloody wars, cruel persecutions; 8—19: and the actual destruction of the Jewish nation; 20—24: as a prelude of his coming to judge the world; 25—33. [See Introduction, chap. iv. sect. xviii.] (3) Admonishes them to earnest watchfulness and prayer, that in these great events they might be safe and happy; 34—36. (4) A general account of his preaching, and the people's attendance; 37, 38.

AND he looked up, and saw the rich men casting their gifts into the treasury.

2 And he saw also a certain poor widow casting in thither ^btwo mites.

3 And he said, Of a truth I say unto you ^cthat this poor widow hath cast in more than they all:

4 For all these have of their abundance cast in unto the offerings of God: but she of her penury hath cast in all the living that she had.

5 ¶ And as some spake of the temple, how it was adorned with goodly stones and gifts, he said,

6 As for these things which ye behold, the days will come in the which ^cthere shall not be left one stone upon another that shall not be thrown down.

7 ¶ And they asked him, saying, Master, but when shall these things be? and what sign ^cwill there be when these things shall come to pass?

8 And he said, Take heed that ye be not deceived: for ^bmany shall come in my name; saying, I am Christ; and the time draweth near: go ye not therefore after them.

9 But, when ye shall hear of wars and commotions, be not terrified: for these things must first come to pass; but ^kthe end is not by and by.

10 Then said he unto them, Nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom:

11 And great earthquakes shall be in divers places, and famines, and pestilences, and fearful sights, and great signs shall there be from heaven.

12 But before all these ^mthey shall lay their hands on you, and persecute you, delivering you up to the synagogues, and into prisons, being brought before kings and rulers for my name's sake.

13 And ⁿit shall turn to you for a testimony.

14 ^oSettle it therefore in your hearts not to meditate before what ye shall answer:

15 ^pFor I will give you a mouth and wisdom, which all your adversaries shall not be able to gainsay nor resist.

16 ^qAnd ye shall be betrayed both by parents, and brethren, and kinsfolks, and friends; and ^rsome of you shall they cause to be put to death.

17 And ye shall be hated of all men ^rfor my name's sake.

18 ^sBut there shall not an hair of your head perish.

19 ^tIn your patience possess ye your souls.

20 ^uAnd, when ye shall see Jerusalem compassed with armies, then know that the desolation thereof is nigh.

21 ^vThen let them who are in Judea flee to the mountains; and let them who are in the midst of it depart out; and let not them that are in the countries enter thereinto.

22 ^wFor these be the days of vengeance, that all things which are written may be fulfilled.

23 ^xBut wo unto them that are with child, and to them that give suck, in those days! ^yfor there shall be great distress in the land, and wrath upon this people.

24 And they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations; and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled.

25 ¶ And there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring;

26 ^zMen's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken.

27 ^aAnd then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory.

28 And, when these things begin to come to pass, then ^blook up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh.

29 And he spake to them a parable; ^cBehold the fig tree, and all the trees;

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XX.—Fear of men may restrain persecutors from murdering, but not from cavilling. Satan and his emissaries will always oppose Christ and his gospel, and his spiritual Headship over his church, to their utmost. And it is but lost labour to attempt persuading such as are resolved to shut their eyes against all conviction, and who will take the most base and false evasions to avoid it. Surprising is the patience and mercy of God, that so long affords unfruitful and rebellious sinners such means of grace before he casts them utterly off. But dreadful will be their condition at last, when all the injuries they had done to Jesus and his ministers shall be avenged upon them, and he shall glorify his power in their temporal ruin or eternal damnation. Faithful ministers have great need to be always on their guard against deceitful brethren. Pretences to piety, and of regard to civil rulers, and cavils of carnal reasoning, will be all tried to ensnare or expose them. But let us at once fear God and honour the king, and hold fast plain scripture truths, in the well-grounded hope of a glorious resurrection. It is necessary that we believe God's truths with all our heart; but not that we should be able to answer every wicked cavil against them. And, in the faith and contemplation of Christ as God-man in one person let us hate hypocrisy and avoid hypocrites.

and know of your own selves that summer is now nigh at hand.

31 So likewise ye, ^awhen ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand.

32 Verily I say unto you, ^bThis generation shall not pass away till all be fulfilled.

33 ^cHeaven and earth shall pass away:
but my words shall not pass away.

34 ¶ ^dAnd take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting, and drunkenness, and cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares.

35 ^eFor as a snare shall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth

36 ^fWatch ye therefore, and pray always, that ye may be ^gaccounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man.

37 ^hAnd in the day time he was teaching in the temple, and at night he went out, ⁱand abode in the mount that is called the mount of Olives.

38 ^jAnd all the people came early in the morning to him in the temple for to hear him.

CHAP. XXII.

(1) While the Jewish rulers contrive the murder of Christ, Judas, instigated by Satan, agrees to betray him; 1—6. (2) After due preparation, Christ eats the passover with his disciples; 7—13. (3) He institutes the Lord's Supper to commemorate his sufferings; 19—20. (4) He discourses with his disciples concerning Judas' betraying him; 21—23. The unreasonableness of their carnal ambition, and their future real honours in his kingdom; 24—40. Peter's denial of him through the influence of Satan; 31—34: and the approaching change in the lot of them all; 36—38. (5) In his agony in the garden he sweats blood, and prays while his disciples sleep; 39—46. (6) Betrayed by Judas, he is apprehended by a rabble; kindly heals the ear of one of the miscreants; and attempts to shew them the absurdity of their conduct; 47—53. (7) Peter thrice denies him in the high priest's hall; and, by a look, is rendered deeply penitent; 54—61. (8) Christ is abused and condemned as a blasphemer; 62—71.

NOW ^athe feast of unleavened bread drew nigh, which is called the passover.

2 And the chief priests and scribes sought how they might kill him; ^bfor they feared the people.

3 ¶ ^cThen entered Satan into Judas, surnamed Iscariot, being of the number of the twelve.

4 And he went his way, and ^dcom-muned with the chief priests and captains how he might betray him unto them.

5 And they were glad, and ^ecovenanted to give him money.

6 And he promised, and sought opportunity, to betray him unto them ^fin the absence of the multitude.

7 ¶ ^gThen came the day of unleavened bread, when the passover must be killed.

8 And ^hhe sent Peter and John, saying, Go and prepare us the passover, that we may eat.

† Or sacrificed.

9 And they said unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare?

10 And he said unto them, ⁱBehold, when ye are entered into the city, there shall a man meet you bearing a pitcher of water; follow him into the house where he entereth in.

11 And ye shall say unto the good man of the house, ^jThe Master saith unto thee, Where is the guest chamber, where I shall eat the passover with my disciples?

12 And he shall shew you a large upper room furnished: there make ready.

13 And they went, and ^kfound as he had said unto them: ^land they made ready the passover.

14 ^mAnd when the hour was come he sat down, and the twelve apostles with him.

15 And he said unto them, ⁿWith-desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer:

16 For I say unto you, ^oI will not anymore eat thereof until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God.

17 And he took the cup, and ^pgave thanks, and said, Take this, and divide ^qit among yourselves:

18 For I say unto you, ^rI will not drink of the fruit of the vine until the kingdom of God shall come.

19 ¶ ^sAnd he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, This ^tis ^umy body which is given for you: ^vthis do in remembrance of me.

20 Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, ^wThis cup ^xis the new testament of my blood, which is shed for you.

21 ¶ ^yBut, behold, the hand of him that betrayeth me ^zis with me on the table.

22 ^aAnd truly the Son of man goeth, as it was determined: but ^bwo unto that man by whom he is betrayed!

23 ^cAnd they began to enquire among themselves which of them it was that should do this thing.

24 ¶ ^dAnd there was also a strife among them which of them should be accounted the greatest.

25 And he said unto them, The kings of the Gentiles exercise lordship over them; and they that exercise authority upon them are called benefactors.

26 But ^eye shall not be so: but he that is greatest among you, let him be as the younger; and he that is chief, as he that doth serve.

27 For ^fwhether is greater, he that sitteth at meat or he that serveth? ^gis not he that sitteth at meat? ^hbut I am among you as he that serveth.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXI.—Christ takes exact notice of all our works, particularly those of piety and charity. But who can think of his awful predictions, and their exact accomplishment, without beholding him at once the Saviour and the God, without considering that the Jewish constitution is now totally destroyed, and a gospel dispensation, extending to all the world, established on its ruins. God permits men to go on to the most fearful lengths in sin before he utterly destroys them. But terrible are the judgments on earth, and torments in hell, which obstinate despisers of the gospel shall meet with at last.—Christ's faithful ministers and people generally share deep in tribulation.

But faith and patience will infallibly carry them through all their difficulties, to his and their honour, and to the confutation of their adversaries. His gracious direction and support attend, and his everlasting free rewards await, them. Happy are they who in evil days discern the signs of the times, and with fervent prayer and persevering watchfulness avoid the dangerous snare of earthly cares and pleasures, and to attend on gospel ministrations as to be ever ready for the judgment-seat! We have here no continuing city, but are in jeopardy every hour. Let us therefore watch and be sober, that we may be prepared for every dispensation of providence, and be ready when our Lord shall come.

28 Ye are they who have continued with me ⁱⁿ my temptations.

29 And ^I appoint unto you a kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me;

30 That ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

31 ¶ And the Lord said, Simon, Simon, ^{behold}, Satan hath desired to have you, that he may sift you as wheat;

32 ^{But} I have prayed for thee that thy faith fail not: and when thou art ^{converted} strengthen thy brethren.

33 And he said unto him, Lord, ^I am ready to go with thee both into prison and to death.

34 ^{And} he said, I tell thee, Peter, the cock shall not crow this day before that thou shalt thrice deny that thou knowest me.

35 ¶ And he said unto them, When I sent you without purse, and scrip, and shoes, lacked ye any thing? And they said, Nothing.

36 Then said he unto them, ^{But} now he that hath a purse, let him take it, and likewise his scrip: and he that hath no sword, let him sell his garment, and buy one.

37 For I say unto you, that this that is written must yet be accomplished in me, ^{And} he was reckoned among the transgressors: for the things concerning me have an end:

38 And they said, Lord, behold, here are two swords. And he said unto them, ^{It} is enough.

39 ¶ And he came out, and went, as he was wont, to the mount of Olives; and his disciples also followed him.

40 ^{And} when he was at the place he said unto them, Pray, that ye enter not into temptation.

41 ^{And} he was withdrawn from them about a stone's cast, and kneeled down, and prayed, 42 Saying, Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless, not my will, but thine be done.

43 ^{And} there appeared an angel unto him from heaven, strengthening him.

44 ^{And}, being in an agony, he prayed more earnestly: and his sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground.

45 And when he rose up from prayer, and was come to his disciples, he found them sleeping for sorrow;

46 And said unto them, ^{Why} sleep ye? rise and pray, lest ye enter into temptation.

47 ¶ And, while he yet spake, ^{behold} a multitude, and he that was called Judas, one of the twelve, went before them, and drew near unto Jesus ^{to} kiss him.

48 But Jesus said unto him, Judas, betrayest thou the Son of man with a kiss?

49 When they who were about him saw what would follow, they said unto him, Lord, shall we smite with the sword?

50 ¶ And one of them smote a servant of the high priest, and cut off his right ear.

51 And Jesus answered and said, Suffer ye thus far. And he touched his ear, and healed him.

52 ^{Then} Jesus said unto the chief priests and captains of the temple, and the elders who were come to him, Be ye come out as against a thief with swords and staves?

53 When I was ^{daily} with you in the temple ye stretched forth no hands against me: but this is ^{your} hour, and the power of darkness.

54 ¶ ^{Then} took they him, and led him, and brought him into the high priest's house. ^{And} Peter followed afar off.

55 And when they had kindled a fire in the midst of the hall, and were sat down together, Peter sat down among them.

56 But ^a certain maid beheld him as he sat by the fire, and earnestly looked upon him, and said, This man was also with him.

57 And he ^{denied} him, saying, Woman, I know him not.

58 And after a little while another saw him, and said, Thou art also of them. And Peter said, Man, I am not.

59 And about the space of one hour after another confidently affirmed, saying, Of a truth this fellow also was with him; for he is a ^{Galilean}.

60 And Peter said, Man, I know not what thou sayest. And immediately, while he yet spake, the cock crew.

61 And the Lord turned, and looked upon Peter. And Peter remembered the word of the Lord, how he had said unto him, ^{Before} the cock crow thou shalt deny me thrice.

62 ^{And} Peter went out and wept bitterly.

63 ¶ And the men that held Jesus ^{mocked} him, and smote him.

64 And, when they had blindfolded him, they struck him on the face, and asked him, saying, Prophecy, who is it that smote thee?

65 And many other things blasphemously spake they against him.

66 ¶ And as soon as it was day the elders of the people, and the chief priests and the scribes, came together, and led him into their council, saying,

67 ^{Art} thou the Christ? tell us. ^{And} he said unto them, If I tell you, ye will not believe:

68 And, if I also ask you, ye will not answer me, nor let me go.

69 Hereafter shall the Son of man ^{sit} on the right hand of the power of God.

70 Then said they all, Art thou then the Son of God? And he said unto them, ^{Ye} say that I am.

71 And they said, What need we any further witness? for we ourselves have heard of his own mouth.

CHAP. XXIII.

(1) Christ is accused to Pilate the Roman governor as an enemy to Cesar, and tried without evidence; 1—5. (2) Being represented as a Galilean, he is sent to Herod the tetrarch, and despitefully used; 6—12. (3) Convinced of his innocence, Pilate labours to release him; but at last, yielding to the importunity of the Jews, condemns him to be crucified; 13—25. (4) Being hurried away to execution, he foretells to the lamenting women the miseries coming on their nation; 26—31. (5) He is crucified along with two thieves, and insolently derided; 32—38. (6) While one of the thieves rails against him, the other is converted, and acknowledges him to be the true Messiah; as the inscription on his cross had also done; 38—43. (7) He commends his soul to God; and his death is attended with affecting prodigies; 44—49. (8) He is honourably buried by Joseph of Arimathea and others; 50—56.

AND the whole multitude of them arose, and led him unto Pilate.

2 And they began to accuse him, saying, 'We found this fellow perverting the nation, and forbidding to give tribute to Cesar, saying that he himself is Christ a king.

3 And Pilate asked him, saying, 'Art thou the king of the Jews? And he answered him and said, Thou sayest it.

4 Then said Pilate to the chief priests, and to the people, 'I find no fault in this man.

5 And they were the more fierce, saying, He stirreth up the people, teaching throughout all Jewry, beginning from Galilee to this place.

6 When Pilate heard of Galilee he asked whether the man were a 'Galilean.

7 And, as soon as he knew that he belonged unto 'Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him to Herod, who himself also was at Jerusalem at that time.

8 ¶ And when Herod saw Jesus he was exceeding glad: for he was 'desirous to see him of a long season, because he had heard many things of him; and he hoped to have seen some miracle done by him.

9 Then he questioned with him in many words; but 'he answered him nothing.

10 And the chief priests and scribes stood, and 'vehemently accused him.

11 'And Herod with his men of war set him at nought, and mocked him, and arrayed him in a gorgeous robe, and sent him again to Pilate.

12 ¶ And the same day 'Pilate and Herod were made friends together: for before they were at enmity between themselves.

13 ¶ 'And Pilate, when he had called together the chief priests, and the rulers, and the people,

14 Said unto them, Ye have brought this man unto me 'as one that perverteth the people: and, behold, I, having examined him before you, 'have found no fault in this man touching those things whereof ye accuse him;

15 No, nor yet Herod: for I sent you to him, and, lo, nothing worthy of death is done *unto him.

16 'I will therefore chastise him and release him.

17 ('For of necessity he must release one unto them at the feast.)

18 'And they cried out all at once, saying, Away with this man, and release unto us Barabbas:

19 (Who for a certain sedition made in the city, and for murder, was cast in prison.)

20 Pilate therefore, willing to release Jesus, 'spake again to them.

21 'But they cried, saying, Crucify him, crucify him.

22 'And he said unto them the third time, Why, what evil hath he done? I have found no cause of death in him: I will therefore chastise him, and let him go.

23 'And they were instant with loud voices, requiring that he might be crucified. And the voices of them and of the chief priests prevailed.

24 'And Pilate gave sentence that it should be as they required.

25 And he released unto them him 'that for sedition and murder was cast into prison, whom they had desired; but he delivered Jesus to their will.

26 ¶ 'And, as they led him away, they laid hold upon one Simon a Cyrenian, coming out of the country; and on him they laid the cross, that he might bear it after Jesus.

27 And there followed him a great company of people, and of 'women, who also bewailed and lamented him.

28 But Jesus turning unto them, said, Daughters of Jerusalem, weep not for me, but weep for yourselves, and for your children.

29 For, 'behold, the days are coming, in the which they shall say, Blessed are the barren, and the wombs that never bare, and the paps which never gave suck.

30 'Then shall they begin to say to the mountains, Fall on us; and to the hills, Cover us, 31 'For, if they do these things in a green tree, what shall be done in the dry?

32 ¶ And there were also two other, malefactors, led with him to be put to death.

33 And, when they were come to the place which is called 'Calvary, 'there they crucified him, and the malefactors; one on the right hand, and the other on the left.

at his honour. It is an awful thing for professed disciples and dignified clergymen to betray their Master; and highly shameful to indulge carnal pride and ambition in the presence of a suffering Redeemer, whose kingdom is not of this world. But seasonably preserved, highly honoured, and plentifully rewarded, are they who continue faithful in times of trouble. Great is the danger of pride, self-confidence, and unwatchfulness; or of rashly entering into temptation: and there is need of Jesus' intercession to preserve his people's faith when it is sorely shaken. And, if we experience his influences, let us improve them for the warning and strengthening of our fellow Christians. But sins of infirmity in his saints greatly differ from the presumptuous rebellion of hardened sinners. How shocking it is for men to interrogate Jesus concerning his person, doctrine, or work, merely to strengthen their own and other's prejudices against him! For soon will he appear in great glory and majesty, to the confusion and ruin of every obstinate despiser, and to the unspeakable comfort of every cordial believer.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXII.—Whether should I here most admire the lengths in wickedness to which sinners will go when left to themselves; the covetousness, treachery, unbelief, hardness of heart, malice, and malignity, manifested in plotting against, betraying, apprehending, condemning, reviling, and murdering, the Son of God, and Saviour of mankind;—or his love in patiently undergoing every thing, severe or shameful; in feasting, warning, directing, and comforting, his disciples; in solemn resignation of himself to his sufferings and death; in miraculously healing one of his miscreant apprehenders; in graciously converting him who most criminally denied him;—and in avowing himself a divine person, at the hazard of his life!—How extensive were his sufferings in soul—in body—in character! And yet all the malice of his enemies was so overruled as only to accomplish the fulfilment of prophecies, the honour of God, and the salvation of men. Marvellously he changed the ancient passover into a crucified Redeemer, and a delightful feast on his fulness. Let us always then observe it in the faith of his institution, in obedience to his authority, and aiming 34 ¶ Then said Jesus, Father, 'forgive them; for they know not what they do. ^k And they parted his raiment, and cast lots.

35 ¶ And the people stood beholding. And the rulers also with them ^l derided him, saying, He saved others; let him save himself if he be ^m Christ the chosen of God.

36 And the soldiers also mocked him, coming to him and ⁿ offering him vinegar, 37 And saying, If thou be the king of the Jews, save thyself.

38 ° And a superscription also was written over him, in letters of Greek, and Latin, and Hebrew, THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS.

39 ¶ And ^p one of the malefactors who were hanged railed on him, saying, If thou be Christ, save thyself and us.

40 But the other, answering, ^q rebuked him, saying, Dost not thou fear God, seeing thou art in the same condemnation?

41 ^r And we indeed justly; for we receive the due reward of our deeds; ^s but this man hath done nothing amiss.

42 And he said unto Jesus, ^t Lord, remember me when thou comest into ^u thy kingdom.

43 And Jesus said unto him, Verily I say unto thee, ^x To-day shalt thou be with me in ^y paradise.

44 ¶ ^z And it was about the sixth hour: and there was darkness over all the [†] earth until the ninth hour.

45 And the sun was darkened, ^a and the vail of the temple was rent in the midst.

46 ¶ And, ^b when Jesus had cried with a loud voice, he said, ^c Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit: and, having said thus, he gave up the ghost.

47 ¶ Now ^d when the centurion saw what was done he glorified God, saying, Certainly this was a righteous man.

48 And all the people that came together to that sight, beholding the things which were done, ^e smote their breasts, and returned.

49 ^f And all his acquaintance, and the women that followed him from Galilee, stood afar off beholding these things.

50 ¶ ^g And, behold, there was a man named Joseph, a counsellor: and he was a good man and a just:

51 (The same ^h had not consented to the counsel and deed of them): he was of Arimathea, a city of the Jews: who also himself ⁱ waited for the kingdom of God.

52 This man went unto Pilate, and begged the body of Jesus.

53 And he took it down, ^k and wrapped it in linen, and laid it in a sepulchre that was hewn in stone, wherein never man before was laid.

54 ^l And that day was the preparation, and the sabbath drew on.

55 ¶ ^m And the women also, who came with him from Galilee, followed after, and beheld the sepulchre, and how his body was laid.

56 And they returned, and prepared ⁿ spices and ointments; and ^o rested the sabbath day, according to the commandment.

CHAP. XXIV.

(1) Two angels assure the women who visited his sepulchre that Jesus was risen, as he had foretold; 1—7: which they report to the disciples, but are discredited; 8—11. (2) Peter visits the sepulchre, and, with wonder, finds the grave clothes regularly laid up, but the body gone; 12. (3) Christ confers with two disciples going to Emmaus; explains the prophecies concerning himself, and makes himself known to them; 13—35. (4) He appears to ten of the disciples that same night; desires them to look upon and handle him for their conviction; eats with them, and explains the scriptures to them; 36—48. (5) Promising them his Spirit, and blessing them, he ascends into heaven, and leaves them full of wonder and comfort; 49—53.

NOW ^a upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning, they came unto the sepulchre bringing the spices which they had prepared, and certain others with them.

2 And they found ^b the stone rolled away from the sepulchre.

3 And they entered in, and ^c found not the body of the Lord Jesus.

4 And it came to pass, as they were much perplexed thereabout, behold, ^d two men stood by them in shining garments:

5 And, as they were afraid, and bowed down their faces to the earth, they said unto them, Why seek ye ^e the living among the dead?

6 He is not here, but is risen: ^f remember how he spake unto you when he was yet in Galilee,

7 Saying, The Son of man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again.

8 ^g And they remembered his words,

9 ^h And returned from the sepulchre, and told all these things unto the eleven, and to all the rest.

10 ⁱ It was Mary Magdalene, and Joanna, and Mary the mother of James, and other women that were with them who told these things unto the apostles.

11 ^k And their words seemed to them as idle tales, and they believed them not.

12 ¶ ^l Then arose Peter, and ran unto the sepulchre; and, stooping down, he beheld the linen clothes laid by themselves, and departed, wondering in himself at that which was come to pass.

13 ¶ ^m And, behold, two of them went that same day to a village called Emmaus, which was from Jerusalem about threescore furlongs.

14 And they ⁿ talked together of ^o all these things which had happened.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXIII.—Sinners often presumptuously charge their own faults upon Jesus and his faithful servants: and many cement their friendship by contempt of him. How strong is the power of prejudice against him! It undervalues and derides him, because he will not gratify curiosity or answer unreasonable demands: it forms the falsest accusations: it prefers every temporal interest, or even a base malefactor, lust, or devil, to him;—indignant that he should reign or have any honour in the world. Yea, often they who seemed convinced of his excellency, through importunity and carnal fear, or other similar temptations, violate all the bonds of truth, and rights of conscience and honour, to injure him. Many have their affections touched with the cruelty or love of his death, whose hearts are never renewed to believe in and love him. But O how astonishing the grace, the infinite grace, of our Lord Jesus, in thus suffering, dying, and praying for his enemies! How great is his power and sovereignty in triumphing over Satan on the cross, and forming one of his fellow sufferers from an hardened thief into a strong believer, a bold confessor, a fervent suppliant, an immediate partaker of heaven; while the other dies contradicting and blaspheming! And great likewise was the honour with which his Father marked his sufferings.—His judge, his crucifiers, the attending women, and even the darkened sun, the quaking earth, and the rent vail, concur to attest his Messiahship!

15 And it came to pass that, while they communed together and reasoned, ^pJesus himself drew near, and went with them.

16 ^aBut their eyes were holden, that they should not know him.

17 And he said unto them, What manner of communications are these that ye have one to another, as ye walk, and are sad?

18 And the one of them, whose name was ^rCleopas, answering, said unto him, Art thou only a stranger in Jerusalem, and hast not known the things which are come to pass there in these days?

19 And he said unto them, What things? And they said unto him, Concerning Jesus of Nazareth, who was ^aa prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people:

20 ^tAnd how the chief priests and our rulers delivered him to be condemned to death, and have crucified him.

21 But we trusted that it had been he ^uwho should have redeemed Israel: and, beside all this, to-day is the third day since these things were done.

22 ^xYea, and certain women also of our company made us astonished, who were early at the sepulchre:

23 And, when they found not his body, they came, saying, that they had also seen a vision of angels, who said that he was alive.

24 ^yAnd certain of them who were with us went to the sepulchre, and found it even so as the women had said; but him they saw not.

25 Then he said unto them, ^zO fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken!

26 ^aOught not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory?

27 And, ^bbeginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the scriptures the things concerning himself.

28 And they drew nigh unto the village whither they went; and he made as though he would have gone further.

29 But they ^cconstrained him, saying, Abide with us: for it is toward evening, and the day is far spent. And he went in to tarry with them.

30 And it came to pass, as he sat at meat with them, he took bread, ^dand blessed it, and brake, and gave to them.

31 And their eyes ^ewere opened, and they knew him: and he ^fvanished out of their sight.

32 And they said one to another, Did not our heart ^fburn within us while he talked with us by the way, and while he opened to us the scriptures?

33 And they rose up the same hour, and returned to Jerusalem, and found the eleven ^ggathered together, and them that were with them, 34 Saying, the Lord is risen indeed, and ^hhath appeared to Simon.

35 ⁱAnd they told what things were done in the way, and how he was known of them in breaking of bread.

36 ¶ ^kAnd, as they thus spake, Jesus himself stood in the midst of them, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you.

37 ^lBut they were terrified and affrighted, and supposed that they had seen a spirit.

38 And he said unto them, ^mWhy are ye troubled? and why do thoughts arise in your hearts?

39 ⁿBehold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see: for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have.

40 And, when he had thus spoken, he shewed them his hands, and his feet.

41 And, while they yet believed not for joy, and wondered, he said unto them, ^oHave ye here any meat?

42 And they gave him a piece of a broiled fish, and of an honeycomb.

43 And he took it, and did eat before them.

44 And he said unto them, ^pThese are the words which I spake unto you while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled which were written in the law of Moses, and in the prophets, and in the Psalms, concerning me.

45 Then ^qopened he their understanding, that they might understand the scriptures,

46 And said unto them, ^rThus it is written, and thus it behoved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day:

47 ^sAnd that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name ^tamong all nations, beginning at Jerusalem.

48 ^uAnd ye are witnesses of these things.

49 ¶ And, behold, I send ^vthe promise of my Father upon you: but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high.

50 ¶ And he led them out as far ^vas to Bethany; and he lifted up his hands, and ^wblessed them.

51 And it came to pass, while he blessed them, he ^xwas parted from them, and carried up into heaven.

52 And they worshipped him, and returned to Jerusalem with ^ygreat joy:

53 And were continually in the temple, praising and blessing God. Amen.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXIV.—How certain and sweet is the news of our Saviour's resurrection! Yea, often he surprises the most unlikely or unworthy with such discoveries of himself as they are apt to think too great or too good to be true. They who seek him early find him quickly: and they who talk of him have their eyes enlightened and hearts warmed by his presence. How seasonable are his visits! and what light his explications cast on the scriptures, which relate to his sufferings or glory! And, if men insist upon and plead for the continuance of his presence, they shall receive still further information, which will render them ready and desirous to communicate to others the mercies they have been made to partake of. But, alas, wonderful is the remaining stupidity and groundless fears of many, who are really gracious in heart. And great is the folly of that unbelief which contends against the fullest evidence, and against our own best interests. And it is very unchristian, and unlike Christ, to eat our meals without asking God's blessing on them, or returning him thanks for them, or without attempting to hold fellowship with Jesus in them. Astonishingly great is our Redeemer, in whom all the oracles of God are YEA and AMEN, to his glory. Endearing is his love, that blesses his people notwithstanding their manifold infirmities, and gives them his Spirit to qualify them for every trial or service to which he calls them. In abundant grace he began his work of pardon and conversion upon them who had just embued their hands in his blood. Delightful was his departure, blessing his disciples; and exalted and glorious is his dignity in heaven. O that my heart and eye, my faith and hope, could closely follow him, looking after him, adoring him, blessing God for him, depending on him for all necessary blessings, and longing to be with him; that when he appears the second time without sin, it may be unto my salvation.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO S T. J O H N.

The penman of this gospel, and of three short epistles, was originally a fisherman; who, being called to be one of Christ's disciples, became his peculiar favourite. Living long after the other apostles, when the church was first plagued with the denial of our Saviour's Divinity, he aims more expressly to establish that fundamental article of the Christian religion, and to manifest the inexcusableness of the Jews in rejecting him. What he relates in his gospel is generally new, and related by none of the other evangelists; viz. John Baptist's directing his disciples to Christ; chap. i.: Christ turning water into wine; purging the temple of fraudulent merchants; ii.: healing the nobleman's son; iv.: and the infirm man at the pool of Bethesda; v.: the blind man at the pool of Siloam; ix.: and his raising Lazarus from the dead; xi. But he especially sets before us his divine discourses—with Nicodemus, touching the new birth; iii.: with the Samaritan harlot and his disciples; iv.: with the Pharisees concerning his divinity; v.: with the Capernaumites, concerning himself as the bread of life; vi.: with the Jews, touching his power over the Sabbath day, and to save sinners; vii.: and his being the light of the world, the effectually-delivering Messiah; viii.: and the chief and divine Shepherd of God's chosen people; x.: and with his disciples, for their direction and comfort, at his last supper; xiii—xvi.: and his prayer to his Father; xvii. &c.

CHAP. I.

Represents (1) The Evangelist's testimony concerning the eternal Godhead, mediatorial office, and incarnation of Christ; 1—5, 10—14, 16—18. (2) John the Baptist's testimony concerning him, as the light of the world, the Saviour of sinners, and as infinitely preferable to himself; 6—9, 15—37. (3) Christ's manifestation of himself to Andrew and Peter, Philip and Nathanael; 38—51.

IN the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.

2 The same was in the beginning with God.

3 All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made.

4 In him was life, and the life was the light of men.

5 And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not.

6 There was a man sent from God, whose name was John.

7 The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the light, that all men through him might believe.

8 He was not that light, but was sent to bear witness of that light.

9 That was the true light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world.

10 He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not.

11 He came unto his own, and his own received him not.

12 But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name.

13 Who were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.

14 And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father), full of grace and truth.

15 John bare witness of him, and cried, saying, This was he of whom I spake, He that cometh after me is preferred before me; for he was before me.

16 And of his fulness have all we received, and grace for grace.

17 For the law was given by Moses,

EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. I. Ver. 1—5. From all eternity the Son of God, the great Speaker for and to men, the medium of divine manifestations to us, and to whom all the scripture gives testimony, who may therefore properly be called the word, existed a distinct person, equal to, and the express image of, his divine Father, and the same in substance with him, necessarily possessed of every excellency of Godhead: and by him were all creatures, from the highest to the lowest, formed of nothing in the beginning of time. From that life necessarily existent in him proceeded all kinds and degrees of life, knowledge, and comfort, found among men. And yet, though he, in the dictates of natural conscience and of revelation, manifests himself to men, such is the sinful ignorance and error of their minds, the bias of their will and affections, and corruption of their practice, that they do not naturally understand, but shut their eyes against, hate, and oppose these discoveries. 6—8. John the Baptist was eminently qualified, and divinely appointed, as the forerunner of his personal appearance, to point him forth as the glorious Son of Righteousness, rising among men, that persons of all sorts, Jews and Gentiles, might believe on him for life and salvation. 9—13. And indeed he, in opposition to the false lights of heathen philosophy, the corrupted and faint typical light of the Jews, and in distinction from John the Baptist, and the prophets and apostles, is the original fountain of light, from which all natural and divine knowledge is communicated to men in every period of time. By his upholding and governing providence, and by his dispensations of light and grace, he has all along been present in the world, which he created; and yet neither his manifestations of himself, in providence or in revelation, have been duly discerned or improved: and when, in the fulness of time, he manifested himself in human nature, preaching the gospel; and working miracles among the Jews his peculiar people, most of them wilfully rejected him, and refused to acknowledge him as their Creator and Saviour. But to all such, whether Jews or Gentiles, as heartily received him by faith, as their Redeemer, Prophet, Priest, and King, he bestowed the dignified right and privilege of being the real children of God;—all of whom, without any influence of natural descent, ceremonial law, or corrupt free will, have a supernatural habit or principle of grace divinely implanted in them, disposing them to every good word and work. 14, 16—18. And, in order to effect these grand designs of our redemption, the eternal Son of God assumed our nature, in its debased appearances, into a personal union with himself; and therein, in all his fulness of Godhead, for a season dwelt among us men, particularly us disciples, as JEHOVAH did in the cloud of glory, which covered the mercy seat, full of infinite grace and kindness to men, and of all necessary blessings, to be freely communicated to them. All the laws, promises, types, and prophecies, were fulfilled in him; and we, in his doctrine, miracles, transfiguration, resurrection, and ascension, by faith steadfastly considered, and admired, these glorious perfections, becoming him as one with, and in an inconceivable and unparalleled manner begotten by, his eternal Father: and out of his fulness of divine perfection and communicative blessings, who is infinitely preferable to John the Baptist, all of us believers, great and small, have, do, and shall, receive all spiritual blessings, multiplied one upon another, according to our capacities and wants, and answerable, in nature and kind, to the grace which is in him.—Far superior to Moses, who delivered the laws of God to the Jews in a manner suited to their circumstances, in a ministration of condemnation, and in obscure types, which could not make the worshippers perfect, Jesus has brought in the richest and plainest discoveries of God's love and grace, in which all the ancient types and predictions have their full accomplishment. And, being himself the beloved and only begotten Son of God, intimately acquainted with all his excellencies and purposes of grace, he alone was fit for this work, and he hath now manifested these things to men, in such a manner as no other was able to do.

but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ.

18 °No man hath seen God at any time: the only begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him.

19 ¶ And this is the record of John, when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, Who art thou?

20 And he confessed, and denied not; but confessed, I am not the Christ.

21 And they asked him, What then? Art thou Elias? And he saith, 'I am not. Art thou that Prophet? And he answered, No.

22 Then said they unto him, Who art thou? that we may give an answer to them that sent us. What sayest thou of thyself?

23 °He said, I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Make straight the way of the Lord, as said the prophet Esaias.

24 And they who were sent were of the Pharisees.

25 And they asked him, and said unto him, Why baptizest thou then, if thou be not that Christ, nor Elias, neither that prophet?

26 John answered them, saying, °I baptize with water: but there standeth one among you whom ye know not;

27 He it is, who coming after me is preferred before me, whose shoes' latchet I am not worthy to unloose.

28 These things were done in Bethabara beyond Jordan, where John was baptizing.

29 ¶ The next day John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, °Behold the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world.

30 This is he of whom I said, °After me cometh a man who is preferred before me; for he was before me.

31 And °I knew him not: °but that he should be made manifest to Israel, therefore am I come baptizing with water.

32 °And John bare record, saying, I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, and it abode upon him.

33 And I knew him not: but he that sent me to baptize with water, the same said unto me, Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending, and remaining on him, °the same is he who baptizeth with the Holy Ghost.

34 And I saw, and bare record °that this is the Son of God.

35 ¶ Again, the next day after, John stood, °and two of his disciples:

36 And, looking upon Jesus as he walked, he saith, °Behold the Lamb of God!

37 °And the two disciples heard him speak, and they followed Jesus.

38 Then Jesus turned, and saw them following, and saith unto them, °What seek ye? They said unto him, Rabbi, (which is to say, being interpreted, Master), where dwellest thou?

39 He saith unto them, °Come and see. They came and saw where he dwelt, and abode with him that day: for it was about the tenth hour.

40 One of the two who heard John speak, and followed him, was °Andrew, Simon Peter's brother.

41 He first findeth his own brother Simon, and saith unto him, We have found the °Messias, which is, being interpreted, °the Christ.

42 And he brought him to Jesus. And, when Jesus beheld him, he said, Thou art Simon the son of Jona: thou shalt be called Cephas, which is by interpretation, °a stone.

43 ¶ The day following Jesus would go forth into Galilee, and °findeth Philip, and saith unto him, °Follow me.

44 Now Philip was of °Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter.

45 Philip findeth Nathanael, and saith unto him, We have found him of whom °Moses in the law, and the prophets, did write, °Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph.

46 And °Nathanael said unto him, °Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth? Philip saith unto him, °Come and see.

47 Jesus saw Nathanael coming to him, and saith of him, Behold °an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile!

48 Nathanael saith unto him, Whence knowest thou me? Jesus answered and said unto him, Before that Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig tree, I saw thee.

49 Nathanael answered and saith unto him, Rabbi, °thou art the Son of God, thou art the King of Israel.

50 Jesus answered and said unto him, Because I said unto thee I saw thee under the fig tree, believest thou? °thou shalt see greater things than these.

51 And he saith unto him, °Verily, verily, I say unto you, °Hereafter ye shall see heaven open, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the °Son of man.

CHAP. II.

(1) At a marriage in Cana of Galilee Jesus turns water into wine, to confirm the faith of his disciples; 1—11. (2) After a short stay at Capernaum, he attends the passover at Jerusalem; drives the buyers and sellers out of the temple; vindicates his conduct; foretells his death and resurrection; 12—22. (3) Avoids trusting himself with pretended believers; 23—25.

by his Spirit, instructs by his visits, and honours in his service. And, the more honour God puts upon men, the more humble they ought to be. The more they know of Christ, and his work, the more they ought to extol him, that others, particularly their relations, may seek and follow him. It is habitual, not transient, fellowship with him that will supply the need, and satisfy the desires, of real believers. Acquaintance with him is the best answer to all prejudices and objections against him. They who find him cannot but exult in their acquisition: And great is the honour to have his attestation of our secret devotion and universal integrity.—Our views of his glory are but beginning, and will be for ever on the advance. And angels and men will eternally behold and increasingly admire and serve him in his kingdom above.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—Infinite and divine are the glories of our Mediator!—He is the eternal God, equal with his Father. He is the Creator of all things, and the original source of all light, life, and honour, in the world.—Marvellous is his person as God-man, and full of grace and truth for our supply. His divine nature puts the most wonderful dignity upon his condescension, and on his offering himself a sacrifice to expiate our sins. And his character and mission are gloriously attested by apostles, by John the Baptist, and by his Father and blessed Spirit. Alas, that any, especially such as enjoy his oracles and favours, should remain ignorant or obstinate rejectors of him! But happy are they whom he apprehends by his grace, adopts into his family, conforms unto his image, supplies with his light and life, humbles by his influence, informs

AND the ^athird day there was a marriage in ^bCana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was there:

2 ^cAnd both Jesus was called, and his disciples, to the marriage.

3 And, when they wanted wine, the mother of Jesus saith unto him, ^dThey have no wine.

4 Jesus saith unto her, ^eWoman, ^fwhat have I to do with thee? ^gmine hour is not yet come.

5 His mother saith unto the servants, ^hwhatsoever he saith unto you, do it.

6 And there were set there six water pots of stone, ⁱafter the manner of the purifying of the Jews, containing ^jtwo or three firkins apiece.

7 Jesus saith unto them, Fill the water pots with water. And they filled them up to the brim.

8 And he saith unto them, Draw out now, and bear unto the governor of the feast. And they bare it.

9 When the ^kruler of the feast had tasted the water that was made wine, and knew not whence it was, (but the servants who drew the water knew,) the governor of the feast called the bridegroom,

10 And saith unto him, Every man at the beginning doth set forth good wine; and, when men have ^lwell drunk, then that which is worse: ^mbut thou hast kept the good wine until now.

11 ⁿThis beginning of miracles did Jesus in Cana of Galilee, and manifested forth his glory: and his disciples believed on him.

12 ¶ After this he went down to ^oCapernaum, he, and ^phis mother, and ^qhis brethren, and his disciples: and they continued there not many days.

13 ¶ And the Jews' ^rpassover was at hand; and Jesus went up to Jerusalem,

14 And ^sfound in the temple those that sold oxen, and sheep, and doves, and the changers of money, sitting:

15 And, ^twhen he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the temple, and the sheep, and the oxen; and poured out the changers' money, and overthrew the tables;

16 And said unto them that sold doves, Take these things hence; ^umake not my Father's house an house of merchandise.

17 And his disciples remembered that it was written, ^vThe zeal of thine house hath eaten me up.

18 ¶ Then answered the Jews and said unto him, ^wWhat sign shewest thou unto us, seeing that thou dost these things?

19 Jesus answered and said unto them, ^xDestroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up.

20 Then said the Jews, ^yForty and six years was this temple in building, and wilt thou rear it up in three days?

21 But he spake of ^zthe temple of his body.

22 When therefore ^ahe was risen from the dead, his disciples ^bremembered that he had said this unto them: and they believed the scripture, and the word which Jesus had said.

23 ¶ Now, when he was in Jerusalem at the passover, in the feast ^cday, many ^dbelieved in his name, when they saw the miracles which he did.

24 ^eBut Jesus did not commit himself unto them, because ^fhe knew all men, 25 And needed not that any should testify of man: for he knew what was in man.

CHAP. III.

Contains (1) Christ's discourse with Nicodemus concerning the nature and necessity of the new birth; 1—8: the sublimity of spiritual truths; 9—13: the end of his coming into the world, his exhibition on the cross and in the gospel, and the happiness of such as believe in him; 14—18: and the deplorable wickedness and misery of unbelievers; 18—21. (2) John the Baptist's discourse concerning Jesus; in which he abases himself, and extols Jesus in his person, doctrine, and authority, to those disciples who had murmured at his being so much followed; 22—26.

THERE ^awas a man of the Pharisees named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews:

2 The same came to Jesus ^bby night, and said unto him, ^cRabbi, ^dwe know that thou art a teacher come from God: for no man can do these miracles that thou dost, except God be with him.

3 Jesus answered and said unto him, ^eVerily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man ^fbe born ^gagain, he cannot see the kingdom of God.

4 Nicodemus saith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter the second time into his mother's womb, and be born?

5 Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man ^hbe born of water, and of the Spirit, he ⁱcannot enter ^jinto the kingdom of God.

6 ^kThat which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit.

7 Marvel not that I said unto thee, ^lYe must be born ^magain.

are his words of truth! Corrupt hearts little relish reforming authority! Even believers slowly comprehend the nature of Christ's kingdom. And sometimes it is not till long after they are heard that divine truths are remembered, understood, and believed. There is great need to avoid trusting in men, and to be careful whom we take for our friends. And studiously should we beware of hypocrisy, as Jesus hath an exact knowledge of our hearts.

CHAP. III. Ver. 3, 5, 6, 8. I, who am truth itself, solemnly assure you that, be man's moral attainments, religious advantages, or external privileges, what they will, he can, by no means, be a true member of the gospel church, or admitted into the heavenly state, except his heart and life be thoroughly changed in their principles, courses, and ends, and there be a new vital principle of holiness formed in him by the almighty influence of the Holy Ghost. Whoever is born of sinful parents, though it were ever so often, must be still sinful, and so unfit for fellowship with God. But whoever has a new spiritual habit, or principle of grace and holiness, implanted by the Holy Ghost, in all the powers of his soul, and acts accordingly, is made meet for the enjoyments and duties

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—Happy are those weddings which are directed by Christ's law, graced with his presence, and ratified by his blessing! With innocent pleasure friends may feast together, if they act as under his eye. Religion requires us not to be unsocial, but to rejoice with them that rejoice. In the very height of earthly comforts there is indeed something still wanting. But there are no wants in which Christ cannot supply us. And if we wish to receive his blessings, we must not prescribe to him, but follow his directions. Nor need we be discouraged by rebukes and delays: his mercies come soon enough, if they come large and sweet in the end. And, the more we see of his glory, the more firmly shall we believe in him, and desire to be with him.—Jesus makes but a short stay where he is signally contemned. And the most heaven-daring corruptions are introduced into churches by the love of filthy lucre. But wisely Jesus manifests his glory, vindicates the honour, and maintains the purity, of divine ordinances, without injuring civil property.—He knows what is in man, and can overawe the spirits of his most powerful and presumptuous enemies. And he had a sovereign power over his own natural life, as God equal with his Father. Alas, how ill understood, much hated, or but feignedly believed,

8 The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit.

9 Nicodemus answered and said unto him, How can these things be?

10 Jesus answered and said unto him, Art thou a master of Israel, and knowest not these things?

11 Verily, verily, I say unto thee, We speak that we do know, and testify that we have seen; and ye receive not our witness.

12 If I have told you earthly things, and ye believe not, how shall ye believe if I tell you of heavenly things?

13 And no man hath ascended up to heaven but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man who is in heaven.

14 And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up:

15 That whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life.

16 For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

17 For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved.

18 He that believeth on him is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God.

19 And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil.

20 For every one that doth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved.

21 But he that doth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest that they are wrought in God.

22 After these things came Jesus and his disciples into the land of Judea, and there he tarried with them, and baptized.

23 And John also was baptizing in Enon near to Salim, because there was much water there: and they came, and were baptized.

24 For John was not yet cast into prison.

25 Then there arose a question between some of John's disciples and the Jews about purifying.

26 And they came unto John, and said unto him, Rabbi, he that was with thee beyond Jordan, to whom thou barest witness, behold, the same baptizeth, and all men come to him.

27 John answered and said, A man can receive nothing except it be given him from heaven.

28 Ye yourselves bear me witness that I said, I am not the Christ, but that I am sent before him.

29 He that hath the bride is the bridegroom: but the friend of the bridegroom, who standeth and heareth him, rejoiceth greatly because of the bridegroom's voice: this my joy therefore is fulfilled.

30 He must increase, but I must decrease.

31 He that cometh from above is above all: he that is of the earth is earthly, and speaketh of the earth: he that cometh from heaven is above all.

32 And what he hath seen and heard, that he testifieth; and no man receiveth his testimony.

33 He that hath received his testimony hath set to his seal that God is true.

34 For he whom God hath sent speaketh the words of God: for God giveth not the Spirit by measure unto him.

35 The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into his hand.

36 He that believeth on the Son hath of the gospel state, and for the inheritance of the saints in light.—Nor is it any wonder that you cannot conceive how the Holy Ghost enlightens, quickens, and sanctifies, the souls of men, when you cannot even account for the causes and motions of the wind.

11—13. My forerunner and the prophets, and especially I, my Father, and the blessed Spirit, speak and attest what we understand and know to be certainly true; but, through blindness and prejudice, ye Jews neither understand, believe, nor embrace, our doctrine. If therefore you do not understand nor believe the nature or necessity of that work of grace, which must be experienced on earth in order to salvation, when thus familiarly illustrated to you from earthly similitudes, how could you understand or believe my declarations of the more sublime mysteries of the gospel relative to the dignity of my person and office, the design of my works, the spiritual nature of my kingdom, and the blessedness of the future state—which no mere man can comprehend or fully declare to others, but only the Messiah, who came from heaven, and who even now is still there, in respect of his divine nature! 14—17. And yet that divine person, the Messiah, must be put to an ignominious death, in order to his bringing about the salvation of sinners: for, as Moses lifted up the brazen serpent on a pole in the wilderness, as God's ordinance for effectually healing all the Israelites, who had been mortally bitten by the fiery serpents and looked on it for a cure, so the Messiah, who appears in the likeness of sinful flesh, though holy, harmless, and undefiled, must be lifted up on the cross, and afterwards exalted in heaven, and exhibited as God's ordinance in the gospel, for sinners to look to, by faith, for salvation; that every one, of whatever rank, degree, or nation he be, who, under an affecting sense of his own sinfulness and obnoxiousness to divine wrath, shall, according to God's appointment, look to and trust in him for salvation, may be delivered from all sin and misery, and be made a partaker of grace here and glory hereafter, however weak his faith be, or great or many his sins have been. For God, who delights in mercy, looking with compassion on the sinful and miserable state of mankind, conceived such an amazing and unparalleled design of mercy and love towards multitudes of them, both Jews, and especially Gentiles, that he freely gave up his only begotten to be their Mediator, an atoning sacrifice, that whosoever receives him as God's free gift offered in the gospel, and depends on him for salvation, might not perish in his sins, however great or many, but obtain an everlasting life of holiness and happiness. For God sent not his Son into the world to pass and to execute a sentence of condemnation upon all others beside you Jews, as many of you think, but that persons of all nations may be effectually saved from sin and misery, and blessed with everlasting holiness and happiness. 18—21. And every one, Jew or Gentile, who believes on Christ as freely offered in the gospel, is freed from the condemning sentence of God's law; but whosoever rejects or neglects him remains under the curse; yea, his guilt is increased, and his sentence of condemnation fixed and extended, through his rejecting the only Saviour and salvation by unbelief. And this will peculiarly aggravate the sin and misery of many, that, when blessed with the clearest light of the glorious gospel, they, both Jews and Gentiles, through attachment to their own corrupt courses, will prefer their vain traditions, superstitions and idolatrous notions and worship, to it. For every one that is resolved to adhere to his sins heartily hates the truths of divine revelation, which oppose and condemn them, stifles convictions, and shuns the light of that knowledge which presents his darling corruptions in their shameful, hideous, and dangerous forms: but an upright saint, who practises whatever divine truths he knows, is sincerely willing to be tried to the utmost, and to know the whole of the divine will, that his whole conduct, being regulated thereby, may evidently appear the effect of God's regenerating power, and the fruit of vital union and communion with him, and may tend to his glory. 27—30. Both Jesus and myself have our whole commission and success from God; nor can any receive our plain instructions without being enlightened and enabled by God. I appeal to you that I openly declared I was not the Christ, but only his forerunner, to prepare the nation for his manifestation of himself. As his friend, I have laboured to gain sinners to him, the glorious Bridegroom of his church! and I exceedingly rejoice to hear and see them following after and cleaving to him, whose property they are. For it is necessary that the manifestations of his glory and the number of his disciples should so continue and increase that there will be no more use for me as his forerunner. 31—34. I, and every one of the ancient prophets, are but earthly in our origin and frame, and cannot of ourselves speak of divine things but in a weak, gross, and earthly manner: but he, being the Lord from heaven, and endowed with the Holy Ghost above measure, understands the whole mind of God, and speaks of heavenly things as one fully acquainted with them. And yet, alas, how few heartily believe and receive his instructions! But every one who believes them solemnly acknowledges him as the Messiah, in whose person and work all the promises of God are, or will certainly be, fulfilled, to the praise of his glory. 35, 36. Nay, such is the superlative love of the Father to this his only begotten Son, who freely undertook to be our Mediator, that he has committed to his management all things relating to the kingdoms of providence, grace, and glory, that he may judge and subdue his enemies, and distribute blessings among his people. Whosoever therefore receives his doctrine, and believes on him as the Son of God and Saviour of sinners, hath already in himself the beginnings, securities, and foretastes, of eternal life, which shall certainly issue in the complete enjoyment of it: and whosoever wilfully and finally rejects him lies under the most awfully righteous indignation of God, which shall certainly be executed upon him to the uttermost, and for ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—The miracles of Christ were manifestly divine, and his doctrines plain and important. He was ready to cure the most inexcusable ignorance, and to instruct by night such as were ashamed to own him by day.—Infinitely important is the doctrine and experience of the Spirit's gracious implantation of new habits or principles of holiness in our nature, and infallibly damning is the want of it! Yet, alas, how many ministers and others are totally ignorant of it, and prejudiced against it! And, because their carnal shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life.

15 The woman saith unto him, 'Sir, Give me this water, that I thirst not, neither come hither to draw.

16 Jesus saith unto her, Go, call thy husband, and come hither.

17 The woman answered and said, I have no husband. Jesus said unto her, Thou hast well said, I have no husband:

18 For thou hast had †five husbands, and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband: in that saidst thou truly.

19 The woman saith unto him, Sir, I perceive that thou art †a prophet.

20 'Our fathers worshipped in this mountain; and ye say that in "Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship.

21 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, believe me, the hour cometh 'when ye shall neither in this mountain, nor yet at Jerusalem, worship the Father.

22 'Ye worship ye know not what: we 'know what we worship: for salvation is of the Jews.

23 But the hour cometh, and now is, when the 'true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him.

24 'God is a Spirit; and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth.

25 The woman saith unto him, I know that 'Messias cometh, who is called Christ: when he is come he will tell us all things.

26 Jesus saith unto her, 'I that speak unto thee am he.

27 ¶ 'And upon this came his disciples, and ' marvelled that he talked with the woman: yet no man said, What seekest thou? or, Why talkest thou with her?

28 'The woman then left her water pot, and went her way into the city, and saith to the men, 29 'Come, see a man who told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ?

30 'Then they went out of the city, and came unto him.

31 ¶ In the mean while his disciples prayed him, saying, Master, eat.

32 But he said unto them, 'I have meat to eat that ye know not of.

33 'Therefore said the disciples one to another, Hath any man brought him ought to eat?

mind cannot comprehend how or why the Spirit works on the heart; how the Saviour can be at once God and man in heaven and on earth; or how his being crucified and offered in the gospel, and received by faith, heals and saves sinners; they condemn and deny the same! But amazing is the love of God, in setting up his only begotten Son as his ordinance for the salvation of sinners, even the chief, Gentiles as well as Jews. And dreadfully criminal and dangerous is that unbelief which rejects the testimony and offer of God; which hates his glory, and detests his truth, as a disturber of indwelling lusts. Nothing can save the man who perseveres in his unbelief. And nothing can damn the soul which by faith credits God's testimony concerning Christ, and receives him as a divine and well-qualified Saviour. It is absurd for professors to be more concerned about external performances of religion than about a real work of grace in their heart. And it is honourable for all, and especially ministers, to view all their gifts and graces as coming from God, and to be content to be debased to the very lowest, that Jesus Christ may be exalted, answerably to his Father's love to him and the authority which he hath given him.

35 Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; ⁿfor they are white already to harvest.

36 And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal: ^pthat both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together.

37 And herein is that saying true, One soweth, and another reapeth.

38 I sent you to reap that whereon ye bestowed no labour; ^rother men laboured, and ye are entered into their labours.

39 ¶ And many of the Samaritans of that city believed on him for the saying of the woman which testified, He told me all that ever I did.

40 So, ^swhen the Samaritans were come unto him, they besought him that he would tarry with them: and he abode there two days.

41 And many more believed because of his own word;

42 And said unto the woman, ^tNow we believe not because of thy saying: for we have heard him ourselves, and know that ^uthis is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world.

43 ¶ Now after two days he departed thence, ^vand went into Galilee.

44 For Jesus himself testified that a prophet hath no honour in his own country.

45 Then, when he was come into Galilee, the Galileans received him, having seen ^wall the things that he did at Jerusalem at the feast: for they also went unto the feast.

46 So Jesus came again into Cana of Galilee, where he made the water wine. And there was a certain ^xnobleman, whose son was sick at Capernaum.

47 When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judea into Galilee, he went unto him, and ^ybesought him that he would come down and heal his son; for he was at the point of death.

48 Then said Jesus unto him, ^zExcept ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe.

49 The nobleman saith unto him, Sir, come down ere my child die.

50 Jesus saith unto him, ^aGo thy way; thy son liveth. And the man ^bbelieved the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way.

51 And, as he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying, ^cThy son liveth.

52 Then inquired he of them the hour when he began to amend. And they said unto him, Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him.

53 So the father knew that it was at the same hour in the which Jesus ^dsaid unto him, Thy son liveth: ^eand himself believed, and his whole house.

54 This is again the second miracle that Jesus did ^fwhen he was come out of Judea into Galilee.

CHAP. V.

(1) Christ cures a man who had lain lame at the pool of Bethesda thirty-eight years; 1—9. (2) The Jews quarrel with him for doing it on the sabbath day; 10—16. (3) Christ vindicates himself by asserting his divine and mediatorial powers; 12—31. (4) Proves them by the testimony of John the Baptist, of his own miracles, and of his Father and the Holy Ghost in the Old Testament scriptures; 32—39. AFTER this there was a feast of the Jews, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem.

2 Now there is at Jerusalem by the sheep ^gmarket a ^hpool, which is called in the Hebrew tongue ⁱBethesda, having five porches.

3 In these lay a great multitude of impotent folk, of blind, halt, ^jwithered, waiting for the moving of the water.

4 For an angel went down at a certain season into the pool, and troubled the water: ^kwhosoever then first after the troubling of the water stepped in was made whole of whatsoever disease he had.

5 And a certain man was there, who had an infirmity ^lthirty and eight years.

6 When Jesus saw him lie, and ^mknew that he had been now a long time in that case, he saith unto him, ⁿWilt thou be made whole?

7 The impotent man answered him, Sir, I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool: but while I am coming, another steppeth down ^obefore me.

8 Jesus saith unto him, ^pRise, take up thy bed, and walk.

Ghost, in his person, operation, graces, and comforts, which solidly satisfies the soul, weans it from the cares of this world, prevents its perdition, and gradually prepares for, and certainly issues in, the eternal and inexpressible holiness and happiness of the heavenly state.

35—38. The coming of yonder crowds of Samaritans to hear and believe on me, betokens the near approach of the gospel dispensation, in which multitudes, both Jews and Gentiles, shall be converted to me;—as instruments in which ye shall be honourably owned and supported, and at last amply rewarded, in their and your own eternal salvation;—and shall, together with John Baptist and the ancient prophets, who sowed the good seed of the word, rejoice in your success:—and, being sent by me to preach the gospel in all the world, and having the advantage of all my labours, as also that of the preceding prophets, ye shall perfect the blessed work, which we only began, in the conversion and eternal salvation of multitudes.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—Those who hate the gospel will always be exasperated at its success. And, if duty do not require us to stand, it is best to avoid their resentment by flight. Alas, how our sins debased our Redeemer, hunted him to and fro as a vagabond, fatigued him with trouble, pinched him with hunger and thirst, exposed him to insult, and the want even of a draught of water. But cheerfully he laboured in seeking and saving that which was lost. Freely was he given by God. Abundant was his fulness of the Spirit, of grace, and every other permanent blessing: and he is earnestly intent on the free bestowal of them! And yet how are his blessings refused, even by such as infinitely need them, and for whom they are prepared. But so pungent are his convictions, so plain his instructions, so spiritual his exhibitions of God and his worship, so attracting his discoveries of himself and his Spirit, that even an heart hardened in whoredom and prejudice could not withstand them! And yet, alas, how often is the believer's sensible fellowship with Christ interrupted when at the very sweetest! A remarkable renovation of heart produces a deep concern for the salvation of others. No shame, no pains, are counted too much to win them to Christ. Perpetual and powerful are the labours of a Saviour; and inexpressible his delight in saving sinners, particularly the Gentiles. Happy is it when the labours of one generation of ministers prepare remarkable fruitfulness for their successors. And greatly efficacious is the gospel when preached and heard as indeed the word of Christ. It often does most good where it could have been least expected; and makes the bitterest enemies cordially to apply Jesus as their own Saviour. But aggravated is their wickedness who misimprove the best opportunities. Happy are those troubles which effectually direct sinners to him and his salvation; and when staggerings of heart issue in the firmness of faith. Happy is it when heads of families, great and small, are given to fervent prayer, and deeply concerned for the real and eternal life of children and servants; and, when new favours from Christ, and a comparison of spiritual experiences, confirm men's faith; and especially when whole families are converted by his grace!

walked: and on the same day was the sabbath.

10 ¶ The Jews therefore said unto him that was cured, It is the sabbath day; ^{it} is not lawful for thee to carry thy bed.

11 He answered them, He that made me whole, the same said unto me, Take up thy bed and walk.

12 Then asked they him, What man is that who said unto thee, Take up thy bed and walk?

13 And he that was healed wist not who it was: for Jesus ^{had} conveyed himself away, [†]a multitude being in that place.

14 Afterward Jesus findeth him in ^{the} temple, and said unto him, ^{Behold,} thou art made whole: sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee.

15 And the man departed, and [†]told the Jews that it was Jesus who had made him whole.

16 And therefore did the Jews persecute Jesus, ^{and} sought to slay him, because he had done these things on the sabbath day.

17 ¶ But Jesus answered them; ^{My} Father worketh hitherto, and I work.

18 Therefore the Jews [†]sought the more to kill him, because he not only had broken the sabbath, but said also that God was his Father, ^{making} himself equal with God.

19 ¶ Then answered Jesus, and said unto them, ^{Verily, verily, I say unto you,} [†]The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do; for what things soever he doth, these also doth the Son likewise.

20 [†]For the Father loveth the Son, and sheweth him all things that himself doth: and he will shew him greater works than these, that ye may marvel.

21 For, as the Father [†]raiseth up the dead, and quickeneth them; even so the Son quickeneth whom he will.

22 For the Father judgeth no man; ^{but} hath committed all judgment unto the Son:

23 [†]That all men should honour the Son even as they honour the Father. He that honoureth not the Son honoureth not the Father who hath sent him.

24 [†]Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life.

25 Verily, verily, I say unto you, [†]The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and they that hear shall live.

26 [†]For, as the Father hath life in himself, so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself;

27 [†]And hath given him authority to execute judgment also, because he is the Son of man.

28 Marvel not at [†]this: [†]for the hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, 29 And shall come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation.

30 [†]I can of mine own self do nothing: as I hear I judge: and my judgment is just; because [†]I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father who hath sent me.

31 ¶ If I [†]bear witness of myself, my witness is not true.

32 [†]There is another that beareth witness of me; and I know that the witness which he witnesseth of me is true.

33 [†]Ye sent unto John, and he bare witness unto the truth.

34 But I receive not testimony from man: but these things I say [†]that ye might be saved.

35 [†]He was a burning and a shining light: and ye were willing for a season to rejoice in his light.

36 ¶ But I have greater witness than that of John: for the [†]works which the Father hath given me to finish, the same works that I do, bear witness of me, that the Father hath sent me.

37 And the Father himself, who hath sent me, [†]hath borne witness of me. [†]Ye have neither heard his voice at any time, nor seen his shape.

38 And ye have not his word [†]abiding in you: [†]for whom he hath sent, him ye believe not.

39 ¶ [†]Search the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: [†]and they are they which testify of me.

Prov. 2. 1, 2.

CHAP. V. Ver. 17-23. As my Father, who instituted the sabbath, continually performs his providential works on that as well as on other days, so I, who am his only begotten Son, partaking of the same nature and perfections, must be allowed to work along with him as is meet.—My union with him, in nature, operation, and design, is such, that I can do nothing separately from him, but do always act in the same work, and in the same manner, and with the same divine power and authority, as he does. And such is our union, will, and affection, that nothing of his counsels or operations is ever hid from me: yea, in co-operation with him, I will perform works still greater than the healing a lame man, that, if you will continue obstinate in your unbelief, ye may at least be astonished and confounded thereat. And as he at pleasure can restore the dead to life, so I, with equal power and sovereignty, will not only restore to natural life whenever I please, but quicken them who are dead in trespasses and sins, and bestow upon them eternal life. For the Father has not reserved for himself, nor doth he exercise immediately by himself, the management of the present concerns of providence, or the future judgment of the world, but has intrusted the same to his incarnate Son; that, instead of being offended at his deep humiliation, men might be induced, by his bearing and executing this high commission, to pay the same religious worship and obedience to him as they are obliged to pay to the Father himself: and whoever neglects to honour him in this manner is held a neglecter of the honour of the Father, who has authorised, and is represented by, him. 24-30. I, who am truth itself, solemnly assure you that whosoever heartily receives my doctrine relative to my person and office, and believes on my Father, who has constituted me Mediator, has a full title to, and the beginnings and earnest of, eternal life, and is completely translated from under the curse and condemnation of the law into a state of justification of life:—and that the time is at hand when not only some, corporeally dead, shall be restored to life by my word, but even they, who are dead in trespasses and sins, shall be regenerated, and quickened to the obedience of faith, and live for ever: for as the Father has life essentially and necessarily in himself, and communicates life to every living creature, so he has constituted me, his essentially living Son, a quickening Spirit, full of life in myself as Mediator, and authorised me to communicate it to others. Nor need you think it strange, that I say dead bodies and souls shall quickly be enlivened by my power; for, at the last day, the whole race of mankind shall by it be raised from the dead, and brought to my judgment seat. The true saints, quickened by my Spirit dwelling in them, shall be adjudged to the full enjoyment of everlasting life: and they who died in their sins, raised by my power, shall receive a dreadful sentence of condemnation, to their utter and everlasting ruin.—But in all these things I neither do, nor can do, any thing separately from my Father; for in all my administrations I proceed as one perfectly acquainted with his counsels, and as his Messiah, instructed by him; and my whole management must necessarily be perfectly right, because I therein neither aim at, nor pursue, any private will of my own, different from, or opposite to, the will of my Father, but exactly discharge the commission which he hath given me in sending me into the world. 31-39. But I do not rest the matter upon my own mere testimony, as if that alone were sufficient: I appeal to that solemn testimony which John bare concerning me, and which ye cannot object against, since ye acknowledged him an eminent prophet, submitted to his baptism, and for a time appeared extremely fond of his instructions, till he offended you by his sharp reproofs and his attestations of my Messiahship. I mention his testimony, not as if it could establish my divine or mediatorial character, but only that I may reason with you upon your own principles, and omit nothing which may tend to your conviction and salvation.—For the miraculous and gracious works, which I have performed, or will perform, 40 ^b And ye will not come to me that ye might have life.

41 ¶ I receive not honour from men.

42 But I know you, that ye have not the love of God in you.

43 I am come in my Father's name, and ye receive me not: if another shall come in his own name, him ye will receive.

44 How can ye believe, who receive honour one of another, and seek not the honour that cometh from God only?

45 ¶ Do not think that I will accuse you to the Father: there is one that accuseth you, even Moses, in whom ye trust.

46 For, had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed me; for he wrote of me.

47 But, if ye believe not his writings, how shall ye believe my words?

CHAP. VI.

(1) Christ feeds five thousand with five loaves and two small fishes; 1—14. (2) To avoid being proclaimed a king, he crosses the sea of Tiberias and walks on the water; 15—21. (3) The feasted multitudes follow him in boats to Capernaum; 22—25. (4) He rebukes their carnal care about bodily food, and directs them to labour to enjoy spiritual blessings by believing in himself; 26—29. (5) He represents himself as spiritual food, figured by, but far more excellent and life giving than, the manna; 30—59. (6) Many of his followers, offended with his doctrines and reproofs, finally desert him; 60—66. (7) He is confessed by Peter, adhered to by the other apostles, and foretells the treachery of Judas; 67—71.

AFTER these things ^a Jesus went over the ^b sea of Galilee, which is the sea of Tiberias.

2 And a great multitude followed him, because they saw his miracles which he did on them that were diseased.

3 And Jesus went up into a mountain, and there he sat with his disciples.

4 And the passover, a feast of the Jews, was nigh.

5 When Jesus then lifted up his eyes, and saw a great company come unto him, he saith unto Philip, Whence shall we buy bread that these may eat?

6 (And this he said to ^cprove him: for he himself knew what he would do).

7 Philip answered him, Two hundred pennyworth of bread is not sufficient for them, that every one of them may take a little.

8 One of his disciples, ^d Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, saith unto him, 9 There is a lad here which hath five barley loaves and two small fishes: ^e but what are they among so many?

10 And Jesus said, Make the men sit down. Now there was much grass in the place. So the men sat down, in number about five thousand.

11 And Jesus took the loaves; and, when he had given thanks, he distributed to the disciples, and the disciples to them that were sat down; and likewise of the fishes, as much as they would.

12 When they were filled, he said unto his disciples, Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost.

13 Therefore they gathered them together, and filled twelve baskets with the fragments of the five barley loaves, which remained over and above unto them that had eaten.

14 Then those men, when they had seen the miracle that Jesus did, said, This is of a truth that prophet that should come into the world.

15 ¶ When Jesus therefore perceived that they would come and take him by force, to make him a king, he departed again into a mountain himself alone.

16 And when even was now come, his disciples went down unto the sea, 17 And entered into a ship, and went over the sea toward Capernaum. And it was now dark, and Jesus was not come to them.

18 And the sea arose by reason of a great wind that blew.

19 So, when they had rowed about five and twenty or thirty furlongs, they see Jesus walking on the sea, and drawing nigh unto the ship: and they were afraid.

20 But he saith unto them, It is I, be not afraid.

21 Then they willingly received him into the ship: and immediately the ship was at the land whither they went.

vinced by what he, for whom you profess so high a regard, hath said, it cannot be expected that ye will believe me, whom ye treat with contempt, and run down as an impostor.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. V.—It is a great mercy that our world is not altogether filled with persons diseased, since sin hath introduced such a variety of evils. Marvellous, as well as numerous, were the types by which God prefigured his Messiah. And who, sensible of spiritual distempers, would not gladly wait at the pool of ordinances for relief? Jesus graciously prevents the most needy and miserable with his mercy: and his word powerfully determines and enables to obedience. And yet much weakness and ignorance sometimes remain for a while. It is wonderful that his kindness should have occasioned to him such malicious hatred and envy. And marvellous is his wisdom that this abuse of him should be the mean of a more clear manifestation of himself as the Son of God and promised Messiah. How sufficient is he to save sinners, who is both God and man; one with, and equal to, God; knowing, willing, and performing, the same things as JEHOVAH his Father! Even in his mediatorial character he is the absolute Lord of life and death, who manages all providences, quickens the dead, examines all causes, and distributes eternal happiness or punishment, as he pleases. Faithfully he executes his office, to the glory of God, and the salvation of men. And worthy is he to be honoured and worshipped equally with the Father, that God may be glorified and worshipped in him. What ground is there for the most undoubting confidence in him who hath such attestation from prophets, from miracles, from God himself!—And it becomes us seriously to search the scriptures, where every saving truth concerning him is to be found. —But, alas, fearful are the effects of ignorance, pride, and carnal ambition. No clear and earnest ministrations of truth can affect such as are under the power of these things. Owning the authority of the scriptures, they neither understand, believe, nor practise, them. Pretending regard to Jesus, they will never receive him for salvation, and yet are ready to run after the vilest impostors —It is the highest folly to lean to the broken law for happiness, when it so charges us with our sins: and greatly absurd to prefer men to Christ, and yet disregard even these our human favourites when they instruct us concerning Christ.

22 ¶ The day following, when the people, who stood on the other side of the sea, saw that there was none other boat there, save that one whereinto his disciples were entered, and that Jesus went not with his disciples into the boat, but that his disciples were gone away alone:

23 (Howbeit there came other boats from Tiberias, nigh unto the place where they did eat bread, after that the Lord had given thanks):

24 When the people therefore saw that Jesus was not there, neither his disciples, they also took shipping, and came to Capernaum, seeking for Jesus.

25 And, when they had found him on the other side of the sea, they said unto him, Rabbi, when camest thou hither?

26 Jesus answered them and said, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Ye seek me, not because ye saw the miracles, but because ye did eat of the loaves, and were filled.

27 † Labour not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you: for him hath God the Father sealed.

28 Then said they unto him, What shall we do that we might work the works of God?

29 Jesus answered and said unto them, This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent.

30 ¶ They said therefore unto him, What sign shewest thou then, that we may see and believe thee? what dost thou work?

31 Our fathers did eat manna in the desert; as it is written, He gave them bread from heaven to eat.

32 Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Moses gave you not that bread from heaven; but my Father giveth you the true bread from heaven.

33 For the bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world.

34 Then said they unto him, Lord, evermore give us this bread.

35 And Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst.

36 But I said unto you, that ye also have seen me, and believe not.

37 All that the Father giveth me shall come to me; and him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out.

38 For I came down from heaven, not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me.

39 And this is the Father's will who hath sent me, that of all which he hath given me I should lose nothing, but should raise it up again at the last day.

40 And this is the will of him that sent me, that every one who seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day.

41 The Jews then murmured at him, because he said, I am the bread which came down from heaven.

42 And they said, Is not this Jesus the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? how is it then that he saith, I came down from heaven?

43 Jesus therefore answered and said unto them, Murmur not among yourselves.

44 No man can come to me, except the Father who hath sent me draw him: and I will raise him up at the last day.

45 It is written in the prophets, And they shall be all taught of God. Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me.

46 Not that any man hath seen the Father, save he who is of God, he hath seen the Father.

47 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me hath everlasting life.

48 I am that bread of life.

49 Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness, and are dead.

50 This is the bread which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof and not die.

51 I am the living bread which came down from heaven: if any man eat of this bread he shall live for ever: and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world.

52 The Jews therefore strove among themselves, saying, How can this man give us his flesh to eat?

53 Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you.

54 Whoso eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day.

55 For my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed.

56 He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him.

57 As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father; so he CHAP. VI. Ver. 27—29. Beware of laying out your principal care and labour about temporal provision, or other perishing enjoyments;—but chiefly inquire after, and labour to possess, those spiritual and eternal blessings which I, as anointed and miraculously attested by my Father, freely give to every one that believes in me. Your great and important work, which God commands and effects as a source of obedience and means of acceptance, is cordially to believe on and receive me as the SENT of God, and his unspeakable gift, offered in the gospel.

30, 31. What token can you produce of your Messiahship, and superiority to Moses, who not merely multiplied provision, but for forty years miraculously nourished our fathers in the wilderness with manna from heaven? 32—59. Christ calls himself bread in allusion to the manna, and because he, in his person, offices, work, and fulness, is the mean of all our spiritual and eternal life, happiness, and comfort. He is the true bread, of which the manna and all the bread used in the ancient oblations were but a typical shadow and which is infinitely excellent, important, and permanent in its virtue. He is living bread, having all life in himself as Son of God, and as Mediator, and as being the author of all spiritual life to sinful men. He is bread of life, which gives spiritual life to dead souls, and nourishes them up in knowledge and grace, comfort and holiness, to eternal life; and none that receive him by faith shall ever perish with hunger, or thirst for any necessary blessings. His flesh is meat indeed, and his blood drink indeed. His person God-man Mediator, and his righteousness, with the blessings purchased by it, are eminent and effectual means of our spiritual and eternal life. To eat his flesh and drink his blood is by faith to receive and rest on him for salvation, as God in our nature, who has fulfilled the law, and purchased, and bestows, all new covenant blessings upon us;—and by means hereof Christ dwells in us and we in him. There is the closest union and communion between him and us;—he dwelling in us by his Spirit, and we dwelling in him by the permanent habit of faith, and holding that eateth me, even he shall live by me.

58 This is that bread which came down from heaven: not as your fathers did eat manna, and are dead; he that eateth of this bread shall live for ever.

59 These things said he in the synagogue, as he taught in Capernaum.

60 Many therefore of his disciples, when they had heard this, said, This is an hard saying, who can hear it?

61 When Jesus knew in himself that his disciples murmured at it, he said unto them, Doth this offend you?

62 What and if he shall see the Son of man ascend up where he was before?

63 It is the spirit that quickeneth, the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life.

64 But there are some of you that believe not. For Jesus knew from the beginning, who they were that believed not, and who should betray him.

65 And he said, Therefore said I unto you that no man can come unto me except it were given unto him of my Father.

66 From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him.

67 Then said Jesus unto the twelve, Will ye also go away?

68 Then Simon Peter answered him, Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life.

69 And we believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God.

70 Jesus answered them, Have not I chosen you twelve, and one of you is a devil?

71 He spake of Judas Iscariot the son of Simon: for he it was that should betray him, being one of the twelve.

CHAP. VII.

(1) Christ's life being in danger in Judea, he declines going to the feast of tabernacles along with his carnal relations; 1—9. (2) He goes up privately afterwards; 10—13. (3) In the midst of the feast he preaches in the temple; 14, 15: and discourses with the Jews concerning his doctrine; 16—18: concerning the crime of breaking the sabbath, lately laid to his charge; 19—24: and concerning himself, whence he came and whither he was going;

lowship with him by repeated acts of it. 63, 64. Why do ye conceive prejudice against my saying that I came down from heaven, when, in a short time, some present shall see me ascend back to it? And the eating of my flesh and drinking of my blood must be understood in a spiritual, not in a carnal, sense. It is only the operation of the Spirit of God that quickens souls to a spiritual and eternal life. The carnal eating of my flesh could profit no one. My words, which I have spoken unto you, relate to spiritual things; and are the means of conveying the Holy Ghost, and his enlivening influences, into men's hearts. But some of you, who profess to be my disciples, do not heartily believe in me; and are therefore ready to cavil at my doctrine, and put the most absurd construction on my words.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VI.—Worthy of repeated remembrance are the great works of our Redeemer. He often graciously perplexes his people, that he may have the honour of kindly answering their doubts. And if we have him with us we can never want any good thing. The more liberal we are to others, from a principle of faith and love, the more liberal God will be to us. But we must never waste any thing in hopes of his miraculous supply. Carnal minds greatly mistake the nature of Christ's kingdom. And his ministers ought earnestly to avoid every political office and work. Dark nights of desertion, temptation, and distress, often quickly succeed the most delightful seasons of fellowship with Christ, and even himself is suspected for Satan. But under all our distresses his word alone can relieve and comfort. And his presence is doubly precious after fearful storms of darkness and grief. Powerfully do his visits hasten forward his people to the haven of glory. They therefore who truly love him will grudge no pains to find him: and often they meet with him sooner, and more easily, than they expected. But, alas, that ever he should be sought, not from love, but for some carnal advantages!—What a wonderful, well-furnished, and divinely-authorised, Saviour is Jesus Christ! Heavenly and divine is his original;—deep was his debasement, even unto death;—and high his exaltation to his Father's throne. He hath in himself, and gives to our souls, the living, life-

AFTER these things Jesus walked in Galilee: for he would not walk in Jewry, because the Jews sought to kill him.

2 Now the Jews' feast of tabernacles was at hand.

3 His brethren therefore said unto him, Depart hence, and go into Judea, that thy disciples also may see the works that thou dost.

4 For there is no man that doth any thing in secret, and he himself seeketh to be known openly. If thou do these things, shew thyself to the world.

5 For neither did his brethren believe in him.

6 Then Jesus said unto them, My time is not yet come; but your time is alway ready.

7 The world cannot hate you; but me it hateth, because I testify of it, that the works thereof are evil.

8 Go ye up unto this feast: I go not up yet unto this feast; for my time is not yet full come.

9 When he had said these words unto them, he abode still in Galilee.

10 But, when his brethren were gone up, then went he also up unto the feast, not openly, but as it were in secret.

11 Then the Jews sought him at the feast, and said, where is he?

12 And there was much murmuring among the people concerning him: for some said, He is a good man: others said, Nay; but he deceiveth the people.

13 Howbeit, no man spake openly of him, for fear of the Jews.

14 Now, about the midst of the feast, Jesus went up into the temple and taught.

15 And the Jews marvelled, saying, How knoweth this man letters, having never learned?

16 Jesus answered them, and said, My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me.

17 If any man will do his will, he giving, substantial, and abundant provisions of his grace. And freely granted by himself and his Father to sinful men are all the blessings of his love. Yea, even the weakest act of faith on him secures permanent grace, a glorious resurrection, and eternal life. Every elect sinner shall come to him; and no one who comes, however weak or wicked, shall ever be cast out or finally lost. But none either will or can come till they be instructed by his Father, and quickened by his powerful and life-giving word, and Spirit.—Awful is the thought that many should prefer earthly enjoyments to him and his everlasting salvation;—should ignorantly or maliciously cavil at the declarations of his grace;—should apostatize from him, offended with his spiritual doctrines or necessary reproofs;—or should adhere to him in profession, while carnal lusts are indulged in their heart. Never, O my soul, cavil at his words who is the wisdom of God. Never attempt to deceive him who searches the heart. Never neglect him who is thy food, and thy life, and the length of thy days. Never refuse him who is the free, the unspeakable, gift of God. Never doubt of that salvation which is intrusted to his care, who shuts out none, and loses none that the Father has given him. And never desert him who is Christ, the quickening Son of the living God, full of grace and truth.

CHAP. VII. Ver. 3, 4. Stay no longer in this poor obscure country, but go preach and work miracles at Jerusalem, that you may make the great and learned men your disciples; and that, their number being increased, they may, on such a public occasion, favour your designs to set up your kingdom: for, if you can do any wonderful works, it is proper you should establish and spread your fame, by doing them in the most public manner, and in the most famous places, and on the most public occasions, that men of learning and authority may see, and be convinced by them. 6, 7. However safely ye, who have the favour of worldly men, being like them in your principles, tempers, and designs, may go up at the very beginning of the feast, it is not proper that I, whom they seek to kill, should go up so early, and give them an opportunity to concert measures against me. 16—18. I did not learn my doctrine, which I preach, by any shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself.

18 'He that speaketh of himself seeketh his own glory: but he that seeketh his glory that sent him, the same is true, and no unrighteousness is in him.

19 'Did not Moses give you the law, and yet none of you keepeth the law?

'Why go ye about to kill me?

20 The people answered and said, 'Thou hast a devil; who goeth about to kill thee?

21 Jesus answered and said unto them, I have done one work, and ye all marvel.

22 'Moses therefore gave unto you circumcision; (not because it is of Moses, but of the fathers); and ye on the sabbath day circumcise a man.

23 If a man on the sabbath day receive circumcision, †that the law of Moses should not be broken; are ye angry at me because I have made a man every whit whole on the sabbath day?

24 'Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgment.

25 Then said some of them of Jerusalem, Is not this he whom they seek to kill?

26 But, 'lo, he speaketh boldly, and they say nothing unto him. 'Do the rulers know indeed that this is the very Christ?

27 Howbeit, 'we know this man whence he is: but, when Christ cometh, 'no man knoweth whence he is.

28 Then cried Jesus in the temple as he taught, saying, 'Ye both know me, and ye know whence I am: 'and I am not come of myself, but he that sent me is true, whom ye know not.

29 But I know him; for I am from him, and he hath sent me.

30 'Then they sought to take him: but no man laid hands on him, 'because his hour was not yet come.

31 And many of the people believed on him, and said, When Christ cometh, will he do more miracles than these which this man hath done?

32 ¶ The Pharisees heard 'that the people murmured such things concerning him; and the Pharisees and the chief priests sent officers to take him.

33 Then said Jesus unto them, 'Yet a little while am I with you, and then I go unto him that sent me.

34 'Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am thither ye cannot come.

35 Then said the Jews among themselves, Whither will he go, that we shall not find him? will he go unto the 'dispersed among the ||Gentiles, and teach the Gentiles?

36 'What manner of saying is this that he said, Ye shall seek me and shall not find me: and where I am thither ye cannot come?

37 'In the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried, saying, 'If any man thirst, let him come unto me and drink.

38 'He that believeth on me, as the scripture hath said, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water.

39 ('But this spake he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him should receive: 'for the Holy Ghost was not yet given, because that Jesus was not yet glorified).

40 ¶ Many of the people therefore, when they heard this saying, said, 'Of a truth this is the prophet.

41 Others said, 'This is the Christ. But some said, 'Shall Christ come out of Galilee?

42 'Hath not the scripture said, That Christ cometh of the seed of David, and out of the town of Bethlehem, where David was?

43 'So there was a division among the people because of him.

44 And some of them would have taken him; but 'no man laid hands on him.

45 ¶ Then came the officers to the chief priests and Pharisees; and they said unto them, Why have ye not brought him?

46 The officers answered, 'Never man spake like this man.

47 Then answered them the Pharisees, Are ye also deceived?

48 'Have any of the rulers or of the Pharisees believed on him?

49 But this people who knoweth not the law are cursed.

50 Nicodemus saith unto them, ('he that came to Jesus by night, being one of them), 51 'Doth our law judge any man before it hear him, and know what he doth?

52 They answered and said unto him, Art thou also of Galilee? Search, and look: 'for out of Galilee ariseth no prophet.

53 'And every man went unto his own house.

human assistance; nor is it an invention of my own. But God hath sent me as Mediator, and qualified me to publish it to the world, not to gain applause to myself, but for the advancement of his honour and glory. And whosoever will, by humble, serious, and impartial reading, hearing, meditation, and prayer, labour to understand the will of God, in order to practise it, he shall experience such light and power in my doctrine, as shall prove it really divine. He will perceive that impostors suit their doctrines to the carnal inclinations of men, in order to establish their own reputation and carnal interests; and that, as an evidence of my sincerity, and of the truth of my doctrine, I am wholly intent upon promoting the glory of God, who authorised me, and publish only what tends to humble mankind, and reform them from their errors and corruptions. 19—24. When ye profess such zeal for the laws of Moses, why do ye so universally break them? Why, in direct contradiction to an unalterable precept, do ye seek to murder me? When, on the sabbath day, ye circumcise children, and apply cures to the wounded, how absurd is it to seek to murder me, because, on the sabbath, I perfectly cured the man who had long been infirm at the pool of Bethesda? Beware, therefore, of partially indulging prejudices against me, on account of my mean appearances, or in favour of your chief priests and rulers, on account of their specious pretences and authority over you; but carefully examine things, and judge according to truth and equity. 28, 29. Ye indeed know my earthly parentage, but my office and original are much higher than ye apprehend. My Father, of whom ye are grossly ignorant, hath, in the faithful fulfilment of his covenant and promises, sent me into the world.—I have a perfect knowledge of his mind and will; for I am from him, by a peculiar and eternal generation; and, as the anointed Mediator, I am authorised by him to reveal the way of salvation to men. 33, 34. It is but a short time that I shall continue preaching and working miracles among you; and then I shall, in my ascension, return to my Father. Then, in your miserable extremities, ye shall earnestly, but in vain, wish for my presence and favour; but ye shall neither find me to your comfort, nor ever follow me to heaven, where even now I am in my divine nature, either to enjoy, or persecute me. 37—39. Let every destitute sinner among you, who wishes after happiness, believe on me, as the only Saviour, that he may be refreshed, and satisfied with an abundant, increasing, and continued, supply of blessings, which may flow out from his heart, in plentiful streams of good works, for his own and others edification and comfort.—This signified that all who cordially believed in, and received and rested on him for salvation, should, after his ascension to glory, receive an abundant communication of the gifts, graces, and comforts of the Holy Ghost, to refresh and cleanse their souls, and render them fruitful in good works, and useful to others:—which communication was not to be granted, till Christ should have the honour of sending the Spirit, to attest his exaltation and influence in heaven; and the Spirit could glorify Christ, in the numerous conversions, and remarkable holiness and comfort, of both Jews and Gentiles.

THE WOMAN ACCUSED OF ADULTERY.

JESUS ^awent unto the mount of Olives.

2 And ^bearly in the morning he came again into the temple, and ^call the people came unto him; and he sat down and taught them.

3 And the scribes and Pharisees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery; and, when they had set her in the midst, 4 They say unto him, Master, this woman was taken in adultery, in the very act.

5 ^dNow Moses in the law commanded us that such should be stoned; but what sayest thou?

6 This they said, ^etempting him, that they might have to accuse him. But Jesus stooped down, and with ^fhis finger wrote on the ground, as though he heard them not.

7 So, when they continued asking him, he lifted up himself, and said unto them, ^gHe that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her.

8 And again he stooped down, and wrote on the ground.

9 ^hAnd they who heard it, being convicted by their own conscience, went out one by one, beginning at the eldest, even unto the last: and Jesus was left alone, and the woman standing in the midst.

10 When Jesus had lifted up himself, and saw none but the woman, he said unto her, Woman, where are those thine accusers? hath no man condemned thee?

11 She said, No man, Lord. And Jesus said unto her, ⁱNeither do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more.

12 ¶ Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, ^kI am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VII.—It is a mournful case when the Saviour is banished. And base, when men, even in religious duties, chiefly aim at their own carnal advantages. It wears but a very suspicious appearance when professors of religion are the darlings of wicked men. And it is highly shameful when the near relations of faithful ministers, or they who have most means of instruction, are the most careless or carnal. Faithful ministers must expect to go through various scenes of good and bad treatment; and the more faithful they are, the more of the world's hatred will they experience. Men who hate the truth, will always find something to quarrel with. But no malice can destroy them, till their work be ended. They may therefore proceed boldly but cautiously in it.—Ignorance of Christ, and his doctrine, will make men doubt their divinity, or raise cavils against them. Prejudice against him will render them blind to the clearest means of conviction, make them reckon appearances realities, and pretend great zeal for God's law, while they indulge themselves in the grossest violations of it, and condemn in others what they approve in themselves. But delightfully Jesus vindicates his character, doctrine, and work, to his own and his Father's honour, and to the confusion of his enemies. And serious attention will either convince or confound his opposers. Astonishing are the riches of his grace, in offering a full and free salvation to his contemners and murderers. And abundant are the communications that flow from an exalted Redeemer. And it is most dreadful to seek occasions, and raise cavils against his kindness. It is dangerous to enjoy ordinances without his presence. And his despisers shall be awfully deprived of him and all the means of his grace in a little time. But it is a great mercy, that the poor embrace and enjoy him; when most men of rank and learning condemn both him and them. Wicked men readily curse whom the Lord hath blessed. But Christ can easily overawe, if not convert, the most stubborn, and render them witnesses for his honour. Easily he can embolden the most cowardly in a time of need, and disappoint and dispirit the crafty. And nothing more plainly manifests a bad cause, than that its friends have recourse to persecution rather than to arguments.

13 The Pharisees therefore said unto him, Thou bearest record of thyself; thy record is not true.

14 Jesus answered and said unto them, ^mThough I bear record of myself, yet my record is true: ⁿfor I know whence I came, and whither I go; but ye cannot tell whence I come, and whither I go.

15 ^oYe judge after the flesh; ^pI judge no man.

16 ^qAnd yet, if I judge, my judgment is true; for I am not alone, but I and the Father that sent me.

17 ^rIt is also written in your law that the testimony of two men is true.

18 I am one that bear witness of myself, and the Father that sent me beareth witness of me.

19 Then said they unto him, Where is thy Father? Jesus answered, ^sYe neither know me nor my Father: ^tif ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also.

20 These words spake Jesus ^uin the treasury, as he taught in the temple: and ^vno man laid hands on him; for his hour was not yet come.

21 Then said Jesus again unto them, ^wI go my way, and ye shall seek me, and shall ^xdie in your sins: ^ywhither I go ye cannot come.

22 Then said the Jews, ^bWill he kill himself? because he saith, Whither I go ye cannot come.

23 And he said unto them, ^cYe are from beneath; ^dI am from above: ye are of this world; I am not of this world.

24 I said therefore unto you that ye shall die in your sins: for, if ye ^ebelieve not that I am he, ye shall die in your sins.

25 Then said they unto him, Who art thou? And Jesus saith unto them, ^fEven the same that I said unto you from the beginning.

26 ^gI have many things to say and to judge of you: but he that sent me is true; and ^hI speak to the world those things which I have heard of him.

27 ⁱThey understood not that he spake to them of the Father.

CHAP. VIII. Ver. 3—6. If he had encouraged them to stone her, they might have reproached him with cruelty, in partially ordering a severe punishment against one, no worse than the publicans and sinners, with whom he conversed; or they might have accused him to the Roman governor, as an usurper of judicial authority, and an abettor of tumults. If he had declared against stoning her, or bade them refer the matter to the Roman governor, they hoped to incense the people against him as an enemy to the law of Moses and their liberty. 12. Having, in myself, all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge, I am come into the world to direct both Jews and Gentiles into the way of life and salvation by my word and Spirit. And whosoever believeth on me, and follows my direction and pattern, shall not go on in ignorance, error, sin, or misery, but have the saving light and comfort of a spiritual life here, and eternal life hereafter. 13—19. Though, in ordinary cases, a man's testimony concerning himself avails nothing, yet it is otherwise in the case of one, who is light and truth itself, and whose original and commission are from God, and whose return is to him;—of all which things ye are wilfully ignorant. Ye judge and condemn me only from carnal considerations and appearances; but I interfere with no civil judgment, and at present condemn or punish no man, but call sinners to repentance and salvation; and yet, though I were to pass or execute judgment, my sentence would be just and valid, on account of my oneness with, and commission from my Father. Nor is my Messiahship destitute of sufficient attestation, since I myself, as a divine Person, assert it; and my Father by his prophets, and by his immediate declarations from heaven, as well as by many other signs, hath attested it. Notwithstanding repeated instructions, ye continue wilfully ignorant of my person and office, and of my heavenly Father from whom I come to you. If ye had considered me as one in nature, counsel, and operation with him, ye would have seen his perfections shining forth in me, and discerned the relation in which he stands to me, as his Son, and medatorial Servant. 21—26. Knowing how eagerly they desired that he might be murdered, before the time appointed by his Father, Jesus said to them, I will soon ascend back to 28 Then said Jesus unto them, ^kWhen ye have lifted up the Son of man, ^lthen shall ye know that I am he, and that ^mI do nothing of myself; but, as my Father hath taught me, I speak these things.

29 ⁿAnd he that sent me is with me: the Father hath not left me alone; for ^oI do always those things that please him.

30 As he spake these words ^pmany believed on him.

31 ¶ Then said Jesus to those Jews who believed on him, ^qIf ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed;

32 ^rAnd ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.

33 ¶ They answered him, ^sWe be Abraham's seed, and ^twere never in bondage to any man: how sayest thou, ^uYe shall be made free?

34 Jesus answered them, ^vVerily, verily, I say unto you, ^wWhosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin.

35 ^xAnd the servant abideth not in the house for ever: ^ybut the Son abideth ever.

36 ^zIf the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed.

37 I know that ye are ^aAbraham's seed; ^bbut ye seek to kill me, because my word hath no place in you.

38 ^cI speak that which I have seen with my Father; and ye ^ddo that which ye have seen with your father.

39 They answered and said unto him, Abraham is our father. Jesus saith unto them, If ye were ^eAbraham's children, ye would do the works of Abraham.

40 ^fBut now ye seek to kill me, a man that hath told you the truth, which I have heard of God: this did not Abraham.

41 ^gYe do the deeds of your father. Then said they to him, We be not born of fornication; ^hwe have one Father, even God.

42 Jesus said unto them, ⁱIf God were your Father, ye would love me: for ^kI proceeded forth and came from God;

neither came I of myself, but he sent me.

43 ^lWhy do ye not understand my speech? even because ye cannot hear my word.

44 ^mYe are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. ⁿHe was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it.

45 And ^obecause I tell you the truth, ye believe me not.

46 ^pWhich of you convinceth me of sin? And, if I say the truth, why do ye not believe me?

47 ^qHe that is of God heareth God's words: ye therefore hear them not, because ye are not of God.

48 ¶ Then answered the Jews, and said unto him, Say we not well that thou art ^ra Samaritan, and hast a devil?

49 Jesus answered, ^sI have not a devil: but ^tI honour my Father, and ye do dishonour me.

50 ^uAnd I seek not mine own glory: ^vthere is one that seeketh and judgeth.

51 Verily, verily, I say unto you, ^wIf a man keep my saying he shall never see death.

52 Then said the Jews unto him, Now we know that thou hast a devil. ^xAbraham is dead, and the prophets; and thou sayest, If a man keep my saying he shall never taste of death.

53 ^yArt thou greater than our father Abraham, who is dead? and the prophets are dead: who makest thou thyself?

54 Jesus answered, ^zIf I honour myself, my honour is nothing: ^ait is my Father that honoureth me, of whom ye say that he is your God.

55 ^bYet ye have not known him; but I know him: and if I should say, I know him not, I shall be a liar like unto you: ^cbut I know him, and keep his saying.

56 Your father Abraham ^drejoiced to see my day: and he saw it, and was glad.

57 Then said the Jews unto him, Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast thou seen Abraham?

neither came I of myself, but he sent me.

43 ^lWhy do ye not understand my speech? even because ye cannot hear my word.

44 ^mYe are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. ⁿHe was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it.

my Father, and ye shall earnestly wish to have me among you to deliver you from your miseries, but shall die under the power and guilt of your sin, especially your rejection of me, and be rendered inexpressibly wretched, both in time and through eternity. Nor shall it be in your power to follow me into the heavenly state, either to bring me back or to partake of my glory.—Being not only of an earthly origin, but of unregenerate hearts and carnal tempers, ye cannot have fellowship with me, who am divine, and whose affections are perfectly set on heavenly things: but, on account of your obstinate refusal to embrace and acknowledge me, as the promised Messiah, and only Saviour, and other sins attending it, your city and nation shall be fearfully destroyed in this world, and yourselves for evermore terribly tormented in hell. I still insist on it, that I am the Son of God and promised Messiah:—I could easily charge you with a multitude of crimes, and condemn you for them; but as that is not my present work, I only tell you, that my Father infallibly performs all his promises concerning me, and to me, and them that believe in me, and all his threatenings against those that reject me: and whatever I say to men, is exactly according to the commission which I have received from his uncontrollable and awful authority. 28, 29. But however ignorant ye now are of me, when once ye have crucified me, and occasioned my exaltation to glory, either the happy influences of my Spirit, or the miseries on yourselves and nation, shall convince you, that I act by my Father's authority, and have faithfully declared his doctrines, promises, and threatenings.—And meanwhile my Father, who is one with me in essence, continues with me the unmeasurable unction of his Spirit, and the tokens of his favour to me, as one who always acts agreeably to his will, and for his honour. 31, 32. Jesus said to these weak, or pretended believers, If ye really embrace and adhere to my holy doctrine, and subject your whole souls to it, ye shall be proved and owned to be my disciples in truth, as well as in name; and ye shall be still further enlightened and confirmed in the certainty, excellency, and importance, of my gospel; and, by means of it, be honourably delivered from every thing enthralling, mean, or miserable. 34—36. Notwithstanding your haughty, and even notoriously false, boasts of civil and religious freedom, I assure you, that, be whose descendants you will, if ye indulge yourselves in the practice of wickedness, ye are slaves under the power of your lusts, and the guilt of your sins; and as such, all unbelieving Jews, though the natural seed of Abraham, shall be quickly excluded from God's church and favour, while I, the Son of God, and eminent seed of Abraham, shall continue as Head of the church, and all true believers abide therein as members. If therefore I, who am the Son of God, and Lord of my church, grant you my spiritual freedom, ye shall be really and eminently free from the guilt and dominion of sin, and from the law, as a covenant, and from burdensome ceremonies; and, in fine, free from all evil, and fully possessed of every thing glorious and comfortable. 37—41. I know that ye are the natural descendants of Abraham: but ye are so far from being like him in his faith or obedience, that ye seek to murder me, merely because your own proud and carnal hearts cannot relish nor receive the holy, spiritual, and self-humbling doctrine which I preach unto you. I speak and act as one intimately acquainted with, and obedient to, God my Father; and ye act, as under the influence of, and in communion and concert with, the devil as your true father; a very sure evidence, that ye are not the genuine and believing children of Abraham. 45—47. Not only do ye discredit the proofs of my Sonship and Messiahship, and the doctrines which I preach; but because I tell you truths, which are spiritual and holy, disagreeable to your corrupt inclinations and interests, ye reject both me and them: and so perverse are you, that though ye cannot point out the smallest fault in my behaviour or doctrine, ye obstinately persist in your unbelief. From this it is evident, that ye are not children of God; who are all of them desirous to know, and ready to receive and observe whatever he speaks. 49—51. My continual and earnest study to advance the glory of my Father, in the salvation of his people, fully manifests, that, in my work, I am no way influenced or directed by the devil; nor am I solicitous about either your reproaches or your applause, as I know that my Father will secure me the regard of all his chosen people, and will effectually vindicate my character, and revenge all the indignities offered to it. And I solemnly assure you, that, whosoever heartily embraces and holds fast my spiritual and holy doctrine, in faith and obedience, shall be delivered from every real misery, and enjoy everlasting happiness. 56—58. So highly did your

CHAP. IX.

Here (1) Christ gives sight to a man born blind, by anointing his eyes with clay, and causing him to wash them in the pool of Siloam; 1—7. (2) The man's neighbours converse among themselves, and with him, concerning the cure; 8—12. (3) The Pharisees examine him and his parents; upbraid him for owning Christ, and excommunicate him; 13—34. (4) Christ meets with him, and directs him to firmness of faith in himself; 35—38. (5) Christ declares to the Pharisees, that, while he enlightened some, he would leave them, who were so self-conceited, to perish in their ignorance; 39—41.

AND, as Jesus ^{*}passed by, he saw a man who was blind from his birth.

2 And his disciples asked him, saying, Master, who ^adid sin, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?

3 Jesus answered, ^bNeither hath this man sinned nor his parents: ^cbut that the works of God should be made manifest in him.

4 I must work the works of him that sent me ^dwhile it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work.

5 As long as I am in the world ^eI am the light of the world.

6 When he had thus spoken, ^fhe spat on the ground, and made clay of the spittle, and he ^ganointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay,

7 And said unto him, ^hGo, wash in the ⁱpool of Siloam, (which is, by interpretation, ^jSent). He went his way therefore, and washed, and came seeing.

8 ¶ The neighbours therefore, and they who before had seen him that he was blind, said, Is not this he that sat and begged?

9 Some said, This is he: others said, He is like him: but he said, I am he.

10 Therefore said they unto him, How were thine eyes opened?

11 He answered and said, A man that is called ^kJesus made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said unto me, Go to the pool of Siloam, and wash: and I went and washed, and I received sight.

12 Then said they unto him, Where is he? He said, I know not.

13 ¶ They brought to the Pharisees him that aforetime was blind.

14 And it was ^lthe sabbath day when Jesus made the clay and opened his eyes.

15 ^mThen again the Pharisees also asked him how he had received his sight.

He said unto them, He put clay upon mine eyes, and I washed, and do see.

16 Therefore said some of the Pharisees, This man ⁿis not of God, because he ^okeepeth not the sabbath day. ^pOthers said, How can a man that is a sinner do such miracles? and there was a division among them.

17 They say unto the blind man again, What sayest thou of him, that he hath opened thine eyes? He said, ^qHe is a prophet.

18 But the ^rJews ^sdid not believe concerning him, that he had been blind, and received his sight, until they called the parents of him that had received his sight.

19 And they asked them, saying, Is this your son, who ye say was born blind? how then doth he now see?

20 His parents answered them and said, We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind:

21 But by what means he now seeth we know not; or who hath opened his eyes we know not: he is of age, ask him; he shall speak for himself.

22 These words spake his parents ^tbecause they feared the Jews: for the Jews had agreed already that ^uif any man did confess that he was Christ, he should be put out of the synagogue, 23 Therefore said his parents, He is of age, ask him.

24 Then again called they the man that was blind, and said unto him, ^vGive God the praise: we know that this man is ^wa sinner.

25 He answered and said, Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not: one thing I know; that, whereas I was blind, now I see.

26 ^yThen said they to him again, What did he to thee? how opened he thine eyes?

27 He answered them, I have told you already, and ^zye did not hear: wherefore would ye hear it again? will ye also be his disciples?

28 Then they reviled him, and said, Thou art his disciple; but we are ^aMoses' disciples.

29 We know that ^bGod spake unto Moses: as for ^cthis fellow, ^dwe know not from whence he is.

30 The man answered and said unto them, Why ^eherein is a marvellous thing, that ye know not from whence he is, and yet he hath opened mine eyes.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VIII.—There is great need of caution in dealing with malicious hypocrites. Very abominable is adultery, and richly deserving of capital punishment. But those who indulge themselves in it, or any like wickedness, are very unfit to be zealous prosecutors of the guilty. Many fear shame, on account of sin, more than damnation, and by fleeing from Christ, the merciful Saviour, wilfully destroy themselves. Now he is ready to pardon the greatest transgressions; but he will quickly be an inexorable Judge. He is come into our dark world, to reveal the method of salvation by the gospel, and to illuminate our hearts by his Spirit. Ignorant of, and far from him, we shall certainly wander into everlasting perdition. But under his enlightening influence, we shall avoid dangerous errors, be freed from spiritual slavery, and safely arrive at eternal life. Being a divine person, one with, and sent by, the Father, we may safely rest in, and abide by, his testimony. But no external evidence is sufficient to persuade a carnal heart. Many were the blasphemous contradictions which he endured in the cause of mercy and truth. While he was horribly insulted by the wicked, the hypocritical, the proud and malicious, children of Satan, as if he had been diabolical and mad. And great was the forbearance and meekness which he manifested in his own vindication. It looks ill, when men are enraged by reproof. Unprofitable is descent from the most godly parents, if we continue strangers to their faith and holiness. And it is base to boast of such, while we obstinately persevere in our sins. It is impossible either to know or believe Christ's words, while we remain hardened in carnal lusts, and under the power of the devil. Yea, an empty profession of the true religion but tends to make our case still the more miserable. And if we drive Jesus the Saviour from us now, he will, at last, leave us in our sinfulness and ruin. But happy they, who know his truth, and have it abiding in their heart; who are conformed to his image, and desire after, and delight in, him! Thrice glorious their gospel-liberties, and unspeakable their eternal felicities.

CHAP. IX. Ver. 3, 4. It was not on account of any particular crime, either of his own, or his parents, more than others, that this man was born blind; but that, by opening his eyes, I might manifest my Father's glory, and prove myself to be the Messiah, in miraculously curing him. I must therefore improve the present opportunity of giving him his sight, as an emblem of my enlightening blind souls. And since the day of my mortal life hastens to a period, as long as I am in the world, I must cure not only corporal blindness, but instruct, 31 Now we know that God heareth not sinners: but, if any man be a worshipper of God, and doth his will, him he heareth.

32 Since the world began was it not heard that any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind.

33 If this man were not of God he could do nothing.

34 ¶ They answered and said unto him, Thou wast altogether born in sins, and dost thou teach us? And they cast him out.

35 ¶ Jesus heard that they had cast him out; and, when he had found him, he said unto him, Dost thou believe on the Son of God?

36 He answered and said, Who is he, Lord, that I might believe on him?

37 And Jesus said unto him, Thou hast both seen him, and it is he that talketh with thee.

38 And he said, Lord, I believe. And he worshipped him.

39 ¶ And Jesus said, For judgment I am come into this world; that they who see not might see, and that they who see might be made blind.

40 And some of the Pharisees who were with him heard these words, and said unto him, Are we blind also?

41 Jesus said unto them, If ye were blind, ye should have no sin: but now ye say, We see; therefore your sin remaineth.

CHAP. X.

(1) Christ, continuing his discourse, represents himself as the door of access to God, and as the great and good Shepherd of his people; and indirectly represents the Pharisees as thieves and hirelings; 1—18. (2) The Jews are divided in their opinions concerning him; 19—21. (3) Christ asserts and proves his Messiahship, and supreme Godhead, against the Jews; for which they attempt to stone him to death; 22—38. (4) To escape their fury he returns to the east of Jordan; 39—42.

VERILY, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber.

2 But he that entereth in by the door is the shepherd of the sheep.

3 To him the porter openeth; and the sheep hear his voice: and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out.

4 And, when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him; for they know his voice.

5 And a stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers.

6 This parable spake Jesus unto them: but they understood not what things they were which he spake unto them.

7 Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep.

8 All that ever came before me are thieves and robbers; but the sheep did not hear them.

9 I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture.

10 The thief cometh not but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.

11 I am the good Shepherd: the good Shepherd giveth his life for the sheep.

12 But he that is an hireling, and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth; and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep.

13 The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep.

14 I am the good Shepherd, and take care of his people, those cleanly and tractable, meek, patient, harmless, and cautious, but timorous and exposed, social and useful, fearers of God. And having invested him with all proper authority, God, by his Spirit, and the ministry of his servants, opens the hearts of his people to receive him, and they are taught to understand and distinguish his voice in the gospel: while he, by his grace, calls them to himself, in the most particular manner, and leads them into the good pastures of his word and ordinances.—In so doing, he, by his instruction and example, shews them the way; and they, understanding and approving the same, willingly yield up themselves to his authority, and tread in his steps. But the chosen and called people of God have a fixed aversion to the unscriptural doctrines, and bad example, of false teachers, because they perceive their tendency to lead them away from the right way of salvation. 6—9. Finding that, through their self-conceit, the Pharisaic teachers did not comprehend his meaning, Jesus added, I am the only door of salvation, and way to eternal life, and the only one by whom ministers can have admission to office in the gospel church, or people have access to spiritual privileges and saving benefits. All that, before me, pretended to Messiahship, and all that oppose me and teach other methods of salvation, are but mere intruders into their office, who rob my Father and me of our honour and property, and destroy men's souls: but none of God's elect shall ever be deceived into perdition by their errors, or find satisfaction in following them. I therefore insist on it, as a matter of infinite importance, that I am the only true door of the church, and entrance to eternal life. Whosoever therefore enters upon religion, by faith in me, as the only Saviour, shall certainly be protected from spiritual enemies, delivered from misery of every kind, and obtain eternal blessedness; and shall, under the conduct of my word and Spirit, find access to, liberty in, and spiritual support, nourishment, and comfort, by my divine ordinances. 10—13. False teachers come only to seduce church members, murder their souls, or plunder and persecute them; but I am come to manifest the method of obtaining spiritual and eternal life, yea to purchase it for them, and to bestow it upon them, in the most undeserved, unexpected, eminent, inconceivably large, and everlasting manner. I am the eminently and infinitely good Shepherd of the church, foretold by the prophets; and who not only lead, protect, and feed, but give my very life, soul, and self, in the stead of chosen men, to purchase their eternal happiness.—But they, who from selfish views, commence pastors in the church, having no real affectionate concern for their people, are unwilling to hazard their life, reputation, or secular interests, in their service; but are always ready to shift for themselves, and leave the people to be seduced or perverted, as Satan and his emissaries please.—No wonder they are so careless of their hearers' spiritual and eternal advantage, when they only entered on their office, from a regard to secular advantage. 14—18. And being the infinitely good, and the chief Shepherd of the church, enlighten and comfort, them that are spiritually blind. 39. 41. I am come to establish a rule of judgment; to alter the present state of the church; to try men's spirits; and by distinguishing grace, to separate the precious from the vile; to open blind eyes, and teach ignorant souls; and to manifest and occasion the increase of their stupidity and perverseness, who, through self-conceit, shut their eyes against the light of my word.—If you, Pharisees, who pretend to so much knowledge and ability to instruct others, were either grossly ignorant or as sensible of your ignorance as many of the common people, your sin, in rejecting me, would be far less heinous, and there would be hopes of your deliverance from it; but, while ye are so self-conceited, your sin is highly aggravated, and it is most probable that you will remain under its guilt and power for ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IX.—We ought to be extremely cautious in our interpretation of providences. Men's sins are not to be judged of from their sufferings. It is enough that God is righteous, and will make all things turn out to his own glory. We have great need to be diligent in working out our salvation, while we have life and opportunity to walk in Christ's light. Marvellous is his power, and ready his grace towards the unworthy and distressed. He works the most effectual salvation by means the most unlikely. It is his appointment, not any natural virtue, that renders them effectual. And only in obedience to his authority can we justly expect benefit by them.—What blessed experience of his mercy he gives to the obedient! and with cheerful thankfulness it should be acknowledged to his glory. He can easily make the weakest of his followers wiser than their teachers,—bold confessors of his name,—and humble adorers of his Majesty. And if men reject and abuse them for his sake, he will reward them with repeated manifestations of his glory. But, alas! how desirous are some to avoid owning of him, even after he hath bestowed singular favours upon them. The fear of men causeth a snare. The censures of the church are often turned against her best friends. But inexcusable are they, who, through self-conceit, condemn all means of conviction, and upbraid Jesus and his followers. Rage against reproof most plainly discovers real ignorance. But hopeful is the case of such as perceive their own weakness and sinfulness, and dangerous is their's who are proud of their knowledge and religion.

CHAP. X. Ver. 1—5. I, who am truth itself, solemnly assure you, that whoever they are who enter into any office in God's church, not according to his appointment, but by methods of their own devising, are intruders and seducers, who instead of feeding and governing his people, attempt to rob God of his authority over, and property in, them, and to pervert and destroy their souls. But he who, from right principles and ends, and in the manner appointed by God, enters upon the work of feeding and guiding the church, hath a proper right to take care of his people, those cleanly and tractable, meek, patient, harmless, and cautious, but timorous and exposed, social and useful, fearers of God. And having invested him with all proper authority, God, by his Spirit, and the ministry of his servants, opens the hearts of his people to receive him, and they are taught to understand and distinguish his voice in the gospel: while he, by his grace, calls them to himself, in the most particular manner, and leads them into the good pastures of his word and ordinances.—In so doing, he, by his instruction and example, shews them the way; and they, understanding and approving the same, willingly yield up themselves to his authority, and tread in his steps. know my sheep, and am known of mine.

15 As the Father knoweth me, even so know I the Father: and I lay down my life for the sheep.

16 And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice: and there shall be one fold and one shepherd.

17 Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life that I might take it again.

18 No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. This commandment have I received of my Father.

19 ¶ There was a division therefore again among the Jews for these sayings.

20 And many of them said, He hath a devil, and is mad; why hear ye him?

21 Others said, These are not the words of him that hath a devil. Can a devil open the eyes of the blind?

22 ¶ And it was at Jerusalem the feast of the dedication, and it was winter.

23 And Jesus walked in the temple in Solomon's porch.

24 Then came the Jews round about him, and said unto him, How long dost thou make us to doubt? If thou be the Christ, tell us plainly.

25 Jesus answered them, I told you, and ye believed not: the works that I do in my Father's name, they bear witness of me.

26 But ye believe not, because ye are not of my sheep, as I said unto you.

27 My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me:

28 And I give unto them eternal life;

I perfectly know, exactly observe, and tenderly care for, all my chosen people, who are, by my Father's gift, my own purchase, and their self-dedication, my peculiar property; and they spiritually know me and my doctrine, and fiducially and affectionately embrace me, and hearken to it. And as the Father perfectly knows, loves, approves, and confides in me, I also am perfectly acquainted with him and all his counsels, and trust in him, and delight to do his will. Such is my love to him and to my chosen people, that I am willing and ready to lay down my life in their stead, that they may obtain eternal salvation. And besides those Jews which I have called, or will effectually call, into my church, I must, in pursuance of my eternal engagements, and in justice to my purchase of them, effectually bring in multitudes also of chosen Gentiles, and unite them with those Jews in the gospel church, new covenant, or heavenly state, under my special care, influences, and government.—And not only doth my Father love me as his only begotten Son, but even on account of my zeal for the manifestation of his glory in the salvation of sinful men, in so cheerfully dying for the expiation of their sins that I might rise again for their justification.—No man, by either stratagem or force, can deprive me of my life without my own consent;—but, as absolute proprietor thereof, I voluntarily lay it down, and will, by my own power, rise from the dead, after making satisfaction for the sins of my people, according to the commandment and will of my Father. 25—30. Not only have I, in the strongest declarations, asserted my Messiahship, though ye perversely refused to believe me, but I have demonstrated it by my divine and miraculous works: yet such is your obstinacy, that no declarations or demonstrations will persuade you; as I know, and the event proves, that ye are none of my chosen people, whom the Father hath given me, and whom he, by the effectual power of his grace, draws to me.—As I distinctly know, observe, and love, them, all of them, in the day of my power, attend to, distinguish, prize, and willingly obey, the voice of my word and Spirit, and readily follow my instructions and example. And I freely give them an irrevocable right to all spiritual and eternal benefits, lead them now into some enjoyment of them, and, in due time, will put them into the full possession.—Nor shall either their own weakness, unworthiness, or sinfulness, make them fall short of heaven; nor any artful power or combination of men or devils ever wrest them out of my protection, care, or keeping. Nay, my heavenly Father, who loves them, and hath a peculiar interest in them, and who committed them to me that I might bring them safely to glory, being infinitely superior to all their enemies in power and wisdom, it is absolutely impossible to defeat his gracious designs towards them, or to entice or force them out of his almighty hands, in which they are kept, through faith, unto salvation. And my Father and I, being the very same in nature, power, and every other perfection, as well as in will and design, we must be both overcome, before the weakest of our and they shall never perish, neither shall any pluck them out of my hand.

29 My Father, who gave them me, is greater than all: and none is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand.

30 I and my Father are one.

31 ¶ Then the Jews took up stones again to stone him.

32 Jesus answered them, Many good works have I shewed you from my Father; for which of those works do ye stone me?

33 The Jews answered him, saying, For a good work we stone thee not; but for blasphemy, and because that thou, being a man, makest thyself God.

34 Jesus answered them, Is it not written in your law, I said, Ye are gods?

35 If he called them gods unto whom the word of God came, (and the scripture cannot be broken,)

36 Say ye of him, whom the Father hath sanctified and sent into the world, Thou blasphemest; because I said, I am the Son of God?

37 If I do not the works of my Father, believe me not.

38 But if I do, though ye believe not me, believe the works: that ye may know and believe that the Father is in me, and I in him.

39 ¶ Therefore they sought again to take him: but he escaped out of their hand, 40 And went away again beyond Jordan into the place where John at first baptized; and there he abode.

41 And many resorted unto him, and said, John did no miracle: but all things that John spake of this man were true.

42 And many believed on him there.

chosen ones can be deprived of eternal life. 32. Many great and merciful works I have wrought among you, in confirmation of my character, in feeding multitudes of hungry persons, healing all manner of diseases, raising the dead, and casting out tormenting devils. For which of these do you intend to stone me to death? 34—38. And when the scripture, which is infallible, and must be accomplished, calls your magistrates Gods, who were but types and shadows of the Messiah, why do you perversely charge me, in whom these types are perfectly fulfilled, and whom the Father hath appointed from eternity, and hath sent into the world to exercise all authority as the true Messiah, with blasphemy, for asserting my oneness in nature and perfections with the Father? If I do not perform works as great and glorious as could be expected from the Father, and which, being superior and contrary to the laws of nature, must be performed by that power, which is in the Father himself, I do not claim your belief as the Son of God or promised Messiah. But if I perform works peculiar to God, and in a manner proper to him, then, however ye disregard my person or doctrine in itself, submit to the unexceptionable evidence of my miracles, that ye may be convinced that my Father and I have essential and necessary communion in Godhead.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. X.—Infinitely necessary and useful is Jesus Christ to sinful men, as their Shepherd, to seek out, gather, and feed them; as their door and entrance to, and the precious price of, salvation. Indissoluble are his new-covenant connexions with his people, and kind his regards to them. Unbounded was his love in giving his life for their ransom, and rising again for their justification. And through him they receive the most holy liberty, inexpressible delight, spiritual supplies, and superabundant and endless felicity. With what transcendent faithfulness, wisdom, and grace, he seeks them out, brings them from their lost estate into his covenant and church, and guides, governs, protects, and goes before, them through life and death into everlasting blessedness! Infallible is their perseverance, and certain their eternal life, when all the glorious perfections, relations, and promises of Jesus Christ, and his Father, are their security. But base are the men, who, without his commission, thrust themselves into offices in his church, or behave indolently, unconcernedly, or tyrannically therein. Let every one that regards the life of his soul flee from them. The purpose of God certainly stands firm, whether with respect to men's salvation or damnation. But how implacable is the rage, which words of infinite grace, offers of unbounded fulness, declarations of truth, and merciful miracles unnumbered, do but heighten and provoke to murder the Saviour! No wonder he abandons such, and offers his presence to others more likely to regard him.

After weeping, and the removal of the grave-stone, and after solemn thanksgiving to his Father, he raises Lazarus from the dead; 33—44. (4) While the enraged priests and rulers plot together to murder him, he retires to the country, and is inquired for; 45—57.

NOW a certain man was sick, named Lazarus, of ^aBethany, the town of ^bMary and her sister Martha.

2 (It was that Mary who anointed the Lord with ointment, and wiped his feet with her hair, whose brother Lazarus was sick.)

3 Therefore his sisters sent unto him, saying, Lord, behold, ^dhe whom thou lovest is sick.

4 When Jesus heard that he said, ^eThis sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby.

5 Now ^fJesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus.

6 When he had heard therefore that he was sick ^ghe abode two days still in the same place where he was.

7 Then after that saith he to his disciples, ^hLet us go into Judea again.

8 His disciples say unto him, Master, the Jews of late sought to stone thee; and goest thou thither again?

9 Jesus answered, ^kAre there not twelve hours in the day? If any man walk in the day, he stumbleth not, because he seeth the light of this world.

10 ^lBut, if a man walk in the night, he stumbleth, because there is no light in him.

11 These things said he: and after that he saith unto them, ^mOur friend Lazarus ⁿsleepeth; but I go that I may awake him out of sleep.

12 Then said his disciples, Lord, if he sleep, ^ohe shall do well.

13 Howbeit, Jesus spake of his death: but they thought that he had spoken of taking of rest in sleep.

14 Then said Jesus unto them ^pplainly, Lazarus is dead,

15 And I am glad for your sakes that I was not there, to the intent ^qye may believe; nevertheless, let us go unto him.

16 Then said ^rThomas, who is called Didymus, unto his fellow disciples, ^sLet us also go, that we may die with him.

17 Then, when Jesus came, he found that he had lain in the grave four days already.

18 Now Bethany was nigh unto Jerusalem, ^tabout fifteen furlongs off.

19 And many of the Jews came to Martha and Mary, ^uto comfort them concerning their brother.

20 Then Martha, as soon as she heard that Jesus was coming, went and met him: but Mary sat still in the house.

21 Then said Martha unto Jesus, Lord, ^vif thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.

22 But I know that even now, ^wwhatsoever thou wilt ask of God, God will give it thee.

23 Jesus saith unto her, ^xThy brother shall rise again.

24 Martha saith unto him, ^yI know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day.

25 Jesus said unto her, ^zI am the resurrection and the life: ^ahe that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live:

26 ^bAnd whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. ^cBelievest thou this?

27 She saith unto him, ^dYea, Lord: I believe that thou art the Christ the Son of God, who should come into the world.

28 And when she had so said she went her way, and called Mary her sister secretly, saying, ^eThe Master is come, and calleth for thee.

29 ^fAs soon as she heard that, she arose quickly, and came unto him.

30 Now Jesus was not yet come into the town, but was in that place where Martha met him.

31 The Jews then, who were with her in the house and ^gcomforted her, when they saw Mary, that she rose up hastily, and went out, followed her, saying, She goeth unto the grave to weep there.

32 Then, when Mary was come where Jesus was, and saw him, ^hshe fell down at his feet, saying unto him, ⁱLord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.

33 When Jesus therefore saw her weeping, and the Jews also weeping who came with her, ^jhe groaned in the spirit, and ^kwas troubled, 34 And said, Where have ye laid him? They say unto him, Lord, come and see.

35 ^lJesus wept.

36 Then said the Jews, Behold how he loved him!

37 And some of them said, Could not this man, ^mwho opened the eyes of the blind, have caused that even this man should not have died?

38 Jesus therefore, again ⁿgroaning in himself, cometh to the grave. ^oIt was a cave, and a stone lay upon it.

39 Jesus said, Take ye away the stone. Martha, the sister of him that was dead, saith unto him, Lord, ^pby this time he stinketh; for he hath been dead four days.

40 Jesus saith unto her, Said I not unto thee, ^qThat, if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldest see the glory of God?

41 Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lifted up his eyes, and said, Father, ^rI thank thee that thou hast heard me.

42 And I knew ^sthat thou hearest me always: but ^tbecause of the people who stand by I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me.

43 And, when he had thus spoken, he CHAP. XI. Ver. 25, 26. Not only will the Father grant me whatever I request, but I have life in myself, and can quicken, spiritually or corporally, whomsoever I please. Every one therefore that believeth in me shall be quickened in his soul, and even in his body at the resurrection; or, if I please, in this world also. And no one that, being spiritually quickened, believeth on me, shall ever undergo eternal death, nor shall his body be always continued in the state of the dead. 41—43. Christ never prayed for power to work a miracle, having infinite power in himself; but here he thanked his Father for this opportunity of demonstrating his Messiahship, for the confirmation of his disciples and the conviction of others present.

cried with a loud voice, "Lazarus, come forth.

44 And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with grave clothes; and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go.

45 Then many of the Jews who came to Mary, and had seen the things which Jesus did, believed on him.

46 But some of them went their ways to the Pharisees, and told them what things Jesus had done.

47 ¶ Then gathered the chief priests and the Pharisees a council, and said, "What do we? for this man doth many miracles."

48 If we let him thus alone, all men will believe on him: and the Romans shall come, and take away both our place and nation.

49 And one of them, named Caiaphas, being the high priest that same year, said unto them, "Ye know nothing at all,

50 Nor consider that it is expedient for us that one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation perish not.

51 And this spake he not of himself: but, being high priest that year, he prophesied that Jesus should die for that nation;

52 And not for that nation only, but that also he should gather together in one the children of God that were scattered abroad.

53 Then from that day forth they took counsel together for to put him to death.

54 Jesus therefore walked no more openly among the Jews; but went thence unto a country near to the wilderness, into a city called Ephraim, and there continued with his disciples.

55 ¶ And the Jews' passover was nigh at hand: and many went out of the country up to Jerusalem before the passover, to purify themselves.

56 Then sought they for Jesus, and spake among themselves, as they stood in the temple, "What think ye, that he will not come to the feast?"

57 Now both the chief priests and the Pharisees had given a commandment, that, if any man knew where he were, he should shew it, that they might take him.

CHAP. XII.

Inform us how (1) Mary the sister of Lazarus, to the great vexation of Judas, anointed Jesus' feet; 1—8. (2) The chief priests plotted to murder both Christ and Lazarus, whom the people flocked to see; 9—11. (3) Jesus entered Jerusalem in triumph riding on an ass; 12—19. (4) Upon occasion of some Greeks desiring to see him, he foretold his death, and its happy effects in the conversion and salvation of multitudes; 20—33. (5) He warned the Jews to improve his presence and gospel during the short time they would enjoy it; 34—36. (6) The Jews generally persisted in their unbelief, and some rulers believed, but for fear of their brethren, did not own him; 37—43. (7) Christ asserted his divine mission; 44—50.

THEN Jesus, six days before the passover, came to Bethany, where Lazarus was who had been dead, whom he raised from the dead.

2 There they made him a supper, and Martha served: but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him.

3 Then took Mary a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair: and the house was filled with the odour of the ointment.

4 Then saith one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, who should betray him, 5 Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence, and given to the poor?

6 This he said, not that he cared for the poor; but because he was a thief, and had the bag, and bare what was put therein.

7 Then said Jesus, Let her alone: against the day of my burying hath she kept this.

8 For the poor always ye have with you; but me ye have not always.

9 ¶ Much people of the Jews therefore knew that he was there: and they came not for Jesus' sake only, but that they might see Lazarus also, whom he had raised from the dead.

10 But the chief priests consulted that they might put Lazarus also to death;

11 Because that by reason of him many of the Jews went away, and believed on Jesus.

12 ¶ On the next day, much people that were come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem, 13 Took branches of palm trees, and went forth to meet him, and cried, Hosanna: blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord.

14 And Jesus, when he had found a young ass, sat thereon; as it is written, 15 Fear not, daughter of Zion: behold, thy King cometh, sitting on an ass's colt.

16 These things understood not his disciples at the first: but, when Jesus was glorified, then remembered they that these things were written of him, and that they had done these things unto him.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XI.—Jesus keeps an exact account of all his people's works of faith and their labours of love. But the most eminent piety cannot exclude afflictions and death. Yet if Christ love us we may boldly apply to him in our distress. And happy is it if our troubles give him an opportunity to glorify himself, and either prepare us for, or usher us into, everlasting happiness. He often indeed sovereignly defers relief till it become seemingly impossible. But neither danger nor provocation can make him to neglect his work in its proper season. And with cheerfulness and activity we ought always to follow his example. The death of our godly friends should make life less sweet, death less bitter, and heaven more desirable, to us. Dead saints ought not to be lamented as lost, but as gone before, to be with Christ, and to be raised with him to glory.—Many mournful changes may happen in a short time. And it is absurd to pride ourselves in our bodies that may quickly become so ugly and noisome. It is very friendly to attempt comforting the distressed; but only Jesus' presence can afford solid relief. He at once delightfully acts as the mighty God, the object of faith, and raiser of the dead; and as the affectionate man whose heart sympathizes with the afflicted, and is burdened with their unbelief. With eagerness then should we run to meet him, and pour our lamentations, as well as our requests into his bosom. Secret fellowship may ascertain his approaching gracious deliverances. For quickly his salvation comes, whenever our heart is prepared for it by faith. And we never believe aright till we receive and rest on him as God's eternal Son and our given Saviour. With eager delight he lays hold on every opportunity to comfort his people and glorify his Father; and with the greatest ease he can command instantaneous deliverances to either soul or body. No death, no bands, can hinder his work. Alas! that while his marvellous works affect some, they should but enrage others against him. And great must be the wickedness of human hearts that can be thus influenced. But none are more furious enemies to the Redeemer than careless clergymen; and nothing more hurries men into plots and practices against him than worldly views. While all things work together for the redemption of God's elect, Jews or Gentiles, the sinful methods taken to preserve nations do but accelerate their ruin. While Christ hides himself, he may be sought for different ends; and, though he delay his approach, he will always attend the ordinances of his own grace.

21 The same came therefore to Philip, who was of Bethsaida of Galilee, and desired him, saying, Sir, "we would see Jesus.

22 Philip cometh and telleth Andrew: and again Andrew and Philip tell Jesus.

23 ¶ And Jesus answered them, saying, "The hour is come that the Son of man should be glorified.

24 Verily, verily, I say unto you, "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but, if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit.

32 And I, if I be "lifted up from the earth, "will draw "all men unto me.

33 (This he said, signifying what death he should die.)

34 The people answered him, We have heard out of the law "that Christ abideth for ever: and how sayest thou, The Son of man must be lifted up? "Who is this Son of man?

35 Then Jesus said unto them, "Yet a little while is the light with you. "Walk while ye have the light, lest "darkness come upon you: for "he that walketh in darkness knoweth not whither he goeth.

36 "While ye have light, believe in the light that ye may be "the children of light. These things spake Jesus, and "departed, and did hide himself from them.

CHAP. XII. Ver. 23—26. This request of the Greeks manifests that the time appointed of the Father for glorifying me, in the salvation of the Gentiles as well as the Jews, is just at hand.—Were I to continue in my present state, without dying a sacrifice for sin, I should not have the honour of raising up a spiritual seed to bear my image and shew forth my praise; but, being made an offering for sin, I shall be glorified in the conversion, and salvation, and praises, of ransomed multitudes.—And ye likewise must be conformed to me in entering into your glory through much tribulation: for whoever, from love to this life and the enjoyments of it, denies, disowns, and rejects, me, that he may escape persecution and danger, shall certainly fall short of the heavenly felicity; and he that undervalues his natural life, and all its enjoyments, for my sake, shall certainly inherit eternal life as his gracious reward. If any man therefore would be a true Disciple and servant to me, let him follow my example, and the instructions of my word, providence, and Spirit. Then shall he quickly share with me in the felicities of the heavenly world, in which my divine nature is at present, and my human will shortly be: and his unfeigned devoting himself to my service shall issue in his obtaining immortal honours from my Father. 27—30. My soul is inexpressibly distressed, in the views of my approaching sufferings and tribulations from every quarter. If it were possible, I could gladly be excused from it; but I do not insist upon it, as the great end of my coming into the world is to undergo them; I therefore entirely resign myself to the will of God, and beg that in all I do or suffer his perfections may be glorified to the highest.—To which the Father, by a voice from heaven, replied, That he had already glorified himself in his obedience, ministry, and miracles, and would further glorify himself in his sufferings and death, and in the compleat salvation of Jews and Gentiles flowing therefrom. 31. Certainly and quickly shall both Jews and Gentiles be tried with regard to their thoughts of me: the righteous shall be distinguished from the wicked, and they shall be acquitted or condemned answerably to their believing or not believing in me. And Satan, who hath long reigned over most part of the world, in ignorance, idolatry, and other wickedness, and who reigns in the hearts of worldly men, shall be totally vanquished, his claim defeated, his oracles silenced, and himself be cast out of men's hearts, by the powerful spread of the gospel. 32. And I, after first offering up myself a sacrifice for sin on a cross, and in the virtue of it ascending to my Father's right hand, will erect my kingdom upon the ruins of his, drawing multitudes of all ranks, Gentiles as well as Jews, to myself by my word and Spirit. 35, 36. As the light of my personal ministry, or even the dispensation by my apostles, is to continue but a short time with you Jews, ye ought without delay, to make the most diligent improvement of it; for, if ye do not, ye must be left to continue in your ignorance and unbelief to your utter destruction, in time and eternity. While you have me and my gospel among you, to shew you the way of salvation, believe in me, that ye may receive the truth in the love of it, and be under its infallible direction, till ye be admitted into the mansions of glory above. 44—50. He that truly believes in me as the promised Messiah, believes not in me only or ultimately, but, together with and through me, believes in my heavenly Father, who sent me into the world to seek and save lost sinners. And he who, by faith, discerns my person and office, is thereby led into the knowledge of my Father's nature, perfections, and will. I am come into this world to dispel the darkness of ignorance, superstition, and idolatry, and to bring life and immortality to light by the gospel, that whosoever receives and trusts in me should not continue under the power of spiritual blindness, nor wander in the way to eternal misery, but be instructed and guided in the way to everlasting blessedness. And if men, who have had opportunities of hearing and knowing my gospel, wilfully refuse it, and me in it, I will at present neither accuse them to the Father, nor pass nor execute upon them any sentence of condemnation; as the direct design of my coming into the world is not to accuse, condemn, or punish, but to purchase, offer, and effectually apply, spiritual and eternal salvation to all that believe, whether Jews or Gentiles. But he that contemns and rejects me and my doctrines shall, in due time, find an impartial Judge to try, condemn, and punish, him: and the truths which I have preached shall be the rule of judgment, and the awful means of aggravating his offences, in the last day. For the holy, excellent, supernatural, and gracious, nature of the doctrines which I have taught, and my manner of delivering and confirming the same, manifests that I have uttered them as one directed and authorised by my Father. And whatever ye think of it, I know that what I preach by his authority is the only mean of bringing lost sinners to everlasting life; and it is at your infinite peril to reject it.

CHAP. XIII.

Christ, having finished his public discourses, here, after the passover supper, (1) Washes his disciples' feet, to set them an example of humility and love; 1—17. (2) Foretells and marks out who should betray him; 18—30. (3) Instructs them in the great doctrine of his sufferings, and great duty of brotherly love; 31—35. (4) Foretells Peter's denial of him; 36—38.

NOW ^abefore the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that ^bhis hour was come, that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, ^chaving loved his own who were in the world, he loved them unto the end.

2 And ^dsupper being ended; (^ethe devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him;)

3 Jesus, knowing that ^fthe Father had given all things into his hands, and that ^ghe was come from God, and went to God;

4 ^hHe riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments, and took a towel, and girded himself.

5 After that he poureth water into a bason, and began to ⁱwash the disciples' feet, and to wipe ^jthem with the towel wherewith he was girded.

6 Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and Peter saith unto him, Lord, ^kdost thou wash my feet?

7 Jesus answered and said unto him, ^lWhat I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XII.—Grateful acknowledgments should never be long delayed. While true believers think all expence and service for Christ too little, hypocrites grudge him either heart, hand, or purse; and it is not regard to the poor, but love to the world that sways them. While some gospel hearers relish the report of Jesus and his works, others are thereby filled with murderous rancour. And the more Christ honours men, the world will hate them the more. Yea the stronger evidence of his character Christ gives, obstinate unbelievers are the more exasperated; and, if God check them, they become more resolute in wickedness. But let them rage as they please, Jesus will royally triumph over all opposition, fulfil his Father's promises, and honour his perfections, in both his sufferings and glories.—Thrice happy is it, if even curiosity lead us to the saving knowledge of him, and if regard to his favourites occasion our intimacy with himself!—Great is the virtue of his obedience and death, for glorifying God, vanquishing Satan, and converting Jews, and especially Gentiles, to God. Much self-denial is necessary in following him aright. And transcendent is their reward who faithfully serve him, and, by faith, improve the light of his gospel while they have it. But great is their guilt and misery who indulge spite, devise cavils, and shut their eyes against the illuminations of his word; or who, for secular honours, avoid the open profession of his name. Abandoned by God, they go on in the ways of ignorance and self-deceit, till they land in the depths

8 Peter saith unto him, ^mThou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, ⁿIf I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me.

9 Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, ^onot my feet only, but also my hands and my head.

10 Jesus saith to him, He that is ^pwashed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and ^qye are clean but not all.

11 For he knew who should betray him: therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.

12 So, after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was sat down again, he said unto them, ^rKnow ye what I have done to you?

13 ^sYe call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am.

14 ^tIf I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash one another's feet.

15 For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.

16 ^uVerily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord: neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him.

17 ^vIf ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.

18 ¶ I speak not of you all; ^wI know whom I have chosen: but, that the scripture may be fulfilled, ^xHe that eateth bread with me hath lifted up his heel against me.

19 ^yNow ^aI tell you before it come, that, when it is come to pass, ye may believe that I am he.

20 ^bVerily, verily, I say unto you, He that receiveth whomsoever I send receiveth me: and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me.

21 When Jesus had thus said, ^che was troubled in spirit, and testified, and said, ^dVerily, verily, I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me.

22 ^eThen the disciples looked one on another, doubting of whom he spake.

23 Now there was leaning on Jesus' bosom one of his disciples, ^fwhom Jesus loved.

24 Simon Peter therefore beckoned to him, that he should ask who it should be of whom he spake.

25 He then, ^glying on Jesus' breast, saith unto him, Lord, who is it?

26 Jesus ^hanswered, He it is to whom I shall give a ⁱsop when I have dipped of hell. Dreadful will be their case when he, who came into the world to save men, shall judge and condemn them at last. Yea, nothing will more fearfully aggravate their guilt and punishment than abused means of salvation.

CHAP. XIII. Ver. 1, 7. You know not the reasons of what I am now doing, and little think what is my meaning in it; but I will in a little time somewhat explain my design; and when the Holy Ghost shall be poured out from on high, he will further acquaint you with it, and make you to experience the benefit of it. 8. You may think your refusal is a humble aversion to my disparaging myself, but you cannot be my disciple if you set yourself against my authority, wisdom, and love; and you can have no fellowship with me, or interest in my saving blessings, unless you be spiritually washed in my blood, and, by my word and Spirit, from the guilt and filth of your sins. 10. He who is once justified and sanctified by my blood and Spirit, needs only to be further cleansed, in the daily exercise of faith and repentance, from the guilt and defilement which, through remaining corruption, he perpetually contracts by his conversation in the world. And most, though not all, of you present are cleansed in this respect. 18. I do not expect you all to be either obedient or happy. I know that, though I have chosen you all to the apostleship, there is one among you, sitting familiarly with us at table, that is not chosen to faith, holiness, and salvation

it. And when he had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon.

27 And after the sop ^k Satan entered into him. Then said Jesus unto him, That thou dost, do quickly.

28 Now no man at the table knew for what intent he spake this unto him.

29 For some of them thought, because ^m Judas had the bag, that Jesus had said unto him, Buy those things that we have need of against the feast: or, that he should give something to the poor.

30 He then, having received the sop, went immediately out: and it was night.

31 ¶ Therefore, when he was gone out, Jesus said, Now is the Son of man glorified, and God is glorified in him.

32 ^p If God be glorified in him, God shall also glorify him in himself, and shall straightway glorify him.

33 Little children, ^a yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me: and, as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go ye cannot come; so now I say to you.

34 A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.

35 By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.

36 ¶ Simon Peter said unto him, Lord, Whither goest thou? Jesus answered him, Whither I go thou canst not follow me now: but thou shalt follow me afterwards.

37 Peter said unto him, Lord, Why cannot I follow thee now? I will lay down my life for thy sake.

38 Jesus answered him, Wilt thou lay down thy life for my sake? Verily, verily, I say unto thee, The cock shall not crow till thou hast denied me thrice.

and who will ungratefully desert and betray me. 31, 32. Now the hour is just at hand when I, the Messiah, shall, by more remarkable sufferings and death, gloriously fulfil all my engagements in the room of elect men, conquer sin, Satan, and all his assistants, and purchase an eternal redemption; yea all the perfections of my heavenly Father shall be harmoniously exalted in this my astonishing self-abasement, and therefore shall he honour me in my sufferings by amazing signs and wonders, and with testimonies extorted from enemies themselves; and shall speedily and suitably reward me with a glorious resurrection, ascension, and exaltation at his right hand. 34. The command of brotherly love is here called new, not as if it had not all along existed in the law of God, but because Christ revived it when it was sadly corrupted and almost forgotten, and enjoined it by a new example, and with new explications, motives, and enforcements, that it might be observed with a new spirit and temper, and in a new manner, as a fundamental law of his kingdom, written in his people's hearts by the Spirit of the New Testament; and because it is most excellent, and will be eternally in full force.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIII.—How affectionate and permanent is Christ's love to his people. Astonishing was his condescension for their instruction and advantage. And it is impossible to be his disciples unless he wash us by his blood and Spirit, and render us ready to obey his command, and imitate his condescension and kindness. If his providences be dark, we must wait till he explain them, and meanwhile daily apply his word, Spirit, and blood, for the further purification of our heart and life. Without hesitation we must always submit to his authority, and put all the knowledge which we have of his truths into practice. To know better, and do worse, is doubly criminal. And, alas, awful is the thought that any who are in profession Christ's disciples, and under the highest visible relation and obligation to him, should kick at and betray him! But fearfully Satan leads men captive at his will when they are left to their own corruptions. Yea never is he more ready to enter into men than when they are employed in solemn acts of religion: and desertion of godly society is a common inlet to final apostasy.—It is a great mercy that the Lord knows them that are his, and will preserve them in their new-covenant state and gracious course, notwithstanding all their mistakes, defects, ignorance, rashness, and self-confidence; and that, notwithstanding the most dreadful falls, he will guide them by his counsel, and afterward bring them to his glory. Transcendent were the glories of our Redeemer in his death and exaltation to heaven; and marvellous the displays of the divine perfections in him, as manifested, and to be for ever manifested, in the salvation of men. Strong then is the reason, and plain the duty, of following him through good report and bad report, and of loving all them that bear his image for his sake.

CHAP. XIV.

Having convicted and discarded Judas, Christ here comforts his disciples and followers, (1) With views of heaven, as their everlasting rest; 1—3. (2) With views of himself, as their way to it and their divine Mediator; 4—11. (3) With promises of great power and success, in answer to their prayers; 12—14. (4) With promises of the indwelling instructions and directions of the Holy Ghost; 15—17, 25, 26. (5) With the promises of much fellowship with himself and his Father, and much spiritual peace even on earth; 18—24, 27. (6) With the view of his own cheerful departure from them by death; 28—31.

LET not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.

2 In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you.

3 And, if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also.

4 And whither I go ye know, and the way ye know.

5 ¶ Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest; and how can we know the way?

6 Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, and the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father but by me.

7 If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also: and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him.

8 ¶ Philip saith unto him, Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us.

9 Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father?

CHAP. XIV. Ver. 1—3. Be not discomposed or terrified at my being betrayed, nor at my approaching ignominies and death, nor at the disappointments and sufferings which ye may be called to undergo on my account; but labour to live by faith, not only on God's promises, but also on my character, offices, relations, work, and fulness, as represented in the gospel, as the effectual means of quieting your hearts. For in heaven, where my Father dwells in the highest manifestations of himself, there are many delightful abodes, and some in which ye shall have eternal rest and satisfaction after your toil and trouble on earth. If it had been otherwise, I would have faithfully and kindly undeceived you: but I am going away from you by death to purchase that glory for you, and by my ascension, to take possession of it in your name, and to prepare every thing in the best manner for your arrival thither.—And when, and as surely as, I go in this manner to prepare heaven for you, I will quickly return, by my Spirit, to prepare you for it; and will receive your souls at death, and your whole persons at my second appearance, into my immediate presence and fellowship, that ye may be for ever in a state of freedom, honour, and delight, where I already am, in my divine nature, and shortly will be in my human.

6, 7. I myself am the only mean of access to, and acceptance with, God, and of your receiving grace and eternal blessedness for him. I am the Way, as by my own blood, I am entering into the holy place, and will thereby open a path for you to follow me. I am the Truth, as all the legal types and ancient promises are fulfilled in me, and as I attest the truths of God and teach you the sure way to heaven. And I am the Life, as I have life in myself, and am the author of spiritual and eternal life to all that believe in me;—so that no man can acceptably approach to God in worship, or have any comfortable communion with him, by faith and love here, or any personal admission into his immediate presence hereafter, in any other way than by me. And, if ye had known what I am in my person, natures, and office, ye would have known what my Father is, who is one with me in all essential properties. And, as ye have begun to see him in the manifestations which I have made of his power and goodness, ye shall hereafter, by the descent of the Holy Ghost, and by other means, know more and more of him.

9—11. Whoever is duly acquainted with me, who am his express image, in my person, offices, and work, hath seen the most lively displays of the Father's perfections. Why then, after so long acquaintance with me, do you unadvisedly desire a visible representation of him to satisfy all your doubts? Do you not yet believe that I and my Father, though distinct persons, are essentially united, and have the most real, mutual, and intimate communion in Godhead? For neither do I preach the doctrines which you have heard, nor perform the miraculous works which you have seen, but as inseparably united to and sent by him. Believe therefore, upon the authority of my word, and upon the credit of my miracles which I perform in so godlike a manner, that I and my Father have myself: but the Father, that dwelleth in me, 'he doth the works.

11 Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me; or else 'believe me for the very works' sake.

12 ¶ Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, 'the works that I do shall he do also; and 'greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father.

13 'And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son.

14 If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it.

15 ¶ 'If ye love me, keep my commandments.

16 'And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever;

17 'Even the Spirit of truth; whom 'the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he 'dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.

18 'I will not leave you *comfortless: I will come to you.

19 'Yet a little while, and the world seeth me no more; but ye see me: 'because I live, ye shall live also,

20 At that day ye shall know 'that I am in my Father, and 'ye in me, and I in you.

21 'He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he 'that loveth me shall be loved of my Father; and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him.

22 Judas 'saith unto him, (not Iscariot), Lord, 'how is it that thou wilt manifest thyself unto us, and not unto the world?

23 Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me he will keep my words; and my Father will love him; and 'we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.

24 'He that loveth me not keepeth not my sayings: 'and the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's which sent me.

25 'These things have I spoken unto you, being yet present with you.

26 'But the Comforter, who is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, 'he shall teach you all things, and 'bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you.

27 ¶ 'Peace I leave with you: my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth give I unto you. Let 'not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.

28 Ye have heard how I said unto you, 'I go away, and come again unto you. If ye loved me, 'ye would rejoice, because I said, I go unto the Father: for my Father is 'greater than I.

29 'And now I have told you before it come to pass, that when it is come to pass ye might believe.

30 Hereafter I will not talk much with you: for 'the prince of this world cometh, and 'hath nothing in me.

31 'But, that the world may know that I love the Father; and as the Father gave me commandment, even so I do. Arise, let us go hence.

an essential and inseparable inbeing in one another. 12—14. And I assure you, my disciples, that, if ye believe in me according to the declarations which I have made of myself, ye shall be enabled to do as great miracles as ye have seen me do; nay, be instrumental in the far greater and more extensive work of converting multitudes of Jews and Gentiles through all nations of the world;—because I will ascend to heaven, to intercede for, and send down, my Spirit upon you and them. And, whatsoever ye shall ask for the glory of God, and your own assistance, acceptance, and success, upon the ground of my grant and promise, and with humble dependance upon my wisdom and power, faithfulness and grace, merit and advocacy, I will certainly perform it in answer to your prayers, that the Father may manifest his glorious perfections through my obedience and sufferings, and in my gracious and almighty works. 15—17. Since such shall be the fruits of my departure from you, instead of being anxiously concerned at losing my bodily presence, or at the disappointment of your secular expectations, shew your affection to me in a conscientious respect to all my commandments.—And to encourage you herein, I, as your High Priest and Advocate, will intercede effectually with my Father for you; and he, in concurrence with me, will send you another Counsellor, Advocate, and Comforter, to supply the want of my bodily presence, in instructing, assisting, and exciting you to every duty, in pleading your cause against your enemies, and comforting you in all your tribulations;—who shall not abide with you a little while, as I have done, but in every period of time and eternity:—even the Holy Ghost, who, being of the same nature with me and my Father, is truth itself, infinitely faithful, and the author and teacher of all truth; and whom carnal and unregenerate men cannot entertain or embrace, because they have no true knowledge of, or affection towards, him; but ye, who are enlightened and renewed by his operation, have an experimental acquaintance with him; for he at present dwells and works, and manifests himself, in you by his gracious and miraculous influences; and shall quickly further manifest himself in you with increasing light, power, and consolation. 18—20. And, though I am going from you by death, I will not leave you destitute, exposed, friendless, and forlorn, but will pay you repeated visits after my resurrection; and will return, by my Spirit, after my ascension, to your unspeakable comfort and advantage. Shortly these wicked men, who reject, despise, and abuse me, shall see me no more on earth, but ye shall see me alive after my passion; and, because I am the living God, and shall rise again to an immortal life in manhood, and always live in heaven as the Head of my mystical body, ye shall, in union to my person, in fellowship with me, and by virtue derived from me, live spiritually, in a state of justification, sanctification, and consolation, in this world, and of glorification in the next. And, when I have risen from the dead, as a triumphant Conqueror over sin and Satan, death and hell, and have poured out my Spirit upon you, ye shall begin more clearly to understand that I am essentially one with the Father, and that ye are spiritually united to me as the source of your life. 21—24. Whoever, by virtue of this union with me, not only hears, but receives, hides in his heart, and faithfully observes, my commandments, manifests his love to me; and shall in return be accepted and approved of, and delighted in, by me and my Father; and we will favour him with the peculiar manifestations of our glory; multiply the tokens of our special presence with him, by our word, ordinances, and Spirit, and continue to hold the most free and intimate fellowship with him, as the spiritual house and temple in which we desire to dwell. 26, 27. But when, after my death and ascension to heaven, the Holy Ghost, whom the Father shall, for my merit and upon my intercession, send as a Guide, Advocate, and Comforter, to supply my room and carry on my work, is come unto you, he shall lead you into a more clear and extensive acquaintance with all truths necessary to be known or preached, and shall revive in your minds the remembrance of all the particulars which ye have heard from me, that ye may fully apprehend and properly improve the same. And meanwhile, as your parting and dying friend, I not only earnestly wish for you, but promise, and effectually bestow upon you, all that solid and substantial peace and happiness which I purchase and enjoy, and which the world neither can give you nor take from you. Let therefore no apprehensions of my approaching death, nor of your own loss or trouble, discompose your minds. 28—31. I have told you that I am just going to leave you with a design to return and receive you into my Father's heavenly palace. If your love to me were truly spiritual, regular, and considerate, instead of being troubled, ye would, both for my sake and your own, rejoice at my departure to my Father, that I, his servant as Man and Mediator, may with him enjoy the utmost blessedness, and all power in heaven and earth, as the reward of my obedience and suffering, to exercise it for your advantage.—And I have told you these things beforehand, that when ye see them accomplished ye may be the more confirmed in your belief of my being the promised Messiah, able and ready to fulfil whatever I have promised to you. 30, 31. I shall have little opportunity of discoursing more to you before my death; for Satan, who formerly pretended to offer me all the kingdoms of this world, and who powerfully works in the hearts of its rulers and people, is now making his last effort, stirring up his evil instruments, to unite their stratagems and force for murdering me. But he can find no corruption in me to work upon by his temptations, or to give him power over me. Nor can he hinder my death from tending to the glory of my Father, the salvation of my people, and destruction of his own kingdom, or even bring it about, without my own free consent. But, to make it evident both to friends and foes that I love my Father, and am now heartily willing to obey his commandment in laying down my life for my chosen people, let us therefore rise from this table, and retire to the garden, whither my enemies are coming to apprehend me.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIV.—What a safe and suitable object of faith is our Redeemer! All his Father's perfections shine in him, as his only begotten Son and mediatorial Servant. There is no saving knowledge of, faith in, or fellowship with, God but through him. Infinite was his condescension in becoming his Father's servant, and cheerfully yielding up himself to obedience and sufferings. And great is the glory to which he is advanced as his reward. It is a sure confirmation to our faith that all his predictions are exactly accomplished. And strong is the consolation to our souls that he is our new and living way to God and glory; and that he has risen from the dead, and in our nature ascended to heaven, to secure our interest there and provide delightful mansions for us Father's care; 1—7. (2) Commands them to abound in fruits of holiness, and particularly in love to one another, by virtue of their union with him; 8—17. (3) By his own similar state, and by the promise of the Holy Ghost, comforts them against the hatred and persecution of carnal men; 18—27.

I AM the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman.

2 Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away: and every branch that beareth fruit he purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit.

3 Now ye are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you.

4 Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me.

5 I am the vine, ye are the branches: he that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for without me ye can do nothing.

6 If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered: and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned.

7 If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you.

8 Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples.

9 As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you: continue ye in my love.

10 If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love: even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love.

11 These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full.

12 This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you.

13 Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.

14 Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.

15 Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doth: but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you.

16 Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain: that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name he may give it you.

17 These things I command you, that ye love one another.

18 If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you.

19 If ye were of the world, the world would love his own: but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you.

20 Remember the word that I said unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord. If they have persecuted me, they will also persecute you: if they have kept my saying, they will keep your's also.

21 But all these things will they do unto you for my name's sake, because they know not him that sent me.

In death, and at the resurrection, he will therefore receive us to, and keep us for ever with, himself. His life secures ours, spiritual and eternal; and his and his Father's presence, and his Spirit's indwelling influence, shall refresh and comfort our hearts; his peace allays our troubles and our fears: his answers to our prayers supply our wants; and his instructions and influences infallibly conduct us to the heavenly mansions, where we shall sit with him on his throne and see him as he is. Astonishing is it that he should thus manifest himself unto us and not unto the world! And if we desire further discoveries of his glory, and experience of his goodness, let us love him, keep his commandments, and faithfully follow him whithersoever he goeth.

CHAP. XV. Ver. 1—5. In my peculiar relation to the church I am the fountain of spiritual influence, and the means of conveying it to her members; and my Father plants and takes care of me, and of all that are connected with me. Such members of the church as are united to me only in profession and appearance, without bringing forth the fruits of holiness, he, in his righteous judgment, cuts off as unprofitable and injurious. Such as, being spiritually and vitally united to me by my Spirit and faith, bring forth fruits of righteousness, he, by the various methods of his word, ordinances, influences, and rods, purges from their remaining corruption, that they may abound more in good works, and have their end everlasting life. Now therefore, Judas being gone, ye are all my living and fruitful members, partakers of my Spirit, and inwardly purified by faith in my word, which works effectually in you; adhere therefore more and more closely by faith and love to me, as your source of perpetual support and supply; for, whatever be your present attainments in grace, ye cannot continue to perform holy obedience any otherwise than by continued union and communion with me. And the more abundantly ye cleave to me by faith and love, and have my Spirit dwelling in you, the more ye will abound in spiritual fruits, to the glory of God and your own and others' advantage: for, separate from me, and without my continual influence, even ye, my real members, can do nothing truly good and acceptable to God. 6, 7. Such church members as do not thus adhere to me by faith and love shall quickly be stript of all relation to me or my church; and their gifts, profession, and specious appearances, shall wither and die; and they shall be gathered together at the last day, as fit fuel for divine wrath, and cast into everlasting burnings. But they who stedfastly cleave to me, and have me and my word dwelling in their heart by faith, to guide, govern, quicken, and establish, them, shall have every thing which they request of God, for his glory and their own edification and fruitfulness, granted them to the utmost of their desires and wants. 8—11. By your thus abiding in me, and I in you, and having your petitions answered, my Father's wisdom, faithfulness, and grace, are gloriously manifested; for thus he enables you to abound in holy tempers and works, by which he may be still further glorified; and ye may more plainly appear to yourselves, and to the world, as my true disciples, and be approved, esteemed, and owned, by me as such. For, as my Father dearly loves and delights in me, not only as his eternal Son, but as the root and medium of all gracious communications to you, so I dearly love and delight in you, as branches united to me, and deriving virtue unto all holy fruitfulness from me. Cleave therefore affectionately and stedfastly to me, that ye may be still further approved of and delighted in by me. And if, from a principle of faith and love, ye cheerfully obey my commandments as your Lord and Saviour, ye shall continue to be approved and owned by me as my dearly beloved friends, even as I, in the character of Man and Mediator, have cheerfully fulfilled all righteousness in obedience to my Father's commandment, and am continually approved by him, and know that he loves me.—These things have I thus freely and plainly declared to you, that I may rejoice in you as my fruitful members; and ye may rejoice in your union with me, and in my abiding love to you: that, through the influences of my Spirit, ye may have fulness of joy to support you under all your troubles and losses; and all may issue in your complete and everlasting joy with me. 12—17. The great command, which I now insist on as a proof of your sincere affection and discipleship to me, is, that you be affectionate, and ready to perform all kind offices, one to another for my sake, in consideration, and in imitation, of my fervent love to you in laying down my life for you. For greater love I cannot shew to you, who were naturally my enemies, than in dying for you, as if ye had been my most important and endeared friends. And ye will manifest yourselves to be my true friends, and be esteemed and owned by me as such, if, from the sense of my love to you, ye make conscience of a ready and impartial obedience to all my commandments.—I neither have nor will use you as mere servants, who are kept ignorant of their master's secrets, but as friends, to whom I have imparted, and will further impart, by my Spirit, all the secret counsels of my Father, which are profitable for you to know or preach.—And not from any prior choice of yours, or obligation upon me, having chosen you either to salvation or to the apostleship, but by my own grace have I made you my servants and friends, that, by virtue derived from me, ye may bring forth the fruits of righteousness in your lives and ministrations, and persevere in them, till ye and your converts propagate my cause on earth and arrive safe in heaven: and that my Father may grant you every thing you ask in my name, as your prevailing Advocate and Friend, to promote these holy purposes. These things I require of you, in order that ye, after my example, may heartily love one another, as members of the same body, partakers of the same blessings, and as servants, disciples, and friends, of the same Lord. 18—21. Do not wonder if carnal and worldly men, the children and subjects of Satan, hate, oppose, and persecute you; for ye know that they began with me, and have been as full of rage and spite against me, your Head and Chief, as they can be against you.—If ye were of the same carnal temper and disposition with worldly men, encouraging them in their sinful courses, they would esteem you as persons of their own party and likeness; but, because ye are not conformed to them in their corrupt principles, manners, and customs, but are by me distinguished from the world, and set apart, to exemplify and preach my spiritual and holy gospel, they have an irreconcilable antipathy to you. In order therefore to prevent murmuring at the maltreatment which you must meet with, often consider that you are not worthy of, nor warranted to expect, better treatment than I, your Lord and Master, have found. If then these carnal men have reviled and persecuted me, ye may expect they will do the same to you: and if, instead of receiving the truth in the love of it from me, they have carped and cavilled at my doctrine, on account of its contrariety to their depraved sentiments, tempers, and views, they will, for the same reason, set themselves against it when delivered by you.—And, on account of your relation and likeness to me, and your zealous profession and publishing of my gospel, they will thus hate,

CHAP. XVI.

Here Christ concludes his farewell sermon: (1) Forewarning his disciples of their future persecutions, and taking notice of their present griefs; 1—6. (2) Promising—to send the Holy Ghost to convince, direct, and comfort them; 7—15: to visit them again in person, as well as by his Spirit, after his resurrection; 16—22: to secure a gracious answer to their prayers offered in his name, as he was but returning to his Father in his departure from them; 23—32: and to give them peace amidst all their tribulations in this world; 33.

THESE ^athings have I spoken unto you, that ye should not be offended.

oppose, and persecute you, as they have no true knowledge of God, nor of his sending me into the world to purchase the salvation of men. 22—25. If I had not in the plainest manner asserted and demonstrated my Messiahship among them, their sin, in refusing to believe in me, had been less; but, since they have had so long the enjoyment of the clearest evidence of the Divinity of my person, office, and doctrine, their sin is so highly aggravated that they can plead no excuse for it.—And whoever hates and opposes me is an enemy to my heavenly Father, who sent me, and hath given public testimony to me as his beloved Son.—Nay, if I had not wrought among them such a multitude of merciful and public miracles as neither Moses nor any other man ever wrought in such a sovereign and godlike manner, they might still have had some pretence of excusing their infidelity, or at least of lessening its guilt: but their persisting in it, notwithstanding their being eye-witnesses of all, must proceed from a rooted enmity at the holiness and authority of both me and my Father; and is, as the Psalmist David typically foretold, a hating me without any just provocation. 26, 27. But, notwithstanding their most furious and causeless enmity to my person, truths, and interests, they shall triumph over all opposition: for, when that divine Counsellor, Advocate, and Comforter, is come whom I have promised, and with my Father's concurrence will send unto you,—even the Holy Spirit, who is infinitely faithful, and the enditer of all inspired truth; and who, in a divine manner, proceeds from the Father as well as from me,—he will direct, encourage, comfort, and support, you under all your difficulties and dangers, and will attest my dignity and character by the further revelations which he will make, and the miraculous operations that he will enable you to perform; and will assist, own, and succeed, you in confuting your enemies, and bringing vast multitudes of all nations to the obedience of faith.—And, under his conduct and influence, ye shall be enabled to give a noble, plain, courageous, and unexceptionable, testimony to me and my cause, in your doctrines, miracles, lives, and deaths, as persons who have, during the whole course of my public ministry, been acquainted with my discourses, miracles, sufferings, and behaviour, public and private, all along, till my ascension to heaven.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XV.—God has made the most abundant provision in Christ for the spiritual life, growth, fruitfulness, and happiness, of believers, and for advancing his own glory in and by them. Intimate, beneficial, and endearing, is their union with him, and effectual his influence upon them. But without union to and fellowship with him there can be nothing in religion done in a spiritual or acceptable manner. While under the influence of his grace, received by faith through his word and ordinances, a most abundant production of good works may be expected. The more vigorously faith is exercised, the more will our holiness in all manner of conversation increase; and every thing that we ask, for God's glory and our own good, shall be graciously bestowed. But, alas! great is their folly and guilt who take up with external forms of religion instead of vital union with Christ, and by their dead works of formality and wickedness prepare themselves for infernal flames.—Infinite is his love in dying for us his enemies, and in constituting us his endeared friends. But we cannot have the evidence of our union to him, or friendship with him, but in cleaving to him. Nor can we expect the manifestations of his love, but in believing his promise, and gratefully keeping his commandments, without reserve. His love to us, and ours to him, ought to make us obey and imitate him in a sincere, affectionate, and active, love to our brethren.—Thrice happy is it when he grants us his Spirit to attest his truths, and, as our Advocate, Guide, and Comforter, to animate us with holy courage in our profession of his name, and to support us under all the tribulations which we endure for his sake. And never should we wonder at, or be discouraged by, the hatred, reproach, contempt, and persecution, we may be called to suffer from carnal men for the sake of Christ, when he, our great Lord, has undergone all and much worse for us. All that will live godly must suffer persecution: and the more faithful professors are, especially ministers, the more must they expect of it.—But inexpressible will be our guilt if we pervert the clearest revelations of Christ, and render them the occasion of greater enmity and opposition to him and his gospel, his servants and followers. It is to quarrel with our own mercies, and become our own worst adversaries: and whatever we may pretend, it is all owing to our ignorance of, and enmity against, God himself.

CHAP. XVI. Ver. 1—3. I have beforehand told you of the trials and comforts which lie before you, that ye may not be discouraged in or turned from your duty by my leaving you, or by the troubles which you may meet with from my enemies and yours, whose rage will lead them to all manner of violence and cruelty against you. The ecclesiastical rulers will excommunicate you from all church fellowship, as the most abandoned wretches. Nay, so furious will be their mad zeal against you, that multitudes will barbarously take pleasure in murdering you, imagining it an honour done to God, and a mean of promoting his interest in the world.—Thus they will persecute you for my sake, because, through the wilful blindness and hardness of their hearts, they neither know, nor believe in, nor love, me nor my Father. 4—6. These things I have thus plainly foretold you, that when such trials come ye may hereby be the more confirmed in your faith in me and my words.—And I did not tell you of this sooner, because I was with you to shelter you from trials, by exposing myself, and to support and comfort you under them. But now I am just going to leave you, and return to my Father's immediate presence in heaven; and yet ye little understand my meaning, or rejoice in my happy departure and the fruits of it, nor do ye even make inquiries about it, as ye did when ye thought I was going somewhere on earth to erect a temporal kingdom. And so much quicker are your apprehensions of things grievous than of gladdening promises, that what I have said of my leaving you, and the troubles that will ensue, hath quite overwhelmed you with sorrow. 7—11. But, notwithstanding all your dejection and fears, it is really necessary, and for your unspeakable advantage, that I leave this world and ascend to my heavenly Father: for, according to our eternal counsels and the just order of things, unless I return thither the Holy Ghost, that blessed Guide, Advocate, and Comforter, will not visit you with his richest gifts, graces, counsels, and assistances, supports, and joys; but, when once I am enthroned in my heavenly kingdom, I will send him to answer all the great and glorious purposes for which ye and my church shall need him. And he, coming from on high, by virtue of my death, and in consequence of my resurrection and exaltation, shall carry on my cause in this lower world, demonstratively convincing both Jews and Gentiles of their sinfulness and misery, of the insufficiency of all their works to recommend them to the favour of God, of the sufficiency of my obedience and suffering to justify them in his sight; and of my judicial power to reform the world, overthrow the kingdom of Satan, and at last condemn to punishment the unbelieving and unrighteous. By his miraculous gifts and operations for confirming the gospel, and by his internal illumination and influences, he shall convince multitudes of the sinfulness of their hearts and lives, and especially of their great sin of unbelief in wilfully rejecting me. He shall convince them of the righteousness of my person and cause, and of the necessity and perfection of that everlasting righteousness which I am come to work out by my obedience and death, because I am now to be exalted at my Father's right hand, in testimony of his full acceptance of it, in the room of an elect world;—and ye shall no more see me in this state of debasement, in which I must continue till it be finished. He shall also convince them of my power and will to renew and sanctify sinners, to destroy the kingdom of darkness, and to execute judgment upon all the finally impenitent and unbelieving; because Satan, who rules in the hearts of carnal men, is tried, and judicially defeated in all his power and claims, by my death, resurrection, and ascension; and my kingdom of light, grace, and holiness, established on the ruins of his dominion on earth; and he and his agents shall be condemned to everlasting 12 ^p I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now.

13 ^a Howbeit, when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak: and he will shew you things to come.

14 He shall ^g glorify me: for he shall receive of mine, and shall shew it unto you.

15 ^t All things that the Father hath are mine: therefore said I, that he shall take of mine and shall shew it unto you.

16 ¶ ^u A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again ^a a little while, and ye shall see me, because ^y I go to the Father.

17 ^z Then said some of his disciples among themselves, What is this that he saith unto us, A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again a little while, and ye shall see me: and, because I go to the Father?

18 They said therefore, What is this that he saith, A little while? ^a we cannot tell what he saith.

19 Now Jesus ^b knew that they were desirous to ask him, and said unto them, Do ye inquire among yourselves of that I said, A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again a little while, and ye shall see me?

20 Verily, verily, I say unto you, that ^e ye shall weep and lament, ^d but the world shall rejoice: and ye shall be sorrowful, ^e but your sorrow shall be turned into joy.

21 ^f A woman when she is in travail hath sorrow, because her hour is come: but as soon as she is delivered of the child she remembereth no more the anguish, ^g for joy that a man is born into the world.

22 ^h And ye now therefore have sorrow: ⁱ but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you.

23 And in that day ye shall ^k ask me nothing. ^l Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you.

24 Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name: ^m ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full.

25 These things have I spoken unto you in ⁿ proverbs: but the time cometh when I shall no more speak unto you in ⁿ proverbs, but ^o I shall shew you plainly of the Father.

26 At that day ye shall ask in my name: and I say not unto you ^p that I will pray the Father for you;

27 ^q For the Father himself loveth you, because ye have loved me, and have believed that I came out from God.

28 ^r I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again, ^s I leave the world, and go to the Father.

29 ¶ His disciples said unto him, Lo, now speakest thou ^t plainly, and speakest no ^u proverb.

30 ^x Now are we sure that thou knowest all things, and needest not that any man should ask thee: ^y by this we believe that thou camest forth from God.

31 Jesus answered them, ^z Do ye now believe?

32 ^a Behold, the hour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye shall be scattered every man to ^b his own, and shall leave me alone: and ^b yet I am not alone, because the Father is with me.

33 ^c These things I have spoken unto you, that ^d in me ye might have peace. ^e In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer, ^f I have overcome the world.

ruin at the last day. 12—15. I have still many other things to inform you of relative to the future alterations of the state and worship of the church under the direction and influence of the Holy Ghost; but, through the weakness of your faith and the strength of your carnal prejudices, ye cannot as yet apprehend, or be reconciled to, them. But, when the Holy Ghost, who is faithfulness and truth itself, shall come to do his work upon and by you, he shall give you a complete understanding of the whole of divine truth relative to my gospel kingdom. And he will reveal these things unto you, not as separate from, but as one with, me and my Father, and entirely acquainted with our whole mind and will. He will also acquaint you with all that is necessary for you to know, or make known to the church, relative to time or eternity. And his manifesting to you the things relative to my person, offices, cause, and kingdom, will tend to my honour; and make you to have clear, exalted, and endearing, thoughts of me, of my love, fulness, office, and work. For in this he will manifest to you what concerns my Father, as I am one with him in nature, perfections, counsels, and property; and the administration of all that he does is committed to me. 16, 20, 22. In a few hours I shall be taken from you by death and burial, and after that ye shall have but for a few days an opportunity of seeing me, and then I will ascend to my Father. My sufferings and death shall quickly overwhelm you with sorrow and mourning, while my carnal enemies will triumph and rejoice, imagining that they have ruined me: but very soon after, by my personal visits, and the pouring out of my Spirit upon you, I will turn your sorrow into the greatest joy, the foundation of which neither men nor devils shall ever be able to shake, and of which no one can rob you. 23—27. And under this comforting light, and these influences of my Spirit, ye shall neither need my bodily presence, nor to ask information, as ye now do. But I solemnly assure you that whatever ye, by the assistance of the Spirit, shall ask my Father and yours with faith in my name, as your only Mediator, High Priest, and Advocate, he will readily grant it on my account. Hitherto ye have had recourse to me in all your difficulties, and have not well understood how to plead with him upon the ground of my righteousness, and interest with him for you.—But henceforth, in all your wants, present your petitions and pleas with faith in my atonement and intercession, that by the gracious answers which you receive, your joy may daily increase, till it be completed. These things I have delivered to you in short substantial sentences, which, by reason of your ignorance, sorrows, and prejudices, ye do not well understand; but in a little time after my resurrection, and afterwards by my Spirit, I will make to you a free, open, and full, discovery of my Father and of all his gracious counsels; of my own person, office, and work; and of your proper method of fellowship with us: and then shall ye, by the assistance of the Spirit, offer up all your requests, with express mention of my name and entire dependance on me. Nor need I again inform you that I, as your great Advocate, will recommend your persons and prayers to the Father's acceptance; nay, he himself will delight to hear your prayers thus presented to him, and to manifest his affection towards, and bestow his favours upon, you as my disciples, who believe in and love me as his Son and the appointed Saviour of mankind.—28. I, who was with the Father from everlasting, voluntarily came forth from him, in a way of peculiar manifestation, into this world; and, in a little time I am to leave this world and return to the Father in my ascension, that I may be glorified together with him, and may manage the concerns of my redeemed in heaven, and, by my Spirit, apply my purchased salvation to them on earth. 31—33. Do ye now at last clearly apprehend and firmly believe what I have said? or do ye imagine that ye are so established in the faith that ye shall no more stagger through unbelief? Nay, to manifest my omniscience, and to warn you to be humble and watchful, I assure you that within a very little time, even this same night, ye will all, suddenly affrighted, leave me to my murderous enemies, and disperse yourselves, for your safety, among your friends. But, though you will thus shamefully desert me, my Father will assist, own, and carry me through all the sufferings which I have consented to undergo in his service and for his honour. Now all these things I have delivered to you in this farewell discourse, that, by virtue of your union with me, and by faith in me, ye may enjoy the most refreshing peace with God and your own consciences.—While ye continue in this world, great troubles and persecutions for my sake will attend you; but courageously trust in me, and expect an happy issue: for, having vanquished all opposition from men and devils, I am going, through my death and resurrection, to the heavenly mansions, that, by my intercession and the outpouring of my Spirit, I may prepare you and others to dwell with me for ever.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVI.—Blind bigotry often raises the most furious persecution in the church; and her best friends are frequently reproached and murdered as her worst enemies.—True believers are sometimes grieved at that which, properly understood, is a real ground of their joy. For how much more advantageous is it to have Jesus, our exalted Forerunner and Advocate, on his throne, than to have him always continued on earth! How great is he!—possessed of all perfections and property equally with his Father, and the Holy Spirit. And thrice happy is it that this divine Spirit, who perfectly knows all the designs and mysteries of the Godhead, comes to acquaint us with all needful truth, and to glorify Jesus Christ, in revealing and communicating his fulness to us. Powerfully he convinces men of sin, righteousness, and judgment,—all to the honour of Christ.—Kindly Jesus suits his instructions to our capacities and circumstances. But great is our dulness and ignorance, that we rightly apprehend but few of them. Powerfully he dispels our griefs, and turns them into

CHAP. XVII.

Contains Christ's solemn prayer before his death; (1) For a glorious endurance and reward to himself; 1—5. (2) For all necessary blessings to his chosen disciples; 6—10. (3) For preservation and sanctification, and kind favours, to his apostles; 11—19, 25, 26. (4) That they and the whole church might be united, and in due time glorified; 20—24.

THESE words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee:

2 As thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him.

3 And this is life eternal; that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent.

4 I have glorified thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do.

5 And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was.

6 I have manifested thy name unto the men whom thou gavest me out of the world: thine they were, and thou gavest them me; and they have kept thy word.

7 Now they have known that all things whatsoever thou hast given me are of thee.

8 For I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me; and they have received them, and have known surely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me.

9 I pray for them: I pray not for the joy, by his gracious visits. But never, when we are self-conceited, are we far from danger and shame. Let me therefore always be clothed with self-diffidence, and given to pour forth prayers in his name. The Father, who loves him, and us for his sake, will not refuse us a gracious answer. And faith in, and love to, him will effectually secure his Father's delight to do us good.—What a scene of sorrow is this world! Quickly the triumphing of the wicked issues in everlasting disappointment and misery; and children are certain crosses, but uncertain comforts. They but come into a world of sins, snares, troubles, and griefs.—But, if we meet with great tribulation, it is but the predicted lot of Christians. If friends forsake us, so they did Christ our Saviour. If his peace compose and victory comfort us, nothing need discourage us: and, if he and his Father abide with us, our light and transitory afflictions shall work for us an exceeding and eternal weight of glory.

CHAP. XVII. Ver. 1—3. O Father, the time fixed in thy eternal counsel for completing my course of obedience on earth is now come. Own and support me as thy Son under my sufferings, that in finishing all righteousness, triumphing over sin, Satan, and death, and in ascending to heaven, I may manifest and spread the honour of all thy perfections in the world; that, in the exercise of that mediatorial authority over all mankind which thou hast allotted me as the reward of my obedience, I may freely and effectually bestow the great blessing of eternal life upon all those whom thou hast, in thy great love, committed to me as my peculiar property, trust, and treasure. And the way to, the beginning, earnest, and evidence of right to, this eternal life, and even the complete enjoyment of it, is by an approving and fiducial knowledge of thee as the only true and faithful God, in opposition to all idols; and of me as the anointed Saviour and the only Mediator, in opposition to all others. 4, 5. As I have invariably intended and manifested thy glory in the whole of my doctrine, miracles, and practice, and am just ready, without fail, to honour all thy perfections by my death, which will complete that work of the purchase of redemption which was intrusted to me; do thou therefore, according to thy engagements to me, advance my incarnate person to the highest glory at thy right hand, where I may appear in my human nature and mediatorial office like myself, and shine forth in that divine majesty which I had with thee from eternity, but which has been obscured in my debased state on earth. 6—8. As for those true believers, whom, as thine by peculiar and eternal choice, as well as by the right of creation, thou gavest to be the objects of my ministerial care, I have begun to give them a spiritual understanding of thine excellencies, mind, and will, and of my relation to thee and commission from thee; and they, under my powerful influence on their hearts, have embraced and adhered to thy truths which I taught them; and, by my instructions, have been made to know and believe that all things, which I as Mediator have undertaken, taught, performed, or suffered, are by thy appointment and commission, and the fruits of thy infinite wisdom and sovereign grace. 9, 10. I therefore affectionately recommend to thy care, not all mankind, but only those whom, in thy purpose of election, thou didst commit to me as members of my mystical body, to be redeemed and saved world, but for them which thou hast given me; for they are thine.

10 And all mine are thine, and thine are mine; and I am glorified in them.

11 And now I am no more in the world, but these are in the world, and I come to thee. Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one as we are.

12 While I was with them in the world I kept them in thy name: those that thou gavest me I have kept, and none of them is lost but the son of perdition; that the scripture might be fulfilled.

13 And now come I to thee; and these things I speak in the world, that they might have my joy fulfilled in themselves.

14 I have given them thy word; and the world hath hated them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

15 I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil.

16 They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

17 Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth.

18 As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world.

19 And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth.

20 Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also who shall believe on me through their word;

21 That they all may be one, as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that the world may believe that thou hast sent me.

by me, that thou mayest perfect every thing which concerns them. And as thy right in them is so inseparably and entirely the same with mine, I pray that thou wouldest perform in them all the good pleasure of thy goodness, that I, together with thee, may be glorified in their redemption and effectual calling, and in their faith, love, worship, obedience, and eternal salvation.

11—13. And now the time is come that I must die a sacrifice for their sins, and afterwards be but little with them in this world, to instruct, defend, and comfort them; yet these my apostles, as well as my other disciples, must, for a time, remain in it, compassed about with many infirmities, temptations, and dangers.—And, as I am coming to appear in thy presence for them, I beseech thee, by thy mighty power and infinite wisdom, and for thine own name's sake, to preserve them steadfast in their faith and holy profession, that, as my witnesses and chief ministers, they may be entirely united in heart and affection, testimony, interest, and designs, as we are in ours.—While I have been personally conversant with them, I have, according to thy commission, by my doctrine, example, and powerful influences, so confirmed and preserved them from apostasy, that not one of them has miscarried, except the perfidious Judas, who, by forsaking and betraying me, is just now bringing inevitable ruin upon his own head, agreeably to the ancient predictions concerning him.—But now, as I am coming to be glorified at thy right hand in heaven, leaving them without the benefit of my company, to guide, protect, and comfort them, I thus supplicate thee in their hearing, that they may rejoice, in hope of thy preserving, teaching, and comforting Spirit, and that their joy may be more abundant than ever it was in my personal presence.

14, 15. I have given them a spiritual understanding of, and commission to preach, thy gospel; and carnal and unbelieving men are filled with enmity, rage and violence against them, because their principles, tempers, doctrines, and views, as well as mine, are utterly disagreeable to their carnal lusts, sentiments, and interests. However, I do not plead that thou, to deliver them from their troubles, shouldest deprive this world of their holy example and useful ministrations; but that thou wouldest preserve them from the temptations of Satan and their own remaining corruptions, and support them under, sanctify to them, and carry them through, all the persecutions which they may meet with before they have finished their work. 16—19. They are already of such a religious temper and disposition, and engaged in such excellent work, as is directly contrary to the inclinations of carnal men, even as I myself have been before them. Let this holy temper and practice be maintained and increased in them by means of thy word; and, by the anointing of thy Spirit, let them be consecrated to serve thee in propagating gospel truth. For, as thou hast sent me into the world with a commission to preach thy important and infallible truths to mankind, I have authorised them to carry on the same work wherever providence may cast their lot after my departure from them. And for this, as one great reason, have I devoted myself to the mediatorial office, and am going to consecrate myself by suffering and death, that they, through the truth, may, by the Holy Ghost, be consecrated to, fitted for, supported and succeeded in, preaching it. 20, 21. Nor do I only pray for such preserving, supporting, sanctifying, and comforting, influences to my apostles; but to all

23 ⁱ I in them, and thou in me; that they may be made ^rperfect in one, and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and ^hast loved them as thou hast loved me.

24 Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me ^be with me where I am; ^uthat they may behold my glory which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

25 O righteous Father, the world ^hath not known thee; ^y but I have known thee, and ^zthese have known that thou hast sent me.

26 ^a And I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it: that the love wherewith thou hast loved me ^bmay be in them, and I ^cin them.

CHAP. XVIII.

Relates (1) How Christ was arrested by Judas and his band in the garden; and, after manifesting his power over them, and care for his disciples' safe escape, surrendered himself a prisoner; 1—12. (2) How he was abused in the high priest's court, and thrice denied by Peter; 13—27. (3) How he was prosecuted before Pilate, and examined by him concerning his kingly office; 28—37. (4) How the Jews preferred Barabbas, a murderous robber, to him; 38—40.

WHEN Jesus had spoken these words, ^ahe went forth with his disciples over ^bthe brook Cedron, where was a garden, into the which he entered and his disciples.

2 And Judas also, who betrayed him, knew the place: for ^cJesus oftentimes resorted thither with his disciples.

3 ^dJudas then, having received a band of men and officers from the chief priests and Pharisees, cometh thither with lanterns and torches and weapons.

4 Jesus therefore, ^eknowing all things that should come upon him, went forth, and said unto them, Whom seek ye?

5 They answered him, ^f'Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus saith unto them, I am he. And Judas also who betrayed him ^gstood with them.

6 As soon then as he had said unto them, I am he, they ^hwent backward, and fell to the ground.

7 Then asked he them again, Whom seek ye? And they said, Jesus of Nazareth.

8 Jesus answered, I have told you that I am he. ⁱIf therefore ye seek me, let these go their way.

9 That the saying might be fulfilled which he spake, ^kOf them which thou gavest me have I lost none.

10 ¶ ^lThen Simon Peter, having a sword, drew it, and smote the high priest's servant, and cut off his right ear. The servant's name was Malchus.

11 Then said Jesus unto Peter, Put up thy sword into the sheath: ^mthe cup which my Father hath given me, shall I not drink it?

12 ¶ ⁿThen the band, and the captain, and officers of the Jews, took Jesus and ^obound him, 13 And led him away to ^pAnnas first, for he was father in law to Caiaphas, who was the high priest that same year.

14 ^rNow Caiaphas was he who gave counsel to the Jews that it was expedient that one man should die for the people.

15 ¶ ^sAnd Simon Peter followed Jesus, and so did another disciple: that disciple was known unto the high priest, and went in with Jesus into the palace of the high priest.

16 ^tBut Peter stood at the door with-eternal blessedness which, in thy distinguishing love, thou hast prepared for them.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVII.—It is necessary to conclude important advices, and prepare for impending temptations, by fervent and solemn prayer, and with heart and eyes lifted up unto God. In what a dignified manner Jesus intercedes for his elect, particularly his ministers, upon the footing of his own finished righteousness, and his Father's perfections manifested and promises ratified thereby! It is impossible for those to fall short of grace or glory who are interested in such prayers which so closely connect the glory of God and the good of men.—Marvellous is his exaltation and his saving power! And thrice happy are they who have the saving knowledge of him as the only Mediator, and of his Father in him! His glorification of his Father's perfections, by fulfilling all righteousness in our stead, wonderfully secures eternal glories to himself, and conversion, perseverance, and everlasting happiness, to all his true members. And, by our holding fast his doctrine, by our holiness in heart and life, and giving him the glory of all that we are and do, he marks our relation to him as his elect children.—Great is the mercy that all our spiritual knowledge, faith, holiness, and eternal happiness, are secured in and by him; and that, though he be no more in this world, his word and Spirit are left to supply his room. This polluting and ensnaring world is the greatest enemy to his saints. But, while multitudes of professors, and even noted preachers are eternally ruined by its influence, Christ's prayers, the directions of his word, and the influences of his Spirit, will carry all his true children safely, and even comfortably and honourably, through it. If we be not carnally disposed, we shall quickly get to heaven, out of the reach of carnal men. For, if Jesus devoted himself to sufferings for us, he will advance us to glory with him. Whatever good work he once begins shall be carried into perfection: and, if his ministers need to be eminently holy, steadfast, and faithful, he offers up particular prayers in their behalf: and, if he send ministers, he will make their labours effectual for increasing, uniting, and edifying, his mystical body the church. Let carnal men deride it now as they will, they shall be made to know that Christ and his people are one in law, spirit, temper, and design. And, while his enemies are ruined by their ignorance, his people shall be admitted into the most immediate vision of, and fellowship with, him in his glory and in his Father's love.

CHAP. XVIII. Ver. 11. It is no time for fighting; nor is my kingdom or cause to be propagated by force of arms. I am not destitute of almighty power to rescue myself; but, from regard to the glory of God, and to manifest my own love in the salvation of sinners, I freely and cheerfully submit to all the tribulation and wrath which he hath appointed me to undergo; and I will allow of no

Nor does it in the least interfere with or tend to the disturbance of, civil government; if it had, I should have allowed my followers to fight for my protection or rescue.—I freely own myself a King; but, to satisfy you that my kingdom is not of a worldly constitution or design, know that God hath sent me into this world, that, by my preaching and miracles, I might reveal and confirm the truth, and that alone, concerning God and myself, and the way of salvation to sinful men. This is the mean of my conquests and government; and every one that is acquainted with, and begotten by, the word of truth, heartily believes and embraces my testimony, and becomes my willing subject.

ing sufferings of Christ. Amazing was his willingness to die for us, who thus went forth to meet his murderers. And, after showing his ability to strike them dead, he readily resigned himself into their hands, in obedience to his Father's will. Why then should danger or death ever deter us from faithfully owning his cause? Kindly he proportions his people's trials to their strength, and preserves them by offering himself a sacrifice in their room. And his cause is to be maintained by his ministers, by weapons not carnal, but mighty through God. Yea the most hasty in their zeal are seldom the most steadfast in his service. But hardened indeed are men when even awful miracles cannot restrain their wickedness and folly. Dreadful is the nature of sin, that brought God, in our nature, under such debasement and suffering. And infinite was his kindness and condescension, cheerfully to submit to all, for our sake. O my soul, let the treachery of Judas, the rage of Jews, the repeated denials of Peter, the cowardly injustice of Pilate, serve me as a glass to view myself, as a warning to watchfulness, and to avoid fellowship with sinners. And let the wisdom, meekness, and boldness, of Christ be my pattern. Let me adore that wonderful providence which overruled all for the fulfilment of scripture, the glory of God, and salvation of men. And never let me condemn persons or things because they are run down by the multitude.

7 The Jews answered him, 'We have a law, and by our law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God.

8 ¶ When Pilate therefore heard that saying he was the more afraid;

9 And went again into the judgment hall, and saith unto Jesus, Whence art thou? 'But Jesus gave him no answer.

10 Then saith Pilate unto him, Speakest thou not unto me? 'knowest thou not that I have power to crucify thee, and have power to release thee?

11 Jesus answered, 'Thou couldest have no power at all against me, except it were given thee from above: therefore he that delivered me unto thee hath the ^kgreater sin.

12 And from thenceforth Pilate sought to release him: but the Jews cried out, saying, 'If thou let this man go thou art not Cesar's friend. Whosoever maketh himself a king speaketh against Cesar.

13 When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he brought Jesus forth, and sat down in the judgment seat, in a place that is called the Pavement, but in the Hebrew *Gabbatha.

14 And it was ^mthe preparation of the passover, and about the ⁿsixth hour: and he saith unto the Jews, Behold your king!

15 ° But they cried out, Away with him, away with him, crucify him! Pilate saith unto them, Shall I crucify your king? The chief priests answered, 'We have no king but Cesar.

16 ° Then delivered he him therefore unto them to be crucified. And they took Jesus, and led him away.

17 ¶ And he, bearing his cross, went forth into a place called the place of a skull, which is called in the Hebrew Golgotha:

18 ° Where they crucified him, and two other with him, on either side one, and Jesus in the midst.

19 ¶ And Pilate wrote a title, and put it on the cross. And the writing was, †JESUS OF NAZARETH THE KING OF THE JEWS.

20 This title then read many of the Jews: for the place where Jesus was crucified was nigh to the city: and it was written ⁿin Hebrew, and Greek, and Latin.

21 Then said the chief priests of the Jews to Pilate, Write not, The King of the Jews; but that he said, I am King of the Jews.

22 Pilate answered, What I have written I have written.

23 ¶ Then the soldiers, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garments, and made four parts, to every soldier a part; and also his coat: now the coat was without seam, ‡woven from the top throughout.

24 They said therefore among themselves, Let us not rend it, but cast lots for it whose it shall be: that the scripture might be fulfilled which saith, 'They parted my raiment among them, and for my vesture they did cast lots. These things therefore the soldiers did.

25 ¶ Now there stood by the cross of Jesus, his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of 'Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene.

26 When Jesus therefore saw his mother, and the ^bdisciple standing by whom he loved, he saith unto his mother, Woman, behold thy son!

27 Then saith he to the disciple, 'Behold thy mother! And from that hour that disciple took her unto his own home.

28 ¶ After this Jesus, knowing ^dthat all things were now accomplished, ^ethat the scripture might be fulfilled, saith, I thirst.

29 'Now there was set a vessel full of vinegar: and they filled a sponge with vinegar, and put it upon hyssop, and put it to his mouth.

30 When Jesus therefore had received the vinegar he said, 'It is finished: and he bowed his head, and gave up the ghost.

31 ¶ The Jews therefore, because it was the preparation, ⁱthat the bodies should not remain upon the cross on the sabbath day, (for that sabbath day was ^kan high day), besought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away.

32 Then came the soldiers, and brake the legs of the first, and of the other who was crucified with him.

33 But when they came to Jesus, and saw that he was dead already, they brake not his legs:

34 But one of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side, and forthwith came there out ^lblood and water.

35 ^mAnd he that saw it bare record, and his record is true: and he knoweth that he saith true, ⁿthat ye might believe.

36 For these things were done ^othat the scripture should be fulfilled, A bone of him shall not be broken.

37 And again another scripture saith, 'They shall look on him whom they pierced.

38 ¶ And after this Joseph of Arimathea, (being a disciple of Jesus, but ^rsecretly for fear of the Jews,) besought Pilate that he might take away the body of Jesus: and Pilate gave him leave. He came therefore and took the body of Jesus.

39 And there came also Nicodemus, who at the first came to Jesus ^sby night, and brought ^ta mixture of myrrh and aloes, about an hundred pounds weight.

40 Then took they the body of Jesus, and wound it in ^ulinen clothes with the spices, as the manner of the Jews is to bury.

41 Now in the place where he was crucified there was a ^vgarden; and in the garden ^wa new sepulchre, wherein was never man yet laid.

42 ^xThere laid they Jesus therefore, because of the Jews' preparation day; for the sepulchre was nigh at hand.

Proves the resurrection of Christ, (1) By his body's not being found by Peter and John in the sepulchre, where his grave-clothes were lying in good order; 1—10. (2) By the appearance of two angels to Mary Magdalene at the sepulchre; 11—13. (3) By Christ's own appearance to her; 14—18. (4) By his appearing that night to all the apostles except Thomas; 19—25. (5) By his appearing to them all that day seven-night, and offering Thomas his desired proof of feeling his wounded body; 26—31.

THE ^afirst day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, unto the sepulchre, and seeth ^bthe stone taken away from the sepulchre.

2 Then she runneth, and cometh to Simon Peter, and to the ^bother disciple whom Jesus loved, and saith unto them, ^cThey have taken away the Lord out of the sepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him.

3 ^dPeter therefore went forth, and that other disciple, and came to the sepulchre.

4 So they ran both together: and the other disciple did outrun Peter, and came first to the sepulchre.

5 And he, stooping down, and looking in, ^esaw the linen clothes lying; yet went he not in.

6 ^fThen cometh Simon Peter following him, and went into the sepulchre, and seeth the ^glinen clothes lie,

7 And the napkin, that was about his head, not lying with the linen clothes, but wrapped together in a place by itself.

8 Then went in also that other disciple who came first to the sepulchre, and he saw, and believed.

9 ^hFor as yet they knew not the scripture, that he must rise again from the dead.

10 ⁱThen the disciples went away again unto their own home.

11 ¶ But Mary stood without at the sepulchre weeping: and as she wept she stooped down, and looked into the sepulchre, 12 And seeth ^ktwo angels in white sitting, the one at the head and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain.

13 And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.

14 And when she had thus said she turned herself back, and saw ^lJesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus.

15 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardener, saith unto him, Sir, if thou have borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away.

16 Jesus saith unto her, Mary. ^mShe turned herself, and saith unto him, Rabboni, which is to say, ⁿMaster.

17 Jesus saith unto her, ^oTouch me not; for I am not yet ascended to my Father: but go to ^pmy brethren, and say unto them, ^qI ascend unto my Father and your Father, and to my God and your God.

18 ^rMary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her 19 ¶ ^sThen the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in the midst, and saith unto them, ^tPeace be unto you.

20 And when he had so said ^uhe shewed unto them his hands and his side. ^vThen were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord.

21 Then said Jesus to them again, Peace be unto you: ^was my Father hath sent me, even so send I you.

22 And when he had said this he breathed on them, and saith unto them, ^xReceive ye the Holy Ghost.

23 ^yWhose soever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them; and whose soever ^zsins ye retain, they are retained.

24 ¶ ^{aa}But Thomas, one of the twelve, called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came.

25 The other disciples therefore said unto him, ^{ab}We have seen the Lord. But he said unto them, ^{ac}Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe.

26 ¶ And after eight days again his disciples were within, and Thomas with REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIX.—What struggles are there in the breasts of carnal men between the convictions of their conscience and their care of their secular interests;—between the terrors of God and the fears of men! But indulged lusts dreadfully bear down all religion, truth, and equity. How shocking is it to behold the men of Israel persecute their divine King with outrage, indignity, and barbarity! Yet more amazing to behold the God of heaven giving up his only begotten Son into the hands of such vile and savage miscreants! But, lo, even the marks of disgrace proclaim his character, and spread his renown! Astonishing is his meekness, patience, and holy fortitude, under all his sufferings. Remarkable his filial regard to his mother, and his dying trust in his heavenly Father. And, while his hypocritical persecutors pretend ceremonious scruples of conscience amidst their obstinate violation of important precepts, the blood and water streaming from his heart verify the scripture, mark him really dead, and figure out our justification by his blood and sanctification by his Spirit. And, to magnify the grace of God, fulfil the predictions of the prophets, and honour the crucified Redeemer, disciples, who had long been timorous and afraid to own him, are emboldened at such an important crisis to give him an honourable interment.—Now, my soul, behold the God-man, who was falsely accused that I might be honourably acquitted;—was wounded and scourged, that by his stripes I might be healed;—was clothed with a robe of derision, that I might be clothed with robes of righteousness and garments of salvation;—was crowned with thorns, that I might wear a diadem of glory,—had his royalty insulted, that I might be made a King unto God;—was condemned, that I might be justified;—bore his own cross, and was crucified on it, that he might bear my sins and carry my sorrows;—was numbered with transgressors, that I might have a cup of salvation, joy, and praise;—and finished transgression and suffering, that I might be saved in the Lord with an everlasting salvation!

CHAP. XX. Ver. 17. Do not stay now to express your affection to me in this manner, as you will have repeated opportunities of seeing me before I ascend to my heavenly Father; but run quickly to my poor disconsolate disciples, whom, notwithstanding their late defection, I still love as much as ever, and esteem as my brethren and heirs of the same glory with myself; and tell them that I am risen to an immortal life, and not to set up a temporal kingdom among them on earth; and am, after some time, to ascend to the right hand of God, who is my Father by nature, and their's by regeneration and adoption, and who is my God as their Mediator, and their God as they are my members. 21—23. I now effectually confer my promised peace upon you; and, as my Father hath sent me into the world to discharge the office of Mediator, so I, as Head of the New Testament church, appoint you, as my apostles, to preach the gospel to both Jews and Gentiles, and to confirm it with miraculous signs wherever you go. And receive ye now the gifts and graces of the Holy Ghost, which I can as easily convey as I thus breathe upon you, to enlighten your minds, and strengthen your faith in me as a risen Saviour, and as an earnest of that plentiful effusion which ye shall in a short time receive for your spiritual illumination, sanctification, and consolation, and for your assistance and success in the ministerial work which I commit to you. And this shall be attended with such divine authority, that whomsoever ye, according to the gospel, declare pardoned as a believer, or absolved from church censure as a penitent, he may take the comfort of forgiveness and absolution, as ratified by my authority: and whomsoever ye declare unpardoned on account of his unbelief, or keep under church censure as impenitent, his condemnation and continued censure shall stand ratified by my authority, and even the last judgment shall be past in agreement thereto.

(1) Christ discovers himself to seven of his disciples at the sea of Tiberias; gives them a miraculous draught of fishes, and familiarly dines with them; 1—14. (2) Thrice examines Peter touching the sincerity of his love to him, and as often commissions him to feed his chosen people by gospel ministrations; and warns him of his future sufferings and martyrdom; 15—19. (3) Checks Peter's curiosity about the life or fate of John; 20—23. (4) The certainty of the gospel record and the multitude of Christ's miracles are declared; 24, 25.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XX.—Strong and many are the evidences of our Saviour's resurrection, that fundamental article of our Christian faith. An opened grave, his grave clothes orderly placed, the testimony of angels, and his own repeated appearances, and even the jealousies of disciples, concur to render it unquestionable. But marvellous was his condescension and kindness to such as had forsaken him in his extremity—to Peter, who had denied him, and to Thomas, who had so perversely indulged the most obstinate unbelief. He gives them his peace, owns them for brethren, and qualifies and appoints them to preach his gospel. Great is the mercy that we have all this recorded by eyewitnesses, directed by the Holy Spirit, that we may believe it, to the eternal salvation of our soul. And that we have the weekly sabbath as a stated season of intercourse with our Saviour. If we love him much, eagerly and early, through darkness and danger, we shall push our way into his presence. For to a tender hearted Christian the felt absence of his Lord is the most distressing and insupportable. But often that is mourned over which is great ground of rejoicing. And Jesus and his consolations are frequently at hand when we know not where to find him. He takes delight to recognize his relation and hasten to our help. And neither shut doors, slavish fears, nor unbelieving hearts, can hinder his gracious visits. Yea, the stoutest hearts delightfully melt in confident believing, under the transcendent intimations of his love

THOMAS'S INFIDELITY.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXI.—Often repeated, miraculous, and manifest, are the proofs of Christ's resurrection. And it is highly criminal to doubt of it after so many satisfactory documents. With what wonders of divine power, condescension, and kindness, he shews himself to his people! He is often near them while they know it not, and is better to them than they expect; or even visits them before they look for him. The sight of him powerfully draws out the heart of penitent beholders. And neither danger nor death can restrain their running to him. He delightfully prospers the labours, notices the circumstances, and supplies the wants, of his people. But if they have been ashamed of, or in any way, departed from, him, their love to him must be thoroughly tried; happy are they who can prove it by their superlative esteem of, and faithful appeals to, things which Jesus did, the which, if they should be written every one, I suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that should be written. Amen.

himself. And if we know that he first loved us, let our former falls lie heavy on our heart; and let us, without indulging vain curiosity, follow him through sufferings and death.—Without his direction, ministers spend themselves in vain in fishing for souls: but, under his guidance and influence, multitudes are brought to him; nor can their gospel net be ever broken. The weakest souls must be equally taken care of as the strongest. Nor can ministers ever truly manifest their love to Jesus without earnest care and labour to feed his lambs and sheep with his gospel provision.—And blessed be the Lord that his own oracles have no uncertainties, and need no human supplements. On their contents we may safely rest the eternal salvation of our souls.

THE

ACTS OF THE APOSTLES,

Were compiled by Luke the Evangelist, and inscribed to his friend Theophilus. Here he continues his former history, about thirty years downward; and, after a short account of Christ's converse with his disciples and ascension into heaven, relates the election of Matthias to the apostleship, the effusion of the Holy Ghost, and its remarkable effects among the Jews, especially by the labours of Peter and John, the election of the deacons, and the persecution raised against Stephen and his Christian brethren, preachers and others; chap. i—viii. Peter's introduction of the gospel among the Gentiles, his imprisonment by Herod after James had been killed, and his marvellous deliverance; ix—xii. Paul's conversion; ix.: his labours, in preaching the gospel among the Gentile nations, in Asia and Europe; his persecution by the Jews, and his being sent as a prisoner to Rome; xiii—xxviii.

THE former treatise have I made,
TO Theophilus, of all that Jesus began both to do and teach,

2 Until the day in which he was taken up, after that he through the Holy Ghost had given commandments unto the apostles whom he had chosen:

3 To whom also he shewed himself alive after his passion by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God:

4 And, being assembled together with them, commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father, which, saith he, ye have heard of me.

5 For John truly baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence.

6 When they therefore were come together they asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?

7 And he said unto them, It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power.

8 But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you:
and ye shall be witnesses unto me, both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.

9 And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight.

10 ¶ And while they looked stedfastly toward heaven, as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel;

11 Who also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, who is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.

12 ¶ Then returned they unto Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is from Jerusalem a sabbath day's journey.

13 And, when they were come in,
they went up into an upper room, where abode both Peter, and James, and John, and Andrew, Philip, and Thomas, Bartholomew, and Matthew,
James the son of Alphaeus, and Simon
Zelotes, and Judas the brother of James.

14 These all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication, with the women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren.

15 ¶ And in those days Peter stood up in the midst of the disciples, and said, (the number of the names together were about an hundred and twenty), 16 Men and brethren, This scripture must needs have been fulfilled, which the Holy Ghost by the mouth of David spake before concerning Judas, who was guide to them that took Jesus.

17 For he was numbered with us, and had obtained part of this ministry.

18 Now this man purchased a field with the reward of iniquity; and, falling headlong, he burst asunder in the midst, and all his bowels gushed out.

19 And it was known unto all the dwellers at Jerusalem: insomuch as that field is called, in their proper tongue, Aceldama, that is to say, The field of blood.

20 For it is written in the book of Psalms, Let his habitation be desolate, and let no man dwell therein: and his bishoprick let another take.

21 Wherefore of these men who have companied with us all the time that the Lord Jesus went in and out among us, 22 Beginning from the baptism of John, unto that same day that he was taken up from us, must one be ordained to be a witness with us of his resurrection.

23 And they appointed two, Joseph called Barsabas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias.

24 And they prayed, and said, Thou Lord, who knowest the hearts of all men, shew whether of these two thou hast chosen, 25 That he may take part of this ministry and apostleship, from which Judas by transgression fell, that he might go to his own place.

26 And they gave forth their lots: and the lot fell upon Matthias; and he was numbered with the eleven apostles.

CHAP. II.

Here (1) The Holy Ghost is poured out upon the disciples in the appearance of cloven tongues of fire, and qualifies them to speak in other languages; 1—4. (2) The multitudes gathered at the festival of Pentecost crowd to see and hear them;—part are astonished, and others deride; 5—13. (3) Peter vindicates himself and brethren, and shews that this was the effusion of the Spirit, promised by Joel, and now bestowed in consequence of the death, resurrection, and ascension, of Christ; 14—36. (4) By his sermon three thousand are converted to Christ, and joined to his gospel church; 37—41. (5) These primitive Christians are remarkably pious and charitable, and God signally owns and blesses them with the tokens of his favour; 42—47.

AND, when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place.

2 And suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting.

3 And there appeared unto them cloven tongues, like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them.

4 And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance.

5 And there were dwelling at Jerusalem, Jews, devout men, out of every nation under heaven.

6 Now, when this was noised abroad, the multitude came together, and were confounded, because that every man heard them speak in his own language.

7 And they were all amazed, and marvelled, saying one to another, Behold, are not all these who speak Galileans?

8 And how hear we every man in our own tongue wherein we were born?

9 Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites, and the dwellers in Mesopotamia, and in Judea, and Cappadocia, in Pontus, and Asia,

10 Phrygia, and Pamphylia, in Egypt, and in the parts of Libya about Cyrene, and strangers of Rome, Jews, and proselytes, 11 Cretes and Arabians, we do hear them speak in our tongues the wonderful works of God.

12 And they were all amazed, and were in doubt, saying one to another, What meaneth this?

13 Others mocking said, These men are full of new wine.

14 ¶ But Peter, standing up with the eleven, lifted up his voice, and said unto them, Ye men of Judea, and all ye that dwell at Jerusalem, be this known unto you, and hearken to my words:

15 For these are not drunken, as ye suppose, seeing it is but the third hour of the day.

16 But this is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel;

17 And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams:

18 And on my servants and on my handmaidens I will pour out in those days of my Spirit, and they shall prophesy:

19 And I will shew wonders in heaven above, and signs in the earth beneath; blood, and fire, and vapour of smoke:

20 The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before that great and notable day of the Lord come:

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—The most glorious and uncontrollable evidence is given us of the resurrection and exaltation of our once crucified Redeemer, that through him our faith and hope might be in God. Great numbers of disciples had frequent opportunities of seeing and conversing with him after his death, and could not possibly mistake him for any another. Yea, saw him ascend, in our nature, to heaven, and heard the angels' attestation concerning him. Most gladdening truth! He has carried our nature to the right hand of God, and will, in due time, return, for our salvation, to judge the quick and the dead. And infinite is the mercy that, in his absence, he has, by promise and fulfilment, secured for us the presence and influence of the Holy Ghost to supply his room, and to own, assist, and comfort, us in his work. Let us then, in an humble dependance on, and patient waiting for, him, avoid all carnal views of his kingdom or curious prying into God's secrets. For there is need of great activity in his honourable work, and of preparation for his second coming, at which we must give our account. While the world rages in wickedness, let united devotions be the delight of our souls. The joint effectual fervent prayers of righteous men avail much. But, O the inexpressibly terrible end of treacherous ministers! Their honour or wealth avail them but little in the day of God's wrath. Happy is it when God, even by terrible things in righteousness, degrades and punishes them for the confirmation of his truths,—and supplies their room with such as are qualified and faithful. And great care ought to be taken that none but such be admitted. But, if God testify his call and approbation, all ought to receive and regard them as his ambassadors. Ever solicitous for the welfare of the church, we ought to commit all her matters to Jesus, as her kind Head and sovereign disposer of all things. And never let us by lot appeal to God in matters ludicrous or trifling; but only in cases of great importance, which cannot be otherwise decided; and that with solemn prayer for his direction, and a ready submission to his decision.

21 And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved.

22 Ye men of Israel, hear these words; Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God among you, by miracles and wonders and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know:

23 Him, being delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain:

24 Whom God hath raised up, having loosed the pains of death: because it was not possible that he should be holden of it.

25 For David speaketh concerning him, I foresaw the Lord always before my face, for he is on my right hand, that I should not be moved:

26 Therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad: moreover, also, my flesh shall rest in hope:

27 Because thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption.

28 Thou hast made known to me the ways of life; thou shalt make me full of joy with thy countenance.

29 Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day.

30 Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne:

31 He, seeing this before, spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul was not left in hell, neither his flesh did see corruption.

32 This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof, we all are witnesses.

33 Therefore, being by the right hand of God exalted, and having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, he hath shed forth this which ye now see and hear.

34 For David is not ascended into the heavens: but he saith himself, The LORD said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand 35 Until I make thy foes thy footstool.

36 Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ.

37 ¶ Now, when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter, and to the rest of the apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do?

38 Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.

39 For the promise is unto you and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call.

40 And with many other words did he testify and exhort, saying, Save yourselves from this untoward generation.

41 ¶ Then they that gladly received this word were baptized: and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls.

42 And they continued stedfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers.

43 And fear came upon every soul: and many wonders and signs were done by the apostles.

44 And all that believed were together, and had all things common,

45 And sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need.

46 And they, continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart;

47 Praising God, and having favour with all the people. And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved.

CHAP. III.

(1) Peter and John cure a lame man by a word, to the great astonishment of the spectators; 1—11. (2) Peter takes occasion, from their astonishment, to represent Christ's power, and their sin in crucifying him; 12—18. (3) He exhorts and encourages them to repent, and believe in him for remission and salvation; 19—26.

NOW Peter and John went up together into the temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour.

2 And a certain man, lame from his mother's womb, was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple;

3 Who, seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple, asked an alms.

4 And Peter, fastening his eyes upon him with John, said, Look on us.

5 And he gave heed unto them, expecting to receive something of them.

6 Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk.

7 And he took him by the right hand,

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—It is impossible that Jesus, who, by obedience unto death, had satisfied his Father's law and justice, should be held a prisoner in the grave. And glorious are the fruits of his resurrection and exaltation to his Father's right hand. Yea, astonishing is the effusion of the Holy Ghost thereby to qualify his preachers, and to convert hearers.—Quickly he comes to them who, with united hearts, wait and cry for his presence. And he can suddenly effect a great spreading and understanding of the gospel, and fulfilment of ancient predictions. What bold resolution he gives his lately so timorous disciples! How open their avowal of Jesus' Messiahship, Divinity, and resurrection from the dead, where he had been lately crucified as a notorious malefactor! Great is the wisdom and power of God in thus overruling the wickedness of men for his own glory, for the honour of Christ, and the salvation of men. But his purpose or overruling providence, in no respect excuses or extenuates our guilt. Alas, how perversely men will continue opposing and reviling the most evident manifestations of God's power and goodness till the Holy Ghost begin to work in their heart! But then the most wonderful effects will follow—the deepest impressions of divine truths—a thorough conviction and self-debasement—earnest inquiries after salvation—the most unfeigned faith and sincere repentance—dedication of men's riches and their children to the Lord—faithful subjection to Christ and to his gospel—joining in religious fellowship with his people—an observation of his commandments—delightful and reverential regard to his ordinances—grateful praise for his kindness and zeal for his glory—heavenly-mindedness, contempt of this world, and compassionate love to poor fellow-saints—and a daily addition of members to the church.

8 And he, leaping up, stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God.

9 And all the people saw him walking and praising God:

10 And they knew that it was he who sat for alms at the Beautiful gate of the temple: and they were filled with wonder and amazement at that which had happened unto him.

11 And, as the lame man who was healed held Peter and John, all the people ran together unto them in the porch that is called Solomon's greatly wondering.

12 ¶ And when Peter saw it he answered unto the people, Ye men of Israel, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye so earnestly on us, as though by our own power or holiness we had made this man to walk?

13 The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his Son Jesus; whom ye delivered up, and denied him in the presence of Pilate, when he was determined to let him go.

14 But ye denied the Holy One and the Just, and desired a murderer to be granted unto you:

15 And killed the Prince of life, whom God hath raised from the dead, whereof we are witnesses.

16 And his name, through faith in his name, hath made this man strong, whom ye see and know: yea, the faith which is by him hath given him this perfect soundness in the presence of you all.

17 And now, brethren, I wot that through ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers.

18 But those things which God before had shewed by the mouth of all his prophets, that Christ should suffer, he hath so fulfilled.

19 Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord;

20 And he shall send Jesus Christ, who before was preached unto you:

21 Whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began.

22 For Moses truly said unto the fathers, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you, of your brethren, thren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you.

23 And it shall come to pass, that every soul which will not hear that prophet shall be destroyed from among the people.

24 Yea, and all the prophets from Samuel, and those that follow after, as many as have spoken, have likewise foretold of these days.

25 Ye are the children of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with our fathers, saying unto Abraham, And in thy seed shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed.

26 Unto you first God, having raised up his Son Jesus, sent him to bless you, in turning away every one of you from his iniquities.

CHAP. IV.

Begins the history of the apostles' persecution; (1) Peter and John are imprisoned by the Jewish rulers; but 5000 are converted to Christ; 1—4. (2) Being examined touching their miraculous cure of the lame man, they boldly avow that they had done it by the authority and power of the lately crucified, but now exalted, Jesus Christ, the only Saviour of mankind; 8—12. (3) Unable to answer them, the Jewish rulers dismiss them, prohibiting them from preaching Christ any further; 13—22. (4) The two apostles and Christian brethren, by solemn prayer, ask of God further operations of his grace; and are answered by a repeated descent of the Holy Ghost; 23—31. (5) Hereby the believers are knit together in love, and abound in piety and charity; 31—37.

AND, as they spake unto the people, the priests and the captain of the temple, and the Sadducees, came upon them,

2 Being grieved that they taught the people, and preached through Jesus the resurrection from the dead.

3 And they laid hands on them, and put them in hold unto the next day: for it was now eventide.

4 Howbeit, many of them who heard the word believed: and the number of the men was about five thousand.

5 ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow that their rulers, and elders, and scribes,

6 And Annas the high priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of the kindred of the high priest, were gathered together at Jerusalem.

7 And when they had set them in the midst they asked, By what power, or by what name, have ye done this?

8 Then Peter, filled with the Holy Ghost, said unto them, Ye rulers of the people, and elders of Israel,

9 If we this day be examined of the good deed done to the impotent man, by what means he is made whole;

10 Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whom God raised from the

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—Thrice happy are they whose hearts are so fitted for devotion that the returning seasons of it, in public or private, are always welcome! And, if men heartily love prayer, they will never think morning and evening too frequent for it. Many, rich in faith, are poor and destitute in this world: but the blessings of grace do more than balance their wants. It is good to attend God's ordinances in expectation of his favours. If he apprehend us by his Spirit, we shall lay hold on him by faith. And, if we obtain his deliverance, we ought to triumph in his praise, and even dearly to regard the honoured instruments of our deliverance. But the more God honours ministers, the more should they lay out themselves for his honour, and take every opportunity of doing good to souls.—How glorious is our exalted Saviour! And safely may we believe his apostles' testimony concerning him. In him ancient predictions are fulfilled. And through believing dependance on his power and authority the most amazing miracles have been wrought. Marvellous is the wisdom and power of God in making even the most daring wickedness of men the great means of bringing about our salvation: and extensive is the instruction, ample the pardons, effectual the reformation, and abundant the blessings, which Jesus Christ bestows on the chief of sinners. What delightful encouragement is this to faith and repentance, that, in his seasons of mercy, we may find rest and refreshment to our souls. What excitement to rejoice in his exaltation, and to wait for his return to judgment!

(1) Ananias and Sapphira ^aare struck dead for withholding part of the money which they pretended to have given to the church; 1—11. (2) The apostles work many miracles, to the increase of the church; 12—16. (3) They are again imprisoned, but delivered by an angel;—according to whose order, they go on in preaching, to the great vexation of their persecutors; 17—25. (4) Being again brought before the Jewish Sanhedrim, and examined, they boldly avow the lately crucified Jesus to be the exalted Messiah; 26—33. (5) By the prudent advice of Gamaliel, they are dismissed after being scourged; 34—40. (6) They depart, rejoicing in their honourable persecution, and proceed in their work of preaching Christ; 41, 42.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—Men who heartily hate one another often cordially unite in opposition to Christ, his gospel, and his servants. But it is delightful when fierce persecution animates to a prudent zeal for Christ's honour, and when he balances it by the conversion of multitudes of hardened sinners. For, if ministers preach Christ faithfully and successfully, they must expect trouble for it. Rich, full, and free, is that salvation for sinful men which is in him alone. It is necessary always to believe and receive it, and, in our stations, to exhibit and declare it. Excellent is the cause of the gospel; and nothing but absurd rage, and overbearing violence, can ever oppose it. But in the most violent opposition Jesus can inspire his most cowardly servants with wisdom and courage to make an open and bold confession of himself and his truths; and by them he can confound their most potent and learned opposers, and even convince their consciences of the inconceivable advantage of fellowship with him. Easily he restrains the wrath of men, and makes the remainder of it to praise him. And it is manifest that, however despised by men in authority, he is the Head and Lord of his church. In every case it is much better to obey God than men. He is the almighty JEHOVAH, the Maker and Governor of all things. Nothing happens without his permission and appointment. All events are a fulfilment of his inspired oracles, and execution of his ancient decrees. In every time of need let us therefore address him by solemn prayer. Often he hears and answers in mercy while his people are yet speaking. And, if he be with us, we need neither fear nor anxiously care who is against us. He knows every plot and every threatening of our enemies: and his presence and blessing are sufficient to encourage our perseverance in much tribulation. Heavenly is the delight and comfort that his Spirit can produce in our hearts! Yea, he can even make us rejoice in persecution for his sake. And glorious is the church when ministers are remarkably faithful and useful, and Christians so knit together as to be ready to give all they have for the relief of their indigent brethren.

BUT a certain man named Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, sold a possession,

2 And kept back part of the price, his wife also being privy to it, and brought a certain part and laid it at the apostles' feet.

3 But Peter saith, Ananias, why hath Satan filled thine heart to lie to the Holy Ghost, and to keep back part of the price of the land?

4 While it remained, was it not thine own? and, after it was sold, was it not in thine own power? why hast thou conceived this thing in thine heart? thou hast not lied unto men but unto God.

5 And Ananias, hearing these words, fell down, and gave up the ghost: and great fear came on all them that heard these things.

6 And the young men arose, wound him up, and carried him out, and buried him.

7 And it was about the space of three hours after, when his wife, not knowing what was done, came in.

8 And Peter answered unto her, Tell me whether ye sold the land for so much? And she said, Yea, for so much.

9 Then Peter said unto her, How is it that ye have agreed together to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? behold, the feet of them who have buried thy husband are at the door, and shall carry thee out.

10 Then fell she down straightway at his feet, and yielded up the ghost: and the young men came in and found her dead, and, carrying her forth, buried her by her husband.

11 And great fear came upon all the church, and upon as many as heard these things.

12 And by the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people; (and they were all with one accord in Solomon's porch.

13 And of the rest durst no man join himself to them: but the people magnified them.

14 And believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women).

15 Insomuch that they brought forth the sick into the streets, and laid them on beds and couches, that at the least the shadow of Peter passing by might overshadow some of them.

16 There came also a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and them who were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed every one.

17 Then the high priest rose up, and all they that were with him, (which is the sect of the Sadducees), and were filled with indignation, 18 And laid their hands on the apostles, and put them in the common prison.

19 But the angel of the Lord by night opened the prison doors, and brought them forth, and said,

20 Go, stand and speak in the temple to the people all the words of this life.

21 And when they heard that they entered into the temple early in the morning, and taught. But the high priest came, and they that were with him, and called the council together, and all the senate of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison to have them brought.

22 But when the officers came, and found them not in the prison, they returned and told,

23 Saying, The prison truly found we shut with all safety, and the keepers standing without before the doors: but when we had opened we found no man within.

24 Now when the high priest, and the captain of the temple, and the chief priests, heard these things, they doubted of them whereunto this would grow.

25 Then came one and told them, saying, Behold, the men whom ye put in prison are standing in the temple, and teaching the people.

26 Then went the captain with the officers, and brought them without violence: for they feared the people, lest they should have been stoned.

27 And, when they had brought them, they set them before the council: and the high priest asked them, 28 Saying, Did not we straitly command you that ye should not teach in this name? and, behold, ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and intend to bring this man's blood upon us.

29 Then Peter and the other apostles answered and said, We ought to obey God rather than men.

30 The God of our fathers raised up Jesus, whom ye slew and hanged on a tree.

31 Him hath God exalted with his right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour, for to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins.

32 And we are his witnesses of these things; and so is also the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him.

33 When they heard that they were cut to the heart, and took counsel to slay them.

34 Then stood there up one in the council, a Pharisee, named Gamaliel, a doctor of the law, had in reputation among all the people, and commanded to put the apostles forth a little space;

35 And said unto them, Ye men of Israel, take heed to yourselves what ye intend to do as touching these men.

36 For before these days rose up Theudas, boasting himself to be somebody; to whom a number of men, about four hundred, joined themselves: who was slain; and all, as many as obeyed him, were scattered, and brought to nought.

37 After this man rose up Judas of Galilee, in the days of the taxing, and drew away much people after him: he also perished; and all, even as many as obeyed him, were dispersed.

38 And now I say unto you, ^aRefrain from these men, and let them alone: ^afor if this counsel, or this work be of men, it will come to nought:

39 But, ^bif it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it; lest haply ye be found even to fight against God.

40 And to him they agreed: ^cand when they had called the apostles, and beaten them, they commanded that they should not speak in the name of Jesus, and let them go.

41 ¶ And they departed from the presence of the council, ^drejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for his name.

42 ^eAnd daily in the temple, and in every house, they ceased not to teach and preach Jesus Christ.

CHAP. VI.

(1) In consequence of some murmurings relative to the unequal distribution of their charity, seven deacons are chosen for this business by the people, and ordained by the apostles; 1—6.

(2) While many priests and others are converted, Stephen, a deacon, actively bestirs himself for Christ;—is disputed against, and accused to the sanhedrim, and appears before them with an angelic lustre in his countenance; 7—15.

AND in those days, ^awhen the number of the disciples was multiplied, there ^barose a murmuring of the ^cGrecians against the Hebrews, ^dbecause their widows were neglected in the daily ministration.

2 Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them, and said, ^eIt is not reason that we should leave the word of God and serve tables.

3 Wherefore, brethren, ^flook ye out among you seven men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business.

4 ^gBut we will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word.

5 ¶ And the saying pleased the whole multitude. And they chose ^hStephen, a man full of faith, and of the Holy Ghost, and ⁱPhilip, and ^jProchorus, and ^kNicanor, and ^lTimon, and ^mParnenas, and ⁿNicolas a proselyte of Antioch:

6 Whom they set before the apostles: and, ^owhen they had prayed, they laid their hands on them.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. V.—It is impossible to find a church on earth without tares; or much Christianity without some hypocrisy. Satan's temptations and men's own corruptions, particularly covetousness, easily lead them into lying and falsehood. But most heinous is this in dealing with God, as it is a direct contempt of his all-seeing Spirit. And yet, if Satan fill our heart, he will delude us into it; and even our nearest relations will encourage us in it. Seriously then should we guard against prevarication with that God who can strike liars and dissemblers dead, for the honour of his gospel and church. And happy is it when such events deter hypocrites from joining her.—Well would it be if men shewed as much care for their souls as most do for the health of their bodies! But, alas, with what blind fury do many, under pretence of religion, set themselves against Christ's eminent ministers, and fight against God; and by endeavouring to render them despicable, study to prejudice hearers against them! Yet his counsel and work shall stand, to the defiance and confusion of every opposer. At his pleasure prisons become paradises, or open their doors;—marvellous miracles are wrought for the attestation of truth; the fury of the haughtiest rulers is restrained; the multitude is awed, and the church increased amidst attempts to destroy her. Yea learned, potent, and even inveterate, enemies are made advocates for his cause. If then we endure terrors and reproaches for his sake, we may despise them, or even glory in them. And let us always publish the praises of our once crucified, but now risen, Redeemer, who is exalted as a Prince and a Saviour, freely to give repentance and forgiveness of sins to the most heinous transgressors.

7 ¶ And the word of God increased; and the number of the disciples multiplied in Jerusalem greatly; and a great company of the priests were ^mobedient to the faith.

8 ¶ And Stephen, full of faith and power, did great wonders and miracles among the people.

9 ^oThen there arose certain of the synagogue, which is called the synagogue of the Libertines, and Cyrenians, and Alexandrians, and of them of Cilicia and of Asia, disputing with Stephen.

10 ^pAnd they were not able to resist the wisdom and the spirit by which he spake.

11 ^qThen they suborned men, who said, We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses, and against God.

12 ^rAnd they stirred up the people, and the elders, and the scribes, and came upon him, and caught him, and brought him to the council,

13 ^sAnd set up false witnesses, who said, This man ceaseth not to speak blasphemous words against this holy place, and the law.

14 ^tFor we have heard him say, That this Jesus of Nazareth shall destroy this place, and shall change the ^ucustoms which Moses delivered us.

15 And all that sat in the council, looking stedfastly on him, saw his face as it had been the face of an ^vangel.

CHAP. VII.

(1) By an historical account of the Hebrew nation, under the patriarchs Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and Joseph; 1—16: under Moses; 17—41: under Joshua, David, and Solomon; 44—50: and under their judges and kings; 42, 43: he shews that God had been regularly worshipped in other lands and places; that the temple and ceremonies were but typical; and that, for their wickedness, God had threatened their nation with a miserable dispersion. (2) He applies his discourse to his persecutors, and charges them with wickedness, which would provoke God to cast them off; 51—53. (3) Enraged herewith they furiously stone him to death; while he beholds and commits himself to Christ, and prays for pardon to his murderers; 54—60.

THEN said the high priest, ^aAre these things so?

2 And he said, ^bMen, brethren, and fathers, hearken; ^cThe God of glory appeared unto our father Abraham, ^dwhen he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran,

3 And said unto him, ^eGet thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and come into the land which I shall shew thee.

4 ^fThen came he out of the land of the Chaldeans, and dwelt in Charran; and REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VI.—It is hard to manage much business without much inconvenience, and even some reflections. But it is shameful that money matters should occasion discontents among church members, who are otherwise of one heart and soul. And, to prevent this, it becomes us to use the strictest impartiality in the management of the money, and all other matters, of churches or states. It is a great sin and reproach to many Christian congregations that the office of deacons, so clearly appointed in scripture, should be so much contemned. And it is necessary that every church officer be intelligent, pious, and prudent; and that church members be always required to choose their own officers, small or great. No patrons or presbyteries can pretend more fitness to choose for others, than the inspired apostles, who refused it. It is dangerous and awful when Ministers give themselves to idle chat, unprofitable reading, unnecessary sleep, or civil business, instead of their important ministrations and fervent prayer. But, when gospel ministers are faithful and diligent, God often works by them miracles of grace in the conversion of sinners, even of profane clergymen, whose spiritual case is peculiarly desperate. But, alas, how maliciously carnal men set themselves against Christ and his gospel, and readily charge its peculiar doctrines with blasphemy; and none are more apt to be inveterate enemies of truth than empty professors. No spirit of wisdom, no miracles can move those, who, instead of scripture and reason, fly to calumny and violence, and who can falsely witness, or suborn others so to do, against those whom God signally owns and honours.

from thence, when his father was dead, he removed him into this land wherein ye now dwell.

5 And he gave him none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on: yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no child.

6 And God spake on this wise, that his seed should sojourn in a strange land; and that they should bring them into bondage, and entreat them evil four hundred years.

7 And the nation to whom they shall be in bondage will I judge, said God: and after that shall they come forth, and serve me in this place.

8 And he gave him the covenant of circumcision: and so Abraham begat Isaac, and circumcised him the eighth day; and Isaac begat Jacob; and Jacob begat the twelve patriarchs.

9 And the patriarchs, moved with envy, sold Joseph into Egypt: but God was with him,

10 And delivered him out of all his afflictions, and gave him favour and wisdom in the sight of Pharaoh king of Egypt; and he made him governor over Egypt and all his house.

11 Now there came a dearth over all the land of Egypt and Chanaan, and great affliction; and our fathers found no sustenance.

12 But, when Jacob heard that there was corn in Egypt, he sent out our fathers first.

13 And at the second time Joseph was made known to his brethren; and Joseph's kindred was made known unto Pharaoh.

14 Then sent Joseph, and called his father Jacob to him, and all his kindred, threescore and fifteen souls.

15 So Jacob went down into Egypt, and died, he and our fathers,

16 And were carried over into Sychem, and laid in the sepulchre that Abraham bought for a sum of money of the sons of Emmor, the father of Sychem.

17 But when the time of the promise grew nigh, which God had sworn to Abraham, the people grew and multiplied in Egypt, 18 Till another king arose, who knew not Joseph.

19 The same dealt subtilly with our kindred, and evil entreated our fathers, so that they cast out their young children, to the end they might not live.

20 In which time Moses was born, and was exceeding fair, and nourished up in his father's house three months:

21 And, when he was cast out, Pharaoh's daughter took him up, and nourished him for her own son.

22 And Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in words and in deeds.

23 And, when he was full forty years old, it came into his heart to visit his brethren the children of Israel.

24 And, seeing one of them suffer wrong, he defended him, and avenged him that was oppressed, and smote the Egyptian:

25 For he supposed his brethren would have understood how that God by his hand would deliver them: but they understood not.

26 And the next day he shewed himself unto them as they strove, and would have set them at one again, saying, Sirs, ye are brethren, why do ye wrong one to another?

27 But he that did his neighbour wrong thrust him away, saying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge over us?

28 Wilt thou kill me, as thou didst the Egyptian yesterday?

29 Then fled Moses at this saying, and was a stranger in the land of Madian, where he begat two sons.

30 And, when forty years were expired, there appeared to him in the wilderness of mount Sina an angel of the Lord in a flame of fire in a bush.

31 When Moses saw it he wondered at the sight: and, as he drew near to behold it, the voice of the Lord came unto him, 32 Saying, I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. Then Moses trembled, and durst not behold.

33 Then said the Lord to him, Put off thy shoes from thy feet: for the place where thou standest is holy ground.

34 I have seen, I have seen the affliction of my people which is in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning, and am come down to deliver them. And now come, I will send thee into Egypt.

35 This Moses, whom they refused, saying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge? the same did God send to be a ruler and a deliverer by the hand of the angel who appeared to him in the bush.

36 He brought them out, after that he had shewed wonders and signs in the land of Egypt, and in the Red sea, and in the wilderness forty years.

37 This is that Moses who said unto the children of Israel, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear.

38 This is he that was in the church in the wilderness with the Angel who spake to him in the mount Sina, and with our fathers; who received the lively oracles to give unto us:

39 To whom our fathers would not obey, but thrust him from them, and in their hearts turned back again into Egypt, 40 Saying unto Aaron, Make us gods to go before us: for as for this Moses, who brought us out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

41 And they made a calf in those days, and offered sacrifice unto the idol, and rejoiced in the works of their own hands.

42 Then God turned, and gave them up to worship the host of heaven; as it is written in the book of the prophets, O ye house of Israel, have ye offered to me slain beasts, and sacrifices by the space of forty years in the wilderness?

43 Yea, ye took up the tabernacle of Moloch, and the star of your god Remphan, figures which ye made to worship them: and I will carry you away beyond Babylon.

44 Our fathers had the tabernacle of witness in the wilderness, as he had appointed, speaking unto Moses that he should make it according to the fashion that he had seen.

45 Which also our fathers that came after brought in with Jesus into the possession of the Gentiles, whom God drove out before the face of our fathers, unto the days of David;

46 Who found favour before God, and desired to find a tabernacle for the God of Jacob.

47 But Solomon built him an house.

48 Howbeit, the Most High dwelleth not in temples made with hands; as saith the prophet, 49 Heaven is my throne, and earth is my footstool: what house will ye build me? saith the Lord: or what is the place of my rest?

50 Hath not my hand made all these things?

51 Ye stiff necked and uncircumcised in heart and ears, ye do always resist the Holy Ghost: as your fathers did, so do ye.

52 Which of the prophets have not your fathers persecuted? and they have slain them who shewed before of the coming of the Just One; of whom ye have been now the betrayers and murderers:

53 Who have received the law by the disposition of angels, and have not kept it.

54 When they heard these things they were cut to the heart, and they gnashed on him with their teeth.

55 But he, being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up stedfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God,

56 And said, Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God.

57 Then they cried out with a loud voice, and stopped their ears, and ran upon him with one accord, 58 And cast him out of the city, and stoned him: and the witnesses laid down their clothes at a young man's feet, whose name was Saul.

59 And they stoned Stephen, calling upon God, and saying, Lord Jesus, receive my spirit.

60 And he kneeled down, and cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge. And when he had said this he fell asleep.

CHAP. VIII.

(1) While Stephen is buried and lamented, the Christians at Jerusalem are terribly persecuted by Saul and others; 1—3. (2) The church is enlarged by the dispersion of the persecuted preachers, who thereby spread the gospel abroad;—particularly Philip the evangelist, in the country of Samaria; 4—13. (3) Peter and John confirm the new converts there, and severely reprove Simon the sorcerer; 14—25. (4) By divine direction, Philip the evangelist converts and baptizes the Ethiopian eunuch, whom he found reading the prophecy of Isaiah; 26—38. (5) While the eunuch joyfully pursues his journey homeward, Philip preaches the gospel along the western borders of Canaan; 39, 40.

AND Saul was consenting unto his death. And at that time there was a great persecution against the church which was at Jerusalem: and they were all scattered abroad throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, except the apostles.

2 And devout men carried Stephen to his burial, and made great lamentation over him.

3 As for Saul, he made havoc of the church, entering into every house, and haling men and women, committed them to prison.

4 Therefore they that were scattered abroad went every where preaching the word.

5 Then Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them.

6 And the people with one accord gave heed unto those things which Philip spake, hearing and seeing the miracles which he did.

7 For unclean spirits, crying with loud voice, came out of many that were possessed with them: and many taken with palsies, and that were lame, were healed.

8 And there was great joy in that city.

9 But there was a certain man called Simon, which beforetime, in the same city, used sorcery, and bewitched the people of Samaria, giving out that himself was some great one:

10 To whom they all gave heed, from

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VII.—If we are called to account for our faith and hope in Christ, let the oracles of God be our sole defence: they all relate to him. In them he is represented as the God of glory; as the angel JEHOVAH, who appeared to the patriarchs; and as the worker of wonders for, and giver of laws to, his people. He was prefigured by Moses and Joshua, David and Solomon, their distinguished rulers, and by the tabernacle and temple; and is now exalted to the right hand of God as the object of all religious adoration.—Infinitely faithful is God to his covenant promises: all are fulfilled in their season. But very mixed and mysterious is the conduct of his providence. Great perplexity and distress often usher in the most remarkable deliverances. And God's favourites are in general tried before they are honoured. It is a distinguishing mercy to be, even in our ancestors, early taken into his covenant, and to be always under his special direction, government, and care. And thrice happy are they who not only have his ordinances established among them, but are themselves made his meet habitation, through the Spirit!—But, notwithstanding all his awful or delightful providences towards his church, many hypocritical professors are more fond of rites and ceremonies, or of their own idolatrous inventions, than of either his law or his gospel. Obstinate they revolt from him, resist his Spirit, persecute his servants, and reject him and his salvation, to their own everlasting perdition.—Kindly and honourably Jesus stands by his faithful confessors; fills them with the Holy Ghost, and grants them clear and seasonable manifestations of his glory. If enemies cast them out and murder them, he stands ready to embrace, support, comfort, and carry them to heaven. With the greatest confidence of faith may they therefore commit their departing souls to him; and, imploring forgiveness to their murderers, with glory and triumph fall asleep in his arms.

11 And to him they had regard, because that of long time he had bewitched them with sorceries.

12 But, when they believed Philip, preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women.

13 Then Simon himself believed also: and, when he was baptized, he continued with Philip, and wondered, beholding the miracles and signs which were done.

14 ¶ Now, when the apostles who were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John:

15 Who, when they were come down, prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Ghost:

16 For as yet he was fallen upon none of them: only they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus.

17 Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost.

18 ¶ And, when Simon saw that through laying on of the apostles' hands the Holy Ghost was given, he offered them money, 19 Saying, Give me also this power, that on whomsoever I lay hands he may receive the Holy Ghost.

20 But Peter said unto him, Thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money.

21 Thou hast neither part nor lot in this matter: for thy heart is not right in the sight of God.

22 Repent therefore of this thy wickedness, and pray God, if perhaps the thought of thine heart may be forgiven thee.

23 For I perceive that thou art in the gall of bitterness, and in the bond of iniquity.

24 Then answered Simon, and said, Pray ye to the Lord for me, that none of these things which ye have spoken come upon me.

25 And they, when they had testified and preached the word of the Lord, returned to Jerusalem, and preached the gospel in many villages of the Samaritans.

26 ¶ And the angel of the Lord spake unto Philip, saying, Arise, and go toward the south, unto the way that goeth down from Jerusalem unto Gaza, which is desert.

27 And he arose and went: and, behold, a man of Ethiopia, an eunuch of great authority under Candace queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treasure, and had come to Jerusalem for to worship, 28 Was returning, and, sitting in his chariot, read Esaias the prophet.

29 Then the Spirit said unto Philip, Go near, and join thyself to this chariot.

30 And Philip ran thither to him, and heard him read the prophet Esaias, and said, Understandest thou what thou readest?

31 And he said, How can I, except some man should guide me? and he desired Philip that he would come up and sit with him.

32 The place of the scripture, which he read was this; He was led as a sheep to the slaughter; and, like a lamb dumb before his shearer, so opened he not his mouth:

33 In his humiliation his judgment was taken away: and who shall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth.

34 And the eunuch answered Philip, and said, I pray thee, of whom speaketh the prophet this? of himself, or of some other man?

35 Then Philip opened his mouth, and began at the same scripture, and preached unto him Jesus.

36 And as they went on their way they came unto a certain water: and the eunuch said, See, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?

37 And Philip said, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.

38 And he commanded the chariot to stand still: and they went down both into the water, both Philip, and the eunuch; and he baptized him.

39 And, when they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the eunuch saw him no more: and he went on his way rejoicing.

40 But Philip was found at Azotus: and, passing through, he preached in all the cities till he came to Cesarea.

CHAP. IX.

(1) Saul, going to persecute the Christians at Damascus, is, by Christ's voice from heaven, converted; 1—9. (2) After some reluctance, Ananias baptizes him; 10—19. (3) Saul immediately preaches Christ in the synagogues at Damascus; 20—22. (4) The Jews attempt to murder him, and he narrowly escapes; 23—25. (5) After three years, he is, with some difficulty, admitted among the Christians at Jerusalem; 26—28. (6) To escape the murderous fury of the Hellenist Jews, he retires to Tarsus, while the church greatly flourishes; 29—31. (7) At Lydda Peter cures Eneas of a palsy, and at Joppa restores Dorcas to life; 32—43.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VIII.—It seems hard and inexplicable that eminent ministers should be murdered when they begin to be remarkably useful. But the wisdom of God makes the blood of martyrs the seed of the Church, and overrules the persecution of his servants for the spread of his gospel. And it is wonderful to see sometimes the most noted ministers protected amidst the fury of outrageous persecution; and that, while hell and earth rage against the gospel, Jesus Christ should thereby convert multitudes to himself. If we believe his truth, we ought speedily and solemnly to devote ourselves to him and his service. But, alas, through ambition, covetousness, or other vicious inclinations, many profane the seals of his covenant, and publicly pretend to be his when they are not; and, from mercenary views, many are too readily admitted as members or officers in the church. Dreadful will it be if a Saviour perceive them at last in the gall of bitterness and bond of iniquity! in an unconverted state! Yet it is to be feared that many ask, and rely on, the prayers of others, who never heartily pray for themselves.—But no awful discovery of hypocrites must discourage ministers from going on with their work. While vengeance lights on the heads of dissemblers, true believers shall be instructed and strengthened in their most holy faith; and, by following the means of grace which they have, they may hope to meet with a blessing, or even to receive means more eminent. If we be humble searchers of God's word, and often call ourselves to an account whether we understand it, he will send us an Interpreter. And much of Jesus Christ may be seen in the scriptures, if our mind be enlightened by his Spirit. Yea nothing so effects the conscience as the gospel record concerning him.—What strange methods God sometimes takes to send the gospel to nations answerably to his own promises!—Short-lived is the delightful fellowship of Christians on earth. But, if Jesus and his Spirit go with each, all may go on their way rejoicing.

AND ^aSaul, yet breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord, went unto the high priest,

2 And desired of him ^bletters to Damascus to the synagogues, that if he found any of ^cthis way, whether they were men or women, he might bring them bound unto Jerusalem.

3 ^dAnd as he journeyed he came near Damascus: and suddenly there shined round about him a light from heaven:

4 And he fell to the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou ^eme?

5 And he said, ^fWho art thou, Lord? And the Lord said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest: ^git is hard for thee to kick against the pricks.

6 And he, trembling and astonished, said, ^hLord, what wilt thou have me to do? And the Lord ⁱsaid unto him, Arise, and go into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do.

7 And the men who journeyed with him stood speechless, ^jhearing a voice, but seeing no man.

8 And Saul arose from the earth; and when his eyes were opened he saw no man: ^kbut they led him by the hand, and brought ^lhim into Damascus.

9 And he was three days ^mwithout sight, and neither did eat nor drink.

10 ¶ ⁿAnd there was a certain disciple at Damascus named Ananias; and to him said the Lord in a vision, Ananias. And he said, Behold, I ^oam here, Lord.

11 And the Lord ^psaid unto him, Arise, and go into the street which is called Straight, and inquire in the house of Judas for ^qone called ^rSaul of Tarsus: for, ^sbehold, he prayeth, 12 ^tAnd hath seen in a vision a man named Ananias coming in, and putting ^uhis hand on him, that he might receive his sight.

13 Then Ananias answered, Lord, I have heard by many of this man, ^vhow much evil he hath done to thy saints at Jerusalem:

14 And here he hath authority from the chief priests to bind all that ^wcall on thy name.

15 But the Lord said unto him, Go thy way; for ^xhe is a chosen vessel unto me, to bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel:

16 ^yFor I will shew him how great things he must suffer for my name's sake.

17 ^zAnd Ananias went his way, and entered into the house; and, putting his hands on him, said, Brother Saul, the Lord (even Jesus, that appeared unto thee in the way as thou camest) hath sent me, that thou mightest receive thy sight, and ^{aa}be filled with the Holy Ghost.

18 ^{ab}And immediately there fell from his eyes as it had been scales: and he received sight forthwith, and arose, and was baptized.

19 ^{ac}And when he had received meat he was strengthened. Then was Saul certain days with the disciples who were at Damascus.

20 ^{ad}And straightway he preached Christ in the synagogues, that he is the Son of God.

21 But all that heard ^{ae}him were amazed, and said, ^{af}Is not this he that destroyed them who called on this name in Jerusalem, and came hither for that intent, that he might bring them bound unto the chief priests?

22 But Saul increased the more in strength, and confounded the Jews who dwelt at Damascus, ^{ag}proving that this is very Christ.

23 ¶ And after that many days were fulfilled the Jews ^{ah}took counsel to kill him:

24 ^{ai}But their laying in wait was known of Saul. And they watched the gates day and night to kill him.

25 Then the disciples took him by night, and let ^{aj}him down by the wall in a basket.

26 ¶ And when Saul was come to Jerusalem ^{ak}he assayed to join himself to the disciples: but they were all afraid of him, and believed not that he was a disciple.

27 But ^{al}Barnabas took him, and brought ^{am}him to the ^{an}apostles, and declared unto them how he had seen the Lord in the way, and that he had spoken to him, and how he had preached ^{ao}boldly at Damascus in the name of Jesus.

28 And he was with them ^{ap}coming in and going out at Jerusalem.

29 And he ^{aq}spake boldly in the name of the Lord Jesus, and disputed against the ^{ar}Grecians: but they went about to slay him.

30 ^{as}Which when the brethren knew, ^{at}they brought him down to Cesarea, and sent him forth to Tarsus.

31 ^{au}Then had the churches rest throughout all Judea, and Galilee, and Samaria, and were edified; and, walking in the fear of the Lord, and in the comfort of the Holy Ghost, were multiplied.

32 ¶ And it came to pass, as Peter passed throughout all ^{av}quarters, he came down also to ^{aw}the saints who dwelt at Lydda.

33 And there he found a certain man named Eneas, who had kept his bed ^{ax}eight years, and was sick of the palsy.

34 And Peter said unto him, Eneas, ^{ay}Jesus Christ maketh thee whole: arise, and make thy bed. ^{az}And he arose immediately.

35 ^{ba}And all that dwelt at Lydda and Saron saw him, and turned to the Lord.

36 ¶ Now there was at ^{bb}Joppa a certain disciple named Tabitha, which by interpretation is called ^{bc}Dorcas: this woman was ^{bd}full of good works and alms-deeds which she did.

37 And it came to pass in those days that she was sick, and died: whom, when they had washed, they laid ^{be}her in an ^{bf}upper chamber.

38 And, forasmuch as Lydda was nigh to Joppa, and the disciples had heard that Peter was there, they sent unto him two men, desiring him that he would not delay to come to them.

39 Then Peter arose and went with them. When he was come they brought him into the upper chamber: and all the widows stood by him weeping, and shewing the coats and garments which Dorcas made while she was with them.

40 But Peter put them all forth, and kneeled down and prayed; and, turning him to the body, said, Tabitha, arise. And she opened her eyes: and, when she saw Peter, she sat up.

41 And he gave her his hand, and lifted her up; and, when he had called the saints and widows, he presented her alive.

42 And it was known throughout all Joppa: and many believed in the Lord.

43 And it came to pass that he tarried many days in Joppa with one Simon a tanner.

CHAP. X.

Introduces the long-promised calling of the Gentiles into the gospel church. (1) Directed by a vision, Cornelius, a Roman captain, sends to Joppa for Peter to instruct him; 1—8. (2) Directed by a vision of beasts and a voice from heaven, Peter readily goes with his messengers; 9—23. (3) Peter and Cornelius relate the substance of their respective visions as the reason of their present interview; 24—33. (4) In a sermon Peter represents that the distinction of Jews and Gentiles was now abolished by God; and exhibits Christ crucified, and now exalted, as the Messiah foretold by the prophets and the Saviour of the world; 34—43. (5) The Holy Ghost descending in a miraculous manner upon Cornelius and his friends, they are baptized; 44—48.

THERE was a certain man in Cesarea called Cornelius, a centurion of the band called the Italian band.

2 A devout man, and one that feared God with all his house, who gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God always.

3 He saw in a vision evidently, about the ninth hour of the day, an angel of God coming in to him, and saying unto him, Cornelius.

4 And, when he looked on him, he was afraid, and said, What is it, Lord? And he said unto him, Thy prayers and thine alms are come up for a memorial before God.

5 And now send men to Joppa, and call for one Simon, whose surname is Peter:

6 He lodgeth with one Simon a tanner, whose house is by the sea side: he shall tell thee what thou oughtest to do.

7 And, when the angel who spake unto Cornelius was departed, he called two of his household servants, and a devout soldier of them that waited on him continually:

8 And when he had declared all these things unto them, he sent them to Joppa.

9 ¶ On the morrow as they went on their journey and drew nigh unto the city, Peter went up upon the house top to pray about the sixth hour:

10 And he became very hungry, and would have eaten: but, while they made ready, he fell into a trance,

11 And saw heaven opened, and a certain vessel descending unto him, as it had been a great sheet, knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth:

12 Wherein were all manner of four-footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air.

13 And there came a voice to him, Rise, Peter; kill, and eat.

14 But Peter said, Not so, Lord; for I have never eaten any thing that is common or unclean.

15 And the voice spake unto him again the second time, What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common.

16 This was done thrice: and the vessel was received up again into heaven.

17 ¶ Now, while Peter doubted in himself what this vision which he had seen should mean, behold, the men who were sent from Cornelius had made inquiry for Simon's house, and stood before the gate, 18 And called, and asked whether Simon, who was surnamed Peter, were lodged there.

19 While Peter thought on the vision the Spirit said unto him, Behold, three men seek thee.

20 Arise therefore, and get thee down, and go with them, doubting nothing; for I have sent them.

21 Then Peter went down to the men who were sent unto him from Cornelius, and said, Behold, I am he whom ye seek: what is the cause wherefore ye are come?

22 And they said, Cornelius the centurion, a just man, and one that feareth God, and of good report among all the nation of the Jews, was warned from God by an holy angel to send for thee into his house, and to hear words of thee.

23 Then called he them in, and lodged them. And on the morrow Peter went away with them, and certain brethren from Joppa accompanied him.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IX.—Some of God's elected people may go the most fearful lengths in sin before their conversion, to manifest that it must be merely of free grace. Yea, great is their madness, their malice, against the Redeemer; and all at their own infinite hazard. How irrefragable are the proofs of our Saviour's exaltation to his Father's right hand! He has appeared and spoken from heaven with divine majesty and glory; and, through an authoritative use of his name by faith, has healed the sick and raised the dead;—even the dead in trespasses and sins. Victorious and sovereign also is his grace. It strikes the most daring sinner into trembling and astonishment, stops his career of wickedness, and makes him all concern, all resignation, all obedience to his will; gives him a heart to pray, and turns the furious persecutor into a zealous preacher of the faith which he had once destroyed. No wonder that both saints and sinners are amazed at the marvellous change. Through great distress and darkness the elect are sometimes brought into their new covenant state, to their spiritual comforts, and remarkable usefulness in the church. But the miraculous convert is gradually emboldened and strengthened, to the silencing and confounding of every opposer. With great caution ought church members to be admitted; but never should those whom Christ has marked with his grace and truth be rejected.—It is impossible for Christ ever to want instruments for carrying on his work. If he find them not he can make them, and can easily take away all their objections and discouraging difficulties. Nor can the most furious malice nor the most crafty plots cut off one of them till their work be finished. Whenever he pleases he can turn threatenings against, and slaughter of his people, into rest and peace, and can fill them with the comforts of the Holy Ghost, that they may be multiplied and edified. Pleasantly then do ministers visit churches, and impart benefits in the name of their Master.—Thrice happy are they when their faithful ministrations issue in the conversion of multitudes. And it is honourable for saints, and their profession, when their piety and charity render their life greatly desired, and their death as much lamented.

24 And the morrow after they entered into Cesarea. And Cornelius waited for them, and had called together his kinsmen and near friends.

25 ¶ And as Peter was coming in Cornelius met him, and fell down at his feet, and worshipped him.

26 But Peter took him up, saying, Stand up: I myself also am a man.

27 And, as he talked with him, he went in, and found many that were come together.

28 And he said unto them, Ye know how that it is an unlawful thing for a man that is a Jew to keep company, or come unto one of another nation: but God hath shewed me that I should not call any man common or unclean.

29 Therefore came I unto you, without gainsaying, as soon as I was sent for: I ask therefore for what intent ye have sent for me?

30 And Cornelius said, Four days ago I was fasting until this hour, and at the ninth hour I prayed in my house, and, behold, a man stood before me in bright clothing, 31 And said, Cornelius, thy prayer is heard, and thine alms are had in remembrance in the sight of God.

32 Send therefore to Joppa, and call hither Simon, whose surname is Peter: he is lodged in the house of one Simon a tanner by the sea side; who, when he cometh, shall speak unto thee.

33 Immediately therefore I sent to thee; and thou hast well done that thou art come. Now therefore are we all here present before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God.

34 ¶ Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons:

35 But in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him.

36 The word which God sent unto the children of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ; (he is Lord of all;)

37 That word, I say, ye know, which was published throughout all Judea, and began from Galilee, after the baptism which John preached:

38 How God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power: who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil; for God was with him.

39 And we are witnesses of all things which he did, both in the land of the Jews and in Jerusalem; whom they slew and hanged on a tree:

40 Him God raised up the third day, and shewed him openly;

41 Not to all the people, but unto witnesses chosen before of God, even to us, who did eat and drink with him after he rose from the dead.

42 And he commanded us to preach unto the people, and to testify that it is he who was ordained of God to be the judge of quick and dead.

43 To him give all the prophets witness, that through his name whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins.

44 ¶ While Peter yet spake these words the Holy Ghost fell on all them who heard the word.

45 And they of the circumcision who believed were astonished, as many as came with Peter, because that on the Gentiles also was poured out the gift of the Holy Ghost.

46 For they heard them speak with tongues, and magnify God. Then answered Peter, 47 Can any man forbid water, that these should not be baptized, who have received the Holy Ghost as well as we?

48 And he commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord. Then prayed they him to tarry certain days.

(1) Peter is accused by his Christian brethren at Jerusalem for preaching to and baptizing the Gentiles; 1—5. (2) By a relation of the matter he vindicates himself, and abundantly satisfies them; 6—18. (3) The scattered preachers publish the gospel at Antioch in Syria, and the places about, with great success; 19—21. (4) Barnabas is sent thither; and, finding Paul, goes with him to help forward the good work there.—The converts are there first named Christians; 22—26. (5) Agabus having foretold a famine all over the Roman empire, the Syrian converts agree to make and send a contribution for the relief of their poor brethren at Jerusalem; 27—30.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. X.—It is an honour for persons of all ranks to be devout and liberal, and to worship God in their families as well as in secret. And how does this Roman soldier shame many professed Christians, who, on the most trifling pretences, neglect the worship of their Maker, who scarcely know what it is to observe family devotion, and who take no more pains in the religious education of children and servants than if they were beasts! God takes great delight to increase their knowledge and comfort who sincerely practise what they know, and earnestly ask his further direction. And though our best actions cannot render our persons acceptable to God, yet, if they are agreeable to his perfections and law, he graciously rewards them.—It is by men, not by angels, that we must expect to be taught.—With tender care God removes the conscientious scruples of his servants, and prepares them beforehand for their duty. And never are we more ready to receive his direction than when we are engaged in solemn prayer. Cheerfully therefore ought all, especially ministers, to go whithersoever he in his providence calls them, hoping for success, whatever impediments lie in their way. Gospel preachers ought to be gladly received and kindly entertained; and as many friends as we can influence be encouraged to share their instructions. With the deepest reverence and attention ought we to hear and believe the truths of God, on which depend our eternal salvation and his glory. And with the utmost care ought preachers to make known Jesus Christ in his person, offices, debasement, and glory, as the source and mean of our whole salvation, and as our great Judge, to whom we must quickly give an account. It is a delightful season when the Holy Ghost with supernatural influence attests the truths preached, and applies them to the hearts of hearers. Cheerfully they then surrender themselves to Jesus, and avow their faith in him. Cordially they praise him for his kindness, and desire to be more acquainted with, established in, and edified by, his truths. But O with what astonishing condescension, and marvellous operation of providence and grace, has God extended his gospel to us unclean and brutish sinners of the Gentiles, and has made of both Jews and Gentiles one gospel church, so making peace.

sheet, let down from heaven by four corners; and it came even to me:

6 Upon the which when I had fastened mine eyes I considered, and saw ^hfour-footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air.

7 And I heard a voice saying unto me, ⁱArise, Peter, slay and eat.

8 But I said, ^kNot so, Lord: for nothing common or unclean hath at any time entered into my mouth.

9 But the voice answered me again from heaven, ^lWhat God hath cleansed, ^{that} call not thou common.

10 And this was done ^mthree times: and ⁿall were drawn up again into heaven.

11 And, behold, immediately there were three men already come unto the house where I was, sent from Cesarea unto me.

12 And ^othe Spirit bade me go with them, nothing doubting. Moreover, these six brethren accompanied me, and we entered into the man's house:

13 ^pAnd he shewed us how he had seen an angel in his house, who stood and said unto him, Send men to Joppa, and call for Simon, whose surname is Peter:

14 Who shall tell thee ^qwords whereby thou and all thy house shall be saved.

15 And as I began to speak ^rthe Holy Ghost fell on them, as on us at the beginning.

16 Then remembered I the word of the Lord, how that he said, ^sJohn indeed baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost.

17 Forasmuch then as ^tGod gave them the like gift as he did unto us, who believed on the Lord Jesus Christ, what was I, ^uthat I could withstand God?

18 When they heard these things ^xthey held their peace, and glorified God, saying, ^yThen hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life.

19 ¶ ^zNow they, who were scattered abroad upon the persecution that arose about Stephen, travelled as far as ^aPhenice, and Cyprus, and Antioch, preaching the word ^bto none but unto the Jews only.

20 And some of them were men of Cyprus and ^cCyrene, who, when they were come to Antioch, spake unto the ^dGrecians, ^epreaching the Lord Jesus.

21 ^fAnd the hand of the Lord was with them: and a great number believed, and turned unto the Lord.

22 ¶ Then tidings of these things came unto the ears of the church which was in Jerusalem: and ^gthey sent forth Barnabas, that he should go as far as Antioch.

23 Who, when he came and ^hhad seen the grace of God, was glad, and ⁱexhorted them all that with purpose of heart they would ^kcleave unto the Lord.

24 For he was a ^lgood man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith: and much people was added unto the Lord.

25 Then departed Barnabas to ^mTarsus, for to seek Saul:

26 And, when he had found him, he brought him unto Antioch. And it came to pass that a whole year ⁿthey assembled themselves ^{tw}with the church, and taught [†]much people. And the disciples were called ^oChristians first in Antioch.

27 ¶ And in these days came ^pprophets from Jerusalem unto Antioch.

28 And there stood up one of them named ^qAgabus, and signified by the Spirit that there should be great dearth throughout all the world: which came to pass in the days of Claudius Cesar.

29 Then the disciples, every man ^raccording to his ability, determined to send relief unto the brethren who dwelt in Judea.

30 Which also they did, and sent it to the ^selders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

CHAP. XII.

- (1) Herod Agrippa, deputy king in Judea, persecutes the Christians, murders the apostle James, and imprisons Peter; 1—4. (2) Peter is liberated by an angel, in answer to the prayers of the church for him, to the no small perplexity of his persecutors; 5—19. (3) Herod, in the midst of his pride and pomp, is struck by an angel, and dies miserably; 20—23. (4) After his death the gospel has great success, and Paul and Barnabas return to Antioch; 24, 25.

NOW about that time ^aHerod the king ^bstretched forth his hands ^cto vex certain of the church.

2 And he ^dkilled James the brother of John with the sword.

3 And, ^ebecause he saw it pleased the Jews, he proceeded further to take ^fPeter also. ^gThen were the days of unleavened bread.

4 And, ^hwhen he had apprehended him, he put him in prison, and delivered ⁱhim to four quaternions of soldiers to keep him, intending after Easter to bring him forth to the people.

5 Peter therefore was kept in prison: but [†]prayer was made ^hwithout ceasing of the church unto God for him.

6 And when Herod would have brought ⁱhim forth, the ^ksame night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains; and the keepers before the door kept the prison.

7 And, behold, the angel of the Lord which manifests spiritual life received, and prepares them for the eternal life promised hereafter.—When his Spirit and power attend the preached gospel, multitudes believe and are turned to the Lord, and cleave to him with fixed purpose of heart. And with alacrity and diligence do ministers then attend their increasing work. Delightful is the name and great the honour to possess the privileges and tempers of CHRISTIANS; and especially to act up to the profession and obligations included in the character! Happy had it been for the church if no other character had ever marked the followers of Christ. With harmony in the truth, with holiness and order, ought such to hold fellowship one with another; and with great cheerfulness should they supply one another's wants, none of which can take place without the foreknowledge of God. Yea, he sometimes wisely plunges his people into calamities, for the trial, exercise, and improvement, of their own or others' faith, love, and self-denied obedience, and for the removal of groundless differences among them.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XI.—Delightful are the tidings of sinners' receiving and being converted by the gospel of Christ. The salvation of souls, the honour of Christ, and the glory of God, are hereby highly promoted. And it is strange that even saints should be sometimes prejudiced when their enemies, or persons of detested characters, are made partakers of the same spiritual blessings as themselves; that rash censures should so often drop from gracious lips, and godlike charity should be reproached as looseness in religion! But ministers must bear with the weak; and though no unreasonable prejudice should ever hinder the execution of their commission, they should be always ready to clear their conduct to scrupulous minds. And every Christian also ought gladly to hear and receive any thing that may tend to remove his prejudices. What, are we to withstand God, who distributes his favours as he pleases, and overrules the fury of persecutors for the spread of the gospel and conversion of sinners? Thrice happy are they to whom he freely grants that repentance

CHAP. XIII.

(1) Paul and Barnabas are solemnly separated to preach the gospel among the Gentiles as well as the Jews; 1—3 (2) Beginning at Seleucia, they proceed from thence to Salamis and Paphos, in the isle of Cyprus, preaching the word; 4—7. (3) They strike Elymas, the sorcerer with blindness; and convert Sergius Paulus, the Roman deputy there; 8—12. (4) Coming from Cyprus by Perga in Pamphylia, they arrive at Antioch in Pisidia; where Paul, allowed by the ruler of the synagogue, gives them a view of the history of their nation, from the deliverance from Egypt to David; and thence takes occasion to represent the crucified Jesus as risen again and exalted to glory, and as the only Saviour through whom they could be saved; 13—41. (5) The substance of this discourse being repeated on the next sabbath, some were converted; but other Jews contradicting and blaspheming, Paul and Barnabas pronounce them obstinate unbelievers, and preach to the Gentiles with great success; 42—49. (6) Departing thence, they give solemn testimony against their persecutors, and come to Iconium; 50—52.

NOW there were in the church that was at Antioch certain prophets and teachers: as Barnabas, and Simeon that was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen, who had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch, and Saul.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XII.—Whether should we here most admire the wickedness of men in promoting, or the wisdom of God in overruling, the persecutions of his church! Alas, what selfishness, pride, rashness, and cruelty, to murder one of the best, the most useful of men! And infernal the malice to take pleasure in it. But men-pleasers will lead themselves at last into the greatest guilt: and success in one sin will embolden them to commit another. The united and fervent prayers of the saints will prove in the end too hard for all that oppose them. If God bestow his Spirit of grace and supplication, to make intercession with groanings which cannot be uttered, deliverance is at hand.

And in their extremity, though often not till then, he will rise up for their help. And, if ordinary means cannot avail for their preservation, he will work miracles for them. Nay, even by ordinary means he can hide them from their most inveterate foes. But proud persecutors quickly meet with an avenging God. The prudent submission of neighbours, and the servile flattery of friends, but lift them up that their destruction may be the more terrible. God seasonably cuts them off in the midst of their pomp and grandeur; and makes their fall, as well as their fury, subservient to the propagation of the gospel.

9 Then Saul, (who also is called °Paul), filled with the Holy Ghost, set his eyes on him,

10 And said, °O full of all subtilty and all mischief, thou child of the devil, thou enemy of all righteousness, wilt thou not cease °to pervert the right ways of the Lord?

11 And now, behold, °the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, not seeing the sun for a season.
And immediately there fell on him a mist and a darkness: and he went about seeking some to lead him by the hand.

12 Then the °deputy, when he saw what was done, believed, being astonished at the doctrine of the Lord.

13 ¶ Now, when Paul and his company loosed from Paphos, they came to Perga, in Pamphylia: and °John, departing from them, returned to Jerusalem.

14 But, when they departed from Perga, they came to Antioch °in Pisidia, and °went into the synagogue on the sabbath day, and sat down.

15 And, after °the reading of the law and the prophets, the °rulers of the synagogue sent unto them, saying, °Ye men and brethren, if ye have any word of exhortation for the people, say on.

16 Then Paul stood up; and, °beckoning with his hand, said, °Men of Israel, and ye that fear God, give audience.

17 °The God of this people of Israel chose our fathers, and exalted the people when they dwelt as strangers in the land of Egypt, and with an high arm brought he them out of it.

18 °And about the time of forty years †suffered he their manners in the wilderness.

19 And, °when he had destroyed seven nations in the land of Chanaan, he divided their land to them by lot.

20 And after that °he gave unto them judges, about the space of four hundred and fifty years, until Samuel the prophet.

21 °And afterward they desired a king: and God gave unto them Saul the son of Cis, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, by the space of forty years.

22 And, when he had removed him, he °raised up unto them David to be their king: to whom also he gave testimony, and said, I have found David, the son of Jesse, a man after mine own heart, who shall fulfil all my will.

23 °Of this man's seed hath God, according to his promise, raised unto Israel a Saviour, Jesus:

24 °When John had first preached before his coming the baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel.

25 And, as John °fulfilled his course, he said, °Whom think ye that I am? I am not he. But, behold, there cometh one after me, whose shoes of his feet I am not worthy to loose.

26 °Men and brethren, children of the stock of Abraham, and whosoever among you feareth God, to you is the word of this salvation sent.

27 For they that dwell at Jerusalem, and their rulers, because °they knew him not, nor yet the voices of the prophets which °are read every sabbath day, they have fulfilled them in condemning him.

28 °And, though they found no cause of death in him, yet desired they Pilate that he should be slain.

29 And, when they had fulfilled all that was written of him, °they took him down from the tree, and laid him in a sepulchre.

30 °But God raised him from the dead:

31 °And he was seen many days of them who came up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who are his °witnesses unto the people.

32 And we declare unto you glad tidings, how that the °promise which was made unto the fathers,

33 God hath fulfilled the same unto us their children, in that he hath raised up Jesus again; as it is also written in the second psalm, °Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee.

34 And as concerning that he raised him up from the dead, now no more to return to corruption, he said on this wise, °I will give you the sure †mercies of David.

35 Wherefore he saith also in another psalm, °Thou shalt not suffer thine Holy
One to see corruption.

36 For David, ¶after he had °served his own generation by the will of God, fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers,
and saw corruption:

37 But he whom God raised again saw no corruption.

38 °Be it known unto you therefore, men and brethren, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins:

39 And by him °all that believe are justified from all things, from which °ye could not be justified by the law of Moses.

40 Beware, therefore, lest that come upon you which is spoken of in the °prophets;

41 Behold, ye despisers, and wonder, and perish: for I work a work in your days, a work which ye shall in no wise believe, though a man declare it unto you.

42 ¶ And, when the Jews were gone out of the synagogue, the °Gentiles besought that these words might be preached to them °the next sabbath.

43 Now, when the congregation was broken up, many of the Jews and religious proselytes followed Paul and Barnabas; who, speaking to them, persuaded them °to continue in the grace of God.

44 ¶ And the next sabbath day °came almost the whole city together to hear the word of God.

45 But, when the Jews saw the multitudes, °they were filled with envy, and

CHAP. XIV.

(1) After successfully preaching the gospel at Iconium, persecution makes Paul and Barnabas flee to Lystra, Derbe, and the places about; 1—7. (2) At Lystra they heal a lame man; upon which the people could scarcely be restrained from worshipping them as gods; 8—18. (3) Quickly after, instigated by the Jews, they stoned Paul till they thought he was dead; 19, 20. (4) They visit the churches which they had lately planted, in order to settle preaching and ruling elders among them; 21—23. (5) Returning to Antioch, they report what things the Lord had done by the gospel in their hands; 24—28.

AND it came to pass in ^{*}Iconium that they went both together ^ainto the synagogue of the Jews, and so spake, that ^aa great multitude both of the Jews, and also of the Greeks, believed.

2 ^cBut the unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles, and made their minds evil-affected against the brethren.

3 Long time therefore abode they speaking boldly in the Lord, ^dwho gave testimony unto the word of his grace, ^eand granted signs and wonders to be done by their hands.

4 ^fBut the multitude of the city was divided: and part held with the Jews, and part with the apostles.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIII.—Important is the work of preaching the gospel, and absolutely necessary for it is the direction of God's Spirit and providence. He qualifies his servants for it, calls them to it, and directs and succeeds them in it; and with pleasure and courage they may set about it, if satisfied of their divine call. But Satan and his instruments will certainly oppose them in it with great warmth and earnestness, especially if great sinners and persons in power appear to be converted by it. Great will be their subtilty and mischievous ardour in opposing the gospel—the right ways of the Lord. All the arts of sorcery and infidelity; all the fury that blind zeal, temporal interests, and envy, can inspire; all the powers of this world; are stirred up to oppress it. But no weapon formed against Zion shall prosper. For under the influence of the Holy Ghost the word shall the more spread and be glorified. Very important are the tidings it brings us concerning the promised Saviour; for whose being born, crucified, and raised from the dead, according to the ancient oracles of God, all former dispensations towards Israel but paved the way.—By infinitely wise and seasonable advances has the knowledge of Jesus Christ, and a full redemption through him, spread and prevailed in the world. Thrice happy are they who receive him as the light of life and propitiation for sins. From eternity they were chosen in him to everlasting life. In time they are justified through his righteousness imputed, even from crimes for which the ceremonial laws

5 And, ^ewhen there was an assault made both of the Gentiles, and also of the Jews with their rulers, to use them despitefully, and to stone them,

6 ^hThey were ware of it, and fled unto Lystra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and unto the region that lieth round about:

7 ⁱAnd there they preached the gospel.

8 ¶ And there sat a certain man at Lystra, impotent in his feet, ^kbeing a cripple from his mother's womb, who never had walked:

9 The same heard Paul speak: who stedfastly beholding him, and perceiving that he had ^lfaith to be healed,

10 Said with a loud voice, ^mStand upright on thy feet. And he leaped and walked.

11 And, when the people saw what Paul had done, they lifted up their voices, saying, in the speech of Lycaonia, ⁿThe gods are come down to us in the likeness of men.

12 And they called Barnabas Jupiter; and Paul Mercurius, because he was the chief speaker.

13 Then the priest of Jupiter, which was before their city, brought oxen and garlands unto the gates, and ^owould have done sacrifice with the people.

14 Which when the apostles Barnabas and Paul heard of, they ^prent their clothes, and ran in among the people, crying out,

15 And saying, Sirs, ^qwhy do ye these things? We also are men ^rof like passions with you, and preach unto you that ye should turn from these ^svanities unto the ^tliving God, who made heaven and earth, and the sea, and all things that are therein:

16 ^uWho in times past suffered all nations to walk in their own ways.

17 ^vNevertheless, he left not himself without witness, in that he did good, and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness.

18 And with these sayings ^wscarce restrained they the people that they had not done sacrifice unto them.

19 ¶ And there came thither certain Jews from Antioch and Iconium, who persuaded the people; ^xand, having stoned Paul, drew him out of the city, supposing ^yhe had been dead.

allowed no expiation. They are endowed with the presence, supplies, and consolations of the Holy Ghost, and enabled to continue in the faith, profession, and obedience of the gospel, notwithstanding the most cruel persecution.—If among these converts some be remarkable for sense, others for stupid idolatries, all marks the sovereignty and power of gospel grace.—But, alas, great is their sin and danger, who, notwithstanding their visible relation to him, reject the Redeemer, and set themselves to reproach his servants, his truths, and ways. They thrust the gospel and eternal life from themselves, and provoke God to cast them off with abhorrence into everlasting perdition. Take heed, my soul, to hear only such preachers as the Holy Ghost has qualified and regularly placed in their office. Let no station make me think myself above the gospel; and let no sinfulness make me reckon myself below it. Let reading and hearing of God's word be my constant delight; and let me carefully observe all providences in connection with Christ. Regarding the word of salvation he hath sent, and receiving the sure mercies he hath given, let me serve my generation according to the will of God, and then fall asleep in the Lord. If I am justified, let me manifest it by my good works; if I have grace implanted in my heart, let me continue therein; if I am benefited by ministers, let me love and cleave to them; and if for Jesus' sake I am tossed to and fro, let his comforts delight my soul.

round about him, he rose up, and came into the city: and the next day he departed with Barnabas to Derbe.

21 ¶ And when they had preached the gospel to that city, and had taught many, they returned again to Lystra, and to Iconium, and Antioch, 22 Confirming the souls of the disciples, and exhorting them to continue in the faith, and that we must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God.

23 And, when they had ordained them elders in every church, and had prayed with fasting, they commended them to the Lord, on whom they believed.

24 And, after they had passed through-out Pisidia, they came to Pamphylia.

25 And, when they had preached the word in Perga, they went down into Attalia:

26 And thence sailed to Antioch, from whence they had been recommended to the grace of God for the work which they fulfilled.

27 And, when they were come and had gathered the church together, they rehearsed all that God had done with them, and how he had opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles.

28 And there they abode long time with the disciples.

CHAP. XV.

(1) A dispute being raised at Antioch by the judaizing teachers about circumcising the Gentile converts, Paul and Barnabas are sent to Jerusalem to have that matter decided; 1—5. (2) A synod of the apostles and elders being met to consider it, after Peter, Paul, Barnabas, and James, had spoken their minds, a decision is made against circumcising the Gentiles; but requiring them, for the avoiding of offence, to forbear eating any things offered to idols, things strangled, and blood; 6—29. (3) Paul and Barnabas carry the decree to Antioch, where it is received with great joy; 30—35. (4) They propose a second apostolic journey; but after a warm contention about John Mark, they part, and take different routes; 36—41.

AND certain men who came down from Judea taught the brethren, and said, Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved.

2 When therefore Paul and Barnabas had no small dissension and disputation with them, they determined that Paul and Barnabas, and certain other of them, should go up to Jerusalem unto the apostles and elders about this question.

3 And, being brought on their way by the church, they passed through Phenice, and Samaria, declaring the conversion of the Gentiles: and they caused great joy unto all the brethren.

4 And, when they were come to Jerusalem, they were received of the church, and of the apostles and elders, and they declared all things that God had done with them.

5 ¶ But there rose up certain of the sect of the Pharisees who believed, saying that it was needful to circumcise them, and to command them to keep the law of Moses.

6 And the apostles and elders came together for to consider of this matter.

7 ¶ And, when there had been much disputing, Peter rose up and said unto them, Men and brethren, ye know how that a good while ago God made choice among us, that the Gentiles by my mouth should hear the word of the gospel, and believe.

8 And God, who knoweth the hearts, bare them witness, giving them the Holy Ghost, even as he did unto us:

9 And put no difference between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith.

10 Now therefore why tempt ye God to put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear?

11 But we believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved even as they.

12 ¶ Then all the multitude kept silence, and gave audience to Barnabas and Paul, declaring what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them.

13 ¶ And, after they had held their peace, James answered, saying, Men and brethren, hearken unto me:

14 Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name.

15 And to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written,

16 After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up:

17 That the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doth all these things.

18 Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world.

19 Wherefore my sentence is, that we trouble not them who from among the Gentiles are turned to God:

20 But that we write unto them that they abstain from pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood.

21 For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the synagogues every sabbath day.

22 ¶ Then pleased it the apostles and REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIV.—God plainly testifies his own being, life, patience, goodness, power, and wisdom, to the heathen world, in the works of creation and providence. And even while, by their perverse manners, they abuse the light of their consciences, he graciously gives them the necessities and delights of outward life. Surely even these his common favours should attract their love to him. And, alas, great is their sin and misery, who, being left to their own lusts and imaginations, put vanity and devils as objects of worship in his place. Infinite is the mercy that now the door of faith is opened to the Gentiles; the gospel of salvation through Jesus Christ is preached to them. But, alas, while some believe it, others rage against and oppose it. Yea, while heathens believe and are healed, Jews oppose and are hardened to their eternal ruin. And great is the unanimity of wicked men against Jesus Christ and his faithful ministers.—Inconstant and worthless is the applause of the multitude. To-day they admire preachers as gods; to-morrow they persecute and murder them as miscreants. But God's testimony to his word, in external and internal operations, is sufficient to overcome all opposition. With wisdom, care, and love, he forms his people into a church; and, by their own choice, provides them pastors and teachers after his own heart, for their further edification and establishment, and in compassion to the snares and troubles through which they must pass into the heavenly state. In the most solemn manner, by prayer and fasting, ought ministers to be set apart to their work. And with pleasure and hope, labour and diligence, should they spend and be spent in the conversion of sinners and edification of saints. And, though they ought to avoid suffering as far as can be done without sin, yet none must ever deter them from the faithful execution of their office. Till their testimony be finished God will preserve them in life; nor will upright disciples ever disown them on account of reproach or danger.

elders, with the whole church, to send chosen men of their own company to Antioch, with Paul and Barnabas; namely, Judas surnamed Barsabas, and Silas, chief men among the brethren:

23 And they wrote letters by them after this manner; The apostles and elders and brethren send greeting unto the brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch, and Syria, and Cilicia:

24 Forasmuch as we have heard that certain who went out from us have troubled you with words, subverting your souls, saying, Ye must be circumcised, and keep the law; to whom we gave no such commandment:

25 It seemed good unto us, being assembled with one accord, to send chosen men unto you with our beloved Barnabas and Paul;

26 Men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

27 We have sent therefore Judas and Silas, who shall also tell you the same things by mouth.

28 For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things;

29 That ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well.

30 So, when they were dismissed, they came to Antioch: and, when they had gathered the multitude together, they delivered the epistle:

31 Which when they had read, they rejoiced for the consolation.

32 And Judas and Silas, being prophets also themselves, exhorted the brethren with many words, and confirmed them.

33 And, after they had tarried there a space, they were let go in peace from the brethren unto the apostles.

34 Notwithstanding, it pleased Silas to abide there still.

35 Paul also and Barnabas continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others also.

36 ¶ And some days after Paul said unto Barnabas, Let us go again and visit our brethren in every city where we have preached the word of the Lord, and see how they do.

37 And Barnabas determined to take with them John, whose surname was Mark.

38 But Paul thought not good to take him with them, who departed from them from Pamphylia, and went not with them to the work.

39 And the contention was so sharp between them, that they departed asunder one from the other: and so Barnabas took Mark, and sailed unto Cyprus;

40 And Paul chose Silas, and departed, being recommended by the brethren unto the grace of God.

41 And he went through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the churches.

CHAP. XVI.

(1) Finding Timothy at Lystra, Paul circumcises him, takes him for his assistant; and visits the churches, delivering the decrees of the synod; 1—5. (2) The Holy Ghost prohibits their preaching in Proconsular Asia and Bithynia; but directs them to Macedonia by a vision; 6—12. (3) Lydia being converted at Philippi, entertains them kindly; 13—15. (4) Paul casts out a spirit of divination from a young woman, for which he and Silas are scourged and imprisoned; 16—24. (5) While they sing praises in the prison, an earthquake opens the doors; and the jailor, after being on the point of murdering himself, is converted and his family; 25—33. (6) Paul and Silas oblige the magistrates to liberate and dismiss them honourably, as Roman citizens; 34—40.

THEN came he to Derbe and Lystra: and, behold, a certain disciple was there, named Timotheus, the son of a certain woman who was a Jewess, and believed; but his father was a Greek:

2 Who was well reported of by the brethren that were at Lystra and Iconium.

3 Him would Paul have to go forth with him; and took and circumcised him, because of the Jews who were in those quarters: for they knew all that his father was a Greek.

4 And, as they went through the cities, they delivered them the decrees for to keep, that were ordained of the apostles and elders who were at Jerusalem.

5 And so were the churches established in the faith, and increased in number daily.

6 Now, when they had gone throughout Phrygia, and the region of Galatia, and were forbidden of the Holy Ghost to preach the word in Asia,

7 After they were come to Mysia, they assayed to go into Bithynia: but the Spirit suffered them not.

8 And they, passing by Mysia, came down to Troas.

9 ¶ And a vision appeared to Paul in the night; There stood a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, saying, Come over into Macedonia, and help us.

10 And, after he had seen the vision, immediately we endeavoured to go into Macedonia, assuredly gathering that the Lord had called us for to preach the gospel unto them.

there is need in all our disputes to adhere closely to the scriptures, and in all ecclesiastical decisions to manifest a strict regard to the gospel liberty purchased by Christ, and to the weakness of tender consciences. If they be made with proper prudence and harmony, they will in general be heartily received by church members for their edification. And greatly should we rejoice in the success of other churches, and in the union of Jews and Gentiles into one body of Christ; and carefully should all avoid giving offence to their neighbours, even in things indifferent in themselves. But, since the gospel is necessary for the confirmation of believers as well as for the conversion of sinners, not only ought ministers to labour in the ministrations of it, but all to rejoice in their success.—It is an unpleasing reflection that smaller differences should so often occasion sharp contentions between the best of men; and that dear friends should, in an ill humour, bid each other adieu for life. It is nevertheless a mercy if God make the weakness of men a mean of spreading his gospel.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XV.—Alas, how early a spirit of bigotry, legality, and attachment to ceremonies, began in the Christian church, to the great injury of the pure doctrines of salvation by Christ alone through faith! And it is a great mercy that the church is now delivered from the ancient burdensome rites of Moses, which never availed to the purification of men's consciences; and that the salvation of sinners, greater or lesser, Jews or Gentiles, is wholly of free grace. For the faith of the gospel powerfully tends to the purification of men's hearts and lives.—When attempts are made, especially under pretence of apostolic authority, to corrupt the peculiar doctrines of the gospel, and to pervert the souls of believers, it is high time to contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints. But proud and angry contentions about mere circumstances should never trouble the church, and expose her to confusion, danger, and reproach. It is a mercy that Jesus has appointed courts in proper subordination, and proper regulations, for the happy adjusting of differences. And 11 Therefore, loosing from Troas, we came with a straight course to Samothracia, and the next day to Neapolis;

12 And from thence to ^aPhilippi, which is ^{*}the chief city of that part of Macedonia, and a ^ocolony: and we were in that city abiding certain days.

13 And on the ^psabbath we went out of the city by a river side, ^qwhere prayer was wont to be made; and we sat down and ^rspake unto the women who resorted thither.

14 ¶ And a certain woman, named Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of Thyatira, who worshipped God, heard us: ^qwhose heart the Lord opened, that she attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul.

15 And, when ^ushe was baptized, and her household, she besought us, saying, If ye have judged me ^xto be faithful to the Lord, come into my house, and abide there. And she ^yconstrained us.

16 ¶ And it came to pass, as we went to prayer, a certain damsel ^zpossessed with a spirit [†]of divination met us, who brought her masters much gain by sooth-saying:

17 The same followed Paul and us, and cried, saying, ^aThese men are the servants of the most high God, who shew unto us the way of salvation.

18 And this did she many days. But Paul, ^bbeing grieved, turned, and said to the spirit, I command thee in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her. And he came out the same hour.

19 ¶ And, when her masters saw that ^cthe hope of their gains was done, ^dthey caught Paul and Silas, and drew them into the [‡]market-place unto the rulers,

20 ^eAnd brought them to the magistrates, saying, These men, being Jews, do exceedingly trouble our city, 21 And teach customs which are not lawful for us to receive, neither to observe being Romans.

22 ^fAnd the multitude rose up together against them: and the magistrates rent off their clothes, and commanded to beat them.

23 ^gAnd when they had laid many stripes upon them, they cast them into prison, charging the jailor to keep them safely:

24 Who, having received such a charge thrust them into the inner prison, and made their feet fast in the ^hstocks.

25 ¶ And at midnight Paul and Silas prayed, and sang praises unto God: and the prisoners heard them.

26 ^kAnd suddenly there was a great earthquake, so that the foundations of the prison were shaken: and immediately all the doors were opened, and every one's bands were loosed.

27 And the keeper of the prison, awaking out of his sleep, and seeing the prison doors open, ^lhe drew out his sword, and would have killed himself, supposing that the prisoners had been fled.

28 But Paul cried with a loud voice, saying, ^mDo thyself no harm; for we are all here.

29 Then he called for a light, and sprang in, and came trembling, and fell down before Paul and Silas, 30 And brought them out, and said, ⁿSirs, what must I do to be saved?

31 And they said, ^oBelieve on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house.

32 ^pAnd they spake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his house.

33 And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes; and ^qwas baptized, he and all his, straightway.

34 And, when he had brought them into his house, he ^rset meat before them, and ^srejoiced, believing in God with all his house.

35 ¶ And ^twhen it was day the magistrates sent the sergeants, saying, Let those men go.

36 And the keeper of the prison told this saying to Paul; The magistrates have sent to let you go: now therefore depart, and ^ugo in peace.

37 But Paul said unto them, They have beaten us openly uncondemned, ^vbeing Romans, and have cast us into prison; and now do they thrust us out ^wprivily? nay, verily; ^xbut let them come themselves and fetch us out.

38 And the sergeants told these words unto the magistrates: and they ^yfeared when they heard that they were Romans.

39 ^zAnd they came and besought them, and brought them out, and desired them to depart out of the city.

40 And they went out of the prison, ^aand entered into the house of Lydia; and, when they had seen the brethren, they comforted them, and departed.

CHAP. XVII.

- (1) Passing through different cities, Paul comes to Thessalonica, another city of Macedonia; preaches the gospel with great success; but is quickly persecuted, by the instigation of the Jews; 1—9. (2) Flees to Berea, where he meets with attentive hearers; till persecuting Jews follow him, and drive him thence; 10—14. (3) Conducted to Athens, the most learned city of Greece, he preaches Jesus Christ and the resurrection, and disputes with the heathen philosophers against their idolatry; 15—31. (4) But his labours issue in the conversion of few; 32—34.

regard to the instrument of their conversion, and be deeply concerned for the eternal salvation of their whole family. Satan will turn himself and his agents into very different forms, will become a friend, an angel of light, a witness for Christ, or a selfish, outrageous, persecuting fury, in order to sully the honour, and prevent the spread, of the gospel. But let them do as they will, Jesus can support, comfort, vindicate, and render victorious, his faithful servants. No persecutor is so proud or furious, but either the terrors of God can restrain, or his grace, convert, him. And, if possible, Christ's ministers should study to obtain their deliverances with honour as well as with safety; but they must never manifest any selfish resentment. Learn, my soul, carefully to observe providential directions. Always delight in meetings for prayer or religious conference. Never relish dissembled applause, however just. In every distress believe in Jesus Christ; and always rejoice in suffering for his sake.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVI.—There is need of wisdom from above to direct us when to condescend to men's weaknesses, and when to assert our privileges religious or civil. God remarkably owns his gospel for the conversion and edification of men when it is faithfully and prudently preached. And in awful sovereignty he directs where to preach it and where not. Marvellous is it that he has not forbidden nor hindered the preaching of it in Britain, where it has been so peculiarly undervalued, rejected, denied, and detested! God deals with his elect in very different forms in bringing them to his Son. And some of them, when near to the brink of hell as well as to the ordinances of grace, are plucked as brands out of the burning. But it is enough if, either in a more kind or a more awful manner, they be deeply convinced of sin and self-insufficiency, and led to receive and rest upon Jesus Christ alone, in all his offices, for salvation, as he is offered in the gospel. And, while God, in infinite kindness, becomes at once their God and the God of their seed, they will testify their high

NOW, when they had passed through Amphipolis, and Apollonia, they came to ^aThessalonica, where was a synagogue of the Jews:

2 And Paul, ^bas his manner was, went in unto them, and three sabbath days reasoned with them out of the scriptures,

3 ^cOpening and alledging that Christ must needs have suffered and risen again from the dead: and that this Jesus, whom I preach unto you, is Christ.

4 ^eAnd some of them believed, and consorted with Paul and Silas; and of the ^fdevout Greeks a great multitude, and of the chief women not a few.

5 ¶ ^eBut the Jews who believed not moved with envy, took unto them certain lewd fellows of the baser sort, and gathered a company, and set all the city on an uproar, and assaulted the house of Jason, and sought to bring them out to the people.

6 And, when they found them not, they drew Jason and certain brethren unto the rulers of the city, crying, ^hThese that have turned the world upside down are come hither also;

7 Whom Jason hath received: and ⁱthese all do contrary to the decrees of Cesar, saying that there is another king, ^jone Jesus.

8 And ^kthey troubled the people, and the rulers of the city, when they heard these things.

9 And when they had taken security of Jason and of the other, they let them go.

10 ¶ ^lAnd the brethren immediately sent away Paul and Silas by night unto Berea; who, coming ^mthither, went into the synagogue of the Jews.

11 These were ⁿmore noble than those in Thessalonica, in that ⁿthey received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the scriptures daily whether those things were so.

12 ^oTherefore many of them believed; also of honourable women who were Greeks, and of men not a few.

13 ¶ But, when the Jews of Thessalonica had knowledge that the word of God was preached of Paul at Berea, ^pthey came thither also, and stirred up the people.

14 ^qAnd then immediately the brethren sent away Paul to go as it were to the sea: but Silas and Timotheus abode there still.

15 And they that conducted Paul brought him unto ^rAthens: and, receiving a commandment ^runto Silas and Timotheus for to come to him with all speed, they departed.

16 ¶ Now, while Paul waited for them at Athens, ^shis spirit was stirred in him, when he saw the city ^twholly given to idolatry:

17 ^uTherefore disputed he in the synagogue with the Jews, and with the devout persons, and in the market daily with ^vthem that met with him.

18 Then certain philosophers of the ¶ Epicureans, and of the ^wStoicks, encountered him. And some said, What will this ^xbabblers say? other some, He seemeth to be a setter forth of strange gods: because he ^ypreached unto them Jesus and the resurrection.

19 And they took him, and brought him unto ^zAreopagus, saying, May we know what this new doctrine, whereof thou speakest, is?

20 For thou bringest certain strange things to our ears: we would know therefore what these things mean.

21 (For all the Athenians and strangers who were there spent their time in nothing else but either to tell or to hear some new thing).

22 ¶ Then Paul stood in the midst of ^{aa}Mars-hill, and said, Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are ^{ab}too superstitious.

23 For as I passed by, and beheld your ^{ac}devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, TO ^{ad}THE UNKNOWN GOD. Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you.

24 ^{ae}God, that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, ^{af}dwelleth not in temples made with hands;

25 ^{ag}Neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed any thing, seeing he ^{ah}giveth to all life, and breath, and all things;

26 ^{ai}And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and ^{aj}hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation;

27 ^{ak}That they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he be not ^{al}far from every one of us:

28 For ^{am}in him we live, and move, and have our being; as certain also of your own ^{an}poets have said, For we are also his offspring.

29 Forasmuch then as we are the offspring of God, ^{ao}we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold, or silver, or stone graven by art and man's device.

30 ^{ap}And the times of this ignorance God winked at; but now ^{aq}commandeth all men every where to repent:

31 Because ^{ar}he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by ^{as}that man whom he hath ordained; ^{at}whereof he hath ^{au}given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead.

32 ¶ And, when they heard of the resurrection of the dead, some ^{av}mocked, and others said, We will hear thee again of this ^{aw}matter.

33 ^{ax}So Paul departed from among them.

34 ^{ay}Howbeit, certain men clave unto him, and believed: among whom ^{az}was Dionysius the Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

Going from Athens to Corinth, Paul works at tent-making with Aquila and Priscilla; preaches first to the Jews; 1—6: and afterwards to the idolatrous Gentiles with great success; and is encouraged by a vision; 6—11. (2) He is accused by the Jews to Gallio, the Roman governor, who refuses to intermeddle in the affair; 12—17. (3) He turns backward, and, by Ephesus and Antioch, directs his course to Jerusalem, watering the several churches which he had planted; 18—23. (4) Apollos, coming to Ephesus, is instructed by Aquila and Priscilla; and, with great eloquence, fervour, and scriptural evidence, preaches the gospel there, and in Achaia in Greece; 24—28.

AFTER these things Paul departed from Athens, and came to ^aCorinth; ² And found a certain Jew named ^bAquila, born in Pontus, lately come from Italy, with his wife Priscilla; (because that Claudius had commanded all Jews ^{*}to depart from Rome); and came unto them.

³ And, because he was of the same craft, he abode with them, and ^cwrought: for by their occupation they were tent-makers.

⁴ ^dAnd he reasoned in the synagogue every sabbath, and persuaded the Jews and the Greeks.

⁵ And, ^ewhen Silas and Timotheus were come from Macedonia, Paul was pressed in the spirit, and ^ftestified to the Jews that Jesus was Christ.

⁶ And, ^gwhen they opposed themselves, and blasphemed, ^hhe shook his raiment, and said unto them, Your blood be upon your own heads; I am clean: ⁱfrom henceforth I will go unto the Gentiles.

⁸ ^kAnd Crispus, the chief ruler of the synagogue, believed on the Lord with all his house: and many of the Corinthians, ^lhearing, believed and were baptized.

⁹ ¶ ^mThen spake the Lord to Paul in the night by a vision; Be not afraid, but speak, and hold not thy peace:

¹⁰ ⁿFor I am with thee, and no man shall set on thee to hurt thee: for ^oI have much people in this city.

¹¹ And he ^pcontinued there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.

¹² ¶ And, when Gallio was the deputy of Achaia, the Jews ^qmade insurrection with one accord against Paul, and brought him to the judgment seat.

¹³ Saying, ^rThis fellow persuadeth men to worship God contrary to the law.

¹⁴ And, when Paul was now about to open his mouth, Gallio said unto the Jews, ^sIf it were a matter of wrong, or wicked lewdness, O ye Jews, reason would that I should bear with you:

¹⁵ But, if it be a question of words and names, and ^tof your law, ^ulook ye to it; for I will be no judge of such mat- ters.

¹⁶ ^vAnd he drave them from the judgment seat.

¹⁷ Then all the Greeks took ^wSosthenes, the chief ruler of the synagogue, and beat him before the judgment seat. And Gallio ^xcared for none of those things.

²⁰ When they desired him to tarry longer time with them, he consented not;

²¹ But bade them farewell, saying, I must by all means keep this ^afeast that cometh in Jerusalem; but I will return again unto you, ^bif God will. And he sailed from Ephesus.

²² And when he had landed at ^cCesarea, and gone up and saluted the church, he went down to ^dAntioch.

²³ And, after he had spent some time there, he departed and went over all the country of ^eGalatia and Phrygia in order, ^fstrengthening all the disciples.

²⁴ ¶ And a certain Jew, named Apollos, born at Alexandria, an eloquent man and ^gmighty in the scriptures, came to Ephesus.

²⁶ And he began to speak ^jboldly in the synagogue: whom when ^kAquila and Priscilla had heard, they took him unto them, and ^lexpounded unto him the way of God more perfectly.

²⁷ And, when he was disposed to pass into Achaia, the brethren ^mwrote, exhorting the disciples to receive him: who, when he was come, ⁿhelped them much who had ^obelieved through grace:

²⁸ For he mightily convinced the Jews, and that publicly, ^pshewing by the scriptures that Jesus was Christ.

4. Heb. 1—x.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVII.—How justly the Holy Ghost had witnessed that bonds and afflictions awaited the apostle in every city! And it is delightful to see ministers preaching the gospel, regardless of all fatigue, contempt, and persecution, counting nothing too dear for Christ and his cause. It is comely when all the sermon is plainly derived from the oracles of God, and when hearers attentively receive the truth, and examine all they hear by the scripture. Important is the matter of gospel preaching, even Jesus' person, sufferings, and glory;—his dying for our sins, and calling us back from our graves to his last judgment. Powerful is its efficacy in the conversion of multitudes, and even of persons of rank, in places the most wicked. Real converts take delight in owning, holding fellowship with, and caring for the safety and comfort of, faithful ministers; while the offscourings of mankind, and the high pretenders to wisdom, readily unite together against Jesus Christ and his gospel. Unhappy is the place where the mob are both judges and executioners. Very false, but common, is the pretence that Jesus' sole Headship over his church interferes with lawful civil authority; and yet many magistrates dread danger chiefly from noted believers.—If ministers be persecuted in one city, they may flee to another. But they will every where meet with as abounding wickedness, and, in consequence thereof, much contempt and hatred. Yot, the nearer Christ's word lies to their own hearts, they will the more eagerly seize all opportunities of publishing it. Great prudence is necessary in dealing with self-conceited pretenders to wisdom. No where has the gospel less success than among such. They are often ignorant of the plainest doctrines of nature, of the divine perfections, and of our relation to God as our Maker, Preserver, and Disposer. None are more madly set upon the most senseless idolatry, or more given to waste precious moments in mere trifles. Righteous is the sovereignty of God in permitting them to be so blinded by the god of this world; and great his mercy, in calling men to repent, in view of, the future judgment, whether they will hear or forbear.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVIII.—Happy are those churches where ministers are so hearty in their work that they will rather labour for their own subsistence, than prejudice men against the gospel, or give enemies an handle to reproach them as mercenary! But there is need of divine direction when to condescend and when not. Ministers should take great pains in making known Christ, and persuading men to accept of him as their only Saviour, and in defending the great truths of the gospel, till their hearers manifest themselves incorrigibly wicked, and obstinate rejecters of it. And, alas, dreadful is their destruction whose blood faithful ministers stand clear of! But, while some despise the gos-

CHAP. XIX.

(1) Paul returns to Ephesus, and imparts the Holy Ghost to some that had known only the baptism of John; 1—7. (2) Preaches three months in the Jewish synagogue; but meeting there with great opposition, he preaches two years in the school of Tyrannus, confirming his doctrine by miracles; 8—12. (3) Some Jewish exorcists, who attempted to make use of Christ's name in casting out devils, are confounded; and many other practisers of devilish arts are converted; 13—20. (4) Paul defers his intended journey through Macedonia and Achaia to Jerusalem, and his visit of Rome; 21, 22. (5) Demetrius a silversmith, and his brethren, raise a mob to cry up Diana, in opposition to him; 23—34. But (6) the town clerk, by a sensible remonstrance, setting forth Paul's innocency and their own irregularity, appeases and disperses them; 35—41.

AND it came to pass that, while ^aApollos was at Corinth, Paul, having passed through ^{*}the upper coasts, came to Ephesus: and, finding certain disciples,

2 He said unto them, Have ^eye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed? And they said unto him, ^dWe have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost.

3 And he said unto them, Unto what then were ye baptized? And they said, ^eUnto John's baptism.

4 Then said Paul, ^fJohn verily baptized with the baptism of repentance, saying unto the people that they should believe on him who should come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus.

5 When they heard this they were baptized ^gin the name of the Lord Jesus.

6 ^hAnd, when Paul had laid his hands upon them, the Holy Ghost came on them; and they spake with tongues, and prophesied.

7 And all the men were about twelve.

8 ¶ And he went ⁱinto the synagogue, and spake boldly for the space of three months, disputing, and persuading the things concerning the kingdom of God.

9 ^kBut, when divers were hardened, and believed not, but spake evil of that ^lway before the multitude, he departed from them, and separated the disciples, disputing daily in the school of one Tyrannus.

10 ^mAnd this continued by the space of two years; so that all they who dwelt in ⁿAsia heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Greeks.

11 ^oAnd God wrought special miracles by the hands of Paul:

12 So that from his body were brought unto the sick handkerchiefs or aprons, and the diseases departed from them, and the evil spirits went out of them.

13 ¶ Then certain of the vagabond Jews, ^pexorcists, took upon them to call over them who had evil spirits the name of the Lord Jesus, saying, We ^qadjure you by Jesus whom Paul preacheth.

14 And there were seven sons of one Sceva a Jew, and chief of the priests, who did so.

15 And the evil spirit answered and said, ^rJesus I know, and Paul I know; but who are ye?

16 ^sAnd the man in whom the evil spirit was leaped on them, and overcame them, and prevailed against them, so that they fled out of that house naked and wounded.

17 And this was known to all the Jews and Greeks also dwelling at Ephesus: ^tand fear fell on them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified.

18 And many that believed came, and ^uconfessed, and shewed their deeds.

19 Many of them also ^vwho used curious arts brought their books together, and burned them before all men: and they counted the price of them, and found it [†]fifty thousand pieces of silver.

20 ^ySo mightily grew the word of God and prevailed.

21 ¶ After these things were ended, Paul purposed ^zin the spirit, when he had passed through Macedonia and Achaia, to ^ago to Jerusalem, saying, After I have been there I ^bmust also see Rome.

22 So ^che sent into Macedonia two of them that ministered unto him, Timotheus and Erastus: but he himself staid in Asia for a season.

23 ^dAnd the same time there arose no small stir about that way.

24 For a certain man named Demetrius, a silversmith, who made [†]silver shrines for Diana, brought no small ^egain unto the craftsmen.

25 Whom he called together with the workmen of like occupation, and said, ^fSirs, ye know ^gthat by this craft we have our wealth.

26 Moreover, ye see and hear that not alone ^hat Ephesus, but almost throughout all Asia, this Paul hath persuaded and turned away much people, saying that ⁱthey be no gods which are made with hands:

27 So that not only this our craft is in danger to be set at nought; but also that the temple of the great goddess Diana should be despised, and her magnificence should be destroyed, whom all Asia and ^jthe world worshippeth.

28 And when they heard these sayings ^kthey were full of wrath, and cried out, saying, ^lGreat is Diana of the Ephesians.

29 ^mAnd the whole city was filled with confusion: and, having caught ⁿGaius and Aristarchus, men of Macedonia, Paul's companions in travel, they rushed with one accord into the ^otheatre.

30 And, when Paul would have entered in ^punto the people, the disciples suffered him not.

31 And certain of the chief of ^qAsia who were his friends, sent unto him, desiring him that he would not adventure himself into the theatre.

pel to their own damnation, God will make it effectual to others, even the most unlikely. His elect, whether great or small, shall be all gathered in. If ministers have God's direction, promise, presence, comfort, and protection, they need fear nothing. Success shall crown their labours; yea, even heathens, not very attentive to their duty as magistrates, shall refuse to persecute them. And the more success faithful ministers meet with, they are still the more diligent.—It is comely when old experienced Christians are inclined readily to instruct younger ones. And young preachers, who gladly accept instruction from exercised saints, though of the weaker sex, bid fair to be useful, if not famous, in gathering and edifying the church. There is little hope of such as are too wise to learn. And nothing should preachers more study than to have the scriptures stored up in their memories, and deeply written in their hearts, that all they deliver to others may be plainly marked with the authority of God

32 Some therefore cried one thing, and some another: for the assembly was confused, and the more part knew not wherefore they were come together.

33 And they drew Alexander out of the multitude, the Jews putting him forward. And Alexander beckoned with the hand, and would have made his defence unto the people.

34 But, when they knew that he was a Jew, all with one voice about the space of two hours cried out, Great is Diana of the Ephesians.

35 And, when the town clerk had appeased the people, he said, Ye men of Ephesus, what man is there that knoweth not how that the city of the Ephesians is a worshipper of the great goddess Diana, and of the image which fell down from Jupiter?

36 Seeing then that these things cannot be spoken against, ye ought to be quiet, and to do nothing rashly.

37 For ye have brought hither these men, who are neither robbers of churches, nor yet blasphemers of your goddess.

38 Wherefore, if Demetrius, and the craftsmen who are with him, have a matter against any man, the law is open, and there are deputies: let them implead one another.

39 But, if ye inquire any thing concerning other matters, it shall be determined in a lawful assembly.

40 For we are in danger to be called in question for this day's uproar, there being no cause whereby we may give an account of this concourse.

41 And when he had thus spoken he dismissed the assembly.

CHAP. XX.

(1) Paul, accompanied by some friends, travels through Macedonia, Greece, and Asia, till he comes to Troas; 1—6. (2) At Troas he preaches, administers the Lord's supper, and raises Eutychus from the dead; 7—12. (3) Sets forward on his way to Jerusalem, till he comes to Miletus; 13—16. (4) Calls thither the elders of Ephesus; and, by representing his own faithfulness, disinterestedness, and diligence, charges them to take the like care of their church; 17—35. (5) Takes a most solemn and affectionate farewell of them; 36—38.

AND after the uproar was ceased Paul called unto him the disciples, and embraced them, and departed for to go into Macedonia.

2 And when he had gone over those parts, and had given them much exhortation, he came into Greece,

3 And there abode three months. And when the Jews laid wait for him, as he was about to sail into Syria, he purposed to return through Macedonia.

4 And there accompanied him into Asia Sopater of Berea; and of the Thessalonians Aristarchus and Secundus; and Gaius of Derbe, and Timotheus; and of Asia, Tychicus and Trophimus.

5 These, going before, tarried for us at Troas.

6 And we sailed away from Philippi after the days of unleavened bread, and came unto them to Troas in five days, where we abode seven days.

7 And upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow, and continued his speech until midnight.

8 And there were many lights in the upper chamber, where they were gathered together.

9 And there sat in a window a certain young man named Eutychus, being fallen into a deep sleep: and, as Paul was long preaching, he sunk down with sleep, and fell down from the third loft, and was taken up dead.

10 And Paul went down, and fell on him, and embracing him, said, Trouble not yourselves; for his life is in him.

11 When he therefore was come up again, and had broken bread and eaten, and talked a long while, even till break of day, so he departed.

12 And they brought the young man alive, and were not a little comforted.

13 And we went before to ship, and sailed unto Assos, there intending to take in Paul: for so had he appointed, minding himself to go afoot.

14 And, when he met with us at Assos, we took him in, and came to Mitylene.

15 And we sailed thence, and came the next day over against Chios; and the next day we arrived at Samos, and tarried at Trogyllium; and the next day we came to Miletus.

16 For Paul had determined to sail by Ephesus, because he would not spend the time in Asia: for he hasted, if it were possible for him, to be at Jerusalem the day of Pentecost.

17 And from Miletus he sent to Ephesus, and called the elders of the church.

18 And, when they were come to him, he said unto them, Ye know, from the first day that I came into Asia, after what manner I have been with you at all seasons,

19 Serving the Lord with all humility of mind, and with many tears, and temptations, which befel me by the lying in wait of the Jews:

20 And how I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you; but have shewed you, and have taught you publicly, and from house to house,

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIX.—Much more clear and glorious is the gospel dispensation which we enjoy than even the ministration of John Baptist. And much better the baptism of the Holy Ghost than that of mere water. But, alas, how many receive the external seals of God's covenant who have no experimental, and very little notional, knowledge of him or his influences! And, though baptism is never to be repeated, yet the Spirit is daily to be received. With great boldness and persevering courage ought the gospel to be preached; and dreadful is their fate who put it from them, or attempt to counterfeit its miraculous confirmations. They but fight and labour for the devil, that he may reward them with shame and ruin.—But happy are they who are turned to the Lord by a cordial faith and genuine repentance! And hopeful is the case, when the peculiar favourites of Satan are made openly to renounce his service, sacrifice their dearest abominations with abhorrence, and remove every temptation of drawing back out of their own and their neighbour's way. How furiously zealous are the most of mankind for a false religion, especially if worldly gain and long custom are on its side. And, with such, noise and clamour are invincible arguments for the most blasphemous absurdities. When those are so zealous for the devil, it is much to be lamented that many, called Christians, have so little concern for the glory of God.—Safe are the persons of God's faithful ministers, since he can make heathens earnest advocates for, and prudent protectors of, them. Fear of men hinders many from wickedness; but much more wise are they who are prevented from it by serious views of their future account to God.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XX.—Christ's providence can carry his servants safe through the wildest uproars, and turn mad outrage into calm tranquillity and peace. Parting with Christian friends, whom we except to see no more on earth, ought to be very devout and affectionate. And, if murderous enemies lie in wait for us, we may cautiously avoid them. If we honour Christ much, he will honour us with good companions. And, if ministers be truly faithful, they will never think they do enough in the service of Christ. They may be often wearied with, but never weary of, their work. Christians, who fervently love Christ, will make his Sabbath and supper their delight. And it is very unlike a Christian to shorten the one by unnecessary sloth and sleep, and almost forget the other by unfrequency. How criminal and dangerous is it, even at mid-day, to sleep at the worship of God! What if he—whom we affront as Paul and his friends, sailing southward from Miletus, touch at Patara, Tyre, and Ptolemais, and arrive at Cesarea; 1—8. (2) There they lodge in Philip the Evangelist's house; and his friends, upon Agabus' prediction of his sufferings, in vain urge Paul to forbear going up to Jerusalem; 8—14. (3) Coming to Jerusalem, he salutes the brethren; reports his success in preaching the gospel; and, at their advice, purifies himself, according to the ceremonial law, to prevent the Jewish Christians, or others, from being prejudiced against him; 15—26. (4) Some Asiatic Jews, observing him in the temple purifying himself, furiously incense the multitude to apprehend him as a criminal; 27—30. (5) Being in danger of his life, the Roman chief captain of the place rescues him from the mob, and gives him liberty to speak for himself; 30—40.

AND it came to pass that, after we were gotten from them, and had launched, we came with a straight course unto ^{}Coos, and the day following unto ^{}Rhodes, and from thence unto Patara : 2 And, finding a ship sailing over unto ^aPhenicia, we went aboard, and set forth. 3 Now, when we had discovered ^{*}Cyprus, we left it on the left hand, and sailed into ^bSyria, and landed at Tyre : for there the ship was to unlade her burden. 4 And, finding disciples, ^dwe tarried there seven days : who said to Paul, through the Spirit, ^ethat he should not go up to Jerusalem. 5 And, when we had accomplished those days, we departed, and went our way, and they ^fall brought us on our way, ^gwith wives and children, till we were out of the city : and ^hwe kneeled down on the shore and prayed. 6 And, when we had taken our leave one of another, we took ship ; and they returned home again. 7 And, when we had finished our course from Tyre, we came to ^kPtolemais, and saluted the brethren, and abode with them one day. 8 And the next day we that were of Paul's company departed, and came unto ^kCesarea ; and we entered into the house of ^lPhilip the Evangelist, who was one of the seven, and abode with him. 9 And the same man had four daughters, virgins, ^mwho did prophesy. 10 ¶ And, as we tarried there many days, there came down from Judea a certain prophet named ⁿAgabus. 11 And, when he was come unto us, he took Paul's girdle, and bound his own hands and feet, and said, ^oThus saith the Holy Ghost, So shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man that owneth this girdle, and shall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles. 12 And, when we heard these things, unworthy of our notice—he, whom we condemn as unworthy to be embraced—should seize the moment, and awaken us in eternal fire! Surely then every sermon should be heard, every sacrament received, every prayer poured forth, and every farewell of friends taken, as on the brink of eternity, and as before the awful tribunal.—Infinite is the importance of the ministerial work. With deep humility, earnest care, holy fear, self-denial, and candid fidelity, all the duties of it ought to be performed. The truths, the honour, of Jesus Christ, and the salvation of immortal souls, are all at stake. And both ministers and people have need to be recommended to the grace of God, that he may increase their gifts, graces, and success, and at last grant them a free admission to the state of perfect holiness and happiness above.

both we, and they of that place, ^pbesought him not to go up to Jerusalem.

13 Then Paul answered, What mean ye to weep and to break mine heart? ^qfor I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem, for the name of the Lord Jesus.

14 And, when he would not be persuaded, we ceased, saying, ^rThe will of the Lord be done.

15 And after those days we took up our carriages, and went up to Jerusalem.

16 ^sThere went with us also certain of the disciples of ^tCesarea, and brought with them one Mnason of ^uCyprus, an ^vold disciple, with whom we should lodge.

17 ¶ And, when we were come to Jerusalem, the brethren received us ^ygladly.

18 And the day following Paul went in with us unto ^zJames; and all the elders were present.

19 And, when he had saluted them, ^ahe declared particularly what things God had wrought among the Gentiles by his ministry.

20 And, when they heard it, they ^bglorified the Lord, and said unto him, Thou seest, brother, ^chow many thousands of Jews there are who believe; and they are all ^dzealous of the law:

21 And they are informed of thee, ^ethat thou teachest all the Jews who are among the Gentiles to forsake Moses, saying that they ought not to circumcise their children, neither to walk after the customs.

22 What is it therefore? ^fthe multitude must needs come together; for they will hear that thou art come.

23 Do therefore this that we say to thee: ^gwe have four men who have a vow on them;

24 Them take, and purify thyself with them, and be at charges with them, that they may shave their heads: and all may know that those things, whereof they were informed concerning thee, are nothing, but that ^hthou thyself also walkest orderly, and keepest the law.

25 As touching the Gentiles who believe, ⁱwe have written and concluded that they observe no such things, save only that they keep themselves from things offered to idols, and from blood, and from strangled, and from fornication.

26 Then Paul took the men, ^kand the next day, purifying himself with them, entered into the temple, to signify the accomplishment of the days of purification, until that an offering should be offered for every one of them.

27 ¶ And, when the seven days were almost ended, ^lthe Jews who were of Asia, when they saw him in the temple,

^mstirred up all the people, and laid hands on him,

28 Crying out, Men of Israel, ⁿhelp: this is the man that teacheth all men every where against the people, and the law, and this place: and, further, brought Greeks also into the temple, and hath polluted this holy place.

29 (For they had seen before with him in the city ^oTrophimus an Ephesian, whom they supposed that Paul had brought into the temple.)

30 ^pAnd all the city was moved, and the people ran together: and they took Paul, and drew him out of the temple: and forthwith the doors were ^qshut.

31 And, as they went about to kill him, tidings came unto the chief captain of the band that all Jerusalem was in an uproar.

32 Who immediately took soldiers, and centurions, and ran down unto them: and, when they saw the chief captain, and the soldiers, they left beating of Paul.

33 Then the chief captain came near, and took him, and commanded him to be ^rbound with two chains; and demanded who he was and what he had done.

34 ^sAnd some cried one thing, some another, among the multitude: and, when he could not know the certainty for the tumult, he commanded him to be carried into the castle.

35 And, when he came upon the stairs, so it was that he was borne of the soldiers for the violence of the people.

36 For the multitude of the people followed after, crying, ^tAway with him.

37 ¶ And, as Paul was to be led into the castle, he said unto the chief captain, May I speak unto thee? Who said, Canst thou speak Greek?

38 ^uArt not thou that Egyptian who before these days madest an uproar, and leddest out into the wilderness four thousand men that were murderers?

39 But Paul said, ^vI am a man who am a Jew of Tarsus, a city in Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city: and, I beseech thee, ^ysuffer me to speak unto the people.

40 And, when he had given him license, Paul stood on the stairs, and ^zbeckoned with the hand unto the people. And, when there was made a great silence, he spake unto them in the [†]Hebrew tongue, saying,

CHAP. XXII.

(1) By his affectionate address in the Hebrew tongue, Paul procures himself the attention of his audience; 1, 2. (2) He gives an account of himself;—his Jewish extract—liberal education—former bigotry—and furious persecution of the Christians; 3—5: of his miraculous conversion to Christ; 6—11: of his being baptized, and further instructed by Ananias; 12—16: of his call from heaven to preach among the Gentiles; 17—21. (3) Enraged at the last circumstance, the Jews fly out into a violent fury against him; 22, 23. (4) The chief captain again rescues him, and orders him to be bound, and strong prejudices remain with real believers. And it is difficult to judge how far we ought to condescend to their infirmity, or to appear zealous of our Christian liberty. It is indeed needless to condescend to ignorant cavillers, or obstinate ungodly bigots, who will at any rate rage against us as the servants of Christ. Nothing can be expected in their popular tumults but violence and fury, confusion and injustice.—But seasonably God interposes for the preservation of his servants from wicked and unreasonable men; and gives them opportunities to vindicate themselves, plead for the Redeemer, and spread abroad his glorious gospel.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXI.—It is delightful to travel about under the special direction and protection of Providence, and in every place to have edifying converse with Christian friends concerning the great things which God has done for us and for his church. And it is comely for Christians to meet and part with cordial affection and solemn prayer. No wonder that loving Christians are averse to think of the sufferings or death of their faithful and useful ministers. But glorious is the fortitude to be ready to suffer any thing for Christ, and to be entirely resigned to his will: and yet the tender affections of friends sometimes occasion a greater trial than the fury of enemies.—Entangling weaknesses and examined on his crime by scourging; 24, 25. But (5) Paul claiming the privilege of a Roman, escapes the torture, is freed from his bands, and brought before the Jewish council; 26—30.

MEN,^a brethren, and fathers, hear ye my defence which I make now unto you.

2 (And, when they heard that he ^bspake in the Hebrew tongue to them, they kept the more silence: and he saith),

3 ^cI am verily a man who am a Jew, born in Tarsus a city in Cilicia, yet brought up in this city ^dat the feet of Gamaliel, and taught ^eaccording to the perfect manner of the law of the fathers, and was zealous toward God, as ye all are this day.

4 ^fAnd I persecuted this way unto the death, binding and delivering into prisons both men and women.

5 ^gAs also the high priest doth bear me witness, and all the estate of the elders: from whom also I received letters unto the ^hbrethren, and went to Damascus, to bring them which were there bound unto Jerusalem, for to be punished.

6 ⁱAnd it came to pass that, as I made my journey, and was come nigh unto Damascus about noon, suddenly there shone from heaven a great light round about me.

7 And I fell unto the ground, and heard a voice saying unto me, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

8 And I answered, Who art thou, Lord? And he said unto me, I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest.

9 ^kAnd they that were with me saw indeed the light, and were afraid; but they ^lheard not the voice of him that spake to me.

10 ^mAnd I said, What shall I do, Lord? And the Lord said unto me, Arise, and go into Damascus, and there it shall be told thee of all things which are appointed for thee to do.

11 And ⁿwhen I could not see for the glory of that light, being led by the hand of them that were with me, I came into ^oDamascus.

12 ^pAnd one Ananias, a devout man according to the law, ^qhaving a good report of all the Jews who dwelt there, 13 Came unto me, and stood, and said unto me, ^rBrother Saul, receive thy sight. And the same hour I looked up upon him.

14 And he said, ^sThe God of our fathers ^thath chosen thee, that thou shouldest know his will, and ^usee that ^vJust One, and shouldest hear the voice of his mouth.

15 For thou shalt be ^xhis witness unto all men of what thou hast seen and heard.

16 And now why tarriest thou? ^yarise,

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXII.—With great prudence, temper, courage, and faithfulness, ought the cause of Christ to be maintained against its most malicious opposers.—Blind bigots are in general inflamed against it and its candid professors with the most outrageous and murderous zeal. But God's grace strangely changes the most furious and obstinate tempers. And yet men often have gospel light shining all around them, and are never thereby converted to Christ, or instructed in his truth.—Even when conversion is begun in a miraculous manner, God leads to the ordinary means of his own appointment to carry it on and render such persons acquainted with his will and their work. And, while baptism solemnly admits them into his church, effectual fervent prayer recommends them to God.—When notorious sinners are converted, their former opposition to Christ sticks fast in their remembrance, and lies heavy on and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord.

17 And it came to pass that, ^awhen I was come again to Jerusalem, even while I prayed in the temple, I was in a ^btrance;

18 And saw him saying unto me, ^cMake haste, and get thee quickly out of Jerusalem: for they will not receive thy testimony concerning me.

19 And I said, Lord, they know ^dthat I imprisoned, and beat in every synagogue, them that believed on thee:

20 ^eAnd, when the blood of thy martyr Stephen was shed, I also was standing by, and consenting unto his death, and kept the raiment of them that slew him.

21 And he said unto me, Depart: for ^fI will send thee far hence unto the Gentiles.

22 ¶ And they gave him audience unto this word, and ^gthen lifted up their voices, and said, ^hAway with such a fellow from the earth; for it is not fit that he should live.

23 And, as they cried out, and cast off ⁱtheir clothes, and threw dust into the air, 24 ^jThe chief captain commanded him to be brought into the castle, and bade ^kthat he should be ^lexamined by scourging; that he might know wherefore they cried so against him.

25 ¶ And, as they bound him with thongs, Paul said unto the centurion that stood by, ^mIs it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Roman, and undcondemned?

26 When the centurion heard ⁿthat, he went and told the chief captain, saying, ^oTake heed what thou dost; for this man ^pis a Roman.

27 Then the chief captain came, and said unto him, Tell me, art thou a Roman? He said, Yea.

28 And the chief captain answered, With a great sum obtained I this freedom. And Paul said, But I was free born.

29 Then straightway they departed from him who should have ^qexamined him: and the chief captain also was afraid after he knew that he was a Roman, and because he had bound him.

30 ¶ On the morrow, because he would have known the certainty wherefore he was accused of the Jews, he loosed him from ^rhis bands, and ^scommanded the chief priests and all their council to appear, and brought Paul down, and set him before them.

CHAP. XXIII.

Before the council, (1) Paul professes his continued integrity; foretells the high priest's ruin, who had commanded him to be smitten at the bar; but apologizes for his sharp rebuke; 1—5. (2) To bring himself off, he prudently sets his enemies at variance; 6—9: and is carried away by the chief captain; 10. (3) While Christ, by a vision, encourages him, and warns their heart: and sometimes God, in merciful chastisement, returns it on their head.—But, if Jesus instal ministers in their office, he will take care of them, and direct their course where they shall be truly successful, when others would have rejected them. And wonderful is the sovereignty of his grace in converting the most distant and unlikely, while others are left to harden themselves in their sins.—Great is their wickedness who are enraged at the extending of God's redeeming kindness, even to the most despicable and infamous sinners;—and who shut their eyes against the most evident appearances of God's word and Spirit.—Seasonably he raises up protectors where his servants are in imminent danger.—And, for their own safety, saints ought to insist on their civil privileges, that, while they stand up for his truth, God may own them, and give them further opportunities of defending his and their righteous cause.

him of further trouble at Rome, some desperate Jews bind themselves by an oath to assassinate him; 11—15. (4) Paul's sister's son informs him and the chief captain of their plot; 16—22. AND Paul, earnestly beholding the council, said, ^aMen and brethren, ^bI have lived in all good conscience before God until this day.

2 And the high priest Ananias commanded them that stood by him ^cto smite him on the mouth.

3 Then said Paul unto him, God shall smite thee, ^dthou whited wall: for sittest thou to judge me after the law, and ^ecommandest me to be smitten contrary to the law?

4 And they that stood by, said, Revilest thou God's high priest?

5 Then said Paul, I wist not, brethren, that he was the high priest: for it is written, ^f'Thou shalt not speak evil of the ruler of thy people.

6 ¶ But, when Paul perceived that the one part were Sadducees and the other Pharisees, he cried out in the council, Men and brethren, ^gI am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee: of the hope and resurrection of the dead I am called in question.

7 And, when he had so said, there arose a dissension between the Pharisees and the Sadducees: and the multitude was divided.

8 ^hFor the Sadducees say that there is no resurrection, neither angel nor spirit; but the Pharisees confess both.

9 And there arose a great cry: and the scribes ⁱthat were of the Pharisees' part arose, and strove, saying, ^j'We find no evil in this man: ^kbut, if a spirit or an angel hath spoken to him, let us not fight against God.

10 ¶ And, when there arose a great dissension, the chief captain, fearing lest Paul should have been pulled in pieces of them, commanded the soldiers to go down, and to take him by force from among them, and to bring ^lhim into the castle.

11 ^lAnd the night following the Lord stood by him, and said, Be of good cheer, Paul: for, as thou hast testified of me in Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at Rome.

12 ¶ And when it was day certain of the Jews banded together, ^mand bound themselves ⁿunder a curse, saying that they would neither eat nor drink till they had killed Paul.

13 And they were more than forty who had made this conspiracy.

14 And they came to the chief priests and elders, and said, We have bound ourselves under a great curse that we will eat nothing until we have slain Paul.

15 ^oNow therefore ye, with the council, signify to the chief captain that he bring him down unto you to-morrow, as though ye would inquire something more perfectly concerning him: and we, or ever he come near, are ready to kill him.

16 ^pAnd when Paul's sister's son heard of their lying in wait, he went and entered into the castle, and told Paul.

17 ^qThen Paul called one of the centurions unto ^rhim, and said, Bring this young man unto the chief captain; for he hath a certain thing to tell him.

18 So he took him, and brought ^rhim to the chief captain, and said, Paul the prisoner called me unto ^rhim, and prayed me to bring this young man unto thee, who hath something to say unto thee.

19 Then the chief captain took him by the hand, and went ^swith him aside privately, and asked ^rhim, What is that thou hast to tell me?

20 And he said, ^tThe Jews have agreed to desire thee that thou wouldest bring down Paul to-morrow into the council, as though they would inquire somewhat of him more perfectly.

21 But do not thou yield unto them: for ^uthere lie in wait for him of them more than forty men, who have bound themselves with an ^voath, that they will neither eat nor drink till they have killed him: and now are they ready, looking for a promise from thee.

22 So the chief captain ^uthen let the young man depart, and charged ^rhim, See ^uthou tell no man that thou hast shewed these things to me.

23 ¶ And he called unto ^rhim two centurions, saying, Make ready two hundred soldiers to go to Cesarea, and horsemen threescore and ten, and ^wspearmen two hundred, at the third hour of the night;

24 And provide ^xthem beasts, that they may set Paul on, and bring ^rhim safe unto Felix the governor.

25 And he wrote a letter after this manner:

26 Claudius Lysias unto the most excellent governor ^yFelix ^ssendeth greeting.

27 ^xThis man was taken of the Jews, and should have been killed of them: then came I with an army, and rescued him, having understood that he was a Roman.

28 And, when I would have known the cause wherefore they accused him, ^yI brought him forth into their council:

29 Whom I perceived to be accused of ^zquestions of their law, but to have nothing laid to his charge worthy of death or of bonds.

30 ^aAnd, when it was told me how that the Jews laid wait for the man, I sent straightway to thee, and gave commandment to his accusers also to say before thee what ^zthey had against him. Farewell.

31 Then the soldiers, as it was commanded them, took Paul, and brought ^rhim by night to [†]Antipatris.

32 On the morrow they left the horsemen to go with him, and returned to the castle:

33 Who, when they came to ^bCesarea, and delivered the epistle to the governor, presented Paul also before him.

34 And, when the governor had read ^zthe letter, he asked of what province he was. And, when he understood that ^zhe was of ^cCilicia,

CHAP. XXIV.

(1) The high priest and elders, with Tertullus their orator, come to Cesarea, and accuse Paul before Felix of sedition, heresy, and profanation of the temple; 1—9. (2) Paul clears himself of their charges, and defends his behaviour and doctrine; 10—21. (3) Felix defers the decision, and gives Paul more liberty than before; 22, 23: trembles at his discourse concerning Christ, righteousness, temperance, and the future judgment; 24, 25: but, receiving no bribe for his freedom, leaves him a prisoner to please the Jews; 26, 27.

AND ^aafter five days Ananias the high priest descended with the elders, and with a certain orator named Tertullus, who informed the governor against Paul.

2 And, when he was called forth, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying, ^bSeeing that by thee we enjoy great quietness, and that very worthy deeds are done unto this nation by thy providence,

3 We accept it always, and in all places, most noble Felix, with all thankfulness.

4 Notwithstanding, that I be not further tedious unto thee, I pray thee that thou wouldest hear us of thy clemency a few words.

5 ^cFor we have found this man a pestilent fellow, and a mover of sedition among all the Jews throughout the world, and a ringleader of the sect of the Nazarenes:

6 ^dWho also hath gone about to profane the temple: whom we took, and would have judged according to our law.

7 ^eBut the chief captain Lysias came upon us, and with great violence took him away out of our hands,

8 ^fCommanding his accusers to come unto thee: by examining of [†]whom thyself mayest take knowledge of all these things whereof we accuse him.

9 ^gAnd the Jews also assented, saying that these things were so.

10 ¶ Then Paul, after that the governor had ^hbeckoned unto him to speak, answered, Forasmuch as I know that thou hast been of many years [‡]a judge unto this nation, I do the more cheerfully answer for myself:

11 ⁱBecause that thou mayest understand that there are yet but twelve days since I went up to Jerusalem for to worship.

12 ^kAnd they neither found me in the temple disputing with any man, neither raising up the people, neither in the synagogues, nor in the city:

13 Neither can they prove the things whereof they now accuse me.

14 But this I confess unto thee, ^lthat after the way which they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, ^mbelieving all things which are written in the law and in the prophets:

15 And have hope toward God, which they themselves also allow, ⁿthat there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust.

16 ^oAnd herein do I exercise myself, to have always a conscience void of offence toward God and toward men.

17 Now after many years I came to bring ^ppalms to my nation, and offerings.

18 ^qWhereupon certain Jews from Asia found me purified in the temple, neither with multitude nor with tumult:

19 ^rWho ought to have been here before thee, and object if they had ought against me.

20 Or else let these same here say if they have found any evil-doing in me while I stood before the council, 21 Except it be for this one voice, that I cried standing among them, ^sTouching the resurrection of the dead, I am called in question by you this day.

22 ¶ And when Felix heard these things, having more perfect knowledge of that way, he deferred them, and said, When Lysias the chief captain shall come down, I ^twill know the uttermost of your matter.

23 ^uAnd he commanded a centurion to keep Paul, and to let him have liberty, and that he should forbid none of his acquaintance to minister or come unto him.

24 ¶ And after certain days, when Felix came with his wife [¶]Drusilla, who was a Jewess, he sent for Paul, and heard him concerning the ^vfaith in Christ.

25 And, as he reasoned of righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come, Felix ^wtrembled, and answered, Go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient season I will call for thee.

26 ¶ ^xHe hoped also that money should have been given him of Paul, that he might loose him: wherefore he sent for him the oftener, and communed with him.

27 But after two years Porcius Festus came into Felix' room: and Felix, ^ywilling to shew the Jews a pleasure, left Paul bound.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXIII.—Happy are they who can appeal to God, that, by his grace, they have lived soberly, righteously, and godly, before him. And it is base in judges to abuse any honest man for avowing his own integrity. He, who knows their heart and way, will vindicate his faithful servants, to the confusion of their enemies, however great; and proud persecutors will quickly feel themselves unable to stand before the storm of his judgments.—In ordinary cases, we must not speak evil of our rulers, whom we know and own as such.—But we may join the wisdom of the serpent with the simplicity of the dove. We may divide the counsels of our enemies, though we may not revile their persons; and, by maintaining some particular article of truth, set one part of them against another. If one party be enraged, the other will probably favour us.—If we be upright followers of that which is good, God can make the secular powers to protect us, and can overrule our dangerous circumstances to gain their favour. And, if Jesus assure us of his presence and support, and of our future usefulness, it should entirely remove all our disquieting fears, let our enemies do what they will.—Abandoned are those miscreants, and especially those judges, who, contrary to the law of nature or nations, combine to murder such as they cannot convict of any crime. No pretence of religion can sanctify, but greatly aggravates, such horrible villany. To bind ourselves under a curse to work iniquity, is but to ensnare our souls into fearful damnation.—But watchfully God marks the most secret plots of his people's enemies. Easily he discovers and disappoints them in favour of his faithful servants. And he will avenge wickedness on the wicked, and will even turn their intended mischiefs to the good of his servants, and for promoting their further usefulness in the world.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXIV.—Profane clergymen and abandoned lawyers stick at nothing to gain their own vile ends. Falsehood, flattery, and slander, go hand in hand. The purest innocence will not protect men from the most abominable aspersions; and the most infamous characters will not render some men ashamed of flattery. Spiteful malice generally represents faithful ministers as enemies to the state. And, as it is in the power of every villain to propagate falsehood, and lay the heaviest charges against the noblest characters, it becomes the innocent meekly to vindicate themselves and their doctrines from invidious reproach, and that with due deference to the magistrates, who give them an opportunity. But, in vindicating ourselves, it becomes us to own the truths of God, particularly the general resurrection of the dead, in which both good and bad have so deep and everlasting a concern. Never will the enemies of the gospel be able to prove their injurious charges against such ministers as are enabled by God to keep a conscience void of offence towards God and towards man. And it is very shameful when infamous Heathens manifest more regard to common equity, and more awe of God's truth, than high-flown professors.—

CHAP. XXV.

(1) Paul is again accused by the Jews before Festus the new governor; 1—7. (2) He vindicates himself; and, to prevent removing the cause to Jerusalem, appeals to Nero the Roman emperor; 8—12. (4) Festus presents Paul before Agrippa, Bernice, &c.; and represents him as one who had done nothing worthy of death or bonds, and leaves him to answer for himself; 23—27.

CHAP. XXVI.

After a polite address to king Agrippa; 1—3. (1) Paul gives an account of his Hebrew extraction—Pharisaical profession—belief of the resurrection of the dead—and his inveterate rage against Christ and his followers; 4—11. (2) Relates the manner of his conversion, and call to the apostleship among the Gentiles for their salvation; and his preaching Christ afterwards, in agreement with the Old Testament predictions; 12—23. (3) Upon hearing this account, Festus pronounces him mad; but Paul maintains the contrary in a modest appeal to Agrippa; 24—26. (4) Agrippa is almost persuaded to be a Christian; and, together with Festus, declares Paul innocent; 27—32.

Amazing is the power of divine truth.—Uttered by a prisoner, it makes a wicked Heathen judge to tremble, though his wife, an abandoned professor, feels it not. But, if sharp convictions be stifled, the love of this world, and the deceitfulness of sin ordinarily prevent their return. Many, who have been once terrified by convictions, die slaves to their lusts. And a sinful desire to please men makes many, to no purpose, act contrary to their own conscience, and injure the people of God.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXV.—No length of time can wear out, or repeated disappointments subdue, inveterate malice against Christ and his servants: no sentence is so unjust, but it will insist upon it; no murder so horrid, but it will attempt it.—By secret springs God sometimes, for the preservation of his servants, restrains the most easy and selfish compliance of judges. And, when men prudently insist on their just rights, his providence overrules all for the accomplishment of his promises. But it is hard when a righteous cause must be referred from those who enjoy divine revelation to barbarous and blood-thirsty heathens. And it is shameful when a man can scarcely get a fair hearing before he be condemned. Alas, how ignorant and unconcerned are many great men with respect to the one thing needful! Yea, many have the means of instruction always near, and never profit by them. And multitudes are eternally damned for making the gospel an object of mere curiosity.—The faithful followers and ministers of Christ easily stand clear of being enemies to the peace and order of civil societies. And judges ought to be very tender and exact in representing the case of the accused.

THEN Agrippa said unto Paul, "Thou art permitted to speak for thyself. Then Paul ^bstretched forth the hand, and answered for himself:

2 I think myself happy, king Agrippa, because I shall answer for myself this day before thee touching all the things whereof I am accused of the Jews:

3 ^cEspecially because I know thee to be ^dexpert in all customs and questions which are among the Jews: wherefore I beseech thee to hear me patiently.

4 ^eMy manner of life from my youth, which was at the first among mine own nation at Jerusalem, ^fknow all the Jews;

5 Who knew me from the beginning, if they would testify, that, ^gafter the most straitest sect of our religion, I lived a Pharisee.

6 And now I stand and am judged ^hfor the hope of the promise made of God unto our fathers:

7 Unto which promise our ⁱtwelve tribes, instantly serving God day and night, ^jhope to come: for which hope's sake, king Agrippa, I am accused of the Jews.

8 ^kWhy should it be thought a thing incredible with you that God should raise the dead?

9 ^mI verily thought with myself that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth.

10 Which thing I also did in Jerusalem: and many of the saints did I shut up in prison, having received authority from the chief priests; and when they were put to death I gave my voice against them.

11 And I punished them oft in every synagogue, and compelled them to blaspheme: and, being exceedingly mad against them, I persecuted them, even unto strange cities.

12 ⁿWhereupon, as I went to Damascus with authority and commission from the chief priests, 13 ^oAt mid-day, O king, I saw in the way a light from heaven, above the brightness of the sun, shining round about me, and them who journeyed with me.

14 And, when we were all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice speaking unto me, and saying in ^pthe Hebrew tongue, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? It is hard for thee to kick against the pricks.

15 And I said, Who art thou, Lord? And he said, I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest.

16 ^qBut rise, and stand upon thy feet: for I have appeared unto thee for this purpose, ^rto make thee a minister and a witness both of these things which thou hast seen, and of those things in the which I will appear unto thee;

17 ^sDelivering thee from the people, and from the Gentiles, unto whom now I send thee, 18 ^tTo open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness to light, and ^u*from* the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive ^vforgiveness of sins, and ^winheritance among them who are ^xsanctified by faith that is in me.

19 Whereupon, O king Agrippa, ^yI was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision:

20 ^zBut shewed first unto them of Damascus, and at Jerusalem, and throughout all the coasts of Judea, and then to the Gentiles, ^{aa}that they should repent and turn to God, and do works meet for repentance.

21 For these causes ^{ab}the Jews caught me in the temple, and went about to kill me.

22 Having therefore ^{ac}obtained help of God, I continue unto this day ^{ad}witnessing both to small and great, saying, ^{ae}none other things than those which the prophets and Moses did say should come:

23 ^{af}That Christ should suffer, and that he should be ^{ag}the first that should rise from the dead, and should ^{ah}shew light unto the people, and to the Gentiles.

24 ¶ And, as he thus spake for himself, Festus said with a loud voice, Paul, thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad.

25 But he said, I am not mad, most noble Festus; but speak forth the words of truth and soberness.

26 For ^{ai}the king knoweth of these things, before whom also I speak freely: for I am persuaded that none of these things are hidden from him; for this thing was not done in a corner.

27 King Agrippa, believest thou ^{aj}the prophets? I know that thou believest.

28 Then Agrippa said unto Paul, ^{ak}Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian.

29 And Paul said, ^{al}I would to God that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were both almost and altogether such as I am, except these ^{am}bonds.

30 ¶ And, when he had thus spoken, the king rose up, and the governor, and Bernice, and they that sat with them:

31 And, when they were gone aside, they talked between themselves, saying, This man ^{an}doth nothing worthy of death or of bonds.

32 Then said Agrippa unto Festus, This man might have been set at liberty, if he had not ^{ao}appealed unto Caesar.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXVI.—Jesus remarkably fulfils his promise, in enabling his servants to speak when brought before rulers and kings for his sake. And it is delightful to see the cause of Christ defended with all the grace and faithfulness of a Christian, and yet all the good manners of a courtier. It is an high honour to be chargeable with nothing but an avowed dependance on God's promises, and belief of his performances, relative to the resurrection of Christ, and the eternal life of believers through him, and the general judgment of all by him.—But dreadful is their enmity against Christ, who think his followers deserve every thing cruel and barbarous for holding the fundamental truths of the gospel. Yea, devilish is their temper who can gratify themselves by forcing them, contrary to their conscience, to blaspheme their Saviour. And very distressing is it, though candid, to call to mind such things in our conduct. Amazing is that grace which changes such monsters into distinguished saints and eminent preachers; which honours them as noted instruments in winning multitudes to Christ, and preserves and protects them long in that honourable work. And happy are those ministers that make God's word the standard of all their ministrations, in matter, manner, and end.—Dreadful is the condition in which the gospel and Spirit of Christ find sinful men; and marvellous the change they make, the infinite and everlasting blessings they confer, and the happy end to which they conduct. Alas, that these should ever be esteemed madness!—that

CHAP. XXVII.

Represents Paul's voyage to Rome as a prisoner. (1) The beginning of their voyage is calm and prosperous; 1—8. (2) Paul warns them of a ruinous storm, but cannot prevail with them to winter where they were; 9—11. (3) They meet with their storm which reduces them to the utmost extremity; 12—20. (4) Paul nevertheless assures them that, for his sake, God would preserve all their lives; 21—26. (5) After terrible and long distress, and the loss of their ship, they all, with great difficulty, escape safe to land on the island of Malta; 27—44.

AND, when it was ^adetermined that we should sail into Italy, they delivered Paul, and certain other prisoners, unto one named Julius, a ^bcenturion of Augustus' band.

² And, entering into a ship of Adramyttium, we launched, meaning ^cto sail by the coasts of Asia; one ^dAristarchus a Macedonian of Thessalonica being with us.

³ And the next day we touched at ^eSidon. And Julius ^fcourteously entreated Paul, and gave him liberty to go unto his friends to refresh himself.

⁴ And, when we had launched from thence, we sailed under ^gCyprus, because the winds were contrary.

⁵ And, when we had sailed over the sea of ^hCilicia, and ⁱPamphylia, we came to Myra, a city of ^jLycia.

⁶ And there the centurion found a ship of ^kAlexandria, sailing into Italy; and he put us therein.

⁸ And, hardly passing it, came unto a place which is called The fair havens, nigh whereunto was the city of Lasea.

⁹ Now when much time was spent, and when sailing was now dangerous, because ⁿthe fast was now already past, Paul admonished them, ¹⁰ And said unto them, Sirs, ^oI perceive that this voyage will be with ^phurt and much damage, not only of the lading and ship, but also of our lives.

¹¹ Nevertheless, the centurion believed the master and the owner of the ship more than those things which were spoken by Paul.

¹² ¶ And, because the haven was not commodious to winter in, the more part advised to depart thence also, if by any means they might attain to ^qPhenice, and there to winter; which is an haven of Crete, and lieth toward the south-west and north-west.

¹³ And, when the south wind blew softly, supposing that they had obtained their purpose, loosing thence, they sailed close by Crete.

¹⁴ ^rBut not long after there ^sarose against it a tempestuous wind, called ^tEuroclydon.

¹⁵ And when the ship was caught, and could not bear up into the wind, we let her drive.

¹⁶ And, running under a certain island which is called Clauda, we had much work to come by the boat:

¹⁷ Which when they had taken up they used helps, undergirding the ship; and, fearing lest they should fall into the quicksands, strake sail, and so were driven.

¹⁸ And, we being exceedingly tossed with a tempest, the next day they lightened the ship.

¹⁹ And the third day we cast out with our own hands the tackling of the ship.

²⁰ ^uAnd, when neither sun nor stars in many days appeared, and no small tempest lay on us, all hope that we should be saved was then taken away.

²¹ ¶ But, after ^vlong abstinence, Paul stood forth in the midst of them, and said, Sirs, ye should have hearkened unto me, ^wand not have loosed from Crete, and to have gained this harm and loss.

²² And now ^xI exhort you to be of good cheer: for there shall be ^yno loss of any man's life among you, but of the ship.

²³ For there stood by me this night the angel of God, ^zwhose I am, and whom I serve, ²⁴ Saying, ^{aa}Fear not, Paul; ^{ab}thou must be brought before Cesar: and, lo, ^{ac}God hath given thee all them that sail with thee.

²⁵ Wherefore, sirs, be of good cheer: ^{ad}for I believe God, that it shall be even as it was told me.

²⁶ Howbeit, we must be cast upon ^{ae}a certain island.

²⁷ But, when the fourteenth night was come, as we were driven up and down ^{af}in Adria, about midnight, the shipmen deemed that they drew near to some country;

²⁸ And sounded, and found it twenty fathoms; and, when they had gone a little further, they sounded again, and found it fifteen fathoms.

²⁹ Then, fearing lest we should have fallen upon rocks, they cast four anchors out of the stern, and wished for the day.

³⁰ And, as the shipmen were about to flee out of the ship, when they had let down the boat into the sea, under colour as though they would have cast anchors out of the foreship, ³¹ Paul said to the centurion, and to the soldiers, ^{ag}Except these abide in the ship, ye cannot be saved.

³² Then the soldiers cut off the ropes of the boat, and let her fall off.

³³ And, while the day was coming on, Paul besought them all to take meat, saying, This day is the fourteenth day that ye have tarried, and continued fasting, having taken ^{ah}nothing.

³⁴ Wherefore I pray you to take some meat; for this is ^{ai}for your health: ^{aj}for there shall not an hair fall from the head of any of you.

³⁵ And, when he had thus spoken, he took bread, and ^{ak}gave thanks to God in presence of them all: and, when he had broken it, he began to eat.

³⁶ Then were they all ^{al}of good cheer, and they also took some meat.

³⁷ And we were in all in the ship two hundred threescore and sixteen souls.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXVII.—The passage of saints through this world is often extremely tempestuous. Yet frequently the Lord gives them repeated favours from whom they might have expected the hardest usage. Kindly he communicates with, and comforts, them when terrors prevail all around them. By them he sends his warnings of danger and messages of peace. And he not only preserves them, but others for their sakes, from raging seas and blood-thirsty men. God can exactly foretell what has no necessary dependance on second causes: and, whatever be his means, whether winds, waves, or mariners, their influence is necessarily connected with the end which he has decreed and foretold. Thrice happy are they who can speak of him as their proprietor, master, and friend. Great confidence may they repose in his promise, and may expect safety and comfort from his hand. While they, who trust to their fancied wisdom rather than to his word, most surely plunge themselves into mischief and shame. We owe great thanks to him for our daily bread, as well as for our hopes or enjoyment of remarkable deliverances. Yet how tasteless is our necessary provision when all hope of life is taken away, and there is like to be no more occasion for it; and insignificant is all the wealth of this world, when a storm of raging elements may make us glad to part with it for our own preservation.—Sailors had need to live in union to Christ and fellowship with God, who alone can preserve them from the jaws of destruction. And it is proper that all should sympathize with them that do business in great waters. But thrice happy are those souls which are made to renounce the broken covenant of works, and their own self-righteousness and strength, that through Jesus' merits and grace, they may, through much tribulation, get safe to the celestial country.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XXVIII.—Barbarous heathens often far exceed many professed Christians in their kind compassion to shipwrecked mariners. And richly are they here rewarded of God with the healing of their sick, and no doubt much instruction for the salvation of their souls. We must never hastily judge of the external dispensations of providence, nor run from one extreme to another. There is great danger in thinking uncharitably of the distressed, or too honourably of the prosperous. And it is God's will, not idols or charms, that can render our attempts successful. If we sincerely aim at honouring God, he will procure sufficient honour, comfort, and kindness, for us, go where we will. But awful is the enmity of carnal minds against Christ,—that his religion, notwithstanding all its purity, dignity, and benevolence, should be every where spoken against,—and that any should be loaded with chains on his account.—And, for the honour of the gospel and the advantage of souls, ministers should be careful to prevent, avert, or remove, whatever groundless prejudices can be conceived against them. But, let them do what they will, the gospel will be to many a savour of death unto death. And dreadful indeed is the experience of this. But it is a great mercy if any are made to believe; and if ministers can be useful, even under persecuting restraints, and can devote their house, as well as their heart, lips, and hands, to the service of Jesus Christ.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE

TO THE ROMANS.

Rome was, and is, the chief city of Italy, and was long the mistress of the then known world. To the Christians there, though not converted by his ministrations, Paul, as the apostle of the Gentiles, about A.D. 60, wrote this excellent epistle, in order to establish their minds in the leading principles of the gospel, and direct them to a suitable improvement of it. After an introduction asserting his own apostolic mission, and commending their faith; chap. i. 1—17: he represents both Gentiles and Jews as being so sinful that they could not possibly be justified before God by their own works; chap. i. 18:—ii. iii. 1—20: how God's free grace reigns, through Jesus Christ's righteousness to the justification of the greatest sinners; iii. 21—iv. v.: what obligations to holiness in heart and life are laid upon believers, by the happy freedom and rich privileges which they enjoy in him; vi—viii.: and while he traces up all new covenant blessings to the eternal and sovereign purpose of God as their true original, he points out how the just rejection of the Jews for their unbelief, and the gracious calling of the Gentiles by the Gospel, without any regard to their foreseen good qualities or works, was exactly answerable thereto; ix—xi.: and finally exhorts to a multitude of personal and relative duties, incumbent on these Romans as members of the commonwealth, and especially of the church; xii—xvi.

CHAP. I.

Contains (1) An introduction, in which Paul asserts his apostolic commission, and represents Christ as the object of his ministrations; 1—6: salutes the saints at Rome; thanks God and prays for them; 7—10: and expresses his earnest desire and purpose to see them and preach to them; 11—15. (2) A bold declaration of the substance of the gospel, and doctrine of justification through the imputed righteousness of Christ; 16, 17. (3) A representation of the terrible wickedness of the Gentiles, proving that they could not be justified by their own works; 18—32.

EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. I. Ver. 1. I Paul, who was formerly a bitter enemy of Christianity, and a furious persecutor of its professors, being now graciously honoured to be an obedient and devoted servant of Jesus Christ, the only Saviour of sinful men; converted by his wonderful grace; and by his immediate authority, since his exaltation to heaven, appointed one of his distinguished messengers for founding his gospel church, particularly among the Gentiles; and in consequence of God's choice of me in his eternal purpose, separated and furnished by him;—and by my own voluntary act devoted to publish his intimations of his mind and will concerning the free, rich, and eternal, salvation of Jews and Gentiles through Christ: 2. Which gracious tidings and offers of mercy and deliverance, though but lately published, in all the light, grace, and glory thereof, are no new contrivance of men, but are wholly of God, who in former ages gave manifold hints of them by his inspired prophets, and in his holy and sanctifying oracles; and promised that they should be more fully and plainly revealed in due time: 3. And which especially reveal, hold forth, and offer to men, Jesus Christ, his eternal and only begotten Son, and our only anointed Saviour, and Lord of our faith, worship, and obedience; who, with respect to his human nature or fleshly descent, is, according to the promises, sprung from David, the renowned favourite of God and king of Israel. 4. And, as to his divine, absolutely spiritual, and infinitely holy, nature, is determinately avowed, openly proclaimed, and convincingly demonstrated, to be the only begotten Son of God, by the resurrection of his dead body through his own power, and the power of the Holy Ghost, to a glorious state of immortality; 5. Through whose merits and intercession, and by whose free gift, I and others have been graciously enriched with special communications of divine favour, saving graces, and ministerial gifts, and honoured with an apostolic office, that, through our 7 To all that be in Rome, 'beloved of God, called to be saints: "Grace to you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

8 First, 'I thank my God 'through Jesus Christ for you all, 'that your faith is spoken of throughout the whole world.

9 For 'God is my witness, whom 'I serve †with my spirit in the gospel of his Son, 'that without ceasing I make mention of you always in my prayers,

11 For I long to see you, 'that I may impart unto you some spiritual gift, to the end ye may be established;

12 That is, 'that I may be comforted together ||with you, by 'the mutual faith both of you and me.

13 Now I would not have you ignorant, brethren, that 'oftentimes I purposed to come unto you, (but was let hitherto), that I might 'have some fruit *among you also, 'even as among other Gentiles.

14 'I am debtor both to the Greeks and to the barbarians, both to the wise and to the unwise.

15 So, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the gospel to you that are at Rome also.

labours, multitudes of all nations, Gentiles as well as Jews, might be made obediently to give up their understandings, consciences, and wills, to the authority of God, in believing on and receiving his Son, and spiritually and holily obeying his commandments, that hereby all his perfections might be glorified to the highest in their eternal salvation. (6. Among which highly favoured multitudes, ye, who dwell in the chief city of the Gentile world, have, by the grace and power of Christ, been called, even to the knowledge, faith, and fellowship, of the gospel.) 7. To you therefore as objects of my particular care, as the apostle of the Gentiles, and as manifested, by the effects of the gospel upon you, to be objects of God's special love, and not only reputed to be, but by your effectual calling rendered, holy in your qualities, tempers, and conversation, I, in an earnest and affectionate manner wish, and authoritatively declare, that the riches of divine grace shall abound, and be delightfully manifested, in your receiving freely and extensively all manner of peace, prosperity, and blessings, from God, as our covenant God and Father, as the original spring and designer of them; and from the Lord Jesus Christ, as the only Mediator, who purchased them by his blood, and conveys them by his Spirit.—8. As what I hear of the work of God among you is great matter of gladness to my soul, though a stranger to you, I cannot forbear offering up the most hearty praises and thanksgivings on your behalf to your and my gracious God, through Jesus Christ, as our only Mediator, that your ready reception of the gospel, and your remarkable faith in Christ, manifested by the good fruits of it, notwithstanding the manifold temptations and great opposition you meet with, are spoken of with religious wonder and joy, and with high commendations, among all the churches in the Roman empire. 9. And I can solemnly appeal to that all-seeing and heart-searching God, whom I serve, not in mere outward appearance, or with bodily labours, but, as renewed by his grace, sincerely, affectionately, faithfully, and with full bent of my heart, in publishing, maintaining, recommending, and enforcing, the glorious gospel of salvation, of which his Son is the subject and author;—that, in my stated and occasional addresses to him, in a particular manner, I plead that ye may be more and more abundantly filled with all the gifts and graces of his Spirit. 10. And I often entreat that, if it be for his own glory and your spiritual advantage, he would by his providence remove all hindrances out of the way, and give me a safe and favourable opportunity of coming to, and personally conversing with, you; 11. That, by his blessing upon my instructions, some of you may be furnished with ministerial gifts, and all of you confirmed in the doctrines of the gospel and in your most holy faith, in opposition to all the temptations which you meet with from Satan, seducers, or persecutors; 12. That you and I may rejoice together in the love of God manifested toward us, and in affectionately expressing our mutual love to each other; and may be delightfully satisfied in comparing our spiritual experiences, which manifest the same faith wrought by God in both you and me.—13. Now, my dear brethren in Christ, think not these words a mere compliment, or only expressive of a present blaze of affection; for I have long and often seriously intended and endeavoured to visit you, in order that among you, as well as among other Gentiles, I might be useful in the conversion and edification of many souls; but I have been hitherto hindered by opposition, hardships, or necessary services in other places. 14. For having freely received my apostolic office, and qualifications for it, I look on myself obliged, in point of duty and gratitude, to improve them as the Lord shall enable me, for the spiritual advantage of my fellow sinners of mankind, Jews or Gentiles, polite or rude, learned or unlearned, sagacious or stupid. 15. And gladly would I hazard my reputation, ease, or even my life, to preach to you at Rome the blessed tidings of salvation through Jesus Christ, in the face of all possible opposition, contempt, and danger, as I have already done at Antioch, Philippi, Thessalonica, Athens, and Corinth; 16. For, however great men, or others, may condemn, and set themselves against, the gospel, on account of the debasement of its author and principle subject, and of the meanness of such as profess it; or of the artless dress or sublimity of its doctrines, and their contrariety to their own lusts and prejudices; and however they reproach and ridicule me for espousing and publishing it; I account it my highest honour to avow, preach, and defend it, as an illustrious scheme, in which the glory of all the divine perfections is brightly displayed; and which God, by an almighty application of it to men's hearts, renders effectual for their conversion and eternal salvation, be of what nation or rank they will. 17. For in it the transcendently excellent obedience and sufferings of the Son of God in our nature, which God appointed, provided, approves, accepts, and imputes to sinful men, for their full and irrevocable justification to eternal life, is clearly revealed, exhibited, and offered, on the ground of God's faithful testimony, to be received by a faith of his own operation, whether weak or strong, or among Jews or Gentiles. And thus, as the prophet Habakkuk hinted, men become righteous, and live for ever, not by their own good works, but by believing in and receiving Christ.—18. And indeed it is impossible for either Jews or Gentiles to obtain pardon or justification by any other method: for, to begin with the Gentiles, though God has not favoured them with his inspired oracles, he has, in the awful events of his providence, and by the inward convictions of their consciences, warned them that his just and holy nature determines him to punish all their iniquity, whether immediately against himself or against their fellow creatures; especially as they wickedly and unrighteously stifle, confine, and suppress, whatever notions of right and wrong they have, and will not act according to them. 19. 20. For, by the light of reason in their souls, and the works of creation and providence thereby discerned, God has given them such plain manifestations of his infinite perfection, absolute eternity, almighty power, supreme dominion, unbounded wisdom, holiness, justice, goodness, and truth, as renders their contempt of him, and rebellion against him, altogether inexcusable. 21, 22. For, when they could not but have some discernment of his being and attributes, they neither conceived of him nor worshipped him answerably thereto, nor were thankful for the knowledge which they had or the benefits which they received, but indulged their own groundless and pernicious fancies concerning his nature and the worship due to him, till, through the depravity of their wills and affections, their inconsiderate minds became infatuated with ignorance and error;—so that they, and especially their Greek philosophers, amidst the highest pretences to uncommon learning and wisdom became really stupid and senseless in every thing pertaining to God and his service. 23. And, under the influence of this wilful blindness and depravity of their minds, they debased his honour, in ascribing godhead to the most mutable, perishing, and contemptible, creatures, and in representing him by such creatures as if he had been of the same corporeal and contemptible form. 24-27. To punish their thus setting up false objects of worship, and representing him in so unjust, false, and shameless, a manner, and regarding and worshipping the basest of creatures more than himself, God, their infinitely glorious and blessed Creator, Preserver, and Governor, in his righteous judgment, withdrew his abused light and restraints, left them to themselves, and gave them up to their own vicious inclinations, which hurried them, both men and women, into such shocking, lustful, disgraceful, and unnatural, abuse of their bodies as cannot be thought of or mentioned without shame and horror.

25 Who changed the truth of God into a lie, and worshipped and served the creature more than the Creator, who is blessed for ever. Amen.

26 For this cause God gave them up unto vile affections: for even their women did change the natural use into that which is against nature:

27 And likewise also the men, leaving the natural use of the woman, burned in their lust one toward another, men with men working that which is unseemly, and receiving in themselves that recompence of their error which was meet.

28 And, even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind, to do those things which are not convenient:

29 Being filled with all unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, covetousness, maliciousness; full of envy, murder, debate, deceit, malignity; whisperers,

30 Backbiters, haters of God, despiteful, proud, boasters, inventors of evil things, disobedient to parents,

31 Without understanding, covenant breakers † without natural affection, implacable, unmerciful:

32 Who, knowing the judgment of God, that they who commit such things are worthy of death, not only do the same, but ‡ have pleasure in them that do them.

CHAP. II.

(1) Proves that the Jews could no more be justified by the law of Moses than the Gentiles by the law of nature; 1—16. (2) By

28. And, because, out of mere enmity against God, they refused to retain, cultivate, or improve, what just notions of him they had, or to search after the knowledge of or fellowship with him, he, in righteous judgment, delivered them up, as persons disapproved and rejected, to their own careless, undiscerning, and disaffected, mind, till, under its darkening and malignant influence, they committed the most unnatural, injurious, dishonourable, and detestable, enormities. 29. Inwardly filled with the most wicked and abominable inclinations, they abounded in every sinful practice: they abandoned themselves to every form of uncleanness, fornication, adultery, incest, and unnatural lust;—to a base and devilish malignity of temper, doing mischief for mischief's sake;—to an eager and insatiable desire after earthly enjoyments;—and, together with an inclination to, and doing of, injuries out of mere malice, they no less abandoned themselves to an envious grudging and repining at the welfare or prosperity of others;—to an unjust, wilful, illegal, malicious, or wanton, destroying of men's lives;—to strifes, contentions, and quarrellings;—to overreach, defraud, and impose on, their neighbours by subtle contrivances and falsehoods;—to an habitual practice and custom of doing evil to all around them;—and to defame others by sly and artful methods, or under pretences of pity and friendship; 30. Or openly to slander them behind their backs, or while they could not vindicate themselves.—They were also stated and open enemies to the authority, justice, and holiness, laws, and government, of God, as contrary to their beloved vices; and revilers of men, or outrageous, insolent, or vexatious, in their words and deeds towards them. Puffed up with a conceit of their own attainments and enjoyments, they vainly pretended to more than they really had. Not contented with common methods of sinning, they industriously contrived new forms of wickedness: and behaved perversely, disrespectfully, and undutifully, to their parents, paying no regard to their authority, counsels, warnings, or commands. 31. Amidst all their skill in doing evil, they behaved like persons destitute of common sense, reason, or conscience, in every thing religious or moral. They were so perfidious, that no promises, contracts, oaths, or engagements, to God or men, could hold them: they had quite defaced or extirpated the common sentiments of humanity towards their fellow creatures, parents, or children. If once offended, they could never be reconciled on the most reasonable terms. And, instead of pitying and relieving the miserable, they delighted in cruelty and oppression. 32. And, what exceedingly aggravates their complicated and atrocious wickedness, is that, though the light of nature, their own consciences, and the dictates of their philosophers, teach them that such vices expose them to the just vengeance of God, they not only continue and abound in the practice thereof, but even encourage, abet, and delight in, such as dare to be as wicked as themselves.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—What a great, a full, a suitable Saviour is God in our nature. For the only begotten Son of God is clearly manifested in our promised, our risen, Redeemer. And blessings of grace and glory proceed from him equally as from his Father. How ancient, how excellent, is that gospel which exhibits him and his fulness to us sinful men! While he is its author and subject, its great design is to bring both Jews and Gentiles every where to faith in, and obedience to, him. Therein his righteousness, as our surety, is revealed and bestowed, and thereby men are powerfully and effectually saved. And marvellous is their honour, and great their happiness, who share its saving effects. It is delightful and edifying to hear of the remarkable grace and holiness of others, and for Christians to communicate their spiritual experiences one to detecting the sins of the Jews, manifests that their external privileges, as God's peculiar people, could not recommend them to God; 17—29.

THEREFORE thou art inexcusable, O man, whosoever thou art that judgest: for wherein thou judgest another thou condemnest thyself; for thou that judgest dost the same things.

2 But we are sure that the judgment of God is according to truth against them who commit such things.

3 And thinkest thou this, O man, that judgest them who do such things, and dost the same, that thou shalt escape the judgment of God?

4 Or despisest thou the riches of his goodness, and forbearance, and long-suffering; not knowing that the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance?

5 But, after thy hardness and impenitent heart, treasurest up unto thyself wrath against the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God;

6 Who will render to every man according to his deeds:

7 To them who, by patient continuance in well-doing, seek for glory, and honour, and immortality; eternal life:

8 But unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness; indignation, and wrath;

9 Tribulation and anguish upon every soul of man that doth evil, of the Jew first, and also of the Gentile:

10 But glory, honour, and peace, to every man that worketh good; to the Jew first, and also to the Gentile.

another. Inexpressible is the honour to be divinely called, qualified, diligent, and successful, ministers of Christ. And indispensable is their obligation, to a faithful, bold, and laborious, preaching of the gospel. Nor ought any opposition or contempt from men to render them ashamed of their work. God's existence and perfections are manifestly marked in his works all around, and in us. And inexcusable then is our rebellion against him, or stifling the natural intimations which he has given us of himself. But, alas, what monsters men become when left to themselves and abandoned to their own hearts' lusts! There is nothing too absurd for them to intend, or too idolatrous, brutish, unnatural, or shocking, for them to practise. And diabolical is their temper who can take pleasure in wickedness for itself.—Great is the mercy to have the wickedness of our heart restrained, and especially to have it subdued by God's grace. And surely it is impossible for men, to whom such wickedness is natural, to be justified by their own works, or by any thing less than the infinitely valuable righteousness of Jesus Christ.

CHAP. II. Ver. 1. Since then God has given to all men knowledge sufficient to render them inexcusable if they abandon themselves to wickedness, ye Jews, and all who are disposed to censure others, must be still more inexcusable and incapable of being justified by your own works; for your censuring and condemning their faults is a practical condemnation of yourselves, who, notwithstanding your greater light, knowledge, and conviction, do the same things, or worse. 2. But, from what we know of God's infinite holiness, equity, wisdom, and goodness, we are certain that all his threatenings, condemnations, or punishments, which he will execute upon such, be of what nation, character, or rank they will, are exactly right and just, and according to the declarations which he has made, and answerable to the true state of things and eternal rule of righteousness. 3. Dare then any one of you, who are endued with common sense and reason, and altogether dependant on, and accountable to, God for all your thoughts, words, and deeds, absurdly and injuriously imagine that you shall escape his just condemnation and vengeance when ye are so forward and dogmatical in arraiguing and condemning others for crimes in which ye indulge yourselves. 4. Or are ye so sordidly ungrateful as to slight, abuse, or pervert, not only the common bounties of his providence, but even his distinguished favours, marvellous patience, and long suffering, as encouragements to wickedness; never seriously considering that the obligation, tendency, and design, of his multiplied favours is to overcome your obstinacy, and to make you, with grief and hatred of your sins, turn from them to God in Christ. 5. But, according to the natural and wilfully contracted stubbornness and insensibility of your perverse hearts, are, by your persistence in unbelief, and other wickedness, secretly preparing for yourselves the most fearful condemnation and punishment to be inflicted in that great and terrible day of the last judgment. 6. For then God will impartially assign and distribute rewards and punishments to all mankind, Jews or Gentiles, small or great, not according to their fallible, mistaken, censorious, or self-flattering, judgment, but according, and in proportion, to the good or evil nature or degree of every one's works; 7, 10. Bestowing immortal glory and honour, sweet harmony and delight, and perfection of blessedness in every form upon such, whether Jews or Gentiles, as, from a principle of faith in and love to Christ, have patiently persevered in good works, and earnestly sought after these great blessings of the new covenant; 8, 9. And heaping the most dreadful and tormenting, but just, punishments upon such as contentiously quarrel with his doctrines, laws, and providential dispensations, 11 For there is no respect of persons with God.

12 For as many as have sinned without law shall also perish without law: and as many as have sinned in the law shall be judged by the law;

13 (For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified.

14 For when the Gentiles, who have not the law, do by nature the things contained in the law, these, having not the law, are a law unto themselves:

15 Which shew the work of the law written in their hearts, their conscience also bearing witness, and their thoughts the meanwhile accusing or else excusing one another);

16 In the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ according to my gospel.

17 Behold, thou art called a Jew, and retest in the law, and makest thy boast of God, 18 And knowest his will, and approve the things that are more excellent, being instructed out of the law.

19 And art confident that thou thyself art a guide of the blind, a light of them who are in darkness, 20 An instructor of the foolish, a teacher of babes, who hast the form of knowledge and of the truth in the law.

21 Thou therefore, who teachest another, teachest thou not thyself? thou that preachest a man should not steal, dost thou steal?

22 Thou that sayest a man should not commit adultery, dost thou commit adultery? thou that abhorrest idols, dost thou commit sacrilege?

23 Thou that makest thy boast of the law, through breaking the law dishonourest thou God?

24 For the name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles through you, as it is written.

25 For circumcision verily profiteth if thou keep the law: but, if thou be a breaker of the law, thy circumcision is made uncircumcision.

26 Therefore, if the uncircumcision keep the righteousness of the law, shall not his uncircumcision be counted for circumcision?

27 And shall not uncircumcision which is by nature, if it fulfil the law, judge thee, who by the letter and circumcision dost transgress the law?

28 For he is not a Jew who is one outwardly; neither is that circumcision which is outward in the flesh:

29 But he is a Jew who is one inwardly; and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit, and not in the letter, whose praise is not of men, but of God.

CHAP. III.

(1) Answers some objections against placing the Jews on a level with the Gentiles in the matter of justification; 1—8. (2) Proves, from the Old Testament, that all mankind, Jews as well as Gentiles, are sinners; 9—20. (3) Thence infers and proves that justification of our persons cannot be attained by our own works, but is entirely owing to the free grace of God, through the righteousness of Christ imputed to us, and received by faith; 19—31.

WHAT advantage then hath the Jew? or what profit is there of circumcision?

2 Much every way: chiefly because tend to fulfil his law by hypocritical and imperfect performances:—While ye boast of your knowledge of God's law, as your distinguished privilege, high honour, and infallible security for eternal life, ye dishonour his authority and holiness by your manifest and voluntary violations of his law.—For your notorious wickedness, committed in plain contradiction to your laws, professions, and privileges, brings a reproach on his perfections and government, word and ways, and tempts the very Heathens to think or speak of him as if he allowed, encouraged, or connived at, it, or could not hinder it among his own favourite people. 25—27. And, with respect to circumcision, in which ye chiefly glory, and on which ye depend as your security for eternal happiness, it will indeed effectually seal and confirm God's covenant with you, if your natures be truly renewed and ye sincerely study holiness of life, proceeding from union to, and fellowship with, Christ: but, if ye live in your sins, your circumcision will render you no more acceptable to God than if ye were heathens. And if Gentiles, being renewed in their hearts, sincerely observe the law, they will be as highly valued by God as if they had been Jews, and will rise up in judgment against and condemn you, who, depending on your having the letter of the divine law, and being outwardly circumcised, presume to violate the obligations of the moral law. 28, 29. For it is not natural descent from Abraham, nor external covenant relation to God, nor profession of his truths, that will make a true child of Abraham; nor, in God's reckoning, is that external circumcision available to any saving purpose, which is only a mark of distinction imprinted on the body. But he is a true Israelite, one of Abraham's spiritual and believing seed, and an heir according to the promise, who, whether he be Jew or Gentile, is regenerated and sanctified in his inward nature, tempers, and disposition, and turned to God through Christ; and that is true circumcision, highly acceptable, not to carnal men, but to an all-seeing God, which consists not in any external cutting of the flesh, but in the renewing of the mind by the Holy Ghost, and purifying of the heart by faith in Christ.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—It is base and criminal to condemn sin in others while we indulge in it ourselves; or to continue workers of iniquity under high professions of godliness. And desperate is their condition who harden themselves in sin from the mercies of God, apprehended or experienced. Certain, and awfully exact, is the future judgment of men by Jesus Christ. And correspondent to their qualities and works shall be the eternal punishments or gracious rewards of men. All the means of illumination and grace which they have received will come into the account. And very unavailing is it, nay dangerous, to have external privileges, extensive knowledge, and an orthodox profession, without real holiness in heart and life. None give a deeper stab to the cause and honour of God than they who sin against the light, and prove false to their profession.—What a rare, an hard, an inward, work is real Christianity! Highly is it esteemed by God, who alone knows its worth or can immediately discern its existence. And it is infinitely dangerous to rest in any thing short of Jesus Christ and his righteousness as the only ground of our salvation.

CHAP. III. Ver. 1, 2. Nevertheless, the Jewish descendants of Abraham, who have been marked as the peculiar people of God by circumcision, have thereby their distinguished advantages; chiefly that God, as eminently present that unto them were committed the oracles of God.

3 For what if some did not believe? shall their unbelief make the faith of God without effect?

4 God forbid: yea, let God be true, but every man a liar; as it is written, That thou mightest be justified in thy sayings, and mightest overcome when thou art judged.

5 But, if our unrighteousness commend the righteousness of God, what shall we say? Is God unrighteous who taketh vengeance? (I speak as a man.)

6 God forbid: for then how shall God judge the world?

7 For, if the truth of God hath more abounded through my lie unto his glory, why yet am I also judged as a sinner?

8 And not rather, (as we be slanderously reported, and as some affirm that we say), Let us do evil that good may come? whose damnation is just.

9 What then? are we better than they? No, in no wise: for we have before proved, both Jews and Gentiles, that they are all under sin;

10 As it is written, There is none righteous, no, not one:

11 There is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God.

12 They are all gone out of the way, they are together become unprofitable, there is none that doth good, no, not one.

13 Their throat is an open sepulchre; with their tongues they have used deceit; the poison of asps is under their lips:

14 Whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness:

15 Their feet are swift to shed blood:

* Prov. 1, 16, & 4, 16. Is. 59, 7, 8. Hos. 4, 1, 2. Ps. 120, 7. Is. 59, 7—15. Ezek. xxii, Tit. 3, 3, Eph. 2, 2, 3.

with them, has given them various types, promises, and predictions, of the Messiah, and salvation through him, and granted them his inspired oracles, for their spiritual instruction and ground of faith and hope. 3. And, though many of them have not believed in Christ the promised Messiah, or the gospel revelation of him, their ungrateful infidelity cannot defeat God's faithful accomplishment of his promise to Abraham and his spiritual seed. 4. Nay, though all men should prove liars and deceivers, God will always appear just and faithful: and men's rebellion against his law, and presumptuous arraignment of his conduct, will, in the issue, tend to vindicate and clearly manifest his equity and faithfulness. 5, 6. But let not carnal Jews imagine that he, the righteous Judge of the world, cannot justly punish their wickedness and unbelief in rejecting the promised Messiah and his righteousness and salvation, since, by his overruling providence, he makes use of it as a foil to set off, enhance, and give opportunity for, brighter displays of his glory. 7, 8. Let them not imagine that, if God make their unbelief, which is so contrary to his truth and to their own profession, a mean of the spread and success of the gospel, they, as some blasphemously charge us apostles and Christians with saying, may abandon themselves to their own lusts, and practise all manner of wickedness, that he may thereby take occasion to glorify his own faithfulness and infinite grace. Nothing can be more detestable, or more justly damnable, than such conduct. 9. But whatever peculiar privileges we Jews possess, we are no more able to justify ourselves before God by our own works than the worst of Heathens; nay, our sins are the more aggravated, as being committed against greater light and mercies, means and obligations. And it has already been proved, by notorious facts, that both Jews and Gentiles are in themselves chargeable with, and condemned on account of, their sins before God. 10—12. And this the oracles of God, which were given to and immediately respected us Jews, harmoniously attest, representing all men in general as depraved in their nature and practice, ignorant of themselves and of God, the method of salvation, and every other spiritual object; as careless of all knowledge of, and fellowship with, God, and neglectors of his worship and service; as apostates from God and his Christ, his law, and every thing good; and as altogether vile and useless before God; unfit and unable of themselves to do any thing truly and spiritually good. 13—15. Their heart being wholly defiled with sin, all their members are ready instruments of unrighteousness. Their mouths, wherewith they ought to glorify God and edify one another, they employ to vent the most offensive, loathsome, and injurious, language, flattery, falsehood, deceit, malignant slander and reproach, or even hideous oaths and curses, and bitter provocations and revilings. Their feet, which should carry them to every good work, they employ in running about to perpetrate mischief and murder. 16—18. By these means they bring calamities and destruction, temporal, spiritual, and eternal, on themselves and all they are connected with; they are utter strangers to the true method of peace with God or their own consciences, and of promoting solid tranquillity and 16 Destruction and misery are in their ways;

17 And the way of peace have they not known:

18 There is no fear of God before their eyes.

19 Now we know that what things soever the law saith it saith to them who are under the law: that every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may become guilty before God.

20 Therefore by the deeds of the law there shall no flesh be justified in his sight; for by the law is the knowledge of sin.

21 But now the righteousness of God without the law is manifested, being witnessed by the law and the prophets;

22 Even the righteousness of God, which is by faith of Jesus Christ unto all and upon all them that believe; for there is no difference:

23 For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God;

24 Being justified freely by his grace, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus:

25 Whom God hath set forth to be a propitiation, through faith in his blood, to declare his righteousness for the remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God;

26 To declare, I say, at this time his righteousness; that he might be just, and the justifier of him who believeth in Jesus.

27 Where is boasting then? It is excluded. By what law? Of works? Nay; but by the law of faith.

28 Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith, not by the works of the law. 1 Pet. 1, 18—20. 2 Cor. 5, 21, ch. 8, 3, 32. Gal. 4, 4, 1 John 1, 2, & 4, 10. Col. 1, 20. Ch. 1, 17, & 5, 1. friendship among men: they have no serious sense or holy reverence of God's perfections, or their own accountableness to him; no fear of offending him; no principle of real religion to direct their views, restrain them from evil, or influence them to good.

19. Now whatever charges the law of God, manifested in the light of nature or revelation, lays against men must be extended to all that are under that law, that every man may be convinced in his own conscience that his works are not excusable, far less justifying, before God; and that he is chargeable with many crimes, and legally obnoxious to his righteous vengeance. 20. And, if the law, by its holy and just commandments, thus charge all men with, and convince them of, sin in their dispositions, thoughts, words, and actions, it is clearly manifest that none of them, in their present state of degeneracy, can ever be justified at the awful tribunal of an all-seeing, heart-searching, just, and holy God. 21—23. Nevertheless, this deplorable state of mankind is not desperate; for in the gospel is now clearly manifested that divine righteousness, fulfilled by the Son of God in our nature, which the moral law neither provided nor exhibited, but which has been all along represented in the typical ceremonies, and the writings of the Old Testament prophets, as the designed ground of the justification of sinful men; even the righteousness of our divine Redeemer which he wrought as our surety, consisting in his holiness of human nature, obedience of life, and satisfactory sufferings and death, in our stead; which, being freely offered in the gospel, is imputed to, and by faith received by, all believers, weak or strong, Jews or Gentiles,—all of them having lost his image, and being incapable of glorifying him, recommending themselves to his favour, or procuring any title to the enjoyment of him. 24—26. And all of them have their sins pardoned, their persons accepted, and are entitled to eternal life merely by the absolutely free and sovereign favour of God, without any desert of their own, but only on account of that infinitely valuable price of redemption which Jesus Christ in his own person paid in his obedience and suffering, which is lodged in him as an inexhaustible fund of merit to be applied to them; and which God, from mere love to them, accepted as their ransom, places to their account by imputation, and enables them to receive through faith in his Son.

—Him, in his eternal purpose and covenant of grace, he delightfully set apart as a fit Mediator between God and man, and has clearly manifested and exhibited in the types and predictions of the Old Testament, in his incarnation and public ministry, and in the declarations and offers of the gospel, as a propitiatory and reconciling sacrifice, on account of which every one that believes therein may have free access to God. Herein he demonstrates the glory of his own justice, and the perfection of that righteousness of Christ which he provided and accepted as a full and honourable satisfaction to it: and through this he was honoured in pardoning the Old Testament offences before the ransom was paid, as well as in now pardoning the Gentiles who had long continued in their sins, and in freely justifying every one, Jew or Gentile, who, however guilty in himself, by faith receives and depends on Jesus Christ as his only Saviour. 27, 28.

And, as this doctrine of justification by the free grace of God, through the imputed righteousness of Christ, leaves no room for any man to boast, as if he had either in whole or in part recommended himself to the divine favour, it ought to be openly avowed, for the honour of God and humiliation of men, as a thing most plain and evident—that whatever Jew or Gentile, greater or lesser sinner, is pardoned and accepted by God, obtains this privilege merely through the righteousness of Christ received by faith, without any dependance on his own good dispositions or works. 29, 30. And it is no less manifest that now God is, in every saving respect, the God of the Gentiles as well as of the Jews, and that he justifies men, whether circumcised or uncircumcised, upon the ground of the same righteousness of his Son, and by the same instrumentality of faith. 31. And no less manifest is it that our believing renunciation of our own works in the matter of justification, and receiving the imputed righteousness of Christ as the only ground of our pardon and acceptance, are so far from invalidating or setting aside the moral law, that hereby we greatly confirm and approve its authority, regard it as a mean of conviction, present it with a complete magnifying fulfilment of all its demands as a covenant, and are effectually influenced and enabled to love, regard, and cheerfully obey it as a rule of life.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—It is an invaluable privilege to enjoy the word and ordinances of God; and yet very dangerous to rest in them. It is impossible to defeat the purposes or promises of God. The elect shall obtain salvation, and the rest are blinded. It is very common for ministers, especially if faithful, to be virulently reproached. And just is their eternal damnation who abuse the doctrines of grace to encourage themselves in licentiousness. How universal and fearful is the depravity of mankind! It discovers itself in unnumbered forms of thoughts, words, and actions, in things dishonourable to God and injurious to men. The divine law makes fearful work upon men's consciences when it charges all their sins home upon them. And it is absurd to expect happiness by that law which so deeply accuses us of crimes.—But how amazing is it that Jesus' righteousness, and salvation through it, should be prepared for, offered and given to, such monsters of guilt, Jews or Gentiles! And yet it is exactly suited to our need, fully manifested and attested in scripture; and highly and delightfully all the perfections of God, particularly his justice and mercy, are glorified in our redemption thereby: Yea, the reign of his grace, through Jesus' imputed righteousness received by faith, effectually humbles our pride, establishes God's relation to us, honours his law, and promotes our holiness of heart and life.

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1—3. Nay, even our natural father Abraham, notwithstanding his circumcision and remarkable piety, had no ground to glory before God, as if his own works had contributed to his justification; for the scripture expressly declares that he believed the promise of the Messiah as the price and mean of blessing to all nations; and that what he believed concerning him was graciously placed to his account, as if he had done and suffered what the Messiah would do and suffer in his stead. 4, 5. Now it is plain that, if a man fulfil the law himself, by his own personal good works, in order to justification, his acceptance the circumcision only, or upon the uncircumcision also? For we say that faith was reckoned to Abraham for righteousness.

with God and eternal happiness, cannot properly be free favour, but what he has a claim to as his due wages by the covenant of works: but if, conscious of his utter inability to yield any acceptable obedience to the law as a covenant, he renounces all his own works as to their being any part of his justifying righteousness, and by faith receives what is freely given to him in the gospel promises by that gracious God who justifies sinners through the righteousness of his Son, it is certainly that which he receives by faith which must be accounted to him for righteousness. 6—8. Accordingly, the Holy Ghost, by David, has declared blessed, not the men who fulfil the law in their own persons, but the sinners to whom God, by imputing that righteousness of his Son which he wrought as our surety, has freely, fully, and irrevocably, forgiven all their sins, and whose persons he hath graciously accepted and entitled to eternal life. 9—12. It is no less manifest also that this privilege of free justification through faith alone belongs as much to the uncircumcised Gentiles as to the circumcised Jews; for what Abraham believed on was accounted to him for righteousness, not after, but long before, he was circumcised: and many years afterwards he received circumcision, in order to mark the sinful corruption of his nature, distinguish him and his seed for the peculiar people of God, bind them to act answerably to this character, and to assure him of his being already a partaker of the imputed righteousness of the Messiah, and an heir of all the promised blessings of the new covenant:—all which was ordered in the infinite wisdom of God to render him a noble pattern of faith, an eminent example of free justification through it, and a distinguished mean of conveying spiritual benefits to all true believers in after ages, whether Gentiles or Jews. 13. For the promise, that he should be the renowned chief of the believing world, Jews and Gentiles; and in the Messiah, his promised seed, be the prime heir and possessor of the blessings of this world, and of that which is to come; was given to him and his spiritual seed, not through any law, natural or ceremonial, or his personal obedience to it, but through that righteousness of Christ which is received by faith. 14, 15. And indeed, if men could become heirs of such blessings by their own personal obedience to any law, natural or revealed, the doctrine of justification by faith, and the free promise of God, must be entirely set aside;—But, in our present degenerate state, the law of nature and revelation condemns every man to punishment, irritates our sinful corruption to acts of wickedness, and awakens our consciences to expect the eternal vengeance of God as the just reward of our transgressing his commands. 16, 17. It being therefore absolutely impossible that any man can be entitled to spiritual or eternal blessings by his obedience to the law, moral or ceremonial, God has wisely as well as graciously provided that they should be bestowed merely as his free favours, and received by faith, that to his promises might, notwithstanding all our unworthiness and sinfulness, be absolutely certain and infallibly accomplished, to all the truly believing seed of Abraham, who is constituted the common pattern of faith and mean of blessing to us all, Jews or Gentiles, who believe after his example, before that almighty Object of his faith, who invigorates men's bodies, or raises them when dead, or even spiritually quickens men who are dead in trespasses and sins, and who, being determined to produce them, speaks of things that are not with as much distinctness and certainty as if they actually existed. 18—21. CHAP. V.

Illustrates the doctrine of justification, in shewing (1) The happy fruits and causes of it; 1—11. (2) The universal necessity of such a free justification through the righteousness of Christ, on account of the universal dominion of sin and death through Adam's fall; 12—14. (3) That the righteousness of Christ imputed is as powerful to justify and save believers, nay, more so, than the fall of Adam is to condemn and ruin his natural posterity; 15—21.

faith into this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God.

3 And not only so, but we ^dglory in tribulations also: knowing that tribulation worketh patience;

4 ^eAnd patience, experience; and experience, hope:

5 ^fAnd hope maketh not ashamed; because the love of God is ^gshed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost, which is given unto us.

6 For, ^hwhen we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly.

7 For scarcely for a righteous man will one die; yet ⁱperadventure for a good man some would even dare to die.

8 But ^kGod commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.

9 ^lMuch more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him.

10 For, if when we were enemies ^mwe were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, being reconciled, we ⁿshall be saved by his life.

11 And not only so, ^obut we also joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement.

12 Wherefore, ^pas by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, ^qfor that all have sinned:

Luke 1. 46, 47. Hab. 3. 18. Phil. 4. 4. 1 Cor. 15. 21. * Or in whom.

this patience produces much useful experience and proof of the truth of our graces under trials, and of the emptiness of worldly things, and the excellency of things spiritual and heavenly; and of God's wise, powerful, and gracious care over us, and of his seasonably helping and supporting us, and sanctifying his providential dispensations to us. And this experience contributes to wean our affections from the things of this world, and raise them to things above, and to encourage our hopes of their eternal enjoyment. 5. And this well-grounded hope, we certainly know, will never shamefully disappoint us, as it rests on the free favour of God, abundantly manifested to our souls; and has an earnest of its fulfilment in that ardent love to God implanted in them by the Holy Ghost, whom he has given to abide constantly in us, as our counsellor, comforter, and sanctifier, and as a witness and pledge of his free and constant love to us. 6. For, when we were in the most sinful and miserable condition, utterly incapable of appeasing the wrath of God, or recovering ourselves from ruin and danger, nay, profanely unkindly of, and contemning God; Jesus Christ, in the most proper season, when our guilt, wickedness, and need were increased to the highest, died for us impotent, contemptible, and ungodly creatures. 7. Among men, scarcely could any be found who would willingly sacrifice their life for the redemption of an harmless or upright man; and but few that would have enough of courage, gratitude, or friendship, to do it for the sake of a public-spirited, bountiful man, who had been, and might continue to be, an uncommon blessing to his family, friends, and country. 8. But God has, in the most transcendent and astonishing manner, manifested his love towards us, in that while we were, by nature and practice, highly injurious to him, and to one another, and justly condemned by his law to utter destruction, Jesus Christ, his only begotten Son, according to his appointment, died a most accursed, tormenting, and shameful death, to purchase our forgiveness and eternal life. 9. Now, if God so loved us when we were under the power and guilt of sin, much more may we hope that, having all our sins pardoned, and our persons accepted, through his righteousness as our surety, we shall certainly be delivered from all future punishments on his account. 10. For if, when we were not only weak, sinful, and ungodly, but even malicious enemies, rebels, and traitors against God, and he had, in his word and providence and our own consciences, declared his just indignation against us, Jesus' obedience and sufferings as our surety satisfied his justice, and opened a way for communicating his grace and favour to us; much more, being brought into a state of favour and friendship with God, shall we be effectually delivered from all sin and misery, and advanced to perfect blessedness in the immediate and eternal enjoyment of God. 11. Having then these views, we not only rejoice in hope of receiving spiritual and eternal blessings from God, but in God himself, as our reconciled God and chief portion and glory, and in our new covenant relation to, and assured interest in, him through Jesus Christ, our only Mediator, Lord, and Saviour; by faith in whom we, Jews or Gentiles, have now, under gospel discoveries, approved of, accepted, rested upon, and taken comfort in, his righteousness, as the only atoning sacrifice that can effectually redeem us from wrath, and recommend us to the favour of God. 12. The fall of all mankind in the first Adam further proves the universal necessity, and illustrates the nature of a free justification through the imputed righteousness of Christ, to both Jews and Gentiles; for sin by him, as our common parent and covenant head, broke in upon all men, from his eating the forbidden fruit; his first sin being imputed, and the want of original righteousness, and the corruption of nature attending it, being propagated to them, and a sentence of death, temporal, spiritual, and eternal, being passed upon them on that account—death in all its hideous forms, in and through him as their public head, spread over all mankind, as persons who had sinned in him. 13, 14. And it is manifest that, by virtue of some law, sin was charged and its penalty inflicted in the world, before God gave the law to the Jewish nation by Moses. Nay, for 2500 years before, all along from Adam's fall, death, the inseparable attendant of sin, had reigned over mankind, cutting off one generation after another, and even multitudes of infants, who had never been guilty of any actual sin like to that first sin of Adam, —whom God constituted a typical figure of the promised Messiah. 15. But though Adam, as the covenant head of his natural posterity, was a remarkable type of Jesus Christ, the gracious benefit, which comes through the righteousness of the one, is more than answerable to the mischievous effects of the first sin of the other: for if, through the sinful fall of a mere man, a sentence of death was brought upon all his natural posterity as the just wages of his sin, much more must that God, who delighteth in mercy, cause his rich and undeserved favours and blessings to abound, through the imputed righteousness of Christ, to his spiritual seed, in bestowing upon them greater happiness than they lost, by the fall. 16. And not only does the gracious favour of God, through the righteousness of Jesus Christ, remove the guilt and curse of that one offence of Adam's eating the forbidden fruit, which brought the sentence of condemnation upon all mankind, but procures a complete forgiveness of that, and innumerable other personal transgressions, and a full acceptance unto eternal life. 17. And, therefore, if by the destructive fall of one mere man as their representative, death in all its forms has invaded, subdued, and exercised dominion over all men, through their polluting connection with him, much more they, who are made partakers of the rich abundance of God's love and favour through Christ, and have his infinitely valuable righteousness imputed to them, and are interested in all the superabundant blessings purchased by it, shall enjoy a glorious freedom from sin and death, and reign honourably in grace and glory, in union to, and in fellowship with, Jesus Christ. 18. But, notwithstanding such circumstantial differences, the manner of conveying Adam's guilt and Jesus' righteousness is the very same in substance; for, as by one offence of Adam, sin, and through it condemnation to death, spiritual, temporal, and eternal, came upon all his natural posterity; so, by the righteousness of our one Mediator and Surety, Jesus Christ, and by that alone, pardon of all sins, past, present, and to come, and an acceptance unto life, temporal, spiritual, and eternal, came upon all his spiritual seed. 19. For, as by the imputation of Adam's sin of eating the forbidden fruit, all his natural posterity are legally charged with it, and so judicially constituted sinners, and, being condemned as such, are brought under the punishment of an unholy and depraved nature, prone to all evil; so by the imputation of Christ's holiness of nature, obedience of life, and satisfactory sufferings, all his elect seed shall be judicially constituted, and in justification declared, righteous, and brought under an holy influence to sanctify their nature. 20. For God never gave the law, moral or ceremonial, to mankind in expectation of their obtaining justification and life by it; but the covenant of works was made with Adam, and the entrance of sin was occasioned by it, as an intended mean of glorifying the exceeding riches of his grace; and the moral law was afterwards solemnly published, and the ceremonial established, in order to manifest the dreadful nature and effects of man's fall: but in his infinite, free, sovereign, and unparalleled love, favour and mercy, God took occasion, from the extensive spread, outrageous prevalence, and high aggravations of sin, to exert and manifest the most illustrious, extensive, and superabounding power of his grace, in pardoning not only the first, but innumerable other transgressions, subduing the most powerful lusts, and advancing to higher happiness than was lost by the fall. 21. That, as sin through the offence of Adam had prevailed and cruelly tyrannized over mankind, triumphantly rendering them obnoxious to temporal, spiritual, and eternal death; so the free favour and mercy of God might prevail, and triumph over sin, however powerful and aggravated, in pardoning, and sub-sin abounded grace did much more abound:

21 That, as sin hath reigned unto death, even so might grace reign through righteousness unto eternal life by Jesus Christ our Lord.

CHAP. VI.

Represents sanctification of nature and life as the necessary fruit, and inseparable attendant, of a free justification through the imputed righteousness of Christ, and inculcates it upon believers as of absolute necessity to them; because (1) They are dead to sin; 1, 2. (2) They are baptized into, and united with, Christ; 3—10. (3) They are made alive to God, and freed from the dominion of sin, and the law as a covenant; 11—20. (4) The fruits of sin and holiness are so infinitely different; 21—23.

WHAT shall we say then? Shall we continue in sin that grace may abound?

2 God forbid. How shall we, that are dead to sin, live any longer therein?

3 Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death?

4 Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death; that, like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life.

5 For, if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection:

6 Knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin.

7 For he that is dead is freed from doing it, and spreading abroad the blessings of salvation among sinful men, redeeming them to a spiritual life of fellowship with God here, and immediate and eternal enjoyment of him hereafter, through the righteousness, and by the mediation of Jesus Christ.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. V.—Thrice happy is the state into which believers are brought by the gospel! A delightfully free justification, peace with God's spiritual establishment, comfort, and well-grounded hopes of eternal felicity, come to us through Jesus' person and blood. And all things amazingly work together for our spiritual and everlasting welfare. Transcendent and unbounded is the love of God manifested in Jesus' obedience and death for us, who were so unholy, wicked, and wretched. And certain and full is our everlasting salvation through him. Since all mankind, infants not excepted, are universally plunged in sin, condemnation, and death, by Adam's fall; God marvellously takes occasion, from that fearful destruction, to manifest the superabundant virtue of his Son's righteousness imputed, and of his own free grace by means of it. And much greater and more effectual are the blessings brought in by Jesus, our new-covenant head, to his spiritual seed, than all the loss and want entailed by Adam on his natural posterity. O, my soul, contemplate, believe, admire, and share these glories, these blessings of redeeming grace!

CHAP. VI. Ver. 1, 2. But, if our justification thus wholly depend upon the free grace of God through the imputation of Jesus' righteousness, and God's free favour superabound where sin had abounded, should we thence take encouragement to continue in, and more eagerly practise wickedness, that God's grace may be the more illustriously displayed in pardoning and saving us? Nothing could be more detestable and horrid, or even more unnatural to a renewed heart: for, though we cannot be justified by our own works, yet how could we, who are delivered from the guilt and dominion of sin, and whose affections are mortified to it, in any consistency with our state and character, or any sense of duty or gratitude, or with any conscience, hope, or peace, allow ourselves to continue in, or practise any known iniquity? 3. Know ye not that our baptism with water, by the authority, and into the profession, faith, and obedience of Jesus Christ, signified and sealed our spiritual union to him, as members of his mystical body: and the mortification, as well as the remission of our sin, through the influence of his death; and our federal obligation to concur with the end of his death, to redeem us from all iniquity? 4. It is therefore not only incumbent on us to be conformable to Christ's death in the crucifixion of our sinful lusts, but to give continued proofs thereof, in conformity to his lying in the grave; that, as he was raised from the dead by the glorious power and operation of his Father, and in order to receive with him the reward of his glorifying him on earth, we, by virtue derived from him as our living and quickening Head, being quickened to a spiritual and heavenly life, should with freedom, constancy, and in a progressive manner, daily live in all holy obedience, from new principles and motives, and by a new rule, and to new ends—the praise and glory of God. 5. For if, as is represented in baptism, we are so united to Christ as our mystical Head, that we receive from him gracious influences to render us conformable to him in his death, by the mortification of sin, and separation of our souls from it, we shall certainly receive influences from him as our risen Saviour, to enable us to live like him in holiness, till we are admitted into immediate fellowship with him in his heavenly glory. 6. For, from the principles of the gospel, we know that the subtle corruption of our nature derived from Adam, and spread into all the members of our body and faculties of our soul, is mortally wounded through Jesus Christ's death; he having died for this very end, that its whole frame, power, and authority, should be gradually, but powerfully, mortified and subdued, and utterly destroyed; become the devoted and willing servants of that principle of holiness which God has implanted in your hearts in conformity to his own righteous law. 19. In condescension to your weak capacities, enfeebled by the present frailties of nature and remains of sinful corruption, I use this common similitude of master and servant, and I affirm that, as in your unregenerate state ye resigned and employed all the members of your body and powers of your soul in the voluntary service of unclean, unrighteous, and ungodly principles and habits of sin, which cruelly reigned and tyrannized over you, and rendered you more guilty, vile, and miserable, by adding sin to sin—so ye should now, when brought into a state of grace, act up to the dignity, obligation, and holiness of your character, earnestly employing all your members and faculties in the exercise of your implanted graces, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, and living soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world. 20. For, when ye were the willing servants and slaves of your sinful lusts, ye were wholly estranged from, and disaffected to, every principle of holiness, insensible of all obligation to piety or virtue, and even pleased with an unrestrained inclination to wickedness. 21. But what real profit, honour, or satisfaction, did you ever find, or could ye expect to find, in your former sinful courses? Were they not attended with remorse, defilement, reproach, trouble, disappointment, loss, and mischief, to yourselves? And are ye not now filled with holy confusion, self-abasement, and shame, in every review of them, as things foolish and unworthy, highly ungrateful, offensive, and dishonourable, to God, and no less ruinous and destructive to your own souls and bodies in time and eternity. 22. But now, that by the mighty power and grace of God, in bringing you under another Head and covenant, and implanting other principles and habits in you, ye are set at liberty from the reign and love of sin, as well as from the guilt of it, and made the willing and obedient servants of God in Christ, ye grow in grace, and bring forth the fruits of righteousness and holiness in this world, the final issue and perfection of which is an honourable and everlasting blessedness graciously bestowed in the world to come. 23. For death, in all its hideous forms, spiritual, temporal, or eternal, is all the wages allotted by the law of God, or which can be procured by all our labours and sufferings, in the service of sin; but that everlasting life, which consists in the immediate and full enjoyment of, and conformity to God, which is the issue of holiness in heart and practice, though not indeed the proper wages of it, is the transcendently free gift of God bestowed on us, without any regard to our merits, and merely on account of the righteousness and mediation of Jesus Christ, our only and appointed, and well furnished, Saviour and Lord.

REFLECTION UPON CHAP. VI.—Groundless and very injurious is every charge of licentiousness on the doctrine of the free justification of sinners through the imputed righteousness of Christ. Nothing is more detestable to a renewed heart than to continue in sin, because grace does, or that it may abound. For, though our good works do not procure, yet they necessarily follow, our justification by grace: and to indulge ourselves in sin, or to neglect the study of holiness, is a flat contradiction to all the signification and engagements of our baptism; and is absolutely inconsistent with our character, privilege, or duty, as members of Christ and partakers of his grace and glory. Yea, delightful, excellent, and useful, are the effects of regenerating grace. What dying to sin! what spiritual quickening to our holy and heavenly life! What an holy, comfortable, and edifying walk before God, from new principles and ends, and after the new pattern of Christ, and by virtue derived from his death and resurrection! There is need then to examine ourselves fully, whether sin or holiness have the ascendancy in our hearts and lives. It is shameful to be less for the Lord Christ after our conversion than we were for sin before it. And all new covenant deliverance from sin ought to render it and its service detestable to us.—Alas, what confusion and wrath follow upon sin! But, abundant, eternal, and free, is the redemption which comes to us through Jesus Christ.

CHAP. VII. Ver. 1—3. I now appeal to all of you, who know the law of na-

8 ^mNow, if we be dead with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him:

9 Knowing that Christ, ⁿbeing raised from the dead, dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him.

10 ^oFor in that he died he died unto sin once: ^pbut in that he liveth he liveth unto God.

11 ^qLikewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord.

12 ^rLet not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof.

13 ^sNeither yield ye your members as ^tinstruments of unrighteousness unto sin: but yield yourselves unto God, as those that are alive from the dead; and your members as instruments of righteousness unto God.

14 ^tFor sin shall not have dominion over you; for ye are not under the law, but under grace.

15 ^uWhat then? shall we sin because we are not under the law, but under grace? God forbid.

16 Know ye not that, ^xto whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?

17 But God be thanked that ^yye were the servants of sin, ^zbut ye have obeyed from this very time we should never willingly yield ourselves to its influence and influence, or serve its interests and designs. 7. For whosoever is dead to the reign and love of sin, through conformity to his crucified and Saviour, is freed from its domineering power and command over him, and delivered from all allowed inclinations and desires to serve it. 8. Now through the merits and influence of Christ's death, we, by virtue of union to, and fellowship with, him, are thus conformed to him in an effectual death unto sin, and are assured, from God's word and by his Spirit, that, through virtue derived from him as our risen Redeemer, we shall be enabled to live a spiritual, heavenly, life here, till we are raised to an eternal life of immediate fellowship with him hereafter. 9, 10. For we are certain that Christ, our risen and exalted Head, will never more die, or be obnoxious to death; but having, by one death on the cross, fully taken away the whole guilt and punishment of our sins, he is raised from the dead to a life heavenly, immortal, and divine, and is calculated to promote the glory of his Father's perfections. 11. If he be by dying once, so effectually took away the sin of his people, and destroyed the power of it, that he now lives in eternal honour to the glory of God, it becomes you to reckon yourselves dead, and actually to be dead, to the love, and practice, of sin, through union to, and fellowship with, him; and to be spiritually alive in your hearts and affections, loving and serving God in heart, word, and deed, as under the power of gracious principles and influences derived from him as our common Saviour and Lord. 12, 13. Take heed that ye never suffer sin so to prevail in either your souls, or your frail, mortal, and mortal bodies, as to make you yield any voluntary obedience to the corrupt desires and solicitations of those sinful lusts which still remain in you at any time to make you willingly employ your bodily members, or the powers of your souls, as instruments of warfare against God, or of serving the flesh, or gratifying the perverse inclinations, of sin; but with full consent, and to reserve, give up your whole selves, soul and body, to God through Jesus Christ, as your only rightful Sovereign, to whom all your obedience is due, that ye therein act as persons delivered from condemnation, and quickened by the regenerating Spirit; and cheerfully employ all the members of your body, and powers of your soul, as instruments of warfare with sin, and of serving God in holiness and righteousness. 14. To encourage you in which, know assuredly, that, however your inward corruptions may trouble, perplex, and wound you, and strive for the mastery in you, yet they shall never regain their allowed and uncontrolled power over you who are united to Christ; for ye are not now under the covenant of works, which however severely it forbids and condemns sin, affords no pardon of it, or effectual assistance against it, but ye are under the covenant of grace, which secures full forgiveness of, redemption from, and deliverance against, sin, and affords every powerful motive and help to holy obedience; and are under the influence of God's sin-subduing and heart-sanctifying Spirit; and under the government of a never-failing principle of grace, implanted in your hearts. 15. Now nothing can be more contrary to the perfections of God, or the design of the gospel, or your gracious character and state, than to permit such a gracious deliverance and state as an encouragement to sin. 16. Ye must but know, that it is impossible for you to divide your chosen services between two opposite governors, but ye must be the proper servants of whatever you voluntarily give up yourselves to the habitual obedience of, whether it be to sin, or to God; and which is deadly, and issues in eternal death; or whether it be to God, and issues in the obedience of faith, for bringing forth the fruits of righteousness and the glory of God. 17. But blessed be God that, though all of you who are Christians were once the voluntary servants and slaves of your sinful lusts, yet, by his almighty and gracious influences, been made sincerely, deliberately, and cordially, upon his authority, to receive and obey those evangelical precepts and commands which have been communicated to you by Christ and his ministers, and which, by their powerful impression on you, have formed you into his own image. 18. And, being set at liberty from the tyrannical dominion and lordship of sin in your wills, affections, and conversation, ye have band is bound by the law to her husband so long as he liveth: but, if the husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of her husband.

3 ^aSo then, if while her husband liveth she be married to another man, she shall be called an adulteress: ^abut, if her husband be dead, she is free from that law; so that she is no adulteress, though she be married to another man.

4 Wherefore, my brethren, ^aye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ^aye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, ^athat we should bring forth fruit unto God.

5 For when we were ^ain the flesh the ^amotions of sins, which were by the law, ^adid work in our members to bring forth fruit unto death.

6 ^aBut now we are delivered from the law, ^athat being dead wherein we were held; ^athat we should serve in newness of spirit, and not in the oldness of the letter.

7 What shall we say then? ^aIs the law sin? God forbid. ^aNay, I had not known sin but by the law: for I had not known ^alust except the law had said, Thou shalt not covet.

8 But sin, ^ataking occasion by the commandment, wrought in me all manner of concupiscence. ^aFor without the law sin was dead.

9 For ^aI was alive without the law

ture or revelation, that no man can be bound by any law longer than he lives under it, or stands related to it; and that however strictly the law of marriage binds a wife to abide with, and perform all necessary duties to her husband whilst they both live; yet, if he die, she is fully delivered from that obligation, and may even be married to another man, as freely as if she had never had any connection with her deceased husband.

4. In like manner, my dear Christian brethren, ye, through Christ's fulfilment of the law in your stead by his obedience unto death, are perfectly delivered from all connection with it as a covenant, requiring personal righteousness in order to justification before God, justifying you for your good works or condemning you for your sins;—in order that in a state of spiritual marriage, union to, and fellowship with, him as your risen Husband and Saviour, and by a principle of spiritual life derived from him, ye may bring forth fruits of holiness to the glory of God, acceptable to him through Jesus Christ. 5. For, while we, Jews or Gentiles, were in our carnal unconverted state, under the full power and influence of our natural corruption, which works so much by our bodies, the violent passions thereof, irritated by the purity of the precepts, and severity of the curses, of the broken covenant of works, powerfully employed all our members and faculties in incessant labours of wickedness greatly dishonouring to God and eternally ruinous to ourselves. 6. But now, the law in that form being dead to us, through Christ's complete fulfilment of all its demands in our stead, we are delivered from all its requirements of perfect obedience in order to justification, and its rigorous sentences of condemnation on account of sin; that through union to and fellowship with him, we might, from new principles, motives, and ends, under the influence of his Spirit, cordially and spiritually serve God in all holiness of heart and life, and not with mere ceremonial and external devotions and virtue. 7. But let none imagine that, because subjection to the law as a covenant retains us in our sinfulness, and deliverance from it promotes gospel holiness, therefore its moral precepts are causes of, rather than checks to, sin. With detestation of the thought, I can, from my own experience, affirm that my conscience had never been convinced of the sinfulness of the secret workings of irregular desires, and the first motions of inordinate affections, unless I had found that the law had forbidden all impatience, discontent, envious grudging, or uneasy and irregular inclinations to worldly enjoyments. 8. But, though the holy law thus discovers and forbids the most secret operations of wickedness, and never gave me any proper occasion of sinning, yet the reigning corruption of my heart barely took occasion from the strictness and severity of the law, and, through my own natural enmity against God, wrought in me all manner of sinful inclinations and desires after that which is forbidden; for, as long as I continued without any true sense of the spirituality, holiness, strictness, and extent, of the divine law, sin, and especially heart sins, appeared to me quite trifling and harmless, without any power or danger. 9. Nay, I then imagined myself in a good state, deserving of, and able and inclined by my good works to recommend me to, God's favour; yea, able to entitle to, and prepare myself for, eternal life:—but when the Holy Ghost applied the commandments closely to my conscience, as reaching to my inmost thoughts, principles, views, and desires, as well as to my words and actions, I could not but be convinced of inconceivable multitudes of sins, and degrees of their aggravation, beyond what I had ever thought of,—and of my just exposure to divine wrath on account of them: and, while I lost all hopes of eternal life by my own performances, and my conscience condemned me to eternal death for my sins, my inward corruption, irritated by the holiness and severity of God's law, raged more and more against him; and this increased my spiritual death in sins, and my desert of eternal damnation. 10. And thus I found God's holy law, as a covenant of works, which was originally framed for a mean of men's justification and eternal happiness through Adam's perfect obedience to it, a tremendous instrument of condemning me to death, temporal, spiritual and eternal; and, through my own indwelling lusts, a mean once: but, ^awhen the commandment came, sin revived, and I died.

10 And the commandment, ^awhich was ordained to life, I found to be unto death.

11 ^aFor sin, taking occasion by the commandment, deceived me, and by it slew me.

12 Wherefore ^athe law is holy; and the commandment holy, and just, and good.

13 Was then that which is good made death unto me? God forbid. ^aBut sin, that it might appear sin, working death in me by that which is good; that sin by the commandment might become exceeding sinful.

14 For we know that the law is ^aspiritual: but I am ^acarnal, sold under sin.

15 ^aFor that which I do I allow not: for what I would, that do I not; but what I hate, that do I.

16 If then I do that which I would not, ^aI consent unto the law that it is good.

17 Now then ^ait is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me.

18 For I know that ^ain me, (that is, in my flesh) dwelleth no good thing: ^afor to will is present with me, but how to perform that which is good I find not.

19 ^aFor the good that I would I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I do.

20 Now, if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me.

of increasing my spiritual death, and alienation from and enmity against God. 11. For my inward lusts, impatient of restraint, took occasion, from the strict holiness of its commands and awful severity of its threatenings, to rage against both the law and the Lawgiver; and thus insensibly drew me into the commission of many forbidden evils, and so increased my inward corruption, and enlarged the sentence of my condemnation to death;—while the law, further applied to my conscience, convinced me that all my hopes of recommending myself to God's favour were utterly groundless. 12. Since therefore the moral law gives no occasion to, but discovers, forbids, and condemns, every sin, it must be acknowledged an intrinsically pure and holy, just, right, and true, good and excellent, eternal, and unchangeable, rule and standard of all holiness and righteousness, every way becoming the holy, righteous, and good, God to enjoin, and intelligent creatures to obey, for his glory and their own advantage. 13. Nor is this holy law the cause of the mischief and death which comes upon mankind. Nay, from this representation of it, derived from my own experience, it is evident that sin, therein shewing itself a most malignant and destructive evil, by a vile abuse of the law, produced in me what was wicked, and brought me under a righteous and manifest sentence of condemnation and death,—that thus rising up in desperate opposition to the holy law of God, it might be made to appear infinitely odious, unreasonable, and injurious, directly contrary to him and pernicious to men. 14. For though I, and all those who have felt its thorough convictions, are certain that this law of God is pure and spiritual, reaching not only to external words, actions, or appearances, but to the thoughts, dispositions, principles, motives, and ends, of our heart, and requiring both internal and external obedience to be performed in a spiritual manner; yet, alas, notwithstanding all the powerful influences of God's grace which I have experienced, such are my deficiencies, and such the remains of corruption in me, that I am quite ashamed of myself, as inexpressibly carnal, and too often employed by my sinful lusts, as if I were still their slave, sold into their hands by Adam's fall and my own former consent. 15. I am indeed far from allowing myself in any known violations of God's law; but, alas, I too often, through sloth or inadvertence, neglect or unprofitably perform the duties which I am desirous of observing and persevering in, and am, to my great grief, drawn into the commission of those sins which I habitually and determinately abhor. 16. If then I have a supreme, fixed, and habitual, aversion to those sins which I commit in opposition to God's holy law, I thereby manifest, that I am so far renewed in heart that I approve of it as right in all points, even to the condemning of myself. 17. And, through this change which God's grace hath made on me, it is no longer my whole self, or even my better part, my renewed judgment, will, and affections, that transgress this law, in omitting what it requires or committing what it forbids, but it is the remaining sinful corruption of my nature, which I disallow and abhor, that transgresses it. 18. For I know, by sad experience, that in my corrupt nature, considered in itself, nothing spiritually good has any residence: and, even though the principles of grace, implanted in me by regeneration, be wholly inclined to that which is good and holy, yet, through the power of remaining corruption and concurring temptations, and the want of a lively exercise of faith on Christ's person and fulness, I cannot perform holy duties in that spiritual and vigorous manner in which I resolve and sincerely desire to do them. 19. For, though I am by God preserved from gross vices, and have an unfeigned respect to all his commandments, yet I do not attain that universal conformity to them which I aim at; and too frequently fall into sins of infirmity, which I really hate and detest. 20. Since then these sinful falls are contrary to the reigning bent of my heart, I must insist on it, to the honour of God's work of grace in me, to the honour of his holy, just, and good law; and to the just reproach of sin, as an unreasonable violation of it; that it is not my whole or renewed self that knowingly and willingly does the abominable things which God hates, but it is owing to those remains of my sinful corruption

CHAP. VIII.

Represents the privileges of the saints as delivered from the law, in

(1) Their spiritual freedom and attachment to spiritual things; 1—8. (2) Their possession of the Spirit as their quickener, sanctifier, and guide;—the witness of their being God's children and heirs of glory; 9—17: and their assistant in prayer; 26, 27. (3) Their comfort under present tribulations by hopes of future happiness; 18—25. (4) Their interest in God's predestinating love, as the original spring of manifold blessings in time and eternity; 28—30. (5) Their triumph, through Christ, over all the enemies of their salvation, and the unchanging nature of his and his Father's love; 31—39.

THERE is therefore now no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit.

2 For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death.

of nature, which I do not oppose, watch, pray, and labour against, so much as I ought. 21. I therefore find an evil principle of sin so powerfully working in me by suggestions, sinful allurements, and prevailing insinuations, that often when I am essaying to perform holy duties, some bad motion or influence presents itself in opposition to my unfeigned endeavours, and unawares draws me into something unlawful. 22. For certain I am that, so far as my soul is renewed by the grace of God, I have the greatest delight and noblest satisfaction in all the precepts of God's law as right and good, and cordially desire to yield them the most perfect obedience. 23. But, alas, notwithstanding all my experience of God's grace, I feel in me a powerful principle of corruption residing in my whole man, and peculiarly working in my sensitive passions and appetites, and earnestly opposing all the holy aims and endeavours of that governing spiritual principle of grace, divinely implanted in my judgment, conscience, and will, and sometimes prevailing to render me its unwilling captive, and involve me in acts of wickedness. 24. And alas, how vile, loathsome, and miserable am I in myself on this account? O when shall an almighty and infinitely gracious God deliver me from this detestable and deadly system of indwelling lusts, which dwell in and overspread my whole nature, and render me so loathsome and inactive before him; and which, if his mercy prevented not, would certainly issue in my eternal destruction! 25. But blessed be his name, through Christ, that, by his free favour and the working of his grace in me, I am already delivered from the guilt and dominion of sin, and have an assured hope of a complete deliverance from all the defiling remains of it at death, through the obedience, suffering, and intercession of Jesus Christ, your and my Lord and Saviour. So then, to sum up all in few words, so far as I am renewed by the grace of God, with settled judgment and choice, and with full approbation, resolution, and consent, I devote my whole man to God; and as his willing servant, yield an unfeigned and unreserved obedience to his law: but, so far as the disallowed workings of corruption prevail in me, I am brought under the influence of sinful lusts, and made unwillingly to serve their abominable interests and demands.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VII.—Marvellous, but certain, glorious, and full, is our deliverance from the broken covenant of works, by our union to Christ and interest in his righteousness, whereby he fulfilled it in our stead. And this deliverance powerfully promotes the renovation of our heart and the reformation of our life. It is impossible to obtain either justification, or even true sanctification, by the broken law. And sharp convictions by it make fearful work on men's hearts and consciences. Jesus and his grace find unrenewed sinners in a most deplorable condition. And dreadful is the nature of sin, which perverts even the holy law of God, and convictions by it, as an occasion of strengthening and enraging wicked lusts. Alas, what remains of corruption are found with the best on earth! what a plague and burden is this to believers, and what an hindrance to holiness! But marvellous and merciful is the creation and preservation of gracious habits and holy principles amidst so much sinful corruption. And it is a certain mark of indwelling grace governing the soul when the sense of indwelling sins occasions such heavy sighs and mournful groans to God. The battle may be sore, but victory, through Jesus Christ, will come at last. May the Lord hasten it to my soul in his time!

CHAP. VIII. Ver. 1. Since the grace of God, through Christ Jesus, thus delivers all true believers from the guilt and dominion of sin, in order to their being, in due time, freed from all the remainders of it, it is evident that, even in this imperfect world, there is no sentence of condemnation to God's wrath standing against them, who are vitally united to Christ as members of his mystical body; and who, though attended with many lamented and condemnable infirmities, do, in the general tenor of their conversation, act, not according to the dictates and inclinations of their corrupt nature, but, according to the inspired word of God, the suggestions, directions, assistance, and pattern, of the Holy Ghost, and according to the nature and inclinations of that principle of grace implanted in regeneration. 2. For, through the covenant of grace perfectly fulfilled by Christ, and through the gospel applied by the powerful influence of the Holy Ghost to my conscience, I am delivered from the covenant of

3 For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God, sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin, condemned sin in the flesh:

4 That the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit.

5 For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit.

6 For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace.

7 Because the carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be.

8 So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God.

9 But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ he is none of his.

10 And, if Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the Spirit is life because of righteousness.

11 But, if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you.

works, which is the strength of sin and binds over unto death, and have a new principle of grace implanted in my heart, in opposition to the sinful and destructive principle of natural corruption. 3. 4. For, when the covenant of works, which required perfect obedience as the only condition of eternal life, and pronounced a curse for the very smallest transgression, had, not indeed of itself, but through our sinfulness and inability, rendered the justification of fallen men by their own works absolutely impossible, God, in his infinite wisdom and grace, appointed, and manifested in our world, his own only begotten Son, personally united to our nature in all the debased and distressing circumstances thereof, and, by rendering him an atoning sacrifice for sin, punished it in him, and sufficiently testified his displeasure against it, in order that all righteousness, in obedience to the precepts of the law or satisfaction to its penalty, being fulfilled by him as our Surety in our stead, might be imputed to our persons, and applied to our consciences, who by his grace have our stated and habitual conversation towards God and men, not under the influence, or according to our natural principles, of sinful corruption, but according to the dictates and influences of the Holy Ghost, and the nature and bent of those gracious principles which he has implanted, and doth preserve, uphold, actuate, and assist, in our souls. 5. For, whatever men profess, they, who are under the direction, dominion, and influence, of indwelling corruption, habitually consult, relish, pursue, and delight in, worldly, sensual, and sinful things, answerably to their carnal and unrenewed appetites: but they, who are under the dominion, and influence of the Holy Ghost dwelling in their hearts, and of the gracious principles implanted by him in regeneration, think of, are devoted to, contrive, relish, follow after, and delight in, those things which are of a spiritual and heavenly nature, answerably to their renewed inclinations and the dictates and influences of the Holy Ghost. 6. Nor is their condition less different than their course; for to have the prevailing bent and delight of the heart turned towards worldly, sensual, and sinful objects, and to live and act accordingly, is in its own nature a spiritual death in trespasses and sins, which deserves, tends to, and naturally issues in, eternal death. But to have our mind frequently, delightfully, intently, and transformingly, employed about spiritual things, under the dominion and influence of the Holy Ghost, and of infused spiritual principles of grace, is in itself a spiritual life, fills the soul with inward activity, peace, and comfort, and is the certain earnest of, and preparation for, everlasting life and peace in the immediate enjoyment of God. 7. But this happy temper and privilege we cannot possess without an almighty renovation of our heart; for the whole bent of an earthly and unregenerate heart is in direct opposition to, and incite to, and malice enmity against, God, his perfections, will, authority, and government, and all conformity to him or spiritual enjoyment of him; and such is its desperate malignity, that it neither will, nor can be brought into a subjection to, or compliance with, the spiritual and righteous demands of his holy, just, and good law. 8. It is therefore manifest that they, who are in their natural state under the power and dominion of carnal principles and corrupt affections, are, while they continue so, utterly incapable of doing any thing spiritually good and acceptable to God, or of being in Christ discharged from condemnation, or accepted to eternal life. 9. But ye, brethren, are not under the dominion of your sinful, and in part remaining, corruption, but under the direction and government of the Holy Ghost, and of implanted principles of grace, as is manifest from the abiding residence and operation of the same in you. Nevertheless, if any of you are not partakers of the inhabitation, renewing and sanctifying operations, of that Spirit, who proceeds from, resides in, and is sent and given by, Christ, ye cannot possibly be of the number of his children; or, continuing such, be owned by him as his, or adjudged to eternal life at the last day. 10. But if Christ has by his Spirit, taken up his abode in you, as his members spiritually united to him, your bodies indeed must die, because of the divine sentence passed against sin, and because of the remains of sin in you; but your souls are already made spiritually alive, and shall for ever live in blessedness and glory, through the righteousness of Christ, wrought out for and imputed to you, and by means of that true principle of holiness which is implanted in you to make you live to God here, and meet for the enjoyment of him hereafter. 11. And, if that blessed Spirit, who together with the Father and

12 Therefore, brethren, 'we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live after the flesh. 13 For 'if ye live after the flesh ye shall die: 'but, if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live. 14 'For as many as are led by the Spirit of God they are the sons of God. 15 'For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. 16 'The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God: 17 'And, if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ; 'if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together. 18 For I reckon that 'the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us. 19 For the 'earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God. 20 'For the creature was made subject to vanity, not willingly, but by reason of him who hath subjected the same in hope; 21 Because the creature itself also 'shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God. 22 For we know that ^h*the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now. 23 And not only they, but ourselves also, who have 'the first fruits of the Spirit; even we ourselves 'groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body. 24 'For we are saved by hope: but hope that is seen is not hope; for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for? 25 But, if we hope for that we see not, then do we with patience wait for it. 26 Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities: for 'we know not what we should pray for as we ought: but 'the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered. 27 And 'he that searcheth the hearts knoweth what is the mind of the Spirit, †because 'he maketh intercession for the saints 'according to the will of God. 28 And we know that all 'things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the 'called according to his purpose. 29 'For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be 'conformed to the image of his 'Son, that he might be the first-born among many brethren. 30 Moreover, 'whom he did predestinate, them he also called: and whom he called, them he also 'justified: and whom he justified, them he also 'glorified. 31 What shall we then say to these

Son, raised up the dead body of Jesus Christ from the grave, dwell in you, by peculiar relation, fixed inhabitation, and quickening and sanctifying operation, God, who raised up your anointed Saviour, Head, and Representative, will, in virtue of, and in conformity to, his resurrection, raise up your dead bodies at the last day to a glorious and immortal life by the same almighty operation of his Spirit. 12. Since, therefore, my dear brethren in Christ, all mischief and ruin are conveyed to us by sin, and all the blessings we enjoy or hope for are conveyed to us by the Holy Ghost, we can be under no obligation or reasonable inducement to follow the pernicious motions, or obey the unrighteous demands, of our sinful corruption, but are under the strongest obligations to the good Spirit of God, and have the strongest motives to live answerably to his holy dictates and influences. 13. And if any of you, contrary to your Christian character and professions, habitually indulge yourselves in fulfilling your sinful lusts, ye must, notwithstanding all your notions, pretences, or external privileges, in religion, as persons who have no real union with, or interest in, Christ, fall short of eternal life, and be plunged into everlasting misery; but if ye, as true believers, vitally united to Christ by virtue derived from him, in the gracious influences and assistances of his Spirit, resist, subdue, and crucify, your corrupt affections, principles, and practices, ye shall, according to the gracious establishment of the gospel, for ever live with him, soul and body, in heaven. 14. For all they who are conducted, assisted, and governed, by the light and influence of God's Spirit, in their minds, wills, affections, and conversation, and they only, as the children of God, are entitled to everlasting life by their adoption, and prepared for it by the implantation of holy principles in their regeneration: 15. For ye have not received the Holy Ghost in order to subject your souls to such servile fears as resulted from the darkness and terror of the legal dispensation, or from legal convictions of your sinfulness and misery before your conversion; but, according to the light, liberty, and joy, of the New Testament dispensation, ye have been made partakers of him in his most comfortable and emboldening operations, by which we and other believers are enabled, with holy reverence, affection, favour, importunity, confidence, and freedom, to address God in our worship as our reconciled Father in Christ. 16. And, in this assured pouring out of our hearts to God through Christ, the Holy Ghost, by working gracious dispositions in us, and by shining upon his own work, doth, in and by his word, assist and concur with our consciences in witnessing that we are truly the adopted and regenerated children of God; 17. And, if we be thus his children, we are necessarily and irrevocably entitled to the rich and glorious inheritance of everlasting life, happiness, and holiness, answerably to our high dignity and relation; and, in and through and together with Christ, our Saviour, Head, Father, and elder Brother, are heirs of God himself, and all that he is or has, as our everlasting Portion; and all our sufferings in this world for his sake, and in conformity to him, shall but promote and issue in our exalted and eternal enjoyment of God in and together with him. 18. For, after an impartial and careful examining and balancing all accounts, under God's infallible direction, I compute, and am fully satisfied, that all the afflictions we can meet with in this world, or endure for the sake of Christ and his cause, are so short, light, and trivial, as to deserve no comparison with that amazing glory and happiness which shall be publicly allotted to, and bestowed upon, us in the last judgment. 19—22. Nay, such is the transcendent glory of that liberty and happiness which we, the adopted and regenerated children of God, shall then enjoy, that all the irrational creatures in this lower world, with order and earnestness answerable to their nature, long for it, that, by their sharing therein, they may be completely and finally delivered from all that vanity, disgrace, disorder, or pain, which has, by the curse, been introduced among and upon them on account of man's first and other sins. 23. And, while they thus long for deliverance from their present vanity and misery, we, who have received the Holy Ghost in his sanctifying, sealing, and comforting, operations, as pledges, earnest, evidences, and securities, of our future full enjoyment of the heavenly inheritance, are, notwithstanding our peace and joy in believing, exceedingly troubled; and, with secret groanings, under the pressure of our remaining sinfulness and affliction, earnestly long for and desire, assuredly hope and patiently wait for, the full enjoyment of all those exalted privileges and blessings belonging to us as the adopted children of God, and in which our bodies, raised to an immortality, shall, together with our souls, share in the most honourable and transporting fellowship with God. 24, 25. For at present we have not the actual possession of our full salvation, but only the assured hope of enjoying it in some future period: and, hoping for it as a thing unseen and unenjoyed, we, patiently bearing our troubles and humbly resigning ourselves to God's will as to the time of its manifestation, wait for it with cheerfulness, firmly expecting that, in due time, we shall be fully delivered from all evil, and crowned with everlasting happiness in heaven. 26, 27. And, as this delightful hope encourages and supports our patient waiting under all our griefs and burdens, so doth the Holy Ghost himself, by his concurrent direction, support under our manifold weaknesses and imperfections, which would otherwise carry us into unseasonable and impatient desires of deliverance; for, by our remaining ignorance, selfishness, carnality, and perturbation of spirit, we neither know what to pray for, as most conducive to God's glory and our good, nor are capable of ordering our requests in a duly believing, spiritual, fervent, holy, humble, submissive, and steady manner; but the Holy Ghost suggests to us proper requests, and enables us to offer them up, with such vehement pantings and breathings of soul, in an admirable mixture of faith and patience, importunity and hope, as no words can sufficiently express. But, though we cannot fully express these strong inward desires of our heart, the all-seeing and heart-searching God accurately and kindly observes and approves, and is ready to answer, whatever we aim at and desire under the influence of his own Spirit, who always directs and assists to pray according to his will and word; such prayers must therefore certainly be answered in due season. 28. And, for our further comfort under all our present tribulations and groanings, we believers know, from God's covenant promises, relations, and affection to us through Christ, and from our own and others' experience, that all persons, things, and events, however bad or afflictive in their own nature, tendency, or appearances, shall, under the influence of the overruling wisdom, power, and grace, of God, work together to promote the spiritual and eternal advantage of all those who sincerely love God as their chief good and highest end, having been, by the effectual working of his Spirit, called and converted to him according to, and in prosecution of, his eternal purpose of grace to them; 29, 30. And this indeed is the original source of all that good which we enjoy or hope for: for, whatever persons of mankind God from everlasting fixed his love and choice upon, these he determined, in due time, to render conformed to his Son in holiness, needful suffering, and eternal glory, that he might have the honour of being the prime Ruler and Chief of a numerous family of ransomed men:—and whom he thus predestinated to holiness, sufferings, and honours, he, in the execution of this decree, effectually calls and converts to Christ, and unites them with him:—and whom he, not only externally by the gospel, but internally, calls, draws, and renews, by his grace, these he pardons, accepts, and entitles to eternal life, through the righteousness of Christ:—and whom he thus justifies, he, by his Holy Spirit, sanctifies and comforts in this world, and at last admits to the full and immediate enjoyment of himself in heaven, in, with, and conformed to, Christ. 31. If then the infinitely wise, unchangeable, and almighty, God be thus our certain, fast, and steady, friend; and all his perfections, purposes, promises, and operations, be

CHAP. IX. Ver. 1, 2. I should have been inexpressibly glad, had I been able on good grounds to affirm that the whole of my Jewish brethren were the peculiar objects of God's redeeming favour, and heirs of his distinguished blessings,—which I have just now mentioned; and I dare, in the most solemn, candid, and Christian, manner, appeal to the all-seeing Jesus Christ, and his Holy Spirit, who search the hearts and try the reins of all the children of men, that my mind is exceedingly overwhelmed with grief and pain as a woman in travail, whenever I think of their present deplorable condition by means of their unbelief.

3—5. I could cheerfully submit to the greatest sufferings which can be endured without sinning; be cut off from life in the most tremendous manner, and be excommunicated from all the churches of Christ on earth; or even, for a time, cut off from all delightful communion with himself; if it could avail to promote his glory in the faith and salvation of these my dear countrymen;—who are descended from Jacob the renowned wrestler with God, and have been rationally adopted as the peculiar people and children of God, and not a few of them made his spiritual children, by special adoption and regeneration;—who have had his glorious temple, ark, mercy seat, Shechinah, and other visible tokens of his peculiar presence, granted to them;—and have been brought into his covenant for temporal and spiritual blessings, which has been frequently confirmed to them;—and have in a most solemn manner received his laws, moral, ceremonial, and judicial, his ordinances of worship, and promises of blessings temporal, spiritual, and eternal;—and have Abraham, Isaac, David, and many other holy men, for their natural ancestors;—and from among whom, in respect of his manhood or human birth, the Messiah sprung, who, in his divine nature, is infinitely blessed in himself, the object of all adoration, and the Most High over all the earth.

6—13. But though, to the grief of my soul, the bulk of the Jewish nation are now in a most deplorable condition through their own re-

12 It was said unto her, The [†]elder shall serve the ^{||}younger.

13 As it is written, ^yJacob have I loved, but Esau have I ^hated.

14 ^aWhat shall we say then? ^bIs there unrighteousness with God? God forbid.

15 For he saith to Moses, ^cI will have mercy on whom I will have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I will have compassion.

16 ^dSo then it is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God that sheweth mercy.

17 For ^ethe Scripture saith unto Pharaoh, ^fEven for this same purpose have I raised thee up, that I might shew my power in thee, and that my name might be declared throughout all the earth.

18 ^gTherefore hath he mercy on whom he will ^hhave mercy, and whom he will he ^hardeneth.

19 Thou wilt say then unto me, ⁱWhy doth he yet find fault? for who hath resisted his will?

20 Nay but, O man, ^kwho art thou that ^{*}replieth against God? shall the thing formed say to him that formed it, Why hast thou made me thus?

21 Hath not the ^lpotter power over the clay, of the same lump to make one vessel unto honour and another unto dishonour?

22 ^mWhat if God, willing to shew his wrath, and to make his power known, endured with much long-suffering the vessels of wrath ⁿfitted to destruction:

23 ^oAnd that he might make known the riches of his glory on the vessels of mercy, which he had afore prepared unto glory,

24 ^pEven us whom he hath called, not of the Jews only, but also of the Gentiles?

25 As he saith also in Osee, ^qI will call them my people who were not my people; and her beloved who was not beloved.

26 ^rAnd it shall come to pass ^sthat, in the place where it was said unto them, Ye ^{are} not my people, there shall they be called, The children of the living God.

27 Esaias also crieth concerning Israel, ^tThough the number of the children of Israel be as the sand of the sea, a remnant shall be saved:

28 ^uFor he will finish [†]the work, and cut it short in righteousness: because a short work will the Lord make upon the earth.

29 And, as Esaias said before, ^vExcept the Lord of Sabaoth had left us a seed, we had been as Sodoma, and been made like unto Gomorrha.

30 What shall we say then? That the Gentiles, who ^xfollowed not after righteousness, ^yhave attained to righteousness, even the righteousness which is of faith.

31 But Israel, who ^zfollowed after the law of righteousness, hath not attained to the law of righteousness.

32 Wherefore? ^aBecause ^{they}sought it not by faith, but as it were by the works of the law. For they ^bstumbled at that stumbling-stone;

33 As it is written, ^cBehold, I lay in Sion a stumbling-stone and rock of offence; and ^dwhosoever believeth on him shall not be [†]ashamed.

† Or confounded.

jection of the gospel, yet it must not be imagined that God's covenant of promise which he made with their fathers, is disannulled, or has failed of accomplishment; for all the natural descendants of Jacob were never considered by God as true Israelites, interested in the saving blessings of it.—The restriction of Abraham's honourable seed to Isaac, who was born by means of supernatural influence, and his descendants, to the exclusion of his posterity by Hagar and Keturah, who were born by natural influence; and the after-preference of Jacob, a younger child by the same mother at one birth, and no way superior to Esau in natural goodness of qualities or works, plainly manifested that not natural descent from Abraham, but spiritual conformity in faith, marked the intended heirs of promise; and that the Jewish posterity of these patriarchs should in due time, for their unbelief, be excluded from the church; and others, no better in themselves, by the sovereign grace of God be brought in to fill their room. 14—16. Let none dare to think God unrighteous, in making such a wide difference in his choice and disposal of persons equally sinful and unworthy in themselves: for, as he declared to Moses, he may bestow his undeserved favour, with all its undeserved effects, upon whomsoever he please, without any dependence on their free-will, good disposition, careful inquiries, or diligent endeavours, after salvation, as the cause of his conduct.

17. And why may he not, in the same sovereignty, as in the case of Pharaoh, the oppressing king of Egypt, advance men, no worse in themselves than others, to high stations, and preserve them for a time amidst manifold judgments, in order that, by tremendous acts, he may at last manifest the glory of his perfections to all around, in their dreadful, but just, destruction.

18. From the above instances it is plainly evident that God, in high sovereignty, extends his free mercy to such sinful and miserable creatures as he pleases, and at the same time leaves other sinners, no worse in themselves, to Satan and their own sinful lusts; that, by abusing his word, ordinances, and providences, they may be hardened, as a punishment for their former sin, and as a prelude and means of ripening them for further destruction.

19—21. Let none therefore dare to arraign the Most High, as if he were unrighteous in threatening, condemning, or punishing, men for that obstinacy in wickedness into which he leaves them to fall, or as if it were necessary for him to account for bestowing his undeserved favours upon some and withholding them from others; for, if a potter, who himself is but a fellow creature formed of the dust, may, out of the same lump of clay, form vessels for different purposes and degrees of honour, without injuring the clay, why may not the Most High Creator, Proprietor, and Lord of all, dispose of his creatures as best answers the glory of his perfections, whether in their undeserved honour and blessedness, or in their deserved shame and contempt?

22. Why may not he for the glory of his high sovereignty, and manifestation of his dreadful power and equity upon obstinate and impenitent sinners, defer their punishment, and even load them with many external benefits, till by their increased sinfulness, they have rendered themselves more notoriously deserving of his wrath, and ripe for destruction?

23, 24. And why may he not take this course, in order to manifest the transcendent and endearing riches of his glorious grace in the salvation of those, whom from all eternity he chose to everlastingly love, and whom he prepares for it by his renewing and sanctifying grace,—even all his effectually-called ones, whether Jews or Gentiles? 25—29. From these predictions of Hosea and Esaias, it is plain that God always intended to form a people for himself, by the call of the gospel, where he had none; while only a remnant of the Jews should be saved; and designed, in awful justice, to reject the body of the Jewish nation, and other objects of his wrath, on account of their sin, while, in free mercy, he saves the objects of his love, Gentiles as well as Jews.

30. In fulfilment of which predictions, and to manifest which mercy upon the one hand, and just wrath on the other, the poor ignorant idolatrous heathens, who instead of knowing, concerning themselves about, or endeavouring to perform, any good works, had lived in every sinful abomination, have many of them been made by faith to receive and share of the justifying righteousness of Christ, revealed and offered in the gospel.

31. On the other hand, the Jewish descendants of Jacob, who with great but misguided zeal, have pursued after righteousness for justification by their own obedience to the law of Moses, have neither fulfilled, nor received, any righteousness which can answer the demands of that law for which they are so zealous, or procure their acceptance with God and title to eternal life.

32. And their falling short of righteousness is not owing to any decree of God hindering them, but to their own pride, perverseness, and unbelief, through which they refuse to accept it, as provided for them in Christ and freely offered in the gospel, and desire to be justified, in whole or in part, by their own obedience to the law:

33. For, as Esaias foretold, they take such offence at Jesus Christ, the only foundation of the gospel church and of all salvation, on account of his mean parentage, appearances, poverty, and crucifixion, the spiritual nature of his kingdom, and his humiliating doctrines, that they cannot think of owing any part, much less the whole, of their salvation to him alone.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IX.—Certain and manifest is the supreme God-head of Jesus Christ and his Spirit, who search men's hearts, and by whom they may swear. And very marvellous in himself, and just suited to our need, is he, who is at once a true man, the promised seed of the Patriarchs, and the most high God, blessed for ever. Great is the honour and mercy to stand related to God as church members, and to enjoy their privileges. Yet, alas, many such, through their unbelief, fall short of spiritual and eternal salvation! But, whether men be saved or damned, the purposes of God are executed, and his promises fulfilled. How free, how sovereign and endearing, is his electing love towards so many sinners, Gentiles as well as Jews, without any regard to their foreseen goodness! And righteous is his whole conduct, as he withholds from none what he ought to give them, and punishes none but on account of their sins, by which they deserve, and are fitted for destruction. Gloriously he marks his sovereignty over his creatures. And it is absurd then to quarrel with his dispensations, or to pry into or perplex ourselves with, his secret purposes, especially when his word, which is our only rule, gives all reasonable encouragement to faith and holiness as the means of manifesting our election. Yea, men's quarrelling with the sovereignty, mercy, or justice, of his conduct, will provoke him to give them up to judicial blindness and incurable hardness of heart. Multitudes effectually prevent their own justification and salvation by seeking righteousness in their own works in opposition to the righteousness of Christ. But happy and full is their deliverance who rest on him alone for righteousness and strength.

BRETHREN, ^amy heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel is, that they might be saved.

² For I bear them record that they ^bhave a zeal of God, ^cbut not according to knowledge :

³ For they, being ignorant of ^dGod's righteousness, and ^egoing about to establish their own righteousness, ^fhave not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God.

⁴ For Christ ^{is} the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth.

⁵ For Moses describeth the righteousness which is of the law, ^hThat the man who doth those things shall live by them.

⁶ But the righteousness which is of faith speaketh on this wise, ^kSay not in thine heart, Who shall ascend into heaven? (that is, to ^lbring Christ down from above) :

⁷ Or, who shall descend into the deep? (that is, to ^mbring up Christ again from the dead).

⁸ But what saith it? ⁿThe word is nigh thee, ^{even} in thy mouth and in thy heart: that is, the word of faith, which we preach ;

⁹ That, ^oif thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and ^pshalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved.

¹⁰ For with the heart man believeth ^qunto righteousness, and with the mouth confession is made ^runto salvation.

¹¹ For the scripture saith, ^sWhosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed.

¹² For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek ; for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him.

¹³ For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved.

¹⁴ How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?

¹⁵ And how shall they preach except they be sent? as it is written, ^tHow beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things !

¹⁶ But they have not all obeyed the gospel. For Esaias saith, ^uLord, who hath believed ^vour report?

¹⁷ So then ^wfaith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God.

¹⁸ But I say, Have they not heard? Yes, verily, ^xtheir sound went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world.

¹⁹ But I say, Did not Israel know? First Moses saith, ^yI will provoke you to jealousy by ^zthem that are no people, and by a foolish nation I will anger you.

²⁰ But Esaias is very bold, and saith, ^{aa}I was found of them that sought me not: I was made manifest unto them that asked not after me.

²¹ But to Israel he saith, ^{ab}All day long I have stretched forth my hands unto a disobedient and gainsaying people.

CHAP. XI.

Mollifies the awful views of the rejection of the Jews, and their exclusion from God's church and covenant; and shews (1) That it was not universal, but the elect among them had obtained salvation by mere grace, while the rest, through the blindness and hardness of their hearts, fell short of it; 1—10. (2) That it is not final; but, as God had overruled their unbelief for making the Gentiles partakers of church privileges in their stead, so the Gentiles ought not to insult them, but take warning from their fate, to watch against pride and unbelief, in hopes of the Jews being again brought into covenant and church fellowship with in our crucified and risen Redeemer, in order to the obtaining a complete justifying righteousness in him : and with our mouth we must make a public, open, and resolute, confession of him as such before the world ; and must plead what he hath done and suffered as the ground of our hope towards God, if we would obtain a final and complete salvation. 11—13. And, as was foretold by the prophets Isaiah and Joel, Jews and Gentiles, who believe on and worship him, have now equal access to all the inexhaustible riches of his righteousness, grace, and salvation. 14, 15. It is therefore necessary that the gospel be preached by ministers authorised and sent by Christ, to Gentiles as well as Jews, that they, hearing these glad tidings of salvation, may cordially believe the same, and even highly esteem and regard the publishers of such important declarations and offers of justification, adoption, and eternal glory through him. 16. But, as Isaiah foretold, neither Jews nor Gentiles have generally hearkened to the gracious calls of the gospel, nor yielded up themselves to the authority of God therein by the obedience of faith ; 17. Yet it is nevertheless certain that the hearing of it preached by persons divinely authorised is the ordinary mean of God's working faith in men's hearts by the almighty operation of his Spirit. 18—21. And it is plain, as was foretold by Moses and Isaiah, that the gospel, to the no small vexation of the envious Jews, has already been preached, far and wide, among the ignorant and idolatrous Gentiles ; and, through the effectual operation of God's sovereign grace, hath been attended with no inconsiderable success.—And no less evident is it, as was foretold by Isaiah, that the Jews have obstinately and ungratefully rejected Christ and his gospel, notwithstanding the most endearing, persuasive, and miraculous means, and the long-continued pains taken for their conversion, by him, his Spirit, and ministers.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. X.—Faithful ministers very earnestly desire and pray for the salvation of their hearers. And it is a great grief and burden to their spirits that so many, through ignorance, pride, and attachment to self-righteousness, refuse Jesus and his righteousness and salvation so freely offered. But infinite is the mercy that he and all his fulness are so fit for us, and brought so near to us in the gospel ; and that this gospel is now extended to Gentiles as well as Jews, and is so long continued, even to the most criminal despisers thereof. The glad tidings of mercy and grace which it contains, are suited to the diversified conditions of all the sinful men who hear it. And with full persuasion and close application ought we then to embrace it.—With boldness and fidelity ought ministers to preach it. And highly should they be esteemed, if faithful, for their work's sake. But it is criminal and dangerous to attempt preaching without a commission from Christ ; or to continue rejecting him and his gospel till the time of God's patience hath expired.

CHAP. X. Ver. 1. Notwithstanding these awful hints concerning God's rejection of my Jewish brethren, which I have suggested, my most earnest desire and prayer to him is, that, as far as can possibly consist with his glory, he would prevent the miseries which are justly impending over their heads, and give them faith in Christ, to their present and everlasting salvation. 2. For, however they hate, reproach, and persecute me, I must think, and testify, that many of them have a real zeal for God and his laws ; but, alas ! wholly misguided, leading them off from Christ and the true method of righteousness and salvation. 3. For, through their own chosen carnality and ignorance,—having mean and unworthy thoughts of the righteousness of God's nature, manifested in the strict demands and awful penalties of his law, and of that perfect righteousness of obedience and suffering by which Christ satisfied his law and justice,—they exert themselves to their utmost to make their own imperfect, ceremonial, and external, performances stand as their righteousness for acceptance with God to eternal life :—and thus, through their wilful ignorance and desperate pride, they refuse to receive or owe their salvation to the righteousness of Christ, freely offered to them in the gospel as the alone ground of their justification before God. 4. For, as the manifestation of Christ was the great end of God's giving to the Jews their laws, so he, by answering all the types of the ceremonial law, has abolished it ; and, by fulfilling all the demands of the moral law, as a broken covenant of works, has brought in a perfect and everlasting righteousness as our surety to be imputed to every one, Jew or Gentile, who, under a sense of his own sinfulness and misery, receives and rests on him alone for salvation as he is offered in the gospel. 5—8. For, if men will insist upon being justified by their own personal righteousness as a fulfilment of the law, it is plain from Moses' own declaration, that nothing less than a perfect fulfilment of all its demands can in the least avail to their justification and eternal life : but, in hinting at the doctrine of justification by faith, he darkly represents Christ, not as needing to be brought down from heaven, but as already come into our world and nature, to take away sin by the sacrifice of himself ; not as needing to be raised from the dead, but as actually raised again for our justification, and in order to apply his purchased redemption ;—and represents him and his righteousness as brought near to our very ears, mouth, and heart, in the gospel, when we hear, read or receive, it as preached by his authorised ministers, that he may be the infallible foundation and glorious object of our faith : 9. And we are assured that, if we with our heart believe in Christ as our only Saviour, who died for our offences and rose again for our justification, and make a proper and open confession of him as such, we shall certainly be partakers of eternal salvation. 10. For, not by a mere assent of our mind to the revealed truths of God, but also by a consent, approbation, and acceptance of our will and affections, we must believe CHAP. XI. Ver. 1. From these awful hints by the prophets, and the no less awful present appearances of things among the Jews, we must not conclude that God has universally, and for ever, abandoned his whole favourite nation, who have so long been his peculiar people, in visible covenant with him. No,—I myself, to whom, notwithstanding the greatest unworthiness and guilt, his grace has been exceeding abundant, am an Israelite, of the very meanest and first miscreant tribe.

2—5. Whatever he has done with multitudes of the natural descendants of Jacob, and might justly do with them all, for their many heinous provocations, yet he has rejected none whom, in his eternal purpose, he chose to special and saving benefits; but, as in the days of Elijah, when idolatry and other wickedness so remarkably prevailed, that he thought scarcely a true worshipper of God but himself remained among the ten tribes, the Lord had secretly preserved no less than seven thousand, so now, notwithstanding our general and deplorable infidelity, a large remnant have been effectually brought to believe in Christ to the saving of their souls, according to that free choice which God, from all eternity, made of them in the riches of his own sovereign mercy and grace.

6. And if the choice, calling, and saving, of some rather than others, be entirely the effects of his mere favour and grace, then it is plain that no foreseen good works deserved, or moved him to it: nothing being more evident than that the mere undeserved favour and mercy of God, and the merit of men's good works, are so directly contrary the one to the other, that they cannot be blended together; but salvation, from first to last, must be simply of the one to the exclusion of the other.

7—10. The present state of the Jewish nation stands therefore precisely thus, that all such of them as were divinely chosen to everlasting life have obtained, or shall obtain, righteousness entitling to it through faith in Christ; but the rest, who are the far greater part, are, in the awful, but just providence of God, and according to his predictions by Isaiah and David, given up to their own lusts, to blind and harden themselves in their rejection of Christ and his gospel, and thereby bring upon themselves fearful curses and miseries spiritual and temporal in this world, as well as everlasting destruction in that which is to come.

11. Nor has God permitted them to stumble at his crucified Son, in order that their whole nation should fall from all their ancient privileges into utter and everlasting ruin; but has overruled their obstinate unbelief into an occasion of sending the gospel to the Gentiles, that the ready reception of it among that idolatrous and detested people might stir up the Jews to vie with them in faith and obedience, that these despised Gentiles might not wholly take away the gospel and its privileges from them.

12. Now, if the apostasy of the Jews, and their falling off from their peculiar relation to God as his people be, in his infinite wisdom, made a mean of sooner enriching the Gentiles with the gospel and all its inestimable blessings, how much more shall the faith of the Gentiles be confirmed, their blessings increased, and converts multiplied; when, in some future period, the Jewish nation shall be converted to Christ, and enjoy the fulness and privileges of the gospel.

13. It is with great pleasure that I, who reckon myself highly honoured to be the apostle of Jesus Christ for the conversion and edification of you Gentiles, mention this to you for your comfort. 14. And it would give me inexpressible joy and satisfaction if, by this or any other means, I could be an instrument of stirring up my Jewish brethren to bethink themselves, and believe in Christ, to their own everlasting salvation: 15. For, if God's casting them off from being his peculiar people for their obstinate unbelief has been made an occasion of bringing you Gentiles, by the gospel, into a state of favour and fellowship with him, through faith in his Son, shall not their future general conversion to Christ, be a mean of introducing an inexpressibly more glorious, enlarged, and lively condition to the gospel church!

16. And this general conversion we ought to hope for.—For God's sanctification of Abraham, and others of their ancestors, to his service, and entering them and their seed into special covenant with himself, imports that though, for their wickedness, the present and many succeeding generations should be cut off from the favour of God, and expelled from his church, yet he will, in some future period, from regard to that ancient covenant, convert multitudes of them to Christ, and reinstate them in his church. And of this I and others, who are already converted, are a specimen, pledge, and earnest.

17. But if the natural descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, those friends of God, be for their obstinate unbelief, cut off and expelled from God's covenant and church, that you, ignorant, unprofitable, and wicked Gentiles, fit only for everlasting destruction, might, in the transcendent mercy of God, be brought into the church as their spiritual posterity; and along with believing Jews, made partakers of all the promises, ordinances, privileges, and blessings, of the gracious covenant made with Abraham;

18. Never insult or condemn these rejected Jews, nor imagine yourselves more worthy than they. Remember ye contributed nothing to the honours and privileges of Abraham and his posterity, but receive your gospel privileges through means of Abraham as their root, and the father of all the nations of them that believe.

19. Think not that they, as superlatively wicked, were expelled from God's church, that you, as better, might be admitted in their stead. 20. It was for their rejection of Christ, and the way of salvation through him, that they were cast out from their peculiar relation to God, and the gospel removed from them to you; and it is only by faith in Christ, and his salvation, as freely offered to you, that ye have been admitted to, and continued in possession of, the privileges which they have lost; never therefore ruin yourselves by contempt of others, or by a conceit of your own worthiness or ability to persevere in your holy profession; but study always to maintain a holy reverence of God, an humble diffidence of yourselves, and a filial fear of falling by unbelief, as they have done.

21. For if God would not pass over, without fearful punishment, the obstinate unbelief of his ancient people, descended from Abraham his distinguished friend, what need have ye, who, contrary to all your deserts, have been admitted into his gospel church in their stead, to take heed, lest by pride and unbelief, you should provoke him to punish you in a similar manner? 22. Observe, and ponder therefore with solemn awe, the dreadful, but just, severity which God has exercised towards the obstinate and rejected Jews, and the transcendent mercy and kindness which he has manifested towards you Gentiles in sending his gospel to you, opening your hearts to receive it, admitting you into his church, and rendering you partakers of his blessings, if by an humble faith severity of God : on them who fell, severity ; but toward thee, goodness, if thou continue in his goodness : otherwise thou also shalt be cut off.

23 And they also, if they abide not in unbelief, shall be grafted in : for God is able to graff them in again.

24 For, if thou wert cut out of the olive tree, which is wild by nature, and wert grafted contrary to nature into a good olive tree ; how much more shall these, which be the natural branches, be grafted into their own olive tree ?

25 For I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this mystery, lest ye should be ^mwise in your own conceits ; that ⁿblindness in part is happened to Israel, ^ountil the fulness of the Gentiles be come in.

26 And so ^pall Israel shall be saved : as it is written, ^qThere shall come out of Sion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob :

27 For this is my covenant unto them when I shall take away their sins.

28 As concerning the gospel, they are enemies for your sakes : but, as touching the election, they are beloved for the fathers' sakes.

29 For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance.

30 For, ^xas ye in times past have not believed God, yet have now obtained mercy through their unbelief ;

31 ^yEven so have these also now not ^zbelieved, that through your mercy they also may obtain mercy.

† Or obeyed.

ye improve his kindness. But, if through pride and unbelief ye abuse his merciful dispensation, assure yourselves that he will also unchurch you, and all other merely nominal Christians. 23, 24. And know that even the Jewish nation, who are now rejected, shall, in God's time, by an effectual conversion to the faith of Christ, be again made members of his church : for if, by his supernatural and almighty grace, you idolatrous Gentiles, worthless, unprofitable, and wicked, have been brought into his church, to render you fruitful in good works, much more may we expect that these descendants of Abraham with whom God established his covenant in their pious ancestors, shall, by faith in the exalted Messiah, be brought back into the covenant and church of God, from which their unbelief had cut them off, that they may partake of the spiritual benefits thereof.

25. Nay, that ye may not indulge yourselves in vain reasonings or self-conceit, or in contempt of them, know that this strange and tremendous abandoning of most of the Jews to their ignorance and unbelief will only continue till there be a general conversion of the Gentile nations to Christ ; 26, 27. And then shall multitudes of all the tribes of Israel be in like manner turned to the Lord, through faith in Christ as the gracious forgiver of their guilt, subduer of their lusts, and reformer from their sinful practices, manifested to them according to the ancient predictions.

28. In judgment to them, and in order to the merciful spread of the gospel among you, they are indeed now enemies to, and contradicators and blasphemers of, it, and have thereby cut themselves off from the blessedness of it : but, with respect to that absolutely gracious choice which God made of them as his peculiar people, they are still the objects of his kind and merciful regard, in consequence of that special favour which he had for Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and other pious ancestors.

29. For the effectual calling and other blessings, which God bestows upon men in consequence of his choice of them in his eternal purpose, being irrevocable, we may depend on his infinite wisdom, power, goodness, and unchangeableness, that this chosen nation shall again be turned to the Lord, and multitudes saved with an everlasting salvation :

30. For, as ye Gentiles, who had for many ages continued in the most hateful, helpless, and hopeless, circumstances, have now, through occasion of their unbelief, been brought into God's covenant and church, and made partakers of his saving benefits ;

31. Even so, in like manner, the generality of the Jews are now, for a time, permitted to reject Christ and the gospel, that, through your receiving and preserving the gospel in the world, it may at length be preached unto them, and through faith in their own Messiah, they may be mercifully restored to their ancient privileges, and many of them eternally saved.

32. Thus by turns hath God, in infinite sovereignty, as well as equity, shut up mankind, first the Gentiles, and then the Jews, under the power of their disobedience and unbelief, and out of his visible church, that in his own time he may magnify the exceeding riches of his grace in calling multitudes of all ranks, among both Jews and Gentiles, to himself.

33. O the unbounded, the unfathomable, depth of his wisdom and knowledge, and of his counsels and dispensations, especially those which relate to the disposing of, and preparing, men for their eternal state ! How impossible is it for created minds to explore the reasons of his determinations with respect to particular persons or nations ! And how intricate and unknown are the methods of his providence for accomplishing his great designs !

34. How impossible it is for mere creatures to penetrate into the secret thoughts and noble schemes of his infinite mind, who is the great Sovereign of heaven and earth ; and which he by the most improbable means, pursues in the most unsearchable dispensations

32 For ^aGod hath ||concluded them all in unbelief, that he might have mercy upon all.

33 ^aO the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God ! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out !

34 ^bFor who hath known the mind of the Lord ? or who hath been his counsellor ?

35 ^cOr who hath first given to him, and it shall be recompensed unto him again ?

36 For ^dof him, and through him, and to him, are all things : ^eto whom be glory for ever. Amen.

CHAP. XII.

Begins the practical improvement which ought to be made of God's sovereign grace, in our justification, sanctification, glorification, and ancient election ; and exhorts the Romans (1) To an holy dedication of themselves to God ; 1, 2. (2) To an humble opinion of themselves and a modest behaviour towards others ; 3—5. (3) To a faithful use of their spiritual gifts in their different stations in the church ; 6—8. (4) To their common duties as private Christians ; viz. to love, zeal, hope, patience, prayer ; 9—12 : hospitality, meekness, sympathy, condescension ; 13—16 : an honourable and peaceable conduct towards all men ; together with forbearance and kindness towards injurious enemies ; 17—21.

I ^aBESEECH you therefore, brethren, ^bby the mercies of God, ^cthat ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service.

2 ^cAnd be not conformed to this world : but ^dbe ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may ^eprove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God.

of providence ! And how impossible for any to assist him in forming his plans, or to direct him in accomplishing them ! 35. Very absurd then is it to imagine that any creature, and especially any sinful man, Jew or Gentile, should have any claim of debt upon the infinite God, the Creator and Preserver of all. 36. For not only all things relative to his dispensation of justice and mercy, but all things in heaven, earth, or hell, are of him, as their contriver, Creator, and cause ; and are all preserved, directed, governed, and disposed by him ; and are all intended, formed, preserved, and managed, for the glorious illustration of his infinite perfections.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XI.—Awful is the thought that so many members of the visible church should be eternally rejected and ruined. Yet it is a great mercy that in the very worst of times a remnant larger than many think are saved ; that our whole salvation is owing to God's free and rich grace ; and that not one elect vessel can be finally lost. But it is absurd for men to attempt connecting their merits with God's grace, as joint causes of their eternal salvation, when the one is utterly averse of the other. Dreadful are spiritual judgments, especially when least perceived ! And awful is the providence when God casts off a person, and especially a nation, which he has long and remarkably favoured. It is necessary therefore for all professors humbly to fear and tremble for themselves, and to make sure their standing in Christ by vigorous and often-repeated acts of faith. But, when God casts off one nation, he supplies their room in his church and covenant with another : and, when they are long cast off, God can nevertheless mark his regard to their ancestors, and to his promises made to them, in shewing them distinguished favour at last.—Blessed indeed will be the period when both Jews and Gentiles shall be generally gathered to Jesus Christ. May the Lord hasten it in his time ! And with reverend awe should we adore and acquiesce in all his purposes and providences, resolving all into his infinite wisdom, power, mercy, equity, and high sovereignty, and referring the glory of all things, all events, to his name !

CHAP. XII. Ver. 1. Having thus largely represented unto you the exceeding riches of God's mercy and grace, in the election, justification, sanctification, and other blessings, which are granted to you who are in Christ, let me affectionately and earnestly beseech you by them, and by all the endearments, encouragements, obligations, and assistances, which result from them, solemnly, cordially, and unreservedly, to devote your whole selves, soul and body, not as an atoning, but as a living sacrifice of thankful acknowledgment—that ye are the Lord's, quickened by his Spirit, and vigorously determined through your whole life to serve and glorify him ;—and purified from your sinful lusts, that by faith and evangelical obedience ye may serve him in a spiritual, reasonable, and acceptable manner, answerable to his nature and the obligations ye are under to him. 2. And in order to this, beware of forming worldly schemes of happiness, or of complying with, or being moulded into, the spirit and temper, courses and fashions, of carnal and worldly men ; but let your chief aims and endeavours be to become more and more inwardly renewed by the Holy Ghost, that ye may be more capable of understanding, practising, and recommending the excellent and important truths of God contained in his word. 3. And in order to your understanding this perfect will of God with advantage to yourselves and unto me, to every man that is among you, ⁵not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but to think ⁶soberly, ⁷according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith.

4 For, as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office;

5 So ^kwe, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another.

6 Having then gifts, differing according to the grace that is given to us, whether prophecy, let us prophesy according to the proportion of faith;

7 ^mOr ministry, let us wait on our ministering: or he that teacheth, on teaching: or he that exhorteth, on exhortation;

8 ⁿHe that [†]giveth, let him do it [‡]with simplicity; ^ohe that ruleth, with diligence; he that sheweth mercy, with cheerfulness.

9 ^pLet love be without dissimulation.

^qAbhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good.

10 ^rBe kindly affectioned one to another || with brotherly love; ^sin honour preferring one another:

11 ^tNot slothful in business; ^ufervent in spirit; serving the Lord;

12 ^vRejoicing in hope; ^wpatient in tribulation; ^xcontinuing instant in prayer;

13 ^yDistributing to the necessity of saints; given to hospitality.

14 ^zBless them who persecute you:
bless, and curse not.

15 ^aRejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep.

16 ^bBe of the same mind one toward another. Mind not high things, but ^ccondescend to men of low estate. ^dBe not wise in your own conceits.

17 ^eRecompense to no man evil for evil. ^fProvide things honest in the sight of all men.

18 ^hIf it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men.

19 Dearly beloved, ⁱavenge not yourselves, but ^jrather give place unto wrath:
for it is written, ^kVengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord.

20 ^lTherefore, if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink:
for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head.

21 ^mBe not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.

12 ^xcontinuing instant in prayer;

13 ^yDistributing to the necessity of saints; given to hospitality.

14 ^zBless them who persecute you:

CHAP. XIII.

Continues the practical exhortation; and inculcates (1) A conscientious subjection to the lawful commands of civil magistrates, as deputies of God, appointed for good to men; 1—7. (2) The study of exact equity and affectionate love towards all men, as a fulfilment of the second table of the moral law; 7—10. (3) Temperance, sobriety, and an improvement of Christ, with respect to ourselves; 11—14.

LET every soul ^abe subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ^{*}ordained of God.

² Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God: and they that resist shall receive to themselves damnation.

³ For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise of the same:

⁴ For he is ^d the minister of God to thee for good. But, if thou do that which is evil, be afraid; for he beareth not the sword in vain: for he is the minister of God, a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doth evil.

⁵ Wherefore ye must needs be subject, not only for wrath, but also for conscience sake.

⁶ For, for this cause pay ye tribute also: for they are God's ministers, attending continually upon this very thing.

⁷ Render therefore to all their dues: tribute to whom tribute is due; custom tions, and thus overcome your enemies and your own resentments, by returning good for evil.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XII.—God's endearing mercies should powerfully promote our grateful dedication of ourselves to him and his service. And it becomes professed Christians to have their hearts weaned from the profits, pleasures, and cares of this present world, and from its sinful practices and customs, and to labour after a thorough conformity to the image of God, and an experimental, practical, and approving, acquaintance with every thing good. It is very honourable when, amidst great gifts, graces, and services, we keep up humble thoughts of ourselves and an high esteem of others, and account whatever we have as freely bestowed on us for the good of the church. Great is the kindness of Christ in so plentifully providing gifts, graces, offices, and officers, for the edification of souls. And it is delightful when all, with integrity, diligence, and cheerfulness, are employed for that end. O what undissembled and ardent love to God and men; what hatred of every thing evil; what diligence in our callings; what joyful hope of eternal happiness; what patient resignation; what fervent and persevering prayer; what cheerful liberality; what profound humility; what cordial sympathy; what harmonious concord and peacefulness; what disinterested returning of good for evil; is necessary to enter into the character of a Christian! and great is the grace and power of God which is necessary to work all these in our heart and life.

CHAP. XIII. Ver. 1. And, whether ye be Jews or Gentiles, ministers or people, see that ye conscientiously submit to, and cheerfully obey, the civil governors who rule over you, in every thing lawful; for they are advanced to their dignity by the providence of God, derive their whole authority from him as the supreme Governor of the world, and therefore ought to be acknowledged and obeyed as his deputies and vicegerents.

² Whoever therefore they be, and of what religious profession or worldly circumstances soever, who in their private capacity, oppose any lawful command of the civil government which is providentially set over them, and, in a seditious and treasonable manner, endeavour to disturb, defame, and subvert, it, they rebel against the authority of God himself, and oppose an ordinance which he has appointed in his law, natural and revealed, for the protection, safety, and welfare, of mankind, and expose themselves to severe punishment from their rulers, and to the everlasting vengeance of God who appointed them.

³ For, according to the end of their institution, civil rulers are not authorized by God to punish men for, or deter them from, any thing truly good and lawful, but to restrain and punish what is manifestly injurious and disturbing to the commonwealth, and dishonourable to God their supreme Governor, for the caution of others, and to preserve them from the like conduct. If therefore you would be safe from all danger of punishment by them, always live quietly and peaceably, in all godliness and honesty, doing what is morally and politically good; and then you may ordinarily expect the protection, commendation, and encouragement, of magistrates, instead of their severe resentment.

⁴ For, by the very nature of their office, magistrates are God's deputies, whom, for the common benefit of mankind in this imperfect state, he has authorised to suppress vice, immorality, and profaneness, and to maintain his honour, as the Lord of the world, and the natural, civil, and religious, rights of their subjects. If therefore you violate the moral and political laws of their government, by doing what tends to dishonour, weaken, or destroy, it, you expose yourselves and families to the most dreadful consequences; magistrates being obliged, as the deputies of God, to punish such as are turbulent, or chargeable with any other notorious crimes:

⁵ Ye are therefore bound to pay all due subjection and obedience to magistrates, not only for avoiding that punishment which they are able and bound to inflict upon the injurious and rebellious, but chiefly from a principle of religion and conscience towards God, regarding their office as his ordinance, and themselves as his deputies, placed over you in his providence, and acting in his name and authority in all their lawful injunctions, to whom as guardians of the state, under himself, he requires you to be to whom custom; ⁵ fear to whom fear; honour to whom honour.

⁸ Owe no man any thing, but to love one another: for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law.

⁹ For this, ^kThou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, Thou shalt not covet; and, if there be any other commandment, it is briefly comprehended in this saying, namely, ^lThou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

¹⁰ Love worketh no ill to his neighbour: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.

¹¹ And that, knowing the time, that now it is high time to awake out of sleep: for ^o now is our salvation nearer than when we believed.

¹² The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore ^ccast off the works of darkness, and let us put on ^ethe armour of ^hlight.

¹³ Let us walk [†]honestly, as in the day; ⁿnot in rioting and drunkenness, ^xnot in chambering and wantonness, ^ynot in strife and envying.

subject: 6, 7. And, since they are the deputies of the most high God, who, by virtue of their office and power derived from him, lay out themselves continually for the security of the rights and liberties of their good subjects, and the restraint and punishment of malefactors, make conscience of honestly paying whatever taxes are laid upon you for the support and dignity of government; and always labour to cultivate a becoming reverence and esteem of them in your minds, as your political fathers and lords; and manifest it in every proper expression of outward homage, honour, or respect. 7—10. Never be either backward or dilatory to pay the tax you owe them, or the debt you owe any other; and never think the just debt of love, which you owe to all mankind, fully paid, but in all circumstances, and by all proper means, desire, contrive, and labour, how to exercise it best for their advantage.—For in love to our fellow creatures in its due latitude and fervour, as founded upon and springing from our love to God, and from a sense of his love to us in Christ, we really fulfil all the commandments of the second table of the moral law, relative to chastity, preservation of life, furtherance of wealth, maintenance of truth, charitable contentment, and relative duties:—for, whenever unfeigned and fervent love reigns in the heart, it sweetly and powerfully restrains from desiring, designing, or willingly doing, any thing hurtful, and constrains to the performance of every kind office to every one; and so is radically and intentionally a compliance with all the duties of the second table of the law, and will render a man sincerely desirous of and diligent in performing them.

¹¹. And the more careful ought we to be in cultivating this comprehensive duty of love, as now, under the light and grace, assistances and encouragements, of the gospel dispensation, it is high time for us to shake off all our sloth and carnal security, that Jesus Christ may not, in death or judgment, find us asleep;—for now our deliverance from persecution, and chiefly our complete salvation in heaven, is much nearer than when we first believed on him for it.

¹². And since not only this night of our outward troubles, but also of our ignorance, unbelief, and sinful courses, is now far spent, and the day of gospel light hath begun to dawn in our souls, and the day of complete redemption is at hand, let us labour to mortify our shameful lusts, and shun every sinful and dangerous practice, and daily grow in, and exercise, the precious, pure, heart-comforting, and adorning, graces of God's Spirit, in opposition to the temptations and terrors of sin, Satan, and the world.

¹³. Let us constantly, uniformly, and progressively, behave in a manner suited to our Christian character, and the privileges which we enjoy or expect;—carefully avoiding all excessive feasting and carousing, revellings, and debaucheries; all whoredom in heart, looks, words, actions, or dress; all angry contentions and brawlings; and all envying or grudging at the prosperity of others. ¹⁴. And, on the contrary, let us, by faith, constantly receive, profess, and improve, the Lord Jesus Christ as our Head and Husband, &c. made of God unto us righteousness and sanctification. Let us study to be conformed to him in heart and life, as a mean of rendering us meet for the heavenly blessedness, and of recommending him to all around us: and let us never inordinately consult, care, or provide, for our body, to the neglect of our spiritual concerns; nor contrive what may promote or gratify our sinful inclinations.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIII.—Divine is the appointment, and advantageous the right exercise, of magistracy. And what a promoter of the peace, order, and happiness, of nations is the Christian religion! While it directs rulers how to discharge their high trust as deputies of God, it requires the subjects to revere, honour, obey, support, and reward, them as such.—An exact honesty in the contracting or payment of debts ought to mark every Christian. And Christian love to our neighbour is a permanent duty and an amiable and powerful restraint from vices, and constraint to every thing virtuous. No murder, adultery, theft, falsehood, covetousness, or relative disorder, can consist with it. But how imperfect, dark, dangerous, and transient, is the present state of things on earth! Great is the mercy that eternal happiness daily approaches nearer to every believer. The faith and contemplation of these things should

(1) Cautions Jewish converts against judging, and Gentile believers against despising each other, on account of their contrary opinions and practices relative to such indifferent things as ceremonial meats and days; 1—13. (2) Exhorts the Gentiles rather to forbear using their Christian liberty than give offence to their Jewish brethren in these things; 14—23.

HIM "that is weak in the faith receive ye, but *not to doubtful disputations.

2 For ^bone believeth that he may eat all things: another, who is weak, ^ceateth herbs.

3 ^dLet not him that eateth despise him that eateth not; and let not him who eateth not judge him that eateth: for God hath received him.

4 ^eWho art thou that judgest another man's servant? to his own master he standeth or falleth: yea, he shall be holden up; for God is ^fable to make him stand.

5 ^gOne man esteemeth one day above another: another esteemeth every day alike. ^hLet every man be ⁱfully persuaded in his own mind.

6 He that ^jregardeth the day regardeth ^kit unto the Lord: and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he doth not regard ^kit. He that eateth, eateth to the Lord, for ^khe giveth God thanks; and he that eateth not, to the Lord he eateth not, and giveth God thanks.

make us effectually to shake off our sinful indolence and unconcern; to avoid and abhor luxury, uncleanness, strife, and envy; and to receive Jesus, and his righteousness and grace; that we may be always perfecting holiness in the fear of the Lord.

CHAP. XIV. Ver. 1. And, whereas there are different opinions among you about the continued obligation of some ceremonial rites of the Old Testament dispensation, I earnestly entreat you Gentile believers, who have more distinct views of the liberty of the gospel dispensation, to admit to your church fellowship and intimate friendship such Jews as still have some prejudices and scruples with respect to the abolition of these ceremonies, and beware of troubling them with perplexing disputes about meats, days, or things equally trivial; as these tend rather to puzzle and disquiet their minds than to godly edifying: 2. For some Gentile or other converts, who plainly perceive the abolition of the ceremonial law, have freedom in their own mind to eat every kind of wholesome food; and some Jewish or other converts, through the prejudice of education, think that the Mosaic rules relative to food are still binding; and hence, when they eat with Gentiles, are afraid to eat any flesh at all. 3. In this case, let Christian charity and forbearance be exercised on both sides: for God bears with the weakness of the one, and hath accepted and taken the other into his family and church, without any regard to ceremonial observances. 4. It is therefore very improper for any of you presumptuously to judge and condemn those whom God hath accepted and approved in their conduct: it is to God, not to you, they are accountable, and by him their state must be decided: and he, having accepted and admitted them, shall establish them in the faith and fellowship, comfort and holiness, of the gospel, and make them to stand with boldness in the last judgment. 5. Some think that the ceremonial seasons ought still to be regarded and religiously observed: others, who have clearer views of the gospel state of the church, are persuaded that no day but the Christian sabbath ought to be distinguished from others. 6. As the regards of the Jewish festivals do it from a principle of conscience towards God, and in obedience to what they think to be still his command, and in honour of Christ, who, they conceive, hath confirmed all the ancient institutions of Moses; and as they who do not observe these days forbear from a principle of conscience towards God, with a view to his glory and to the honour of Christ's having fulfilled and abolished the whole ceremonial laws;—so that they who eat every sort of wholesome food aim at the honour of God and of Christ, who is Lord of all; and, in asking a blessing on their food, give him thanks for allowing them freely to eat whatever is most suited to their convenience, necessity, and innocent delight; and they who refrain from the meats anciently prohibited do it with an upright intention to glorify God and Christ, in submitting to his authority in these ancient laws, and which they suppose still binding; and are thankful that enough besides is afforded them by providence:—it is therefore proper that they should in a Christian manner bear with one another. 7. None ought, and no true believer will dare, to live as if he were his own lord and master, making his own humour the rule, or his own honour, profit, or pleasure, the end of his life; and none ought to make, and no real Christian will make, his own ease or honour the end of his death. 8. For, in whatever form or time we live, it ought to be in obedience to the command of Christ, and in order to serve and honour him in all that we think or say, do or suffer; and, whether we be cut off by a violent or natural death, it ought to be undergone with resignation to the will and appointment of Christ, who died for us; and with a fiducial commitment of our departing spirits into his hand, and a desire to glorify him and his truths, and the power of his grace, in the manner of our death; and to depart and be for ever with him. Whether therefore we live or die, we all ought to consider 9 ^mFor to this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living.

Anno Domini

10 But ⁿwhy dost thou judge thy brother? or why dost thou set at nought thy brother? for ^owe shall all stand before the judgment of Christ.

11 For it is written, ^pAs I live, saith the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God.

12 So then ^qevery one of us shall give account of himself to God.

13 ^rLet us not therefore judge one another any more: but judge this rather, ^rthat no man put a stumbling block or an occasion to fall in ^shis brother's way.

14 ^tI know, and am persuaded by the Lord Jesus, that ^tthere is nothing ^tunclean of itself: but to him that esteemeth any thing to be ^uunclean, to him ^uit is unclean.

15 But, if thy brother be grieved with ^vthy meat, now walkest thou ^vnot ^vcharitably. Destroy not him with thy meat, ^vfor whom Christ died.

16 ^wLet not then your good be evil spoken of:

17 ^xFor the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but ^xrighteousness, and peace, and joy, in the Holy Ghost.

18 ^yFor he that in these things serveth Christ, is acceptable to God, and approved of men.

19 ^zLet us therefore follow after the ourselves as Christ's property and at his disposal, and, relying upon him, labour to glorify him in our bodies and spirits.

9. For to this very end Christ, at his Father's commandment, laid down his life as an atoning sacrifice for sin, and rose from the dead, and ascended to heaven, that, as Head over all things to his church, he might have an absolute, universal, and sovereign, dominion over them that are dead, or that are, or ever shall be, alive on the earth; and might have full power to direct, support under, and sweeten, death to his people, as well as bestow everlasting life and honour upon them.

10. Why then should any of you judge, condemn, and think meanly of, your Christian brethren about matters which are in themselves indifferent, when all of us shall in a little time appear before the judgment seat of Christ, and have all our dispositions, tempers, thoughts, words, and actions, judged by him, and our eternal state of misery or happiness fixed in correspondence thereto? 11, 12. For, as Christ, to shew the irreversible nature of his purpose in this point, has sworn by himself that every one of mankind shall be obliged to own him as the great God and Judge of all, to whom they are accountable, and by whom their eternal state must be decided, it is plain that all of us, both Jews and Gentiles, of every rank, character, or profession, shall be called to account in the last judgment, not for our neighbours' mistakes and miscarriages, but for our own faith and practice.

13. Let none of us therefore invade Christ's prerogative, by taking upon us to censure and condemn one another; but let us all take care that we never, by a free use of that which is lawful in itself, grieve or ensnare our Christian brethren, or draw them into sin, by tempting them either to go into uncharitable censures, or to do that with a doubting conscience which we do with a satisfied mind. 14. For my part, I know, upon the authority of Christ and the nature and design of his death, which was to reconcile and take away all religious distinctions between Jews and Gentiles, and to remove the curse which the fall had brought upon our created enjoyments, that no sort of food is in its own nature morally, or now any longer ceremonially, unclean: yet, if any one should think any particular sort of food forbidden by God, his eating of it would violate the dictates of his conscience, and so defile it, by doing what it represented as sinful.

15. Yea, if ye yourselves were ever so fully persuaded that you might eat whatever food comes in your way, yet, if your Christian brethren through weakness should be troubled and offended at it, it would be very untender and uncharitable in you, if ye knew their scruples, to persist in using your liberty before them. Never dare to stagger the faith, wound the conscience, destroy the peace and comfort, of a brother, or draw him into damnable sin, for whom it appears Christ, in infinite love, laid down his life. 16. Take heed that your lawful liberty, in the use of meats or other indifferent things, be not reproached as licentiousness through your imprudent and unseasonable use of it, to the scandalizing of your weaker brethren.

17. But, after all, the nature, glory, and blessedness, of the gospel dispensation, or of the kingdom of grace thereby erected in men's hearts, do not consist in any circumstantial and external things, but in the righteousness of Christ imputed in true holiness of heart and life, in a solid peace in our own souls, and a peaceful temper and carriage towards others, under a sense of God's being reconciled to us through Christ, and in those supernatural and divine comforts which the Holy Ghost imparts to us through the word.

18. And whoever, in these substantial points of vital religion, behaves as a faithful servant of Christ, obedient to him, dependent on him, and aiming at his glory, is, through him, acceptable to God in his person and services, and is approved by all good and wise men as a sincere Christian, whatever be his opinion in things indifferent. 19. Let us therefore, instead of laying any stress upon or contending about such things, labour to pursue what tends to promote our own inward peace and prosperity, and an amicable temper and conduct towards our brethren in Christ; and to propagate such opinions and practices as may strengthen one another in faith and love, hope and holiness. — 20. Never, for the sake of meats or such like indifferent things, obstruct that harmony, love, and peace, spiritual edification and comfort, which the Holy Ghost produces and delights in. All meats may now indeed be eaten without defilement to the conscience, and to every true believer they are cleansed from the curse brought on them by sin; but it is very sinful and injurious for professed Christians to abuse their liberty in even eating them, or doing things indifferent, when they know it will grieve and stumble a tender-spirited brother. 21. In such cases it is right, kind, prudent, commendable, and well pleasing to God, to abstain from whatever has any tendency to stumble, discourage, prejudice, weaken, or grieve, any of our Christian brethren, or ensnare them into rash censuring or sinful compliances. 22. If therefore ye be fully persuaded that ye may eat all manner of wholesome food, and neglect the observance of the ceremonial festivals, hold it fast, and act according to it on all proper occasions, as in God's sight and with a view to his glory. Happy is that Christian whose conscience can approve his conduct in every point as both lawful and expedient. 23. But he who eats meats, or practises any thing indifferent, while he doubts of the lawfulness of it, is condemned in his own conscience and by the word of God; for, in all matters of a religious nature, it is very sinful for us to practise or comply with any thing which we do not believe authorised by the word of God, being at once a contempt of what we allow to be his law, and our only rule of faith and practice, and a violation of the restraints of our own conscience.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIV.—With great care ought we to extend church fellowship, as far as can tend to the honour of Christ and the mutual edification of church members in faith and holiness. And no lesser differences, which do not affect the system of divine truth or the vitals of religion, ought to hinder our mutual intimacy. We have all need to beware of an uncharitable, disdainful, and censorious spirit. And earnestly should we be concerned to comfort ourselves in God's love to us, and to approve ourselves to him, and to our own conscience, in the view of our appearance before his awful tribunal. What reverential thoughts ought we to entertain of Jesus Christ as the great God and Judge of the world! And, in the view of his impartial and final judgment, with diligent care should we, by faith, live on his person and fulness, and to his glory, and avoid all uncharitable judging or offending the weakest of his apparent members. Yea, it becomes us always to act from principles of faith and a good conscience in all things, and to promote each other's edification and peace; and always to remember the excellency and spiritual nature of the blessings of his kingdom, that it consists not in any thing external, but in righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost.

CHAP. XV. Ver. 1. Such of us therefore as are established in the faith of the gospel liberty, or who have arrived to greater measures of knowledge and grace, ought, from a compassionate and tender regard to our Christian brethren, whose faith is staggering, and whose judgment and other spiritual attainments are but small, to be meek, forbearing, and patient, towards them, and should make kind allowances for, and endeavour to relieve, them under their prejudices, doubts and fears, rash censures, and conscientious scruples, and not aim at gratifying our own inclinations, much less our own humour, pride, and passions: nor ought we to do any thing which is barely lawful in itself, at the expense of offending and injuring the tender minds of others. 2. Let each of us therefore labour to behave towards our fellow Christians and neighbours in such a condescending and engaging manner as will best soften their temper, instruct and win them, and make their souls to grow in grace and knowledge, comfort and holiness, to complete salvation. 3. For even our blessed and self-suffithat we, through patience and comfort of the scriptures, might have hope.

5 ^eNow the God of patience and consolation grant you to be ^flike-minded one toward another, ^gaccording to Christ Jesus:

6 That ye may with one mind and one mouth glorify God, even the ^hFather of our Lord Jesus Christ.

7 Wherefore ^breceive ye one another, as Christ also received us ⁱto the glory of God.

8 Now I say that ^kJesus Christ was a minister of the circumcision for the truth of God, to confirm the promises made unto the fathers:

9 ^lAnd that the Gentiles might glorify
God for his mercy; as it is written, ^mFor this cause I will confess to thee among the Gentiles, and sing unto thy name.

10 And again he saith, ⁿRejoice, ye Gentiles, with his people.

11 And again, ^oPraise the Lord, all ye Gentiles; and laud him, all ye people.

12 And again Esaias saith, ^pThere shall be a root of Jesse, and he that shall rise to reign over the Gentiles; in him shall the Gentiles trust.

13 Now the ^qGod of hope ^rfill you with all joy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope through the power of the Holy Ghost.

cient Lord Jesus did not indulge his own ease or pleasure, or seek his own safety or honour, to the neglect of others, when here upon earth; but, to promote our salvation, and his Father's honour, condescended and denied himself in numberless instances, and freely submitted to all manner of hardships, sufferings, disgraces, and malignant and blasphemous reproaches, as is represented, through David as a type, in the 69th Psalm. 4. And whatever things were written in the Old Testament, by the inspiration of the Spirit of God, were written, not only for the instruction of our ancestors, but for ours also, that by means of its types, prophecies, histories, and examples, as well as doctrines and laws, we might be excited, animated, and encouraged, to proper patience under our troubles, and made partakers of the joys of faith, the peace of a good conscience, and the comforts of the Holy Ghost, in order to confirm our well-grounded hopes of all needful grace from God now and glory hereafter.

5. In order therefore to your dutiful and successful improvement of the scripture, may that God who is infinitely patient and long-suffering, and who is the author, fountain, and giver, of all Christian patience and spiritual comfort, grant you an harmonious, tender, and peaceful, disposition towards each other, that ye may be entirely united in all doctrines and duties which belong to your Christian state and character, according to the example and command of Christ, and as may be most for his glory, and acceptable to God through him.

6. That, under the influence of the Holy Spirit, ye may with united hearts and voices cordially agree in your profession, worship, and practice, to advance the honours and shew forth the praises of God, as your God in Christ, who is the centre of all our spiritual union and fellowship.—7. Notwithstanding therefore your different opinions about matters of little importance, let the endearing example of our great Lord and Saviour, in bearing with our infirmities, who are believers, and receiving us into favour, union, and communion, with himself and his Father, influence you cordially to embrace one another as brethren, without distinction of nations or parties, that ye may glorify God by your harmoniously walking together in faith and love and in the fellowship of the gospel, till ye arrive at all possible perfection in his glorious presence for ever.

8—12. And, to shew you how Christ has admitted both Jewish and Gentile believers to equal privileges and blessings, without making any distinction under the gospel state, observe, on the one hand, how he sprung from, and appeared as a member and minister of, the Jewish church, and taught, obeyed, and suffered, to display the faithfulness of God, and to ratify, establish, and render efficacious, the gracious promises which had been made to the ancient patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob;—and, on the other, that many of those promises, spoken by David, Moses, and Isaiah, represent Christ as publishing the truths of God to the Gentiles, and bringing them into his church as joyful and grateful members thereof, subjected to him as their Head, and trusting in him as their Saviour, along with the Jews. It is therefore proper that both parties should receive each other with all readiness of mind as their brethren in Christ.

13. Now may that gracious God, who is the object, ground, and author, of all that hope which we, whether Jews or Gentiles, have of spiritual and eternal blessings, plentifully enrich and satiate you with all sorts of divine joys and comforts, and with an abiding, solid, and evangelical, peace in your own souls and with one another, in the lively exercises of faith in Christ, and the promises of the everlasting covenant, that ye may not only have a good, but full and assured, hope of future blessedness through the powerfully enlightening, strengthening, witnessing, and confirming, operation of the Holy Ghost.

14. And indeed I am firmly persuaded that ye, my dear Christian brethren, are abundantly endowed with such benevolent graces of the Spirit as dispose you to mutual kindness in your temper and behaviour one towards another, and with such knowledge of all things necessary to salvation as renders you capable of instructing each other in the most important truths of the gospel, and of admonishing and exciting one another to every

15. 16. I have nevertheless written with the greater plainness and freedom on the head of your Christian liberty, and obligations to mutual charity, because, by the transcendent grace of God, I have been called and furnished to be an apostolic preacher of Christ and his unsearchable fulness in the gospel, especially to the Gentiles, that many of them, being converted

by my ministrations, might be devoted as living, holy, and acceptable, sacrifices to God, and might offer up to him the sacrifices of prayer, praise, and charitable contributions—both they and their services being consecrated by the effusion of the gifts, graces, and sanctifying influences, of the Holy Ghost. 17. In consequence of which call to this office, and success therein, I have great reason to rejoice and glory, not indeed in myself, but in and through Christ, by whose grace I have so abundantly and so successfully laboured in preaching the gospel, and bringing multitudes of Gentile sinners to the faith of Christ, to the praise and glory of God. 18. 19. But in this my humble and holy glorying I neither dare boast of any thing I have done myself, nor ascribe to myself what others have done, but I merely hint at what Jesus Christ, by means of my preaching, labours, and sufferings, has wrought, by the almighty influences of his Spirit, in bringing multitudes of the Gentiles to receive and profess him as their Lord and Saviour, and to live in obedience to his laws: and, encouraged by his miraculous and gracious operations, which attested my call, mission, and the truths which I preached, I have, under the influence of the Holy Ghost, with great freedom, faithfulness, fulness, and success, published the glad tidings of salvation through Christ to sinful men, all along from Jerusalem, through Canaan, Syria, Lesser Asia, and Greece, till I came to Illyricum at no great distance from Rome. 20. 21. And, in my ministrations I have especially of goodness, filled with all knowledge, able also to admonish one another.

15 Nevertheless, brethren, I have written 'the more boldly unto you, in some sort, as putting you in mind, because of 'the grace that is given to me of God,

16 That I should be 'the minister of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles, ministering the gospel of God, 'that the 'offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being sanctified by the Holy Ghost.

17 'I have therefore whereof I may glory through Jesus Christ in those things which pertain to God.

18 'For I will not dare to speak of any of those things which Christ hath not wrought by me, 'to make the Gentiles obedient, by word and deed,

19 'Through mighty signs and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God;
'so that from Jerusalem, and round about unto Illyricum, I have fully preached the gospel of Christ.

20 Yea, 'so have I strived to preach the gospel, not where Christ was named, lest I should build upon another man's foundation:

21 But, as it is written, 'To whom he was not spoken of, they shall see: and they that have not heard shall understand.

22 For which cause also 'I have been 'much hindered from coming to you.

23 But now, having no more place in these parts, and having 'a great desire these many years to come unto you;

24 Whensoever I take my journey into Spain, I will come to you: for I trust to see you in my journey, and to be brought on my way thitherward by you, if first I be somewhat filled 'with your company.

15. 16. I have nevertheless written with the greater plainness and freedom on the head of your Christian liberty, and obligations to mutual charity, because, by the transcendent grace of God, I have been called and furnished to be an apostolic preacher of Christ and his unsearchable fulness

in the gospel, especially to the Gentiles, that many of them, being converted

by my ministrations, might be devoted as living, holy, and acceptable, sacrifices to God, and might offer up to him the sacrifices of prayer, praise, and charitable contributions—both they and their services being consecrated by the effusion of the gifts, graces, and sanctifying influences, of the Holy Ghost. 17. In consequence of which call to this office, and success therein, I have great reason to rejoice and glory, not indeed in myself, but in and through Christ, by whose grace I have so abundantly and so successfully laboured in preaching the gospel, and bringing multitudes of Gentile sinners to the faith of Christ, to the praise

ther dare boast of any thing I have done myself, nor ascribe to myself what others have done, but I merely hint at what Jesus Christ, by means of my preaching, labours, and sufferings, has wrought, by the almighty influences of his Spirit, in bringing multitudes of the Gentiles to receive and profess him as their Lord and Saviour, and to live in obedience to his laws: and, encouraged by his miraculous and gracious operations, which attested my call, mission, and the truths which I preached, I have, under the influence of the Holy Ghost, 25 'But now I go unto Jerusalem to minister unto the saints.

26 'For it hath pleased them of Macedonia and Achaia to make a certain contribution for the poor saints who are at Jerusalem.

27 It hath pleased them verily, and their debtors they are. 'For, if the Gentiles have been made partakers of their spiritual things, their duty is also to minister unto them in carnal things.

28 When therefore I have performed this, and 'have sealed to them this fruit,
I will come by you into Spain.

29 And I am sure that, when I come unto you, I shall come in 'the fulness of the blessing of the gospel of Christ.

30 'Now I beseech you, brethren, for the Lord Jesus Christ's sake, and for the love of the Spirit, that ye strive together with me in your prayers to God for me;

31 'That I may be delivered from them that 'do not believe in Judea; and that 'my service, which I have for Jerusalem may be accepted of the saints;

32 'That I may come unto you with joy by the will of God, and may with you be refreshed.

33 Now 'the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

CHAP. XVI.

Here Paul (1) Recommends Phebe; 1, 2: and sends salutations to particular Christians at Rome; 3—16. (2) Cautions the Roman believers against such as fomented divisions among them; 17—20. (3) Mentions sundry friends who joined with him in his Christian salutations; 21—24. (4) Concludes with ascribing glory to God for extending his gospel revelations and blessings to Gentiles as well as Jews; 25—27.

I COMMEND unto you Phebe our sister, who is a 'servant of the church which is at Cenchrea:

2 That ye 'receive her in the Lord, as becometh saints, and that ye assist her in whatsoever business she hath need of you:

28, 29. However, when I have manifested my tender regard to my dear countrymen, and have faithfully delivered to them this collection, I intend, if the Lord will, to see you on my way to Spain. And, from what I have experienced of Christ's powerful operations by me, I hope to come to you plentifully furnished with gospel instructions, offers, and encouragements, and thereby to be an instrument of conveying to you the most abundant gifts, graces, and comforts. 30—32. In order to my accomplishing these desirable designs, I earnestly entreat you, by all the obligations and endearments of the love and grace of Jesus Christ and his Spirit, and by all that love wrought in your hearts by these divine persons, or which you owe to them for all that they have done for or in you, that ye, in the most fervent manner, join your believing, importu-nate, and persevering, supplications to God with mine, for his guidance, protection, and blessing, to me,—that I may be delivered from all the snares and violence of my Jewish persecutors, and that the collection which I carry up to Jerusalem may not, through prejudice, be despised or refused, but kindly accepted by the believing Jews as a mean of weaning them from their dislike to me and the Gentile converts,—and that, being thus prospered in my present way and work, I may, through the kind providence of God, have an opportunity of seeing and conversing with, and preaching to you, for our mutual comfort and edification. 33. Meanwhile, may that God, who is reconciled to us in Christ, and is the Author of all our peace, comfort, and happiness, and who delights in our possessing our souls in peace, and living together in harmony and love, be graciously present with you, by the special influences of his Spirit, to unite your hearts in the strongest brotherly affection, prevent all animosity and discord, and bless you with all spiritual blessings in Christ Jesus.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XV.—With much tenderness and self-denial should we behave towards our Christian brethren; and with kind affection bear with one another's infirmities, and study one another's spiritual edification. It is an inconceivable mercy to have access to peruse, and a great honour to be diligent students, searchers, and improvers of, the holy scriptures. In the ministry of his Son, and the ancient promises, God delightfully laid the foundation of uniting Jews and Gentiles into one gospel church, and he hath done most marvellous things to effect it. Richly replenished are all the promises with Jesus Christ and his grace; and with what joy and peace doth a right believing of them fill our souls! Thrice happy are they who believe them, to their own sanctification of heart and life, by the Spirit of God, and to their eternal salvation. Thrice happy is it when ministers, depending entirely on God, are diligent, faithful, and successful, in preaching the gospel, and multitudes through the gospel, attended by the influences of the Holy Spirit, are turned to Christ and his service. And it wears an hopeful appearance when the fervent prayers of ministers and people are united in behalf of Christ's interests, and for one another's mutual advantage; and when spiritual fellowship is their joint delight.

for she hath been a succourer of many and of myself also.

3 Greet Priscilla and Aquila, my helpers in Christ Jesus:

4 Who have for my life laid down their own necks: unto whom not only I give thanks, but also all the churches of the Gentiles.

5 Likewise greet the church that is in their house. Salute my well-beloved Epenetus, who is the first-fruits of Achaia unto Christ.

6 Greet Mary, who bestowed much labour on us.

7 Salute Andronicus and Junia, my kinsmen and my fellow prisoners, who are of note among the apostles, who also were in Christ before me.

8 Greet Amplias my beloved in the Lord.

9 Salute Urbane, our helper in Christ, and Stachys my beloved.

10 Salute Apelles, approved in Christ. Salute them who are of Aristobulus' household.

11 Salute Herodion my kinsman. Greet them that be of the household of Narcissus, who are in the Lord.

12 Salute Tryphena and Tryphosa, who labour in the Lord. Salute the beloved Persis, who laboured much in the Lord.

13 Salute Rufus, chosen in the Lord, and his mother and mine.

14 Salute Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Hermes, and the brethren who are with them.

15 Salute Philologus, and Julia, Nereus, and his sister, and Olympas, and all the saints who are with them.

16 Salute one another with an holy kiss. The churches of Christ salute you.

17 Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them who cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned, and avoid them.

18 For they that are such serve not our Lord Jesus Christ, but their own belly; and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple.

19 For your obedience is come abroad unto all men. I am glad therefore on your behalf: but yet I would have you wise unto that which is good, and simple concerning evil.

20 And the God of peace shall bruise Satan under your feet shortly. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. Amen.

21 Timotheus my work-fellow, and Lucius, and Jason, and Sosipater, my kinsmen, salute you.

22 I Tertius, who wrote this epistle, salute you in the Lord.

23 Gaius mine host, and of the whole church, saluteth you. Erastus the chamberlain of the city saluteth you, and Quartus a brother.

24 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

25 Now to him that is of power to stablish you according to my gospel, and the preaching of Jesus Christ, (according to the revelation of the mystery, which was kept secret since the world began,

26 But now is made manifest, and by the scriptures of the prophets, according to the commandment of the everlasting God, made known to all nations for the obedience of faith):

27 To God only wise be glory through Jesus Christ for ever. Amen.

assist her in transacting her civil affairs at Rome; for she has generously and hospitably entertained, sheltered, and provided for, many poor Christians and destitute strangers.

3, 4. They very much assisted and encouraged me in my ministerial labours at Corinth; and, when I was in danger, they exposed their very lives in order to save me.

5. Their religious family, by the blessing of God on their good example, diligent instructions, and prudent regulations, is like a church of Christ for its stated worship of God, purity of manners, and beautiful order.—Epenetus was the first converted to Christ in all the regions of Achaia, and an honourable pledge and earnest of that great harvest of souls which have been since gathered unto the Lord.

7-9, 13. In Christ, or in the Lord, denotes being united to, beloved by, and believing in, him, and holding fellowship with him.

10. Apelles hath been tried, proved, and justly accounted a judicious, faithful, and zealous, disciple and servant of, and sufferer for, Christ.

16. A kiss attended with the utmost chastity, sincerity, and spiritual affection, as becometh saints, who love one another with a pure heart fervently.

17. In order to cultivate and maintain true Christian love among yourselves, carefully watch against, and avoid, all those teachers, or others, who attempt to form parties among you, and to introduce pernicious opinions and practices, contrary to the pure truths of the gospel which ye have been taught by the inspired servants of Christ;

18. For whoever are of such a spirit and temper, and carry on such designs, are not the true servants of our Lord Jesus, the only Prophet, Priest, and King, of his church; nor do they sincerely aim at promoting his interests and glory in the world, but seek to avoid persecution, gain the favour of worldly men, and gratify their own sensual appetites:—to compass which vile ends, they, by high pretensions of kindness for you, or zeal for God's truths and honours, attempt to impose on the good temper and credulity of weak and incautious, though well-meaning, persons, to turn them aside from the ways of the Lord.

19. I am indeed glad that your ready reception of the gospel, and obedience of faith, are become so exemplary and famous in the churches; and that hitherto no seducers have been able to draw you away from the simplicity which is in Christ: but considering your own weakness and depravity of nature, and the subtlety of Satan and his instruments, it is absolutely necessary for you to be very prudent and watchful, able to make a difference between good and evil, truth and error; and so inoffensive, plain-hearted, and sincere, that ye may neither deceive nor injure others, nor be deceived nor injured by them;—quite unacquainted with all envious, spiteful, and mischievous arts.

20, 24. And, for your comfort and encouragement, remember that your gracious and reconciled God, who is the author of all true peace, and delights in your being at peace among yourselves, will stand by you, and in a little time subdue Satan and his emissaries, and defeat their malicious power and subtlety, by his providence and grace, and render you at last fully victorious and eternally triumphant over them.—And, for this end, my fervent, my repeated, prayer to God for you is, that the free favour of your and my Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, in all its special fruits and effects, and all communications of grace from him, may be continually and abundantly with you, to guide and strengthen, sanctify and comfort, defend and save, you, and carry you through all temptations and dangers, till ye arrive, with triumph, at his heavenly kingdom.

25 —27. Now to that great, gracious, and almighty, God, who is able to defeat all the attempts of your spiritual enemies, and to preserve you from falling into sins or error, and to settle, strengthen, and confirm, you in faith, comfort, and holiness, according to, and by means of, the glad but incomprehensible tidings of salvation to sinful men, which Jesus Christ himself preached while on earth, and which I, having them revealed to me by the inspiration of his Spirit, labour to publish in the world, even those glorious doctrines, which were long entirely hid from the Gentiles, and but obscurely hinted to the Jews, in types, shadows, and dark prophecies;—but are now, under the gospel dispensation, evidently and openly manifested to both Jews and Gentiles, in the ministrations of his servants, and the accomplishment and explication of the Old Testament figures and predictions, according to his special and unchangeable purpose, appointment, and command,—in order that, through the influences of his Spirit attending the same, they might be persuaded, and enabled, to believe in Christ, and, by virtue derived from him, perform all holy obedience to him,—even to that God who alone is originally, essentially, infallibly, wise in himself and in all his dispensations, particularly in his contrivance and execution of the gospel scheme of salvation, and who is the only author and fountain of all the wisdom that is to be found in any creature whatsoever—be all adoration, thanksgiving, honour, and blessing, through Jesus Christ, as the only Mediator, by whom our praises and prayers are to be offered, and are acceptable to him, for evermore.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XVI.—The Christian religion delightfully promotes friendship and good manners. It teaches us to pay civil respect, in a decent manner, to persons of all ranks, and gratefully to return favours shown to us in the best way we can. It gives an holy turn to a genteel behaviour, and makes men sincere in wishing the temporal, and especially the eternal, prosperity of their friends.—With deep concern should all Christians labour to excel in piety, fix themselves in church fellowship, and, in their respective stations, study to be serviceable to the whole mystical body of Christ. Amiable are those families which resemble a church of Christ in their worship, order, and conversation. And it is a great honour to be first, or eminent in the faith and profession of the gospel. With exact care ought all to judge for themselves in matters of religion, according to the doctrine which they have received from Christ and his apostles; and to avoid such as cause divisions and offences by broaching errors, or forming parties in the church. Whatever be the plausible pretences, fair shews, or flattering speeches of such, they always secretly carry on some selfish and carnal design. There is great need therefore in this evil world to have such knowledge of the truth that we may not be imposed on; and such honesty as to act up to our knowledge, imposing upon none. For Satan earnestly promotes pernicious principles and practices, to the disturbance and corruption of the church. But it is very encouraging to true believers that their God will quickly and entirely subdue him, and all his emissaries and works. And, if faith and patience hold out a little, we shall reign triumphant for evermore.—Ancient and divine are the gospel tidings of our salvation. Delightfully they harmonize with the types and predictions of the Old Testament. And their offers and blessings graciously extend to all nations of mankind, and by the Holy Ghost are made effectual to some of all ranks and degrees. With what faith and love ought they then to be received, submitted to, obeyed, and practised. And infinite is the glory that redounds to God from this his wonderful work of our salvation.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE
TO THE CORINTHIANS.

Corinth was a famous city of Achaia, situated on that neck of land which separates the Egean and Ionian seas, at the north end of the peninsula, anciently called the Peloponesus, now the Morea. It was remarkable for trade, pretences to learning, and especially for luxury and uncleanness. Quickly after Paul had planted a church here, some Judaizing teachers laboured greatly to depreciate him, and foment divisions among them. These disorders introduced a contempt of the plain preaching of the gospel; and a course of luxury, uncleanness, covetousness, litigious law suits, abuses of Christian liberty, feasting with idolaters on their sacrifices, profane disorders in receiving the Lord's supper, and in other public acts of religious worship; a priding themselves in their riches, learning, and spiritual gifts, uncharitableness, and even a denial of the resurrection of the dead.—To correct these irregularities, Paul demonstrates his own apostolic authority, amiable character, and manner of preaching; i.—v.: directs the excommunication of the incestuous person; v.: how to manage civil disputes:—and warns against uncleanness, and irregularities in marriage; vi. vii.: against offensive compliances with idolaters at feasts, or neglect to support their faithful ministers; viii.—x.: and against indecent dress or behaviour in public worship, particularly the Lord's supper; xi.: directs to unity, charity, and order, in their stations, and the exercise of their spiritual gifts; xii.—xiv.: demonstrates the truth of the general resurrection of the dead; xv.: and directs how to make charitable contributions and behave as Christians; xvi.

CHAP. I.

(1) In a preface, Paul asserts his apostolic authority salutes the Corinthian believers, and congratulates them on their conversion to Christ and receipt of his spiritual gifts; 1—9. (2) He exhorts them to brotherly love and Christian unity; and reproves them for their divisions, and ranking themselves under different ministers as their chiefs; 10—16. (3) Asserts and vindicates the doctrine of a crucified Saviour, and his own plain way of preaching it, as a fundamental article of the Christian faith, and admirably calculated to advance the glory of God and humble men before him; 17—31.

EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. I. Ver. 1—3. I Paul, who have not thrust myself into this apostolic office which I claim, but was graciously, sovereignly, and immediately, called to and qualified for it by Jesus Christ,—and Sosthenes, my dear and faithful assistant in the ministry, though not an apostle,—do, in the most earnest and affectionate manner, wish to all you at Corinth, who are regularly united in church fellowship, set apart for and spiritually joined to Christ, as your Head of influence and government, and, by the effectual call of his Spirit, rendered like him in holiness,—and to all those who any where profess and adore him, our common Lord, as the object of their faith, worship, and obedience,—all the riches and the blessed effects of redeeming favour, love, and mercy, and an abundant peace with God, with your own consciences, and with one another, from God the Father, as the original spring and deviser of every blessing, and through Jesus Christ, as the purchaser, store-house, and bestower, of them; 4—6. I heartily congratulate you on your happiness and honour upon every remembrance of you, and bless my infinitely gracious God for the manifold favours, gifts, and graces, which, on Christ's account, he has bestowed upon you, enriching you not only with such spiritual habits and tempers as are necessary to salvation, but with remarkable knowledge of the mysteries of the gospel, and a ready ability to communicate them to others;—the Spirit of God thereby confirming to your hearts and consciences the truth of the gospel of Christ, which we preached and ye believed. 7—9. So that ye are not remarkably deficient, or inferior to other Christians, in any spiritual gifts which could render you useful in Christ's church, in which ye continue praying, preparing, and patiently and hopefully waiting, for his second coming,—who, by a constant supply of necessary gifts and graces, will more establish you in the faith, hope, and holiness, of the gospel; that, when others are condemned, ye may appear perfectly righteous, holy, and irreproachable, at his tribunal; for God, who has effectually called you into a state of union and fellowship with his dear Son, being unchangeably faithful to his character, covenant, and promises, will infallibly render you partakers of eternal glory. 10—12. If then God hath done, and will do, so much for you, and if Jesus will, in a little time, judge you at his awful bar, let me beseech you, by the authority of our Lord Jesus Christ, by his excellencies, relations, and works of love, and by your profession of him, to lay aside your contentions and alienation of affection from one another, and to study the most cordial harmony in sentiment, affection, and holy practices;—for, to my great grief, I have been informed that ye, whom I truly esteem, and of whom I hoped better things, have, by uncharitable divisions, been thrown into different parties, under different leaders,—some of you ranking yourselves under me, as the apostle of the Gentiles, or instrument of your conversion; others under Apollos, as the most eloquent and fervent preacher;

Anno Domini

there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment.

11 For it hath been declared unto me of you, my brethren, by them who are of the house of Chloe, that there are contentions among you.

12 Now this I say, that every one of you saith, I am of Paul, and I of Apollos, and I of Cephas, and I of Christ.

13 Is Christ divided? was Paul crucified for you? or were ye baptized in the name of Paul?

14 I thank God that I baptized none of you but Crispus and Gaius:

15 Lest any should say that I had baptized in mine own name.

16 And I baptized also the household of Stephanas: besides, I know not whether I baptized any other.

17 For Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the gospel: not with wisdom of words, lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect.

18 For the preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness; but unto us who are saved it is the power of God.

19 For it is written, I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and will bring to nothing the understanding of the prudent.

20 Where is the wise? where is the scribe? where is the disputer of this world? hath not God made foolish the wisdom of this world?

21 For, after that in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe.

22 For the Jews require a sign, and the Greeks seek after wisdom:

23 But we preach Christ crucified; unto the Jews a stumbling block, and unto the Greeks foolishness;

24 But unto them who are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God.

25 Because the foolishness of God is wiser than men; and the weakness of God is stronger than men.

26 For ye see your calling, brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called:

27 But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty;

28 And base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to nought things that are.

29 That no flesh should glory in his presence.

30 But of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption:

31 That, according as it is written, He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord.

CHAP. II.

- (1) Reminds the Corinthians of the plain manner in which Paul had preached a crucified Christ to them; 1—5. (2) Represents the deep and excellent wisdom contained in this doctrine; 6—9. (3) Shews that it cannot be duly known and received but by the light and influence of the Holy Ghost; 10—16.

others under Peter, as the apostle of the circumcision; while others pretend to be immediately directed by Christ alone, needing no other instructor. 13—16. To convince you of the absurdity of your conduct, let me ask even you who pretend to be solely for Christ, overlooking his ministers and ordinances, is his person to be divided from his offices? or his offices from the execution thereof by the ministry of his servants, who labour in the church by his authority, and according to his will?—Why set up me, or any other minister, for your spiritual head? Did I, or my brethren, make atonement for your sins? Or were ye baptized by the authority, or into the faith, worship, and obedience, of us?—I thank God that, though I was the instrument of conversion to many of you, I baptized but very few of you, lest any should have thence taken occasion to insinuate that I had acted by my own authority, and bound the persons whom I baptized to acknowledge me as their spiritual master. 17. For indeed Christ sent me not chiefly to baptize, but to preach the glad tidings of salvation through his blood; and that not dressed up in flowers of rhetoric or maxims of philosophy, for the promoting of my own selfish honours, but in the most plain language and style, that the native majesty, spirituality, glory, and power, of the gospel doctrine, of and concerning a crucified Saviour, might be the more clearly manifested in the humbling and conversion of sinners. 18. For the plain preaching of salvation through the imputed righteousness of Jesus Christ, received by faith, appears quite despicable, foolish, and absurd, to them who live and die in their sins; but to us, who are eternally saved from our sins and miseries, it is the marvellous mean through which the almighty influences of God's Spirit are conveyed for illuminating, sanctifying, supporting, and comforting, our hearts. 19, 20. This, according to the scripture, quite confounds the notions of the learned of this world, and exhibits a method of salvation directly contrary to whatever they could have imagined. None of them, Jews or Gentiles, could ever contrive a method of saving sinners, or of reconciling them to God; and herein he hath stamped disgrace upon all the wisdom of philosophers and others, and manifested their schemes for appeasing an offended God, and reconciling guilty sinners to him, as altogether vain, foolish, and ineffectual. 21. For after he, in the manifestation of his own infinite wisdom, had plainly shown that neither the works of creation, nor of common providence, nor any powers of human reasoning, could lead to a saving and satisfying knowledge of himself, or the way of salvation, it pleased him, by the much despised plain preaching of a crucified Christ, and the way of salvation through his blood, to save them who by faith receive and rest upon him for their eternal redemption, as therein offered to them. 22, 23. Notwithstanding all the proofs that Christ has given of his Godhead and saving offices, the obstinate Jews still persist in demanding a sign from heaven to prove them, and the learned Greeks insist upon philosophical demonstrations of the method of salvation. But, regardless of these prejudices, we faithful ministers proclaim a full, eternal, free, and offered, salvation to sinful men through the obedience and death of Christ, which the Jews condemn, to the infinite hazard and ruin of their souls, and the learned Greeks account highly foolish and absurd. 24. But, let others think as they will of Jesus Christ, or of the doctrine of salvation through his blood, we, who are effectually called, discern and experience therein the great power and manifold wisdom of God, clearly exhibited in his whole person, offices, and saving effects. 25. For what ignorant, carnal, and prejudiced, men, reckon absurd folly, infinitely transcends in wisdom all the boasted schemes of the most sagacious, prudent, and learned, philosophers: and what they account weak and unavailing is found, by experience, to have an incomparable energy in destroying the works of the devil, renewing the heart, and reforming the lives, of men. 26—29. And, to manifest the sovereignty of his grace, and, as it were, to mark the insignificance of men's natural or acquired advantages, ye cannot but observe that very few of the learned, the eminently sagacious, great, or powerful are converted to Christ: but he has generally fixed his love upon, and effectually calls, such as are comparatively foolish, weak, mean, or contemptible;—that none, Jews or Gentiles, might have any pretence to glory before him of their natural parts, accomplishments, or external privileges, as if these could recommend them to his favour, or qualify them to receive the gospel. 30, 31. Yea, on the contrary, by a mere act of his own gracious and sovereign will, he has chosen you in, and called and united you to, Christ Jesus, who, by his divine appointment, is constituted and made over to us in the gospel offer, and effectually granted to us in the day of power, as an infinitely well furnished and effectual teacher, to render us wise unto salvation; a law-fulfilling surety, through whose finished obedience and suffering we may be completely justified; and not only as a purchaser, but as an effectual giver, of all renewing, quickening, and sanctifying, grace, by his Spirit dwelling in us; and a full deliverer from sin and misery, and bestower of that eternal happiness which he hath obtained for us;—that, as the scripture directs, he who has any honours and blessings bestowed upon him may centre all his joy and boasting entirely in the Lord Jesus, and in the free grace of God through him.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—With great prudence, but with plainness and courage, ought ministers, on some occasions, to assert their mission and the dignity of their office. And with firm assurance should we receive the apostolic writings and doctrines, as indeed of divine authority. Divine power and grace are necessary to render men saints, while fervent prayer and religious worship evidence them such. And it is absurd to hold profane, prayerless persons for church members. With holy reverence ought we to address Jesus Christ and his Father for the gifts and mercies which we need. And with pleasure may we reflect on what he has bestowed on others as an earnest of their perfect holiness and happiness. Yea it is a great mercy that God's faithfulness secures the eternal salvation of all those whom he hath effectually called by his grace. It is shameful and absurd for Christians to be divided about ministers, as if all Christ's faithful servants were not embarked in one common cause. And it is a comfort for a minister to have had no hand in such carnal renderings of Christ's church; and an honour to have avoided honouring himself at Christ's expense. Very corrupt and darkened by sin must be the hearts of unregenerate men, to whom the mystery and offers of a crucified, a divine, Redeemer appear contemptible and absurd. And the enlightening and renewing power of the Holy Ghost is absolutely necessary to make us apprehend it as every way worthy of God, and calculated to render us wise, holy, and happy. Amazing is the sovereignty of God's redeeming grace in respect of its objects and manner of influence. And exactly answerable is Jesus Christ to all our need, who are ignorant and foolish, guilty and naked, polluted and plagued, enslaved and self-ruined, sinners. Yea the whole work of our redemption delightfully promotes the highest glory of God. In this let my soul rejoice, and daily think what Jesus is, and what JEHOVAH is in him to my heart.

AND I, brethren, when I came to you, ^acame not with excellency of speech or of wisdom, declaring unto you the ^btestimony of God.

CHAP. II. Ver. 1. The glorification of the divine power, wisdom, sovereign mercy, and other divine perfections, and the humiliation of men, being the great end of the gospel, I laboured to preach it to you in the plainest manner, without any affected parade of eloquence or philosophical reasoning. 2. And, counting all but loss and dung for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord, I determined to employ all the talents which God has given me chiefly to make him known in his person, offices, and work ; particularly in his obedience and suffering, in which all the lines of the gospel meet. 3. And in preaching on this subject I conducted myself with the utmost meekness and deepest concern, lest, through your prejudices or the agency of Satan, ye should, to your eternal perdition, reject and despise my message. 4. And, encouraged and directed by Jesus Christ, I laboured to publish and inculcate the doctrines of redemption through his blood, not with any tickling arts of human invention, or soothing language, but with the convincing light and persuasive evidence of the Holy Spirit himself on your minds and consciences, and attended with his miraculous gifts and operations : 5. That the faith, by which ye assented to the gospel and embraced Jesus Christ in it, might not so much as seem to be wrought in you by the authority, arts, or arguments of men, but might be solely produced by the efficacious power of God, and built on his authority and faithfulness manifested in his word. 6. Nevertheless, we preach the infinitely wise plan of the redemption of sinners, and explain the transcendent mysteries thereof, especially to such as have attained some considerable measures and degrees of knowledge and grace ; not indeed the wisdom of philosophical or political schemes of learned men or princes ; 7. But we publish and inculcate that mysterious doctrine which is the wonderful product of the infinite wisdom of God, which has been long hid from the Gentile world, and but obscurely revealed to the Jews, and can never be fully comprehended by creatures ; and which God from all eternity determined at this time to reveal with transcendent light and evidence for the honour of the gospel dispensation, its ministers and subjects, and the eternal happiness of every believer. 8. Which important scheme of salvation the rulers and great men concerned in the crucifixion of Jesus Christ, and others so disposed, had no just notion of, their minds being blinded, and their hearts hardened against all the means of conviction afforded them, otherwise they had never concurred in the shameful, ignominious, deliberate, and public murder of the divine Messiah, who has all infinite glory in himself as the Son of God, and is the author, purchaser, and bestower of all the glory of the gospel dispensation and heavenly state ; 9. And who, as Isaiah foretold, has brought in that incomparably and inconceivably glorious, delightful, and advantageous gospel state, and all the transcendent blessings thereof, which God of his infinite wisdom and grace had provided, adjusted, and secured ; and which he bestows upon them who, in the faith of his special love to their souls, do sincerely esteem, desire, and delight in him. 10. Yea, God hath now manifested them to us by the immediate revelations and gracious internal illuminations of his Spirit, who has a perfect and comprehensive view of the divine nature and counsels. 11. For, as none but a man's own soul can know his secret thoughts and designs, so none but the Holy Ghost, who has the same essence and will with the Father and Son, can penetrate into or comprehend the secret counsels of God. 12. And it is this all-knowing Spirit of God, not the boasted wisdom and learning of the world, which we have received, in order that we may savingly understand the great and glorious blessings of the in him ? ^aeven so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God.

¹² Now we have received, ^bnot the spirit of the world, but the Spirit which is of God ; ^cthat we might know the things that are freely given to us of God.

¹⁴ But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God ; for they are foolishness unto him : neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned.

¹⁵ But he that is spiritual ^djudgeth all things, yet he himself is ^ejudged of no man.

¹⁶ For who hath known the mind of the Lord, that he ^fmay instruct him ? ^gBut we have the mind of Christ.

CHAP. III.

(1) Reproves the Corinthians for their carnality and contentions about ministers ; 1-4. (2) Shews the absurdity of such contentions, as ministers can do nothing effectually of themselves, and all unanimously preach up Christ as the great foundation of holiness and happiness, on which it is dangerous to build any human inventions ; 5-15. (3) Admonishes them to holiness in their persons and church ; 16, 17 : to maintain an humble opinion of themselves ; 18-20 : and not to glory in men, as through Christ ministers, and all things else, belong to true believers ; 21-23.

AND I, brethren, could not speak unto you as unto ^aspiritual, but as unto ^bcarnal, even as unto babes in Christ.

² ^cI have fed you with milk, and not with meat : for hitherto ye were not able ^dto bear it, neither yet now are ye able.

⁴ ^hFor while one saith, I am of Paul ; gospel, freely prepared for, offered to, and bestowed upon us ; 13. Which glorious mysteries and benefits we, being taught of God ourselves, represent to others, not in the foppish gildings of human language, but in a plain, grave, and majestic style, suited to their nature, dignity, and beauty, even in the words and figures in which the Holy Ghost has represented them, carefully comparing them together. 14. But no regenerate men, be as learned and sagacious as they will, can truly approve or embrace these spiritual doctrines and blessings ; nor can they, for want of an understanding illuminated and rectified by the Spirit of God, discern their divine truth, spirituality, excellency, and glory, in a truly spiritual and affecting manner, suitable to their transcendent worth and importance. 15. But he who is really renewed in the spirit of his mind can search into, discern, and form a right judgment about every thing necessary to be known in order to salvation, and perceive the glory and feel the transforming power of divine truths : though his views thereof, and satisfaction therein, cannot be certainly judged of by any other man ; far less by such as are destitute of the Spirit of God and the true experience of these things. 16. For what unregenerate man ever penetrated into the secret counsels or revealed truths of God, so as to be able further to instruct a spiritual man in what he before knew, or to prove what is contrary to his views ? Nay, we apostles and other Christians are, by the Holy Ghost, instructed in the doctrine of Christ in every thing respecting the glory of God and the salvation of men.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—Great is the native beauty of the gospel, as God's own testimony concerning Jesus Christ crucified for men. And it is absurd and hurtful to souls to veil and stain its illustrious simplicity, wisdom, and grace, by human oratory. The faith of God's elect must be the effect of divine operation, not of human persuasion. It is impossible for carnal men to understand the gospel, or to make it comport with their worldly schemes. And not merely an external revelation, but the inward illumination of the Holy Ghost, who is perfectly acquainted with the whole mind of God, can give us just and impressive conceptions of spiritual things. Thrice happy are they who have him to lead them into all necessary truth, and to make them know what inexpressibly great and glorious things God has prepared for and freely given to them ! Judicious and experienced Christians discern admirable wisdom, power, and grace in the gospel method of their salvation. And while they have the greatest satisfaction, experience, and hope in themselves relating to it, no natural man is able to correct or refute them.

CHAP. III. Ver. 1. And indeed, brethren, when I was among you I perceived in you such an earthly-minded, opinionative, and disputatious temper, as discovered you to be really weak in spiritual knowledge and experience ; 2. I therefore made it my chief care to instruct you in the plain principles of the gospel concerning Christ and his salvation, which were suited to your weak capacities, not entering into the more sublime and abstruse points, which neither then, nor even now, ye can improve to your real edification. 3. Your present contentions and envying of one another is a plain evidence that many of you do not, in a spiritual manner, or upon proper authority, take up the doctrines of the gospel, but are under the influence of your natural corruptions, and act in the manner of unregenerate men. 4. Nothing can more plainly manifest your great carnality of temper and another, I am of Apollos; are ye not carnal?

5^f Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but ministers by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man?

6^e I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase.

7ⁱ So then neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth; but God that giveth the increase.

8^k Now he that planteth and he that watereth are one: and every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labour.

9 For we are labourers together with God: ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building.

10^p According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise master builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon.

11 For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.

12 Now, if any man build upon this foundation gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble;

13^t Every man's work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is.

14^u If any man's work abide, which he hath built thereupon, he shall receive a reward.

15^v If any man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss; but he himself shall be saved, yet so as by fire.

16^v Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?

17^z If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy: for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are.

18^b Let no man deceive himself. If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise.

19^c For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God: for it is written, He taketh the wise in their own craftiness.

20 And again, The Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wise, that they are vain.

21 Therefore let no man glory in men: for all things are your's;

22 Whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are your's;

23 And ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's.

CHAP. IV.

Let a man so account of us as of the ministers of Christ and stewards of the mysteries of God.

than any of the apartments of the Jewish.

18. Let therefore every man, preacher or hearer, take heed, lest, through a conceit of his superior understanding, he bring loss and ruin upon himself; and, if any have apparently a large stock of earthly wisdom, let him renounce it all, as insufficient to lead him to the attainment of gospel truth; and in becoming truly wise towards God, and to the salvation of his soul through faith in Christ, let him patiently submit to be esteemed as a fool by the carnal pretenders to reason: 19, 20. For, as the scripture repeatedly testifies, all the policy, prudence, wit, and learning, which give men a reputation for wisdom in this world, are but folly in God's account, and when compared with his glorious scheme of salvation through a crucified Redeemer: and in the end it will appear to have ensnared them and discovered the vanity of their minds.

21, 22. Since human knowledge then is so insignificant, and no man can direct you into the way of salvation but as he himself is taught of God, let none of you, to your own spiritual hurt, set up one gospel minister as his head, in opposition to another; for all things, particularly those relating to the dispensation of the gospel, are in the new covenant secured for, and given to you who believe, and are divinely managed for your spiritual advantage: all faithful ministers, with all their gifts, graces, and ministrations, are appointed for building you up in faith, holiness, and comfort, to eternal salvation: all the wealth, honours, pleasures and transactions of this world, are in Christ's hands for you, to be given you in property or use, as shall tend to your real good: life, in all its diversified conditions, and death in all its harbingers and forms, are yours; and what secures all these to you, completes your happiness, as well as calls for your attachment to him, is, that ye are given by the Father to Christ, that ye may be saved through his blood, and filled with all the blessings of his grace and glory; and Christ is God's dear Son and faithful servant, set up by him to be the infallible mean of your eternal salvation, to the praise of the glory of his grace.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—With great faithfulness and prudence ought ministers to accommodate themselves to the capacities and circumstances of their hearers. And often great pretenders to wisdom and knowledge have no true grace in their heart. When all Christ's faithful ministers are, under him, united in the same spirit and design, how absurd is it to kindle contentions in the church by setting up one above another. Their honour is great in being workers together with God in the salvation of men. And the effectual success of their labours flows wholly from his power and grace. Yet none must expect God to bless their administrations, but in preaching Christ as the sole foundation of the hopes and happiness of sinful men, laid by his Father. Terrible is their ruin who refuse to build on him; and great their loss who attempt to mingle their own fancies with the doctrines of Christ. Exact shall be our future account; and our eternal honours be proportioned to our right improvement of Christ and his truths on earth. And very necessary is holiness in every church and member thereof. Great is the danger of self-conceit. And it is very sinful and ruinous to trust our eternal happiness to the care and direction of our carnal wisdom, which is so insignificant before God. But extensive is their happiness and high their honour, who, as united to Christ, the eternal Son of God and only Saviour, and to God in him, have all things present and future secured as their property, and divinely managed to their best advantage.

2 Moreover, it is required in stewards that a man be found faithful.
3 But with me it is a very small thing that I should be judged of you, or of man's judgment: yea, I judge not mine own self.
4 For I know nothing by myself; yet am I not hereby justified: but he that judgeth me is the Lord.
5 Therefore judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and will make manifest the counsels of the heart: and then shall every man have praise of God.
6 And these things, brethren, I have in a figure transferred to myself and to Apollos for your sakes; that ye might learn in us not to think of men above that which is written, that no one of you be puffed up for one against another.
7 For who maketh thee to differ from another? and what hast thou that thou didst not receive? now, if thou didst receive it, why dost thou glory, as if thou hadst not received it?
8 Now ye are full, now ye are rich; ye have reigned as kings without us; and I would to God ye did reign, that we also might reign with you.
9 For I think that God hath set forth us the apostles last, as it were, appointed to death: for we are made a spectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men.
10 We are fools for Christ's sake, but ye are wise in Christ; we are weak, ye are strong; ye are honourable, but we are despised.

honour of another, but account of us all as persons called and qualified by Christ for dispensing to Jews and Gentiles the great and unsearchable doctrines and ordinances of the grace of God. 2. And as stewards of Christ we must take heed that we by no means neglect, pervert, betray, or deal partially in our trust; but study to be faithful to God, to our own conscience, to the truth of Christ, and to the souls to whom we minister, giving them their proper food in due season. 3. And if any pretend that I am unfaithful, or take offence at my fidelity, I little regard the censures of men, as I am not to stand or fall in the last judgment according to their fallible, partial, and prejudiced sentiments concerning me; nor dare I pretend that my own judgment of my sincerity, faithfulness, and diligence, is absolutely right. 4. For though I am not sensible of any allowed unfaithfulness, but have the testimony of my conscience, that in simplicity and godly sincerity I have had my conversation in this world; yet such is the inadvertency and treachery of my heart, that I dare not look on this as a justification of my conduct before God, but expect the acceptance of my person and services only through Jesus Christ and his righteousness. 5. Beware therefore of judging our hearts, or of passing uncharitable censures upon us; but wait till Christ at his second coming manifest all the secret transactions, thoughts, and desires of men; and then shall every man who has acted uprightly be publicly acknowledged and rewarded by God according to his real character. 6. I have mentioned myself and Apollos in this point, who are distinguished in office and success among you, that you may learn to adjust your sentiments about men, and never pride yourselves in or boast of one preacher in opposition to another. 7. And to humble you, and prevent your idolizing of ministers, think what gifts or graces you or any of them have which ye did not receive freely from God. Why then do ye boast of any of them, as if they were originally your own? 8. For indeed ye seem to pride yourselves on your gifts, graces, and other acquirements, as if, independent of us who first preached the gospel to you, ye had arrived at the highest prosperity; and I heartily wish that ye did remarkably flourish in every thing excellent, great, and glorious, that we, as God's instruments in your conversion and edification, might rejoice in your mercy, and share your happiness and Christian esteem. 9, 10. For I really think God hath set forth us apostles, his last and extraordinary messengers in the church, to be a public show before angels and men, devoted to deadly combats, to contempt, trouble, and violence: we are treated as weak, foolish, and despicable, and are loaded with labours, cares, and sufferings, for Christ, while ye appear, to yourselves and others, wise, powerful, honoured, easy, and opulent. 11-13. While ye live in your rich city and commodious dwellings amidst ease and affluence, we faithful preachers, ever since the Lord called us to his work, have often been destitute of the common necessities of life, and cruelly abused and driven from place to place like vagabonds. Meanwhile, to avoid prejudicing men against us as mercenary, we have earned our daily subsistence by the labour of our own hands; we have earnestly prayed down blessings on them who reproached and cursed us; we have patiently borne all the injuries and abuses we met with; we have humbly exhorted and supplicated them who maliciously slandered us: and notwithstanding all this inoffensive, meek, and winning behaviour, we continue to be treated as the worst miscreants, who have been the cause of every public calamity, and are fit for nothing but to be killed as sacrifices for the purgation of cities. 14. I have not drawn out this detail of our injurious treatment, and of our meek, patient, and benevolent behaviour under it, in order to expose you to shame among your fellow Christians, but in order affectionately to warn you against pride, or an unbecoming behaviour to faithful

11 Even unto this present hour we both hunger, and thirst, and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no certain dwelling place;
12 And labour, working with our own hands: being reviled, we bless; being persecuted, we suffer it:
13 Being defamed, we entreat: we are made as the filth of the world, and are the offscouring of all things unto this day.
14 I write not these things to shame you, but as my beloved sons I warn you.
15 For, though ye have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet have ye not many fathers: for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the gospel.
16 Wherefore, I beseech you, be ye followers of me.
17 For this cause have I sent unto you Timotheus, who is my beloved son and faithful in the Lord, who shall bring you into remembrance of my ways which be in Christ, as I teach every where in every church.
18 Now some are puffed up, as though I would not come to you.
19 But I will come to you shortly, if the Lord will, and will know, not the speech of them who are puffed up, but the power.
20 For the kingdom of God is not in word, but in power.
21 What will ye? shall I come unto you with a rod, or in love and in the Spirit of meekness?

ministers. 15, 16. For, though many preachers have laboured to promote your instruction and edification, I alone have been remarkably honoured as the instrument of your spiritual regeneration and adoption. I therefore beseech you, in the most endearing and condescending manner, that, instead of turning aside after those who desire to corrupt the simplicity of your faith and manners, ye would follow the directions which I, your spiritual father, give you from Christ, and imitate me in faith, holiness, humility, and love. 17. And for this cause I have sent to you Timothy my dear partner in preaching the gospel, who being converted to Christ by my ministry, and my ordinary attendant, can acquaint you with my uniformity in doctrines and in holy practices, answerable to what I every where teach. 18. Some of my opponents boast that I dare not make any personal appearance among you, where I have so many opposers, but must rest content with sending my friend. 19. But, if God give me strength and opportunity, I sincerely intend to visit you, and to try those proud pretenders to learning and eloquence as to what authority they have received from Christ to preach his gospel, what of God's gifts and graces appear in their ministrations, and what efficacy their doctrine hath upon their own and others hearts and lives. 20. For the excellency of the gospel dispensation does not consist in human learning or outward profession, but in an experience of what is wrought by the Spirit of God. Nor is the gospel propagated, or the work of grace begun and carried on in men's souls, but by the miraculous operations and divine energy of the Holy Spirit, which attend the plain preaching of a crucified Christ. 21. Think then whether ye would have me come in order to inflict spiritual censures, or even corporal punishments, upon obstinate transgressors; or, as I earnestly wish, in tender affection, meekness, and gentleness, to encourage, commend, and comfort you.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—Important is that trust of divine truths and human souls which Christ has committed to his ministers. And with great care and faithfulness ought they to declare and explain his mysteries and dispense his ordinances. It is groundless to be either puffed up or cast down by men's judgment of us. The great point is to approve ourselves to God, by whose judgment we must abide, and who will at last clear us from all false accusations. And never must those who are most conscious of their integrity depend on that, but on Jesus' fulfilment of the law, as the ground of their acceptance to eternal life. With great care ought we to avoid rash censuring of others, in the view of that last judgment, in which the secrets of men's hearts and lives shall be discovered. And there is need of deep humility, when our defects are so great and many, and all our gifts and graces are the free gifts of God. Alas, that many should be puffed up with spiritual gifts, or even with riches or honour in this life; and the faithful servants of Christ be chiefly exposed to poverty, disgrace, and violent persecution. But it is delightful when Christians and ministers shine in meekness, patience, and returning of good for evil. Great wisdom is necessary in faithful reproofs, that they may neither provoke nor expose. And Christians need to be frequently reminded of admonitions formerly given them. With great care should they copy after the example of their godly ministers. And if faithful ministers bear strong affection to such as have been converted to Christ by their ministry, those converts ought fervently to love, regard, and reverence them as their spiritual fathers, and study that they may be always, not grieved correctors, but joyful comforters of them. It is not fine words or fair speeches, but the power of the Holy Ghost changing the heart and purifying the practice, that will prove men real ministers or Christians.

IT is reported commonly that there is fornication among you, and "such fornication as is not so much as named among the Gentiles, that one should have his father's wife.

2 And ye are puffed up, and have not rather mourned that he that hath done this deed might be taken away from among you.

3 For I verily, as absent in body but present in spirit, have *judged already, as though I were present, concerning him that hath so done this deed;

4 In the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, when ye are gathered together, and my spirit, with the power of our Lord Jesus Christ,

5 To deliver such an one unto Satan for the destruction of the flesh, that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus.

6 Your glorying is not good. Know ye not that ^aa little leaven leaveneth the whole lump?

7 Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened. For even Christ our pass-over [†]is sacrificed for us:

8 Therefore let us keep [‡]the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

9 I wrote unto you in an epistle [†]not to company with fornicators:

10 Yet not altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters; for then must ye needs go out of the world.

11 But now I have written unto you

CHAP. V. Ver. 1, 2. I must now mention some particular offences among you; and first, it is publicly reported, to the great scandal of your holy religion, that one of your members lives in the most shocking incest with his own step-mother:—a form of whoredom detested by, and scarcely known among, civilized heathens:—and, nevertheless, many of you, puffed up with a conceit of your gifts and attainments, have overlooked, if not boasted of him, instead of being deeply concerned for the dishonour hereby done to Christ, the disgrace brought upon his church, and the hurt done to the soul of the offender, and of others;—and of being careful to have such an infamous sinner removed from your holy communion.

3. Therefore, though I am not personally present to direct or influence your procedure, yet being earnestly desirous of your true honour and welfare, under the special direction of the Holy Ghost, I have considered and determined how this base scandal ought to be censured: 4, 5. That ye, whom Jesus Christ hath made spiritual rulers in his church, should, as a court constituted in his name, and after solemn prayer for his direction and assistance, with my hearty approbation, in his name and authority, as the great institutor and ratifier of the sentence, fully excommunicate this notorious offender from all fellowship with the visible church, and deliver him back into the visible kingdom of the devil, as one who has no manifest claim to the promises of the new covenant; in order that, by the blessing of God on this awful sentence, his prevailing corruptions may be mortified and subdued, and he, through fear, grief, and shame, brought to such repentance and reformation as may issue in his solemn acquittal and salvation in the last judgment.

6. Your glorying in such a person, be his gifts and attainments what they will, or in your own spiritual gifts, or the prosperity of your church, is extremely sinful and dangerous. Know ye not that a single instance of scandal or manifest error connived at tends to corrupt the minds and practices of others, and to infect and defile the whole church.

7. In imitation of the Jews, who purge their houses from leaven at their passover, labour not only to purge out corrupt affections from your own hearts, but to cleanse the church from scandalous persons and sins, in honour of Jesus Christ, who offered himself as an atoning sacrifice to God, in order that his people might be cleansed from all iniquity, and rendered zealous of good works.

8. Let us therefore lead our whole life on earth, and particularly celebrate the New Testament festival of his supper, without sinful fellowship with notorious offenders, or indulgence of corrupt affections, envy, malice, or the like; but with integrity and godly simplicity, and a real love to the brethren, according to the truth of the gospel.

9. Being absent, I have in this epistolary manner warned you to abstain from all familiar intercourse with persons addicted to whoredom, as thereby ye would harden them in their sins, and they would tempt you to follow their detestable example.

10. Yet I mean not that you should have no dealings with heathens who live in whoredom, manifest covetousness, extortion, or idolatry; for then it would be necessary for you to leave this world, which is every where filled with such.

11. But I insist that, if any of your professed Christian brethren be chargeable with uncleanness, or be inordinate lovers of money, or join in idolatrous worship, or be given to wrathful, abusive, and opprobrious language, or be lovers of much drinking, or intoxicated with liquor, or given to take the advantage of others by excessive rents or prices, ye carefully avoid all voluntary familiarity with them at common meals, and especially partaking with them at the Lord's table.

12. For I, as a minister of Christ, have no power to pro-

"not to keep company, if any man that is called a brother be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with such an one no not to eat.

12 For what have I to do to judge [°]them also that are without? do not ye judge [°]them that are within?

13 But them that are without [°]God judgeth. Therefore [°]put away from among yourselves that wicked person.

CHAP. VI.

(1) Reproves the Corinthians for needlessly going to law one with another, especially before heathen courts; 1—8. (2) As a warning against them, represents the damning nature of those gross sins to which they had been formerly addicted, but from which they were now cleansed and reformed by Christ's blood and Spirit; 9—11. (3) After cautioning them against the abuse of their Christian liberty in meats and other things indifferent; 12, 13: vehemently deports from uncleanness, as a defilement and abuse of their bodies, which were united to Christ, inhabited by his Spirit, and purchased with his blood, to be instruments of glorifying him; 13—20.

DAARE ^aany of you, having a matter against another, go to law before the unjust, and not before the saints?

2 Do ye not know that ^bthe saints shall judge the world? and, if the world shall be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the smallest matters?

3 Know ye not that we shall ^cjudge angels? how much more things that pertain to this life?

4 If then ye have judgments of things pertaining to this life, set them to judge who are least esteemed in the church.

5 I speak to your shame. Is it so that there is not a wise man among you? no, not one that shall be able to judge between his brethren?

6 But brother goeth to law with brother, and that before the unbelievers.

7 Now therefore there is utterly a hibit such converse as the civil offices, secular affairs, and relations of life, call you to; nor have ye power to judge and censure any offenders, but such as are of your own spiritual society. 13. Those flagitious sinners, who are not in church fellowship with us, must be left to the righteous judgment and vengeance of God: but be ye careful to exclude this incestuous member from your church fellowship, and from all familiar and chosen conversation.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. V.—It is very shameful to hear of such scandalous enormities among Christians as even Heathens would be ashamed of. And highly unbecoming when professors, for the sake of party attachments or great gifts, are puffed up rather than humbled and mourning, under such awful events. Flagrant and obstinate sinners must be solemnly cast out from the Christian church, that their souls may be recovered, and the honour of Christ and the purity of his church preserved. For how inconsistent is it for those who were ransomed by, and live upon, a crucified Saviour, to indulge themselves in unholiness of heart and life! And extremely infectious are scandals, if they be not seasonably censured and restrained. Very awful is an excommunication from the church, inflicted in the name of, and ratified by, Jesus Christ the supreme Judge. And happy or terrible are its effects as men are duly affected with it. Heinous and highly aggravated are the iniquities of professed Christians; they render them more detestable and infectious than the very Heathens. With conscientious care should all Christians forbear familiar converse with such scandalous professors, in order to render them sensible of their sins. And church officers ought to proceed with the greatest prudence in their censures with respect to their subjects, manner, and end. But thrice happy will it be when we shall be no more plagued with wicked persons, lusts, or practices.

CHAP. VI. Ver. 1. And since ye have power to call your own members to account, and to judge of their behaviour, how imprudent, unbrotherly, and shameful must it be for you to prosecute your small differences in civil affairs in a litigious manner, even before heathen magistrates, to the scandal of your religion, rather than submit to the arbitration of your fellow Christians! 2, 3. Do ye not know that faithful ministers, and really holy persons, shall at the last day sit with Christ on his throne, and give their assent to the sentences which he shall pass upon wicked men and angels? Are ye not then able to settle matters, nay small matters, of right and wrong between one another? 4. If therefore ye have hereafter any civil differences, submit them to the arbitration of some of your brethren in the church, who are not ministers, but sensible and disinterested persons; nay, rather submit them to the arbitration of two or three of the weakest honest Christians, than bring them before heathen judges.

5. What a shame and reproach it is to you, who boast so much of your wisdom, that ye cannot find among yourselves any persons able to adjust trifling debates about civil property; 6. But brethren, united together in the same saving Head, faith, and fellowship, to the reproach of all, litigiously prosecute one another before heathen magistrates! 7. This your conduct is extremely sinful, contrary to Christian prudence, forbearance, love, and friendship, and highly dishonourable to your meek and lowly Lord and Saviour, the Prince of peace, who purchased peace with his blood. Why then do ye not rather part with what is strictly your due, than expose one another, and even 9 Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God?

Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind, 10 Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God.

11 And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified, in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God.

12 All things are lawful unto me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawful for me, but I will not be brought under the power of any.

13 Meats for the belly, and the belly for meats: but God shall destroy both it and them. Now the body is not for fornication, but for the Lord; and the Lord for the body.

14 And God hath both raised up the Lord, and will also raise up us by his own power.

15 Know ye not that your bodies are the members of Christ? shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them the members of an harlot? God forbid.

16 What! know ye not that he who is joined to an harlot is one body? for two, saith he, shall be one flesh.

17 But he that is joined unto the Lord is one spirit.

18 Flee fornication. Every sin that a man doth is without the body; but he that committeth fornication sinneth against his own body.

19 What! know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?

20 For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's.

CHAP. VII.

Directs (1) That, though in perilous times marriage may expose to outward inconveniences, yet, if necessary, it ought to be used as God's ordinance to prevent fornication; 1—9. (2) That, for the honour of Christ, and for preserving the federal holiness of their children, married Christians should not part from their heathen consorts; 10—16. (3) That persons should ordinarily be content to abide in that civil station in which they were first called to the faith of Christ; 17—24. (4) That, in perilous times, it is most commodious to live unmarried; and the rather as all such things are so transitory, and marriage cares often hinder the service of God; 25—35. (5) That great prudence, as well as piety, ought to be exercised in the marriage of both virgins and widows; 36—40.

NOW concerning the things whereof ye wrote unto me: It is good for a man not to touch a woman.

2 Nevertheless, to avoid fornication, let every man have his own wife, and let every woman have her own husband.

3 Let the husband render unto the wife due benevolence; and likewise also the wife unto the husband.

4 The wife hath not power of her own body, but the husband: and likewise also the husband hath not power of his own body, but the wife.

5 Defraud ye not one the other, except it be with consent for a time, that ye may give yourselves to fasting and prayer; and come together again, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinency.

6 But I speak this by permission, and not of commandment.

Christ himself, to contempt in the open courts of profane heathens? 8. Nay I find that, instead of meek and patient bearing and forgiving injuries, too many of you, by law-suits, really defraud and unjustly wrong your Christian brethren.

9, 10. But know and consider this plain and awful truth, that, whatever profession such people make, they are utterly unfit for, have no title to, and shall never be admitted to enjoy, the blessings of grace or glory, who live impenitent and unbelieving, under the guilt and dominion of any sin. Deceive not your souls with flattering fancies, hypocritical pretences, or presumptuous confidences. The nature, perfections, purposes, and word, of God render it absolutely impossible that any who live and die impenitent, in idolatry, uncleanness, dishonesty, drunkenness, or reviling, should ever be members of his kingdom of grace here, or heavenly glory hereafter.

11. And remember, for your humiliation and warning, and for exciting your admiration of God's sovereign grace towards you, that, while ye continued heathens and unregenerate, some of you were chargeable with these detestable crimes: but, in his most transcendent mercy, all of you, who truly believe in Christ, have been graciously cleansed from the guilt and the domineering and defiling power of your sinful lusts, and brought into a state of favour with God, adjudged to eternal life, and made partakers of holiness in nature and practice, through the righteousness and intercession of Christ, and by the applying, quickening, renewing, and purifying, influences of the Holy Ghost, bestowed upon us by our gracious God, and which are signified and sealed to us in our Christian baptism.

—12. With respect to eating of meats, with which some of your pretenders to wisdom hold fornication equally indifferent, I allow that, whatever is not directly or indirectly forbidden by Christ in his word is lawful in itself: but it is not in every circumstance conducive to good purposes, but may be very injurious to others. I therefore allow myself to do, or not do, what is indifferent in itself, precisely as it tends to promote good or bad ends; but will not suffer myself to be enslaved by any ungovernable passion for it, nor would I submit to the arbitrary imposition of it upon my conscience by any man.

13. Yea, all kinds of food are formed answerable to our belly, and our belly to them; though we shall soon have no need of them, being removed to the eternal state.—But fornication is a thing of a quite different nature. God never intended or formed our body for it; but to be used for the honour, and in the service, of Jesus Christ, as redeemed by, united to, and to be glorified together with, him; 14. And God has raised up the dead body of the Lord Christ from the grave as a pledge, earnest, and security, that he will in due time, by the same almighty power, raise up the dead bodies of his true members to a like blessed and glorious immortality.

15. Know ye not then that your bodies, being constituent parts of your persons united to Christ, must, as his members, die and sleep in him, and be raised to glory with him? How shameful then, how wicked, and dishonourable to him and to his law, would it be to alienate them from his service and honour, and, as it were, rend them off from him; and, by committing uncleanness, render them the members of a lewd woman! 16. Do not ye, who pretend to so much knowledge, understand that the man, who unites himself in criminal affection or conversation with an harlot, disgraces himself, and becomes one body with her in a sense extremely vile and abominable?

17. But, on the contrary, he who is vitally united to the Lord Jesus, as his Head and Husband, partakes of, and is animated by, that very same divine Spirit which dwells in Christ; and so, being mystically one Spirit with him, every affront done to that man's body must be an affront to Christ himself. 18. Abhor therefore, and resolutely abandon, all manner of uncleanness, and keep at the greatest distance from it. Watch and pray against all inclinations, enticements, and all appearances, and occasions of it. For he that is guilty of it not only sins against God, his soul, or his neighbour, as in other sins, but debases his body, and unworthily sacrifices it to the most brutish and abominable lust. 19, 20. Know ye not that, if ye be true believers, your bodies, through their union to Christ, are a sacred, dedicated, and appropriated, habitation of God the Holy Ghost, who is freely and divinely bestowed upon you, in which his person dwells, and his sanctifying influences are exerted. And ye are not your own property, to dispose of your bodies according to any brutish inclinations, but ye were redeemed from the curse of the law, and from sin, Satan, and everlasting ruin, and purchased, for the service and enjoyment of the holy and blessed God, by the blood of his Son: labour therefore, through grace, to yield your bodies and all their members, as well as your souls, with all their faculties, as instruments of righteousness to God, that ye may never alienate and debase his peculiar property, but in all things obey and glorify him with that which he hath created, preserved, redeemed, and sanctified.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VI.—Great shall be the honour of the saints to sit with Christ on his throne at the last day, and as assessors, to concur in the condemnation of devils and wicked men! And it is shameful then if they cannot adjust trifling disputes without going to law one with another. How much more like Christians, as well as profitable, would it be to settle them by kind arbitration than by litigious law-suits! And it is very base for professed Christians to act as if they neither regarded the honour of Christ or his people, if they can but secure external advantages to themselves. It is absurd to hope for heavenly happiness without being weaned from our lusts and reformed from our gross sins. Jesus' word, blood, and Spirit, make a most evident and important charge upon the most notorious sinners. And how blessed, how deeply indebted to free grace, are the partakers of it! It is absurd for such to disturb their consciences with scruples about meats and drinks, or such like trifles, or to enslave them to human impositions! and more base immoderately to indulge their sensual appetite in the use of meats and drinks, which will soon be entirely useless.—Infinitely detestable is every form of uncleanness, and contrary to the law of nature and marriage, to the noble purposes for which our bodies were designed, and to which those of saints shall be raised at the last day. Yea, much more so to our relation and intimate union with Christ as his members, and his right of purchasing our souls and bodies to be eternal instruments of glorifying God. It is highly dishonourable to his name and debasing to ourselves and a vile indignity to the Holy Ghost, who dwells in our bodies as well as in our souls.

CHAP. VII. Ver. 1—6. With respect to your question proposed to me in your letter, The unmarried state, in such times of persecution and uncertainty, is preferable to the married. But it is far better to marry than to expose one's self, or any other, to temptations to uncleanness: and married persons ought to take all proper opportunities of testifying their relation and affection to each 7 ^s For I would that all men were even as I myself. But every man hath his proper gift of God; one after this manner, and another after that.

8 I say therefore to the unmarried and widows, ^h It is good for them if they abide even as I.

9 But, ⁱ if they cannot contain, let them marry: for it is better to marry than to burn.

10 And unto the married I command, ^j yet not I, but the Lord, ^k Let not the wife depart from her husband:

11 But, and if she depart, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband: and let not the husband put away his wife.

12 But to the rest ^l speak I, not the Lord, If any brother hath a wife that believeth not, and she be pleased to dwell with him, ^m let him not put her away.

13 And the woman who hath an husband that believeth not, and if he be pleased to dwell with her, let her not leave him.

14 ⁿ For the unbelieving husband is sanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the husband: else were your children unclean; but now are they holy.

15 But, if the unbelieving depart, let him depart. A brother or a sister is not under bondage in such cases: but ^o God hath called us ^{*} to peace.

16 ^p For what knowest thou, O wife, whether thou shalt save thy husband? or how knowest thou, O man, whether thou shalt save thy wife?

17 ^q But, as God hath distributed to every man, as the Lord hath called every one, so let him walk: and so ordain I in all churches.

18 ^r Is any man called being circumcised? let him not become uncircumcised: is any called in uncircumcision? let him not be circumcised.

19 ^s Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing, but the keeping of the commandments of God.

20 ^t Let every man abide in the same calling wherein he was called.

21 ^u Art thou called being a servant? care not for it: but, if thou mayest be made free, use it rather.

22 ^v For he that is called in the Lord, being a servant, is the Lord's [†] freeman: likewise also he that is called, being free, is Christ's servant.

23 ^y Ye are bought with a price; ^z be not ye the servants of men.

24 Brethren, let every man wherein he is called therein ^a abide with God.

25 ^b Now, concerning virgins, I have no commandment of the Lord: yet I give my judgment as one that hath ^c obtained mercy of the Lord to be faithful.

26 I suppose therefore that ^d this is good for the present distress, I say, that it is good for a man so to be.

27 Art thou bound unto a wife? seek not to be loosed. Art thou loosed from a wife? seek not a wife.

28 ^e But, and if thou marry, thou hast not sinned; and, if a virgin marry, she hath not sinned: nevertheless, such shall have trouble in the flesh; but I spare you.

29 But this I say, brethren, ^f the time is short. It remaineth that ^g both they that have wives be as though they had none;

30 And they that weep as though they wept not; and they that rejoice as though they rejoiced not; and they that buy as though they possessed not;

31 And they that use this world as not abusing it: for the fashion of this world passeth away.

32 But I would have you ^h without carefulness. ⁱ He that is unmarried careth for the things that belong to the Lord, how he may please the Lord:

33 But he that is married careth for the things that are of the world, how he may please his wife.

34 There is difference also between a other. And, that Satan may have no occasion to tempt them to unchastity, let even their withdrawal from one another, for the purpose of solemn fasting and prayer, be with mutual consent, and for short times. But this I, as an inspired apostle, advise to, as most agreeable to your holy profession in your different circumstances, not as an express command of Christ. — 7—9. For I could wish that every unmarried Christian could live as contented in a single life as I do; but every man must act according to his own temper, disposition, and situation, and the gifts and abilities with which God hath furnished him for the ends of his glory. If such as are unmarried can continue such, without danger of uncleanness, they will, in these troublesome times, find many advantages for the service of God. But, if by the grace which they have received they cannot duly restrain their animal inclinations, it is better for them to marry some proper object; it being far more wise, dutiful, and comfortable, to do so than to live under the tormenting or inflaming power of impure desires of unlawful enjoyments. 10, 11. And for directing such as are married there is no need of further inspirations; the Lord Jesus having expressly commanded that wives should never voluntarily depart from their husbands, nor husbands put away their wives, except for the cause of fornication before, or adultery after, marriage; or, if they voluntarily part, both parties should live single, or rather study to be reconciled one to another. 12—14. And, as inspired by God, I charge you that no Christians think of parting from those husbands or wives, with whom they were married before their conversion, on account of their continuing heathens, as the Jews were commanded to do in the times of Nehemiah, but dwell with them in the most friendly, peaceable, and engaging, manner; for even heathens are separated to an holy use, by having Christian wives or husbands; and hence the children begotten between them are held by God, not as unclean heathens, but as externally, relatively, and federally, holy; entitled to all the privileges of the new covenant equally as if both parents had been Christians. 15, 16. But, if their heathen yoke-fellows, notwithstanding all prudent means to prevent it, will obstinately desert them, Christians are not obliged to enslave their consciences to their humours, or to continue in marriage relation to such as obstinately break the bond and defeat the ends of that relation. Meanwhile, they ought to do every thing consistent with truth and holiness, in order to engage these heathen consorts to live with them;—for none knows but by their meek and kind behaviour, through the blessing of Christ and working of his Spirit, they may be rendered instrumental in gaining them to Christ for the salvation of their souls. 17—19. And, whatever the event be, let every one of you, and of other churches, study to walk in a course of holiness and virtue answerable to the condition or relation in which he stood when converted. Never trouble yourselves whether ye were originally Jews or Gentiles; for it is of no account with God whether ye be circumcised or not; but whether, according to his commandments, you receive the Lord Jesus, and walk in him righteously and godly. 20—22. And, as redeeming grace was never intended to alter the stations or duties of secular life, but to enforce the improvement of them in the manner most conducive to the glory of God, study to rest contented with those very stations in which you were before your conversion: and, if you were converted in the station of a servant or slave, be not uneasy, as if that servile condition would render you less acceptable to God or honourable to your Christian faith or fellowship; yet, if you can have your freedom by fair means, thankfully accept and faithfully improve it; for a converted slave is as much freed from the bondage of sin, Satan, and the broken law, as any other; and a converted freed man is under as deep obligations to serve Christ as if he had been a servant or slave to men. 23, 24. Since therefore your spiritual and religious freedom, purchased by Jesus' infinitely precious blood, is perfectly equal, resolutely maintain this, and never serve the lusts or sinful commandments of men, nor suffer the duties of your civil relations to hinder your service of him; and in whatever station you were converted to the Christian faith, rest contented with it, as ordered for you by the providence of God; and study to fulfil the duties of it as under his eye, in obedience to him, by assistance from him, and in fellowship with him. 25—28. With respect to persons who were never married, the Lord Jesus, indeed, left us no express command on this point: but I, as his faithful apostle, directed by his inspiring Spirit, advise, that if they can remain unmarried, without endangering their chastity, they should do so, for their greater conveniency in these perilous times. But let such as are married study, with cordial affection and contentment, to bear the incumbrances which attend their state; and let such as are unmarried beware of marrying rashly, lest they involve their wives and children in trouble along with themselves. Nevertheless, if any find marriage a necessary mean of preserving their chastity, they may lawfully enter into it; only it will in these evil times expose them more to anxiety and trouble. But I shall add no more, lest I should discourage some who are married, or hinder some from marriage, whose natural inclinations call to it, or make any to think the unmarried state more holy in itself. 29—31. But what I now subjoin is of infinite importance, that, in a very little time, all earthly stations, relations, sorrows, and comforts, will leave us, and we shall be launched forth into an eternal state; it is therefore proper that our hearts should sit loose to them, as quite unsubstantial and transitory, and only so far to be accounted of as they are God's gifts, to be improved for his honour, and as means of preparing us for eternal fellowship with him. 32—35. The reason why I have preferred a single state of life to the wife and a virgin. The unmarried woman careth for the things of the Lord, that she may be holy both in body and in spirit: but she that is married careth for the things of the world, how she may please her husband.

35 And this I speak for your own profit; not that I may cast a snare upon you, but for that which is comely, and that ye may attend upon the Lord without distraction.

36 But, if any man think that he behaveth himself uncomely toward his virgin, if she pass the flower of her age, and need so require, let him do what he will, he sinneth not: let them marry.

37 Nevertheless, he that standeth stedfast in his heart, having no necessity, but hath power over his own will, and hath so decreed in his heart that he will keep his virgin, doth well.

38 So then he that giveth her in marriage doth well; but he that giveth her not in marriage doth better.

39 The wife is bound by the law as long as her husband liveth: but, if her husband be dead, she is at liberty to be married to whom she will; only in the Lord.

40 But she is happier if she so abide, after my judgment: and I think also that I have the Spirit of God.

CHAP. VIII.

In answer to the Corinthians' question about eating what had been sacrificed to idols, Paul, (1) Cautions them against self-conceit of their knowledge; 1—3. (2) Asserts the vanity of idols and the unity of the true God; 4—7. (3) Shews the sin and danger of offending others by eating things offered to idols, though it were ever so innocent in itself; 8—13.

NOW, as touching things offered unto idols, we know that we all have knowledge. Knowledge puffeth up, but charity edifieth.

married is, that I would have you, as much as possible, freed from all the anxious cares and perplexing incumbrances of this present world, that ye may, with less hindrance and distraction, attend the service of God, and pursue the salvation of your souls: for they who are unmarried have most liberty to lay out all their thoughts, time, and labour, about what pertains to the service and fellowship of God; whereas they who are married must be employed in providing for their families, and rendering themselves agreeable and helpful to their yoke-fellows.—My whole aim is the advantage of your souls, not to ensnare any into unchaste inclinations or practices; but that, in the most easy and becoming manner, ye may have abundant liberty for waiting upon, keeping close to, and serving the Lord Jesus, and God the Father through him, in all religious duties, without disquiet, perplexity, and wandering of heart. 36—38. But, if any parent or guardian find that the restraint of his daughter or pupil from marriage, beyond the flower of her age, is calculated to ensnare her; or if a young man find that his temper, honour, or chastity, call for it; it is very lawful and commendable that they should marry: but, if they have no such call to marriage, it is still more advisable and commendable to refrain from it in these persecuting times. Thus parents who give their children in marriage, and children who, having gained their consent, enter into it, act a wise and lawful part; but if, without danger of sin or infamy, they continue unmarried, they better provide against the inconveniences of these troublesome times, and for a more uninterrupted liberty of serving God. 39, 40. But, let the state of the church be as difficult as it will, the law of God and nature, and the marriage vow, bind a wife to abide with, and cleave to, her husband till death part them, unless he voluntarily and resolutely leave her, or be guilty of adultery; but, if he die before her, she may then marry another: but let it always be one who makes a credible profession of Christianity, and with whom she may expect the approbation, presence, and blessing, of God in their conjugal relation, that they may dwell together, worshipping God, and religiously training up their children. But indeed I think that if she continue single she will find it most convenient in these dangerous times, and best on religious accounts.—And, whatever your new teachers insinuate, I know I have suggested these admonitions under the special direction of the Holy Ghost.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VII.—Persons married or unmarried, bond or free, should labour to live contented with their lot, and always to the glory of God. And with great prudence should they marry or remain single, as best tends to prevent sinful impurities and promote their more active and undisturbed service of God. In marrying, Christians should make conscience of choosing none but such as appear to fear God, and of entering into that relation with much serious consideration and solemn prayer. And married persons should cultivate the most endeared mutual affection, and live together as heirs of the grace of life, as not only their temporal, but their and their children's spiritual and eternal happiness depend so much thereon. A deep sense of the vanity and shortness of time, and of the importance and length of eternity, ought always to regulate our affections and conduct. That is always best for us that is best for

2 And, if any man think that he knoweth any thing, he knoweth nothing, yet as he ought to know.

3 But, if any man love God, the same is known of him.

4 As concerning therefore the eating of those things that are offered in sacrifice unto idols, we know that an idol is nothing in the world, and that there is none other God but one.

5 For, though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven or in earth; (as there be gods many, and lords many);

6 But to us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in him; and one Lord, Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by him.

7 Howbeit, there is not in every man that knowledge: for some with conscience of the idol unto this hour eat it as a thing offered unto an idol; and their conscience being weak is defiled.

8 But meat commendeth us not to God; for neither if we eat are we the better; neither if we eat not are we the worse.

9 But take heed lest by any means this liberty of your's become a stumbling block to them that are weak.

10 For, if any man see thee who hast knowledge sit at meat in the idol's temple, shall not the conscience of him who is weak be emboldened to eat those things which are offered to idols;

11 And through thy knowledge shall the weak brother perish, for whom Christ died?

12 But when ye sin so against the brethren, and wound their weak conscience, ye sin against Christ.

our soul; and, whether single or married, our chief aim and endeavour ought to be to please the Lord, and to be holy both in body and spirit.

CHAP. VIII. Ver. 1. With respect to what has been offered to idols by your Heathen neighbours, and is either feasted on by the offerer and his friends, or exposed to sale in the public market, I allow you and your new teachers to have a great deal of knowledge, and I know that we apostles have no less; but mere notions in men's heads, and a fond conceit of their superior understanding, do but puff up the pride of their heart, and indispose them to receive farther instruction:—but love to God and to our brethren is that which alone makes us practically improve our knowledge for promoting our own and others' holiness, peace, and comfort. 2. And, if any think their own knowledge of things so perfect that they need not consult the sentiments, nor regard the edification, of others, it is a sufficient evidence that they know nothing in a truly spiritual and beneficial manner. 3. But, if any heartily love God, and from that principle improve their knowledge to his glory and the edification of souls, God takes special notice of and approves them. 4. With respect to the lawfulness of a Christian's eating what has been offered to idols, we all know that the Heathen gods have no divine nature or virtue in them, to make things either better or worse in themselves: and that there is but one God. 5, 6. For, though the Heathens have hundreds or thousands whom they esteem and worship as Gods, celestial or terrestrial, supreme or subordinate, yet to us Christians there is but one God, from whom, in the person of the Father, all things in creation and providence originally proceed, and in whom we live, move, and have our being; and one Lord Jesus, by whom, as his Father's only begotten Son, all things were created, and by whom as Mediator, we receive all new covenant blessings, and have our persons and services rendered acceptable to God. 7. There are however some professed Christians who do not yet distinctly understand the nullity of all the Heathen idols, but continue to eat what is offered to them with a kind of religious regard; and thus their consciences, not being fully instructed in the doctrines of the gospel, are herein defiled by the guilt of idolatry. 8. And, however distinct knowledge we or others may have that idols have no divinity in them, it is plain that our eating of food offered to them can never profit our souls, or recommend us to God; and our prudent refraining from it can do us no hurt. 9. It is therefore certainly your duty carefully to avoid all use of your freedom, or right to eat of these things, which tends to ensnare such as are weak in knowledge or faith, and make them sin, in doing that with a doubting or superstitious mind, which ye do safely and without any doubt: 10. For if such weak persons see you feasting upon these meats in an idol's temple, will they not be emboldened to eat them with an idolatrous veneration of the idol? 11. And thus, through your knowledge leading you to an imprudent use of your liberty, your weak, mistaken, and doubting, brother, for whom you charitably believe Christ laid down his infinitely precious life, is led into damnable sin, or to destroy his own inward peace and comfort. 12. Now, while you thus lead your Christian brethren into sinful and idolatrous practices, and wound, disturb, and defile, their tender and unsettled consciences, ye sin not only

Here Paul (1) Vindicates his apostolic authority against his opposers, from his success at Corinth; 1, 2. (2) Asserts his right to a maintenance by his hearers, from the reason of things, the law of Moses, and the appointment of Christ; 3—14. (3) Shews that he had honourably waved the demanding of his due right in order to promote their edification; 15—18: as he had willingly abridged himself of his rights and privileges in other places, in order to gain men to Christ; 19—23. (4) Shews that he had herein acted with all care and diligence, in view of an eternal gracious reward, and to set them an example; 24—27.

AM I not an apostle? am I not free? have I not seen Jesus Christ our Lord? are not ye my work in the Lord?

2 If I be not an apostle unto others, yet doubtless I am to you: for the seal of mine apostleship are ye in the Lord.

3 Mine answer to them that do examine me is this,

4 Have we not power to eat and to drink?

5 Have we not power to lead about a sister, a wife, as well as other apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas?

6 Or I only and Barnabas, have not we power to forbear working?

7 Who goeth a warfare any time at his own charges? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock?

8 Say I these things as a man? or saith not the law the same also?

9 For it is written in the law of Moses, Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn. Doth God take care for oxen;

10 Or saith he it altogether for our sakes? for our sakes, no doubt, this is written: that he that ploweth should plow in hope; and that he that thresheth in hope should be partaker of his hope.

11 If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we shall reap your carnal things?

12 If others be partakers of this power over you, are not we rather? nevertheless, we have not used this power; but suffer all things, lest we should hinder the gospel of Christ.

13 Do ye not know that they who minister about holy things live of the things of the temple? and they who wait at the altar are partakers with the altar?

14 Even so hath the Lord ordained that they who preach the gospel should live of the gospel.

15 But I have used none of these things: neither have I written these things that it should be so done unto me: for it were better for me to die than that any man should make my glorying void.

16 For, though I preach the gospel, I have nothing to glory of: for necessity is laid upon me; yea, wo is unto me if I preach not the gospel!

17 For, if I do this thing willingly, I have a reward; but, if against my will, a dispensation of the gospel is committed unto me.

18 What is my reward then? verily that, when I preach the gospel, I may make the gospel of Christ without charge, that I abuse not my power in the gospel.

19 For, though I be free from all men, yet have I made myself servant unto all, that I might gain the more.

20 And unto the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews; to them that are under the law as under the law, that I might gain them that are under the law; against them, but against Christ, whose members they are; and ye attempt to defeat the designs of his love, in what he suffered for their comfort and salvation. 13. This consideration bears such weight with me, that, if my eating of flesh offered to idols, or even of common flesh, should disturb the conscience of my Christian brother, or occasion his falling into sin, I would never indulge myself in eating any more as long as I live.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VIII.—Fine and extensive notions in our head, without love to God and men in our heart, do but puff us up with self-conceit, and render us detestable to God. And nothing more plainly manifests our want of solid knowledge than our contempt of others as weak and foolish. None are more apt to be self-conceited than such as are remarkably ignorant of things important: and that is always the best knowledge which is most useful in practice. It is a great mercy then to have the saving knowledge of Christ as the alone Mediator, and of God in him as the only true God! And yet, alas, many true Christians are too little acquainted with the vanity of idols, or have but confused and unsettled conceptions of things most important. With tender and exact care ought Christians to avoid dubious, or even innocent, and indifferent, practices, which may grieve their fellow believers, and occasion their stumbling into sin. For it is highly criminal to grieve the spirits, and destroy the peace and edification, of them for whom Christ laid down his life!

CHAP. IX. Ver. 1, 2. It was for this very purpose of avoiding offence that I forbore taking my necessary and due subsistence from you. How absurd then is it to infer from this circumstance that I am not an apostle, when no one can be produced that has a more evident claim to that high office! for did not I receive my commission and instruction immediately from Christ himself, when he appeared to me? And are not ye Corinthians, who were converted many of you by my ministrations, an evident proof that Christ hath sealed mine office in your effectual calling, and your enrichment with many excellent gifts and graces? 3—6. I therefore boldly interrogate your new proud preachers who dare to question my authority, Have I not a divine right to necessary subsistence, not only for myself, but also for a family, if I choose to have one, as well as James, Jude, Peter, or any other apostle? Am I and Barnabas, who were so expressly appointed to the apostolic work by the Holy Ghost, and no other preacher, obliged to maintain ourselves by the labour of our hands? 7. What can be more unreasonable? Have common soldiers, labourers, or shepherds, an universally allowed claim at least to a reward of necessary food and raiment? And must we, who, under Christ as our captain, fight his battles, pull down the strong holds of sin, Satan, and captivate multitudes of sinners to him;—we, who, under his direction, labour in his vineyard, plant and water the souls of his people;—we, who watch over, direct, and feed, his spiritual flock, have no claim to necessary subsistence? 8—10. Nay, let the law of Moses, of which my judaizing opponents are so fond, decide the point. It expressly forbids to muzzle the mouth of an ox while treading out the corn, in order to prevent his eating mouthfuls of it. Now God never appointed this law merely for the sake of these brutes, but chiefly to direct and bind men to exercise humanity and equity towards those of their own species who labour for their advantage, and especially who labour for the benefit of their souls, and to encourage such to expect a proper reward from those who reap benefit by them. 11, 12. When we have spent our time and strength in dispensing unto you the oracles and ordinances of God, for the conviction, conversion, comfort, and eternal salvation of your souls, could you reasonably grudge us the small return of a temporal necessary subsistence for our bodies? If other preachers, and even your false teachers, claim a right to a proper maintenance, are not we, who first planted and watered your church, much more entitled to it? Nevertheless, to manifest that we have no mercenary aim, but only seek your spiritual and eternal welfare; and that the gospel, which sets forth the offices and grace of Christ, and which he has authorized and committed to our trust, might be the more readily received by you, we neither asked nor received from you our due maintenance. 13, 14. But, though we had done both we should but have exerted our right: ye, and especially your judaizing pretenders to wisdom, cannot but know that, under the Mosaic dispensation, the priests and Levites, who officiated for others in the worship of God, had a very large subsistence divinely allotted them out of their tithes, sacrifices, meat offerings, and gifts.—In like manner, when Christ sent forth his disciples to preach the gospel, he expressly appointed that all faithful preachers should be suitably maintained by those who share the benefit of their labours. 15. But, notwithstanding these express laws of both Moses and Christ, I neither have, nor ever intend to ask or receive, any maintenance from you; for I had rather earn my bread with the labour of my hands, or even be starved to death, than give any occasion to think that I preach the gospel for the sake of carnal gain. 16. For, let me be as earnest and diligent in publishing the glad tidings of salvation as I will, it is no more than what my commission and command from Christ renders my indispensable duty: and should I neglect it, the reproaches of my guilty conscience, and the everlasting damnation of hell, must be my just reward. 17, 18. But if, under all the difficulties of poverty and of providing for myself, I preach from a pure regard to the glory of God and the salvation of men, I have a present inward satisfaction of mind, and humbly expect a future gracious reward of my faithfulness and zeal.—On the other hand, if I should with reluctance receive and manage that trust which Christ has committed to me, what reward could I expect, but uneasy remorse of conscience now, and eternal misery hereafter? And in these views I preach the gospel freely, when circumstances require it, that none may be prejudiced thereat, or pretend that I rigorously or unseasonably require my dues. 19, 20. For in this, and many other instances of Christian liberty, I have studied, in the most condescending and engaging manner, to accommodate my behaviour to men's different tempers and inclinations, that I may the more effectually sweeten their spirits, and recommend Christ and his ways to them. In order to reconcile the Jews, who 21 To them that are without law as without law, (being not without law to God, but under the law to Christ), that I might gain them that are without law.

22 To the weak became I as weak, that I might gain the weak: I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some.

23 And this I do for the gospel's sake, that I might be partaker thereof, with you.

24 Know ye not that they who run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run that ye may obtain.

25 And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown, but we an incorruptible.

26 I therefore so run, not as uncertainly: so fight I, not as one that beateth the air:

27 But I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a cast-away.

3 And did all eat the same spiritual meat;

4 And did all drink the same spiritual drink: for they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them, and that Rock was Christ.

5 But with many of them God was not well pleased: for they were overthrown in the wilderness.

6 Now these things were our examples, to the intent we should not lust after evil things, as they also lusted.

7 Neither be ye idolaters, as were some of them; as it is written, The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play.

8 Neither let us commit fornication, as some of them committed, and fell in one day three and twenty thousand.

9 Neither let us tempt Christ, as some of them also tempted, and were destroyed of serpents.

10 Neither murmur ye, as some of them also murmured, and were destroyed of the destroyer.

11 Now all these things happened unto them for ensamples: and they are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come.

12 Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall.

13 There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it.

2 And were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea;

reckon themselves still under the law of Moses, I reason with them out of the Old Testament, and indulge their observance of such ceremonies as are not yet absolutely unlawful, always instructing them that none of their works, but the righteousness of Christ alone, must be the ground of their hope towards God. 21. And, though I reckon myself indispensably bound by the moral laws of the most High God as the rule of my duty, issued forth to me through Jesus Christ, yet, in order to gain the Gentiles to Christ, I rest the proof of my doctrine upon the extrinsic evidence thereof, in the undoubted miracles attending it, and its being set home upon their hearts by the Spirit of God; and I neither observe Jewish ceremonies myself, nor encourage them to it. 22. In dealing with weak Christians, who are apt to be easily grieved or stumbled, I condescend to their weakness, and forbear even things which are in themselves lawful and innocent, that I may prevent their taking offence, and may establish them in the more important points of faith and holiness. In fine, by all lawful expedients, I suit myself to men's diversified tempers and circumstances, in order that, in the hand and by the blessing of Christ, I may be instrumental in delivering them from under the slavery of sin, Satan, and the broken law, and bringing them to share the blessings of spiritual and eternal salvation. 23. All this I do from a sincere and zealous concern to prevent unseasonable exceptions against the gospel of Christ, and that I may recommend and propagate it among persons of every character; that, in fellowship with you and others, I may share the special benefits of it. 24. To take therefore an hint from your own Grecian races, in which many run, while they know that one only shall obtain the prize, let us, by a diligent receiving of the Lord Jesus and walking in him, run our Christian course, in which not one, but all who run shall receive the gracious reward of eternal life and honour. 25. And, as by great moderation in diet the wrestlers and boxers prepare themselves for their public combats, so ought we to mortify every worldly and sinful affection that would hinder us in our Christian warfare; and the rather as our crown of glory is infinitely more excellent and durable than their garlands of flowers, pines, myrtles, olives, bays, laurels, or the like. 26, 27. Under this apprehension I labour to run my Christian race, and fight the good fight of faith, in a most careful and judicious manner, directed by the law of God, and in good earnest against my spiritual enemies.—As combatants strive to beat down and conquer their antagonists, so do I, by faith, repentance, watchfulness, fastings and prayer, mortification and self-denial, labour to subdue my inward corruptions, lest, after preaching the gospel to others, instead of sharing with them in the blessed fruits of it, I should, in the last judgment, be esteemed as one whose works are unfit to be rewarded.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IX.—It is a great comfort to ministers when they have full evidence of the Lord Christ's calling them to their work, and granting them success in it. And readily ought they to forego their own liberties or claims, if it tend to the success of the gospel. But, if they do this, it is base to revile their persons, or deny their rights on that account. Nothing can be more evident than that ministers have a divine right to a sufficient maintenance from their hearers. Yet never ought the procuring of that to be their great aim, but the glory of God in the conversion and edification of souls; and every form of lawful condescension is to be practised so far as best answers that end.—With great faithfulness, care, and pains, ought ministers and others to run their Christian course, and fight their spiritual warfare, according to God's word, and duly to govern their passions, appetites, tempers, and conduct. And with humble and holy jealousy ought ministers to take heed to themselves, their doctrines and practices, that neither they nor their labours may be disapproved and rejected by Christ at his second coming.

CHAP. X. Ver. 1—5. And, to awaken you to run your Christian race with care, diligence, and resolution; and to guard against every idolatrous or other deviation from it, observe, with the utmost attention and deepest concern, the fate of God's highly-favoured Israelitish nation;—how,—after he had conducted them by a pillar of fire and cloud, and led them through the Red sea, thereby solemnly initiating them into a peculiar covenant revelation with himself by the mediation of Moses,—and nourished them with excellent manna from heaven, and water from flinty rocks, which prefigured Christ, and followed them through the Arabian wilderness; and which, as symbols, represented the light, comfort, and deliverance, of the gospel church, their solemn instalment in their happy state, and their marvellous and unceasing nourishment,—he was so offended by their apostasy, unbelief, idolatry, murmuring, and other provocations, that almost that whole generation were cut off by miserable deaths in the wilderness, falling short of the promised Canaan, and many of them of the heavenly inheritance. 6—10. Now these things happened to them, and are recorded in scripture, as awful examples, representing to us what fearful judgments we may look for, in time and eternity, if we indulge ourselves in the like murmuring against what God provides for us, or in desiring what he forbids. Let none of you therefore, like them at Sinai, partake of idolatrous feasts, or in any direct or indirect acknowledgment of heathen idols, lest God's wrath overtake you as it did them.—Neither indulge yourselves in uncleanness, as some of them committed whoredom with the Midianitish women, and were punished, by the death of 23,000 in a plague, and 1000 more in a legal process of the magistrates.—Neither let any of you distrust the power, faithfulness, and grace, of Christ to help you under difficulties and discouragements, or through presumptuous sinning, try his patience, or defy his power and justice, as they did, and were destroyed by fiery serpents.—Neither indulge dissatisfaction and repining complaints of the dispensations of God, or of the afflictions which ye suffer for Christ, or against the persons, dutiful behaviour, or divine doctrines, of any of his ministers, as they often did in the wilderness, and were destroyed by one judgment after another. 11. Now all these public calamities happened to God's ancient professing and favoured people as examples of what we may expect if we imitate them in wickedness: and they are recorded in God's word for warnings to us who live when the Jewish dispensation is just ending, and under the last dispensation of grace which God intends for his church in this world, that we may avoid their sins, in order to escape their punishment. 12. Let therefore self-conceited professors, who pride themselves on their gifts, privileges, attainments, strength, and stability, watch and pray, and, in a dependence on God's grace, use every other mean of his appointment, to prevent backsliding and apostasy. 13. And let those of you, who having no confidence in yourselves, trust wholly to Jesus Christ and his free grace for your preservation in the way of duty, remember that no afflictions or temptations have hap-

14 Wherefore, my dearly beloved, flee from idolatry.

15 I speak as to wise men: judge ye what I say.

16 The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?

17 For we, being many, are one bread and one body: for we are all partakers of that one bread.

18 Behold Israel after the flesh;
Are not they who eat of the sacrifices partakers of the altar?

19 What say I then? that the idol is any thing, or that which is offered in sacrifice to idols is any thing?

20 But I say that the things which the Gentiles sacrifice they sacrifice to devils, and not to God: and I would not that ye should have fellowship with devils.

21 Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord, and the cup of devils: ye cannot be partakers of the Lord's table, and of the table of devils.

22 Do we provoke the Lord to jealousy? are we stronger than he?

23 All things are lawful for me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawful for me, but all things edify not.

24 Let no man seek his own, but every man another's wealth.

25 Whatsoever is sold in the shambles, that eat, asking no question for conscience sake.

pened to you but such as are common to men in this evil world and imperfect state, and may, through divine help, be borne or overcome; and that God who has granted you so many promises of support and deliverance, will infallibly fulfil the same, and will not suffer you to be troubled or tempted beyond the measure of strength which he bestows upon you; and knowing that ye cannot always bear up under them, or struggle with them, will, in due time, grant you an honourable and complete deliverance from them. 14. Therefore, my dear fellow Christians, awed by these alarming examples on the one hand, and encouraged by the hopes of all needful assistances on the other, detest and avoid to the utmost all idolatry, and all appearances of it, or approaches to it. 15. These solemn warnings I give you, as persons who are acquainted with Christian principles, and even value yourselves upon your superior wisdom and knowledge; and I appeal to your own reason and conscience, and desire you to ponder the weight of what I am going to say. 16. Is not our partaking of the consecrated bread and wine in the Lord's supper an open profession, token, and mean, of our joint holy fellowship with Christ in the benefits of his incarnation, obedience, and suffering,—and a public acknowledgment of our obligations and purpose to yield all holy obedience to him? 17. And does not our partaking of the same loaf or cup signify that, however different our persons or circumstances be, we are all spiritually connected in the one mystical body of Christ's church? 18. And did not the ancient priests and Israelites, by eating their respective shares of the peace-offerings, profess their joint fellowship with, and dedication to, that God to whom part of it was burnt on the altar? 19. I do not, by these instances, insinuate that the nominal gods of the Heathens have any real divinity in them, or that meats are made any worse in themselves by being offered to them. 20. But what I intend to suggest is, that the Heathens, by sacrificing to these idols, and feasting on their sacrifices, do really worship and hold fellowship with devils: and I would by no means have you to hold fellowship with these unclean spirits or their worshippers. 21. For ye cannot, in consistency with the honour of Christ and his Father, or with your Christian profession or edification, at once hold fellowship with Christ and his people in his holy supper, and with devils and their worshippers in their idolatrous feasts. 22. Should we then, who are espoused to Jesus Christ as our spiritual Husband, dare to provoke his jealousy by honouring pretended deities? Are we more able to escape or resist the almighty strokes of his wrath than the Israelites were? 23. No pretence of the indifference of things offered to idols, or of our intending no respect for the idols thereby, can warrant our eating of them: for things very lawful in themselves may become very inexpedient and unedifying in some circumstances, by stumbling others and drawing them into sin. 24. In such cases Christians must not do what serves their own pleasure, honour, or temporal benefit, but what will tend most to the real and lasting advantage of their neighbours. 25. But, though it would be highly criminal and dangerous for any of you to eat meats offered to idols in their temples or idolatrous feasts, yet ye may freely eat whatever is sold in the public market without any scruple or inquiry whether it has been offered to an idol or not. 26. For God, who is Creator, Proprietor, and Governor of the whole earth and of all its product, and has now, under the gospel, abolished the ancient typical distinction of meats, allows you to eat whatever can contribute to your health. 27. If therefore any of your Heathen neighbours invite you to a meal with them in their own houses, and regard to good manners, and an intention to promote their spiritual edification, incline you to go, eat freely whatever is set before you on the table, without any scrupulous thought or inquiry whether it has been offered to an idol or not. 28. But if he, who invited you to the entertainment, or any other, by telling you that it had been offered to an idol, should hint that your eating of it would be a practical allowance of some honour to the idol, then, that neither his, nor your own, nor 26 For the earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof.

27 If any of them that believe not bid you to a feast, and ye be disposed to go; whatsoever is set before you, eat, asking no question for conscience sake.

28 But, if any man say unto you,
This is offered in sacrifice unto idols, eat not, for his sake that shewed it, and for conscience sake: For the earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof:

29 Conscience, I say, not thine own, but of the other: for why is my liberty judged of another man's conscience?

30 For, if I by grace be a partaker, why am I evil spoken of for that for which I give thanks?

31 Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God.

32 Give none offence, neither to the Jews, nor to the Gentiles, nor to the church of God:

33 Even as I please all men in all things, not seeking mine own profit, but the profit of many, that they may be saved.

CHAP. XI.

After an advice to, and commendation of, the Corinthians; 1. 2. Paul (1) Reproves their women for speaking in their public worshipping assemblies with their faces unveiled; 3-16. (2) Rebukes their schisms, riots, neglect and contempt of the poor, in celebrating the Lord's supper; 17-22. (3) To rectify their scandalous abuse of that ordinance, represents the nature and end of it, the proper manner of receiving it, and the great danger of profaning it; 23-34.

BE ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ.

2 Now I praise you, brethren, that any other's, conscience may be defiled or wounded, and to testify your high detestation of idolatry, eat not of it: for God, who is the proprietor of all the animal and vegetable food on earth, has granted you enough beside what has been offered to idols. 29. Nor ought ye in such points chiefly to regard your own conscience, but the consciences of your neighbours, that they may not by your conduct be grieved, or emboldened to any thing unlawful to them: for why should you or I, by an imprudent and unseasonable use of our Christian liberty, tempt other men's consciences to pass a wrong judgment upon our conduct? 30. For, if, through the bounty of God's providence, I have an opportunity, and, through the grace of the gospel, have liberty, of feeding indifferently upon whatever food is presented to me, yet why should I indulge myself so far as to give any one occasion to reproach me for eating such meats as I receive with prayer to him for his blessing on them, and with religious thankfulness to him for providing and allowing them to me. 31. To close this argument with some important rules:—Not only in your eating and drinking, but in all your conduct, civil or religious, keep the glory of God before you as your principal and last end, and behave as is most conducive towards this. 32. Always carefully avoid whatever can prejudice the minds, and hinder the conversion, of either Jews or Heathens, or may stumble either Jewish or Gentile Christians, or grieve, discourage, or pervert any church member, strong or weak. 33. And, on the contrary, in Jesus' strength, labour, after my example, to deny yourselves, and study to do or forbear things, as is best suited to the peace, comfort, spiritual advantage, and eternal salvation, of all around you.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. X.—No visible relation to God, no sacramental privileges, can screen idolators, fornicators, tempters of Christ, unbelieving murmurers, or any similar transgressors, from his just vengeance. And instances of other men's sins and punishment should deter us from sinful indulgences or self-confidence, lest we fall into the like condemnation. Great is the mercy that God's faithfulness and grace secure, for his watchful and humble saints, mitigation of, support under, and seasonable deliverance from, all their troubles and temptations; that our Redeemer is so mighty, that we may safely trust him; and that he knows best what afflictions we need, and how long we should be exercised with them.—What a great and holy God we have to do with—infinitely jealous of his own honour! And highly do we affront him if in the least we countenance the worshipping of vain idols and impure spirits in them. Marvellous is his condescension and kindness in allowing us intimate fellowship with himself, and appointing solemn ordinances for that purpose. And totally inconsistent with our communion with Christ, and one another as his members, are the very smallest approaches towards fellowship with devils or lusts, or towards giving occasion of grief or sin to the weakest saints or neighbours. Things that are lawful in themselves must never be needlessly or unseasonably used to the ensnaring of others. God, to whom all things pertain, has given them to be used freely, or with restraint, as best tends to edification. And his glory therefore, and the spiritual advantage of our neighbours, ought to be our leading aims in all our actions, natural, civil, or religious.

CHAP. XI. Ver. 1. Carefully therefore follow my directions, and imitate my example, in condescension to the weaknesses and prejudices of others, for their good; and in every thing else in which I copy after the perfect pattern of our great Lord and Master Jesus Christ. 2. And indeed, my dear brethren, I cannot but commend you that, notwithstanding all that your false teachers have done to corrupt you, the better part of you still discover the most dutiful regard to my apostolic authority, reputation, and comfort, and to the most ye remember me in all things, and keep the *ordinances as I delivered them to you.

3 But I would have you know that the head of every man is Christ; and the head of the woman is the man; and the head of Christ is God.

4 Every man praying or prophesying, having his head covered, dishonoureth his head.

5 But every woman that prayeth or prophesieth with her head uncovered dishonoureth her head: for that is even all one as if she were shaven.

6 For, if the woman be not covered, let her also be shorn: but, if it be a shame for a woman to be shorn or shaven, let her be covered.

7 For a man indeed ought not to cover his head, forasmuch as he is the image and glory of God: but the woman is the glory of the man.

8 For the man is not of the woman; but the woman of the man.

9 Neither was the man created for the woman; but the woman for the man.

10 For this cause ought the woman to have power on her head, because of the angels.

11 Nevertheless, neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man, in the Lord.

12 For, as the woman is of the man: even so is the man also by the woman; but all things of God.

13 Judge in yourselves: is it comely that a woman pray unto God uncovered?

14 Doth not even nature itself teach you that, if a man have long hair it is a shame unto him?

15 But if a woman have long hair it is a glory to her: for her hair is given her for a covering.

16 But, if any man seem to be contentious, we have no such custom, neither the churches of God.

17 Now in this that I declare unto you I praise you not, that ye come together not for the better, but for the worse.

18 For, first of all, when ye come together in the church, I hear that there be divisions among you; and I partly believe it.

19 For there must be also heresies among you, that they which are approved may be made manifest among you.

20 When ye come together therefore into one place, this is not to eat the Lord's supper.

21 For in eating every one taketh before other his own supper: and one is hungry, and another is drunken.

22 What; have ye not houses to eat and to drink in? or despise ye the church of God, and shame them that have not? What shall I say to you? shall I praise you in this? I praise you not.

23 For I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, That the Lord Jesus, the same night in which he was betrayed, took bread:

24 And, when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, Take, eat; this is my body, which is broken for you: this do in remembrance of me.

25 After the same manner also he took important doctrines which I preached to you, and observe most of the rules relative to worship which I taught you. 3. Many irregularities, however, have been introduced into your church. Some of your women, under the pretext of praying or prophesying by immediate inspiration, appear in your public assemblies unveiled, and thus assume an undue authority over the men, or imitate the Heathen priestesses. I beg you would seriously consider that, by divine appointment suited to the nature of things, the Son of God, who created all things, is made Head over his church, and over all men for her benefit; and husbands, according to the superiority of their sex, are the head of government to their wives: and God the Father, who has put all things under Christ, has, in that view, an authority over him as Man and Mediator. 4. Now the veiling of the head being a badge of modesty and subjection, and uncovering of it a token of superiority, in your country and many others, every man, who by an extraordinary influence of the Spirit leads your public worship in prayer or preaching with a veil on his head or face, dishonours Jesus Christ, from whom he received his authority. 5. But every woman, who by the special influence of the Holy Ghost pours out her prayers to God, or delivers exhortations to the people, with her head unveiled, shews a disrespect to her husband and his whole sex; for that is all one in signification as if she wore her hair short in the manner of a man. 6. If therefore women will throw off their veils, those badges of modesty and subjection, let them cut their hair short as men do; and if, as every one must, they think that immodest and contrary to custom, let them keep on their veils. 7. For men, being the honourable representations of God's supreme and glorious dominion over all, ought to mark their head with no token of subjection, but women's subjection to men being their distinguished honour, they ought, in all public assemblies, to mark their heads with the tokens of it. 8. For, in the original creation of mankind, Adam was not created out of the substance of Eve, but she was formed of one of his ribs. 9. Nor was Adam originally created for the sake of Eve, who then had no existence, but she was created to be an help-meet for, and comfort to, him; plainly intimating that the woman, who was last formed, and out of the man, for his use, ought to live in all reasonable subjection to him. 10. Therefore, especially in acts of public worship, women, in deference to the superiority of those messengers whom Christ hath sent to preach the gospel, as well as in reverence to holy angels present; and that evil angels may have no occasion given them to suggest any thing proud or immodest; ought always to have their heads veiled as a token of men's superiority and power over them. 11. Nevertheless, no man must look on himself as an absolute lord over a woman, to command and rule her in a harsh and tyrannical manner, according to his will and pleasure; as now a man can no more be independent of the woman than she of him, both being equally necessary and useful to one another, and mutually obliged to study and promote each other's comfort and advantage: and both, without any alteration of their natural or relative duties, being equally the subjects of Christ's spiritual kingdom, and sharers of spiritual blessings. 12. For, as the woman at first was formed out of the man, so all the sons of Adam are conceived and born by women, the two sexes being thus the reciprocal means of each other's being and happiness. And it is God who makes each of the sexes what they are to one another, that they may discharge their mutual duties in the most affectionate manner. 13. I appeal then to your own unbiassed judgment, whether any inspiration from God can ever render it decent for a woman to invert the natural order of her appointment, and publicly mark herself as if equal in authority to a man. 14. Does not even nature itself, which has prompted all civilized nations to preserve an apparent distinction of the sexes, teach you that, according to the custom of your country, it would be reckoned effeminate in a man to wear his hair in the length and form of a woman's; 15. And that, on the other hand, it is an honour for a woman to distinguish herself from the superior sex by the length and form of her hair, as it was given her by God for this very end. —It therefore follows that veils, or any mode of dress which betokens modesty or subjection, ought always to be worn by your women in your religious assemblies. 16. But if, after all that I have said, any of your new teachers will contend for such a preposterous practice, know that no such thing is allowed by any apostle of Christ, or used in any New Testament church, whether of Jewish or Gentile converts. 17. Meanwhile, notwithstanding my having justly commended you for following my instructions and pattern, I must with regret reprove your disorderly behaviour in your religious meetings, which makes them turn out to the dishonour of Christ and your spiritual hurt: 18. For I am informed, and I fear too justly, that, when ye meet together for the celebration of Christ's ordinances, to the breach of order, peace, and brotherly love, ye fall into parties and unchristian divisions; 19. For, considering the depravity of human nature, and how busy Satan and his instruments are to promote every thing dishonourable to God and destructive to men, there cannot fail to be offences, factions, schisms, and great corruptions of doctrine and worship, in the church, which God, by his providence, overrules for the trial and honourable manifestation of sincere believers, and the detection of hypocritical professors. 20, 21. And this factious spirit has introduced such profane disorder amongst you in the celebration of the Lord's supper as hath transformed it into a kind of tumultuous revel, and a feast for your bodies rather than a solemn ordinance of Christ, appointed for an affectionate and brotherly fellowship with, and commemoration of, him.—They who come first, bringing their provision with them, fill their bellies, without waiting for their brethren: they who bring much with them, like Heathens at their idolatrous revels, eat and drink to the full, if not to excess; while the poor, who bring nothing with them, get nothing to eat or drink. 22. Think how absurd and scandalous this conduct is! If ye intend merely to satisfy your animal appetites, have ye not your own houses to eat and drink in? Or do ye aim at pouring contempt upon Christ's ordinances and church, and exposing and discouraging his poor members? 23. Ye cannot but know that it is contrary to the appointment of the Lord Jesus Christ; for, as taught by his own immediate revelation, I declared and recommended to you that he, as sole King and Head of his church, having a right to institute ordinances, or demand obedience to them, and power to bless them for our spiritual edification, did,—for the sealing of his testament, the confirmation of our faith, and that he might shew his constant affection to, and great care of, his people, and his infinite willingness and steadfast resolution to suffer for them, and that he might the more effectually engage our love to him and regard to this ordinance—on the very night before his death, in which Judas betrayed him, take a part of the bread which they had left at the paschal supper. 24. And, having prayed over it for a blessing on it, with thanksgiving to God for the riches of his love and grace, and so set it apart for the intended holy use, he brake it, and gave each of his disciples a small piece of it, requiring them to take and eat it as a token and mean of their receiving by faith, and feeding on, his person God-man, which was quickly to suffer and die in their nature for them;—and to do all in a believing, humble, joyful, thankful, and obedient remembrance of his person, dying love, extreme sufferings, the blessings thereby purchased, and of their obligations to love and duty thereby constituted. 25. In the same manner, after the passover supper, he took a cup with some wine in it, and setting it apart to an holy use by solemn prayer and thanks-

CHAP. XII.

To rebuke the Corinthians for turning their abundance of spiritual gifts into occasions of strife and envy, Paul here represents (1) That all these gifts come from God, and are granted and diversified for the propagation of the gospel and the edification of the church; 1—11. (2) Illustrates this by an allusion to the human body, in which every member hath its particular place and use for the good of the whole; 12—26. (3) Represents the diversity of gifts granted to the church, as Christ's body, for her general good; 27—30. (4) Directs to seek something more excellent than spiritual gifts; 31.

the church, for the improvement of true believers and the detection of hypocrites. In great kindness hath Jesus appointed his sacramental supper for the spiritual refreshment and mutual fellowship of his people on earth. And it ought to be observed in a simple, but judicious, obediential, believing, and devoutly solemn, manner, and for the most important ends. Serious examination of our state, nature, and practice, and of our condition, frame, and ends, should always precede our approaches to it. And in a distinct discernment of Jesus Christ, as God-man and the Lord our righteousness; and in delightful, but reverential, views of his second coming; ought we to receive it.—Heinous is the sin and fearful the danger of unworthily communicating. And often God severely chastises his own people for their misbehaviour in this ordinance. But how heaven-daring is it when multitudes who have no appearance of real godliness, are readily admitted to it! And highly improper when it is used only as a test of civil loyalty.

CHAP. XII. Ver. 1. Now, with respect to the distinguished gifts of wisdom, knowledge, prophecy, working of miracles, or the like, which have been abundantly bestowed on some of you by the Spirit of God, I would have you to consider their true origin, nature, and end, that ye may no longer make them occasions of pride, envy, and strife. 2. You cannot pretend that you deserved them, when ye were so lately drowned in ignorance, idolatry, and other wickedness, seduced by Satan and your priests to worship lifeless images and fancied deities; nor can ye pretend that such idols could bestow such gifts upon you. 3. To check your own pride, prejudice, and envy, and that ye may discern the difference of your spiritual gifts from all delusive and magical operations, observe, that no man, who thinks or acts under the influence of the Holy Ghost, whose design and work is to promote Christ's honour, can reject or represent Christ as an impostor, abandoned of God; nor can he work a miracle to confirm such blasphemy; and that no man can heartily acknowledge Christ for the great God, and his only Saviour, Lord, and Master, or preach him as such, and work any miracles to confirm his doctrine, but by the power of the Holy Ghost. 4. To manifest their true original, and also to direct you to the proper use of them, observe further, that, though the kinds and degrees of the gifts bestowed upon church officers and private believers be very diversified and numerous, yet it is the same divine Spirit who bestows and enables rightly to use them all. 5. And that, though there be a great diversity of offices and services in the Christian church, yet it is one and the same Lord Jesus who has instituted all these offices, and who calls and qualifies such particular persons to execute them; and they all act under his authority, and by his influence, as their Head, Lord, and King. 6. And, though there be divers miraculous operations performed in the exercise of these gifts and discharge of these offices, it is the one divine Father, who with his Son and Holy Spirit, produces all these abilities, and the good effects thereof. 7. And, to prevent your abuse of these spiritual gifts and offices, always remember that all these demonstrations of the peculiar presence, light, and power, of the Holy Ghost, and of the Father and Son along with him, are not granted to those who receive them for their own private advantage or honour, but for the instruction, edification, and confirmation, of the whole church or mystical body of Christ. 8. For this common end the same Holy Spirit endows one with a clear understanding of the doctrines of the gospel, and skill duly to preach and apply them to his hearers, that they may know and believe them to their own salvation: he endows another with a deep insight into the types and predictions of the Old Testament, and an ability to explain them to others and show how they are fulfilled in Christ, and what relates to him. 9. To another he freely grants a most assured persuasion of the truths of the gospel, an undaunted boldness in preaching them, and an unshaken dependence on Christ for that assistance which is necessary in any dangerous or difficult service. To another, for the confirmation of the gospel, he grants a power of healing all manner of bodily distempers in an instant, without the use of ordinary means. 10. To another he gives a power of inflict-giving, he intimated that this consecrated liquor was to be a standing symbol and mean of applying his blood or complete righteousness, by which the condition of the new covenant was fulfilled, its blessings purchased, and promises confirmed; and required them all to drink it in a fiducial, affectionate, penitential, grateful, and self-dedicating, remembrance, of his bleeding love and tremendous sufferings for their redemption. 26. For as often as ye eat and drink these consecrated elements, ye publicly avow to God, to your consciences, and to the world, that ye glory in your crucified Redeemer, believe and rest upon his death as the only ground of your pardon and reconciliation with God, and of all your hopes of eternal life,—and that in the firm faith of his appearance to judge the world. 27. Whoever therefore shall, contrary to the nature and design of this solemn ordinance, partake of it in an ignorant, irreverent, factious, uncharitable, carnal, and sensual manner, he shall be held guilty of profaning and pouring contempt upon the person and righteousness of the Lord Jesus, and, as it were, crucifying him afresh. 28. In order therefore to a safe and proper partaking of this ordinance, every person ought necessarily to examine his own state before God, his knowledge of the nature, use, and ends, of the ordinance,—and his faith, repentance, love, and new obedience; and to discern the Lord's body;—and with these serious inquiries, and in the exercise of these graces, to partake of the consecrated bread and wine in obedience to Christ's appointment, and as his instituted means of fellowship with himself. 29. For he, who, neglecting such preparation, eats and drinks this supper of the Lord Jesus Christ from carnal principles and views, with an unfriendly and contentious spirit, or in an hypocritical or irreverent manner, does thereby deserve and expose himself to the just judgments of God in this life and that which is to come, as he does not spiritually discern the person and righteousness of Christ, God-man, represented in these elements, but considers and uses them as common food. 30. And it is on account of your shameful disorders, in temper and practice, in the partaking of this solemn ordinance, that God has rendered many of you Corinthian professors weak and sickly, and has cut off others by death. 31. Did we indeed seriously and conscientiously search our own hearts and behaviour, and condemn and repent of whatever we found amiss, we should escape God's severe chastisements. 32. And, if any of us believers be terribly afflicted on earth, we are therein wisely and mercifully chastised by the Lord Jesus Christ as our Father, that we may be thereby restrained from such sinning as would be inconsistent with a gracious state, and that our future condemnation with the wicked world may be prevented. 33. Wherefore, my dearly beloved brethren in Christ, study for the future to avoid all profanation of this solemn ordinance; and, when ye assemble to partake of it, wait for one another, that ye may all communicate together at the same table, in truly Christian fellowship with Christ, and with one another as his children and brethren. 34. And, if any of you be hungry, satisfy your craving appetites at home, never at the Lord's table, which was appointed, not for satiating natural appetites, but for the spiritual refreshment of souls;—that so ye may no more meet to hurt and endanger yourselves by an uncharitable, carnal, and factious, profanation of that holy supper.—Some lesser disorders I expect to rectify when I pay you another visit.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XI.—In Christ alone we find example without defect, and authority without restriction. But whatever is good in his servants or people ought to be carefully imitated; and his ordinances should be conscientiously received from the hand of his ministers. With exact care ought all to observe the natural order of things, and to study a modest decency of dress, especially in worshipping assemblies. And it is hurtful to the interests of religion when church members fall into a contentious and uncharitable temper and conduct towards one another. Great is the mercy that God overrules this, as well as the heresies, the doctrines, which Satan and his instruments introduce into 11 But all these worketh that one and the self-same Spirit, dividing to every man severally as he will.

12 For, as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body: so also is Christ.

13 For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit.

14 For the body is not one member, but many.

15 If the foot shall say, Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body?

19 And, if they were all one member, where were the body?

20 But now are they many members, yet but one body.

21 And the eye cannot say unto the hand, I have no need of thee: nor again the head to the feet, I have no need of you.

22 Nay, much more those members of the body which seem to be more feeble are necessary.

23 And those members of the body which we think to be less honourable, upon these we bestow more abundant honour; and our uncomely parts have more abundant comeliness.

24 For our comely parts have no need: but God hath tempered the body together, having given more abundant honour to that part which lacked:

25 That there should be no schism in the body; but that the members should have the same care one for another.

26 And whether one member suffer, all the members suffer with it; or one member be honoured, all the members rejoice with it.

27 Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular.

28 And God hath set some in the church; first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues.

29 Are all apostles? are all prophets? are all teachers? are all workers of miracles?

30 Have all the gifts of healing? do all speak with tongues? do all interpret?

31 But covet earnestly the best gifts: and yet shew I unto you a more excellent way.

CHAP. XIII.

Recommends Christian love (1) As indispensably necessary; no gifts, liberalities, or even martyrdom, being of any real advantage without it; 1—3. (2) As transcendently excellent and useful in its

ness, strength, or honour, of the different members of the body, natural or spiritual, that there might be no discord, alienation, or disrespect, among fellow members, but all solicitously care for one another's welfare;—and that the union and mutual sympathy might be such, that the griefs, pleasures, honours, or dishonours, of every particular member might affect the whole. 27. Now, to apply all this to our present purpose,—ye, considered in your church state, are a mystical body, of which Christ is the Head, and connected in holy fellowship, not only with your fellow Christians at Corinth, but with all those who anywhere profess their union and communion with Jesus Christ; and therefore ought, in your several stations, to employ all your offices, gifts, and graces, for the good of the whole, and to sympathize with one another in trouble, and rejoice in the prosperity of others as if it were your own. 28. And, for the edification of the church, God has appointed in her officers of many diversified forms; such as apostles, who receive their commission immediately from Christ, are infallibly furnished with wisdom and knowledge, are founders of churches, and have authority over the whole visible church; 2dly, Prophets, who either foretell future events, or explain dark passages of the Old Testament by the word of knowledge; 3dly, Teachers, whether evangelists, who are fixed to no particular church, but are itinerant assistants of the apostles; or fixed pastors, who have particular charges; or preachers, who authoritatively proclaim Christ's messages to men; 4thly, Workers of miracles in general; 5thly, Miraculous healers of the sick; 6thly, Deacons, who assist church rulers in providing for the table of the Lord, the ministers, and the poor; 7thly, Ruling elders, who, without preaching, inspect the manners of the people, censure offenders, and govern the affairs of congregations, in sessions, presbyteries, or synods; and, in fine, speakers in foreign languages, or interpreters thereof. 29, 30. To pretend that all the members, or even all the officers, of the church ought to be apostles, prophets, preachers, workers of miracles, speakers with tongues, or interpreters, would be as absurd as to pretend that all the members of our human body should be of one sort, or fitted for every use, to render all the rest needless. But God hath so diversified these stations, offices, and qualifications, and yet so connected them, that none may either neglect, despise, or envy, another. 31. It is indeed laudable, with humble submission to God's will, to desire earnestly the most eminent gifts, in subordination to Christ and his grace: but it is far better to improve whatever gifts God gives you, be they more or less, with a spirit of love for each other's edification.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XII.—Great is the stupidity of men if left to their own hearts' lusts. And alarming was the wickedness and wretchedness of the Gentile world when God called them by his gospel and grace. Very necessary is the indwelling operation of the Holy Ghost to procure Christ his due honour and obedience. And manifest is his supreme Godhead, who supplies the whole church with furniture, miraculous or gracious. With great wisdom and sovereignty he bestowed his extraordinary influences for the confirmation and spread of the gospel in the primitive church; and continues his ordinary gifts and graces in the church till the end of the world. And all his gifts are given, not so properly for the receiver, as for the glory of God, in the conversion and edification of others. Marvellously are church members and officers connected into one body under Christ their Head. And mutual usefulness, love, and sympathy, ought to spread through the whole. The very meanest member should be esteemed and honoured, as dear to Christ and useful to the church. No necessary office or officer is wanting in her: and all ought to remember that a gracious principle of love to Christ and his people is more excellent than any gifts whatever.

ing plagues on notorious offenders, or of raising the dead, or of conferring miraculous powers on others. To another he grants an ability to foretell future events, which, when fulfilled, tend to the confirmation of the gospel. To another he gives an ability to discern whether other men be actuated by the Spirit of God or by the devil; and whether their tempers, designs, and qualifications, render them fit for being employed in any public affairs of the church. To another he gives an ability to speak whatever foreign languages are necessary for the propagation of the gospel. And, in fine, to another he gives an ability to interpret, with propriety and exactness, whatever is said in an unknown tongue to such as do not understand it. 11. But, whatever be the diversity of the gifts in their kind or degree, or of the persons to whom they are granted, or of the noble purposes for which they are designed, they are all conferred by the same Spirit of God, who, for the general benefit of the church, bestows his gifts upon particular persons, in whatever form or degree, or with whatever success, he pleases. 12. For, as our head, eyes, ears, hands, feet, and other parts of our outward man, do all concur to form one body, actuated by one soul; so, in the church of Christ, all the members unnumbered, in their inexpressibly diversified stations and conditions, do, in union with Jesus Christ their Head, form one complete mystical body or catholic church. 13. For, without any regard to our being Jews or Gentiles, slaves or freemen, or any other condition of outward life, we are all, by these gifts, and by our participation of baptism and the Lord's supper, and by the renovation which we have experienced, and the spiritual nourishment we receive, divinely connected into one Christian church, and entitled to all the blessings and privileges thereof. 14. And, as in the natural body, so in the spiritual body of Christ, many members, some of superior, and others of inferior, excellence and use, do all necessarily conduce to the perfection and beauty of the whole; 15, 16. How absurd were it to pretend that any particular member is not a part of our body, because it is not some other more excellent and useful member! And no less absurd were it, to pretend that those members of the church, whose gifts and graces are of an inferior degree, are of no necessity or advantage to the whole church of Christ, or the advancement of his glory. 17. If all our bodily members were fitted for one use, we must want all the senses but one; and, if all the members of the church had but one sort of gifts and graces, the beauty, pleasure, and advantage, of its rich variety would be lost, to the great detriment, or rather ruin, of the whole. 18. But, as in the natural body, so also in the church, God has placed and connected every member to the best advantage, and furnished it with proper powers, which must be exercised for the common benefit of the whole. 19—22. Nay, there could not be either a human or a spiritual body, unless there was a variety of members fitted for different purposes, and wisely connected together: so that the members which have superior excellence or usefulness as necessarily depend on the inferior ones as they on them.—Yea, the very weakest members of our body, such as the organs for digesting our food, or circulating our blood and animal spirits, are more necessary to the life and vigour of our body than some of the strongest; and so weak Christians are often more useful than some apparently stronger. 23—25. And, as we bestow more pains to conceal and finely cover some uncomely parts of our body, so, in this imperfect state, the less graceful members of the church ought to have their infirmities covered with a mantle of love:—for, as our face, hands, and other comely parts, of our body need not be adorned or concealed, but only those which are less graceful; so in the church, while the more eminent ministers and Christians easily approve themselves to the consciences of all around, the Lord requires that others, who are weaker, but sincere and faithful, should have their infirmities tenderly concealed and borne with, and that they should be assisted and encouraged in every thing good. 26. God has thus adjusted the excellency, useful-properties and effects; 4—7. (3) As most durable; abiding after all gifts for edification, and even the graces of faith and hope in their present form of exercise shall have ceased; 8—13.

THOUGH I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal.

2 And, though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains; and have not charity, I have nothing.

3 And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.

4 Charity suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up,

5 Doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil,

6 Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth;

7 Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.

8 Charity never faileth: but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away.

9 For we know in part, and we prophesy in part.

10 But, when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away.

11 When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child: but, when I became a man, I put away childish things.

12 For now we see through a glass darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known.

13 And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.

CHAP. XIV.

(1) Recommends the seeking after such spiritual gifts as are most useful to edify others, particularly that of prophecy; 1—5. (2) Illustrates the unprofitableness of barely speaking in unknown tongues in God's public worship by several similitudes; 6—12. (3) Exhorts to an intelligent mode of public worship, that may profit strangers as well as ourselves; 13—20. (4) Shews the proper use of the gift of tongues, and the greater advantage of prophesying; 21—25. (5) Reproves and regulates the disorders which arose in their religious assemblies from men's vain ostentation of their gifts; 26—33: and women's speaking in the church; 34—40.

FOLLOW after charity, and desire spiritual gifts, but rather that ye may prophesy.

2 For he that speaketh in an unknown tongue speaketh not unto men, but unto God; for no man understandeth him; howbeit, in the spirit he speaketh mysteries.

3 But he that prophesieth speaketh unto men to edification, and exhortation, and comfort.

4 He that speaketh in an unknown up to manhood we put away our childish, weak, confused, crude, and mistaken notions, and our silly and trifling manner of speaking of things, so, when we arrive at the state of perfect men in Christ, we shall correct multitudes of our present mistakes, and shall have inexpressibly more just and clear apprehensions of divine things than in our present state of childhood on earth. 12. For, in this mortal state of imperfection, we obtain no more, through the word and ordinances of God, than an obscure, confused, and perplexing view of the mysteries of his nature, perfections, purposes, and works of creation, providence, and redemption; but, in the state of glory above, we shall know these matters in the most immediate, clear, distinct, perfect, and satisfying manner;—like to that in which we are now known by our most familiar friends, or shall be known by God, angels, and glorified saints. 13. Not only is this Christian love preferable to every spiritual gift, but even to every saving grace; for, in this present life, faith, hope, and love, constantly reside in us, and ought to be exercised by us, as all absolutely necessary in our salvation: but love is the most excellent, as it relates not only to God and ourselves, but also to our neighbours: it is the evidence of true faith and hope: it is our brightest conformity to God, who is love: and when faith and hope shall, as it were, give place to immediate vision and full enjoyment, love to God, to Christ, to saints, and holy angels, will forever flame with the most disinterested and delightful ardour, as a great part of our happiness.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIII.—Men may make splendid and pompous appearances in the church, and yet be destitute of real principles of grace. No gifts, however miraculous, no liberality, however extensive, no sufferings for the cause of Christ can avail, unless they be connected with a principle of saving faith in Christ, and love to him and to his people. Marvellous is the excellency and usefulness of true evangelical love. What benevolence, meekness, patience, humility, forbearance, candour, willingness to believe and hope the best; what disinterested sympathy and generosity; what tender and friendly care; it produces! It is much more durable than all spiritual gifts, and, in some sense, than its sister graces of faith and hope, which are so useful in this world. And thrice happy will it be when saints arrive at a perfect knowledge of God; and when love, for the promoting of which, faith and hope were but means, shall eternally flame in all our breasts to JEHOVAH, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, as our ALL and IN ALL, and towards our fellow sharers in happiness on his account!

CHAP. XIV. Ver. 1. Let me therefore earnestly entreat and charge you to cultivate, improve, and exercise, this important grace of Christian love; and, in subordination to it, be zealously concerned to abound in spiritual gifts, provided it be with a view to glorify God and edify your neighbour: and I recommend to you chiefly the gift of prophecy, by which, under the direction of the Holy Ghost, ye may explain and apply the oracles of God, for instructing, edifying, and confirming, one another upon the principles and in the exercise of Christian love. 2. For, as to the gift of speaking unknown languages, which some of you are so fond of, it is much less useful; for, let a man deliver the most important and seasonable truths, under the immediate direction of the Spirit of God, in a language which his hearers understand not, they are nothing instructed or edified by all that he says. 3. But he who explains Old-Testament types, or predictions, or publishes articles of gospel truth, in plain language, speaks to his audience in a manner calculated to enlighten their understanding, awaken their conscience, warm and comfort their heart, and direct and excite them to the duties of holiness. 4. He who speaks to an audience in the now disused Hebrew or any other unknown language, or in a style above their capacity, may express what tends to his own spiritual edification; but he who explains the scripture, and makes known the will of God relative to the salvation of men, not only profits his own soul, but becomes instrumental in the conversion of new members to the church, or in promoting the knowledge, faith, love, and holy obedience, of CHAP. XIII. Ver. 1. Such is the transcendent excellency and necessity of that true Christian love, which, from regard to Christ and in obedience to his commands, earnestly seeks the good of others, that, though I or any other could, by the special gift of the Holy Ghost, speak all the languages of mankind with the eloquence of angels, we should be as a mere empty noise or useless shew if we were destitute of this. 2. Had we the gift of prophecy, qualifying us to foretell all future events, or explain and apply all the predictions of the Old Testament; or had we the clearest insight into the sublime mysteries of the gospel or revelation, and the greatest compass of human knowledge that ever a mere creature attained; and had we the strongest faith of miracles, that we could remove mountains at pleasure; yet, without this true Christian love to God, and to men for his sake, we could not exercise these gifts for his glory and their good; nay, could have no real grace, no true Christianity. 3. And, though we were so liberal as to dispose of all that we have in the world for the relief of the poor, and shewed so much zeal, fortitude, and self-denial, as to suffer the most cruel martyrdom for the truths of Christ, yet, if we had not sincere love to him, and his members, interests, and honour, it would be of no advantage to our spiritual or eternal happiness, but merely procure a transient and empty character among men. 4. This true Christian love of which I speak, is a most amiable, generous, and operative, grace: it endures injuries, affronts, and provocations, with great patience and long-suffering: it is always courteous, affable, and beneficent; ready on every occasion to do good: it never grudges, nor murmurs at, the prosperity, riches, honours, gifts, or graces, of others: it never behaves with insolence, contempt, or scorn, towards persons of inferior rank or attainments; nor acts rashly or perversely to the hurt of others; nor does it fill a man with proud conceit of his own person, gifts, graces, or worldly privileges: 5. It never disposes men to act any thing indecent, base, vile, or unsuitable to their station, age, calling, or Christian profession: it never aims at, nor pursues, any private personal advantage, to the hurt of others, nor inordinately seeks after riches, honours, or pleasures, at the expense of others: it is not angry without cause, nor easily provoked with the greatest injuries, nor disposed to any unchristian resentment: it is never ready to suspect evil of others, or to put the worst construction upon their conduct; much less does it seek to find fault, to aggravate what is really amiss, or to devise mischief of any kind: 6. It takes no pleasure in falsehood or unrighteousness, either in ourselves or others, but grieves at our and their sins and failures, and rejoices in their just and regular deportment, and in our own sincere and faithful behaviour towards God or men; and delights to see the truth of the gospel, and real, vital, and practical religion, flourish in ourselves or others. 7. It covers the faults of others as far as can be done without sin; bears their infirmities, and suffers many injuries, rather than requite them. It is inclined to believe good of every one, till it have convincing evidence to the contrary; and even where things look suspicious it hopes the best as long as it can, and that, by the grace of God, what is wrong may be afterwards amended; and it continues steadfast, patient, and christianly brave, under all the hardships and ill usage it meets with. 8. This superexcellent grace of love to God, to Christ, and to his people, is never utterly lost out of the heart, and is of perpetual use in every circumstance of life in this world: and in the other it will be perfected, and shine forth in all its glory; whereas the gifts of foretelling future events, speaking with divers tongues, or of immediate inspiration in the mysteries of the gospel for the instruction of others, are only useful for a little while in the church on earth, and will be of no use at all in the eternal state. 9, 10. For even the best and wisest of us have here but a very imperfect knowledge of the divine mysteries or future events represented to us in the word of God; but, when we arrive at the heavenly state of perfection, for which we are looking, hoping, and longing, all the defects which attend our own knowledge or communication of it to others, will be removed, and we shall have as plain and extensive views of things present and future as the most perfect happiness of the most exalted creatures can require. 11. For, as when we grow those formerly converted. 5, 6. I could heartily wish that ye could all speak foreign languages, but much rather that ye were skilful in explaining and applying the doctrines of divine revelation; for it is of far greater use and importance plainly to explain the mysteries and predictions of God than to discourse of his most wonderful works in a language which the hearers cannot understand. 7—9. For, (to illustrate the point by similitudes,) as a pipe or harp cannot excite the different passions, or direct different motions in mourning or mirth, unless the sound be made distinct and answerable to them; nor can a trumpet direct the march, the charge, or retreat, of soldiers in war, unless it be distinctly and answerably sounded; so your words are all lost unless you speak in intelligible language; and ye might as well speak to the wind, if your hearers do not understand you. 10. There are perhaps as many different languages in the world as there are different nations in it, and all of them useful to convey ideas to such as understand them, but to no one else. 11. If I then should meet with one who talks in a language which I do not understand, and who understands nothing of mine, neither of us could instruct, or be instructed by, or even sensibly answer, one another, any more than if we were wild savages of different nations: and this will be the very case with you, if ye deliver divine truths to others in an unknown language. 12. Let me then beseech you, who are so zealous to obtain spiritual gifts, to be less careful of speaking strange languages, and more earnest for such gifts as may increase the number, and promote the knowledge, faith, and holiness, of your fellow Christians. 13. And, if any be still fond of a miraculous speaking of foreign languages, let him supplicate God for ability to interpret what he says to his hearers in their mother tongue, that they may be profited by the discourse. 14. For, if I or any other should pray as the mouth of a company who understand not my words, my own heart might be engaged in the prayer, but the impression of what I say, on my own mind, could be of no use to them who know not the meaning of my words. 15. It is therefore manifestly proper that, in leading the prayers and praises of a congregation, not only I myself should understand and be affected with what I utter, but that my language should be plain to all who profess to join with me, that they may with understanding heartily join in the work. 16. Or else if any of you, under the immediate direction of the Holy Ghost, offer thanksgiving and praises to God in a public assembly in an unknown language, he, who understands nothing but his mother tongue, and comes to learn by your administrations, can never give his assent or consent, either in heart or voice, because he knows not the meaning of your words. 17. You may have performed this part of worship in a very judicious, spiritual, heavenly, and affectionate manner; but the hearers, who do not understand what you say, cannot be profited by it. 18, 19. For my part, I thank God that, in the extensive course of my ministry, I have been enabled to speak, as occasions required, in many more foreign languages than any, if not all, of your teachers. But, instead of priding myself in this talent, I had rather utter a few plain words, calculated for the instruction and edification of my hearers, than make ten thousand discourses in a language which they do not understand, and so cannot be profited by them. 20. Never, my brethren, shew yourselves weak and childish in affecting novelties or pompous appearances, as for instance the speaking of unknown languages. Be like children in the meekness, harmlessness, and humility, of your disposition and behaviour; and in freedom from all malicious, proud, and envious designs; but in knowledge, judgment, and discretion, especially in your apprehensions and management of spiritual things, it becomes you to think and act like men grown up to a ripeness of understanding. 21, 22. To make you less fond of speaking in unknown languages, and that you may use them only in a proper manner, remember that God threatened to punish his incorrigible people by nations whose language they understood not, as well as to enable his ministers to speak in divers languages, without any happy effects.—The being spoken to in unknown languages is therefore but an occasional mean of punishing obstinate unbelievers, or a miraculous mean of converting Heathens to Christ at first, by manifesting the power of God;—whereas the explaining and applying the doctrines of the Old Testament is, by the ordination and blessing of God, a standing mean of gaining sinners to Jesus Christ, and of building up saints in holiness and comfort through faith unto complete salvation. 23. If then while ye or other churches are met for worshipping God in your public assemblies, and every one that speaks in preaching, prayer, or praise, is using an uninterpreted language, which the audience does not understand, some Heathen, who knows not a word of what is said, should come in, would your use of unknown languages be a likely mean of convincing or converting him? or would he not rather contemn you, as a number of frantic enthusiasts or men possessed by the devil, rather than conducted and influenced by the infinitely wise Spirit of God? 24, 25. But, if, where every minister preaches or prays plainly in a well-known language, an Heathen or ignorant person come in, he has, in every discourse, a fair opportunity to be, by the Spirit of God, effectually convinced of his sin and misery, and made to condemn himself as guilty. Thus his state and secret dispositions, thoughts and actions, being exactly laid open to his conscience by the preachers, struck with a reverential awe of God's majesty, he will be constrained, with brokenness of heart, to a deep humiliation for sin and supplication for mercy, and will report to his friends that God attends his ordinances among you with extraordinary power and influence. 26. How absurd is it, brethren, that, in your meetings for public worship, one of your public teachers should raise a psalm, another tender an instruction or exhortation, another speak in an unknown language, another deliver some immediate inspiration, another interpret what is delivered in an unknown tongue, perhaps all at once, or as if each were fond first to display his talents. Let these gifts of the Spirit, and every thing else, be used in such an orderly and seasonable manner as to prevent all confusion, and as may be most effectual for enlarging the church of Christ and promoting the spiritual growth of every member of it. 27. And if, after all that I have said, some of you will use foreign languages, let it be at suitable times, and in a regular manner, so that there may not ordinarily be above two or three speakers at a time, and they one after another; and let one faithfully interpret what they have said in the vulgar tongue, that all may receive instruction. 28. And if no one present can interpret it, let none use his gift of tongues, as the assembly cannot be profited by it; and let him be contented to use it in his own secret devotions. And, with respect to the gift of prophecy, let but two or three of them who have it speak at one of your public meetings, and that in an orderly manner, without interrupting or interfering with one another: and, as many false prophets are gone abroad in the church, let every thing uttered by one prophet be carefully examined and tried whether it agree with the tenor of Old Testament predictions and New Testament revelations. 30. And, if any important intimation of God's mind be made to another prophet, who is in the assembly as a hearer and judge, let the speaker, upon a proper signal given, stop, and give him an opportunity to declare it. 31. In this orderly manner, all your teachers may have successive opportunities to declare the truths of Christ, for the instruction and comfort of one another and of the whole church. 32. And it is certain that no inspiration of the Holy Ghost can render men frantic or disorderly, as diabolic influences render the heathen priests; but it leaves every one to govern himself becomingly, either as to the matter, manner, or time, of his discourse. 33. For that infinitely wise God, who inspires them, can never be an author, abettor, or encourager, of any disorderly, unseasonable, and tumultuous, conduct in his worship; but, as the God of peace and order in all the assemblies of sanctified believers, he is the commander, approver, promoter, and author, of every thing regular, pacific, and edifying. 34. And, as for your women, let them never, except in extraordinary cases of inspiration, speak at all in your public assemblies, but learn, according to the law of God, to discover the utmost humility, and modest subjection to the other sex. 35. And, if they want more thorough information about any thing said in public, let them ask their husbands at home concerning it; for it is unbecoming the modesty of women, except when inspired, to presume to discourse or debate in public religious assemblies. 36. Why should ye indulge practices different from those of all other Christian churches? Ye cannot pretend that ye are the only, or even the first planted, church from which the truths of the gospel and an original pattern of conduct were conveyed to others. Are ye not then equally tied down to the institutions of Christ, the common King and Head both of you and them? 37. If any of your high pretenders to an uncommon share of spiritual gifts think himself authorized to give laws to your church, let him know that the directions which I have given you were communicated to me by the Spirit of Christ, and are founded in the general rules which he laid down in his personal ministry. 38. And, if any will perversely persist in his ignorance, contempt of, or opposition to, these rules, let him do it at his peril before God, whose mind I have declared. 39. On the whole, I advise you to be most desirous of the gift of prophecy, which is most useful for general edification; and, nevertheless, I do not forbid nor discourage the regular use of the gift of tongues. 40. But in every thing carefully avoid all appearance of childishness, frenzy, or other indecency, in the public worship of God; and labour to perform it in a manner exactly answerable to the commands now given you from Christ, which will most glorify God, honour his doctrines, ordinances, and ways, and edify the souls of his people.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIV.—What diversified gifts God bestowed upon his Christian church in her infant state! And those gifts which are most useful and edifying ought to be chiefly prized and sought after. What is most showy is ordinarily least useful. And every gift ought to be improved for the good purposes for which God bestows it upon men. It is absurd to preach or pray in a language which the assembly do not generally understand; and both absurd and criminal to preach in an uncertain general manner, that can neither distinctly inform the mind nor closely impress the conscience. Those discourses are best which are calculated to penetrate into the hearts and consciences of hearers, the most ignorant not excepted.—The envy, malice, and self-conceit, of members, especially of preachers, are highly injurious to any church. But it is very becoming and happy when all are humbly inclined to learn, careful to keep their own station, and zealous in their exact adherence to all the ordinances of God, without any mixture of human inventions.

CHAP. XV. Ver. 1, 2. Moreover, with respect to the resurrection of the dead and the certainty of a future state, I will again set before you the great fundamental truth—which I preached unto you, and which ye were convinced of, and embraced as the foundation of all your hope towards God; and in the profession and faith of which the generality of you still persevere, notwithstanding all the pains of false teachers to corrupt you; and, by means of which, all of you who truly believe were brought into a state of salvation, having already the beginning and earnest, and a full security for the complete perfection, of it:—3, 4. This great and fundamental truth, which I received from God by immediate inspiration, and first and chiefly delivered unto you in my preaching as a most sacred and valuable trust, to be inviolably kept by you, was, that Jesus Christ, the Son of God in our nature, according to the manifold types and predictions of the Old Testament, died in our stead, to make atonement for our sins and reconcile us to God, and was buried by Joseph of Arimathea and other friends; and, by his own, his Father's, and the Spirit's, almighty influence, rose from the dead on the third day. 5—7. And that, to manifest the absolute certainty of his resurrection, and instruct his apostles concerning the form of his New Testament church, he continued on earth forty days, and appeared, on several occasions, to the most unexceptionable witnesses, who could neither be deceived themselves, nor were under any temptation to deceive others.—Thus, on the very day of his resurrection, he appeared to Peter, and at night to ten of his disciples, and that day seven-night to eleven of them. Some time after he appeared to five hundred of his followers in Galilee; most of whom still live to attest it, though some of them have, by death, fallen asleep till the general resurrection. After that he was seen of James the son of Alphaeus, his kinsman according to the flesh, and then of all the apostles, if not also the seventy disciples, just before his ascension to heaven. —8. And, after all these repeated and undoubted appearances to his friends, several years after his ascension he appeared to me in an extraordinary manner, that, as an eye witness, I might be able to attest his resurrection; though, alas, I was not among his followers during his life, but was converted and called to the apostleship out of the ordinary time, and by an uncommon extension of free grace! 9. For, however remarkably Jesus Christ has enriched me with qualifications for, and success in, the apostolical work, I was utterly unworthy of that office, or even of the smallest mercy, because, during my ignorance of Christ, instigated by a furious zeal for the Jewish religion, I outrageously persecuted the church, which God had formed for a peculiar people to himself, and which he because I persecuted the church of God

10 But, by the grace of God I am what I am: and his grace, which was bestowed upon me, was not in vain; but I laboured more abundantly than they all: yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me.

11 Therefore, whether it were I or they, so we preach, and so ye believed.

12 Now, if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead?

13 But, if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen.

14 And, if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain.

15 Yea, and we are found false witnesses of God; because we have testified of God that he raised up Christ: whom he raised not up, if so be that the dead rise not.

16 For, if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised:

17 And, if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins.

18 Then they also who are fallen asleep in Christ are perished.

19 If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable.

20 But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first-fruits of them that slept.

21 For, since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead.

22 For, as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive.

23 But every man in his own order: Christ the first-fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming.

24 Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he shall have put down all rule, and all authority and power.

25 For he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet.

26 The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death.

27 For he hath put all things under his feet. But, when he saith all things are put under him, it is manifest that he is excepted who did put all things under him.

28 And, when all things shall be subdued unto him, then shall the Son also himself be subject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all.

29 Else what shall they do who are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? why are they then baptized for the dead?

30 And why stand we in jeopardy every hour?

31 I protest, by your rejoicing which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord, I die daily.

32 If after the manner of men I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what advantageth it me, if the dead rise not? let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die.

wns and blesses, and in and by which he will be for ever glorified. 10. But, by the free, sovereign, infinite, and transcendent, favour of God, I, a blasphemer, persecutor, and injurious person, am made a believer and apostle, qualified with every proper endowment; and that grace and apostleship freely bestowed upon me, was not unprofitable; for, under a deep sense of his marvellous grace, I have unweariedly, and amidst difficulties and sufferings unnumbered, exerted myself, and all my gifts and graces, for his honour and the good of souls, more than any other apostle did. I mention this to confute my reproachers; but do not attribute my diligence and success to any excellency or care of mine, but wholly to the determining and assisting grace of God: 11. But, whether ye ascribe your conversion and edification to me, or to any other instrument, the doctrine of the death and resurrection of Christ is what we all preached and ye always professed to believe and depend on, as the sole ground of your eternal salvation. 2. Now, if the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead to immortal life and glory, as the Head of the church, has been so uniformly preached, with undoubted evidence of its certainty, how absurd is it for any who bear the Christian name to pretend that there neither is, nor can be, a real and proper resurrection of men's dead bodies to eternal happiness or misery. 13. For, if there be no resurrection of the dead, then, contrary to the most abundant and incontestible evidence, Christ himself cannot have risen from the dead, as the earnest, pledge, pattern, cause, and first-fruits, of them that sleep in him. 14. And, if Christ be not risen as the public Head of his people, the whole gospel of salvation, which we apostles and others preach, is a mere fable, unworthy of regard, and your faith in it and in him is a mere empty conceit. 15, 16. Nay, if Christ be not risen from the dead, we, who have testified his resurrection at the hazard of all that was dear to us in the world, and with the greatest simplicity and integrity, must be the most impious and abandoned miscreants, who have forged lies for God, and have wilfully published a damnable falsehood in his name, as if he had raised up Christ from the dead;—when it is certain he neither did nor could raise him up, as a public person and Head of his church, if his members are not to rise after him, and in virtue of his resurrection. 17. And, if it were true that Christ still continues in the state of the dead, your faith in him is quite useless, and it is absolutely foolish to expect any benefit from his crucifixion. For, unless he has not only satisfied justice for your sins, but risen again for your justification, ye must remain for ever under the guilt and power of your sins, condemned and exposed to the eternal wrath of God. 18. And, in this case, they who have died in the closest union to, and fellowship with, him, and in the most assured hopes of eternal life through him, or who have even suffered death for his sake, must for ever perish without remedy, disappointed of all their hopes in and from him. 19. And if, after all our faith in Christ, and dependence on him, and all the self-denial, mortifications, and sufferings, to which we have submitted for his sake, we have no prospect of happiness from him beyond this present life, we Christians, and especially ministers, must be the most silly, deluded, and wretched, creatures on earth, who for nothing real, in time or eternity, part with all the conveniences, delights, and advantages, of this world, and submit to calamities unnumbered. 20. But we have sufficiently proved that Christ, in consequence of his full satisfaction for our sins, is actually raised from the dead, and become, not only the first, in order of time, who rose to an immortal life; and the chief, in respect of dignity, who, as Head of his church, rose by his own power; but also the earnest, pledge, and security, of the resurrection of all his people. 21. And since, by the first Adam's eating the forbidden fruit, death and ruin were brought upon all mankind; therefore God, in infinite wisdom and mercy, has appointed the happy resurrection of elect men to eternal life, to be brought in by Jesus Christ, the second Adam or new covenant Head. 22. For, as in the first Adam, as their common parent and covenant head, all men by sin are subjected to death temporal as well as spiritual and eternal; so in Christ, as their new covenant Head, who fulfilled the law for them, and communicates all vital influence to them, all elect men are, by the merit of his death and power of his resurrection, quickened to life eternal as well as spiritual, that, in their bodies as well as their souls, they may for ever reign with him in glory—and, as all who were in Adam die, so all who are in Christ shall be made alive. 23. But indeed he, and each of his members, must partake of this life in their proper rank, time, and order; he as the first-fruits, who is already risen as their public Head, Representative, and Pattern, to ensure their resurrection and sanctify them to the service of God; and then they whom the Father has given to him, and whom he has purchased by his blood, conquered by his power, taken possession of by his Spirit, united to his person, and furnished with his grace,—at his second coming to judge the world. 24. Then shall come the end of this world, and of all the changes, temptations, sins, and snares, under which believers now groan, and of all the instituted means of grace, and of those ministerial assistances of angels and men, which they now need. And Christ having finished the whole work of his administration of providence and grace in its present form, and having abolished every form of civil and ecclesiastical government, and all the usurped powers of men and devils, shall solemnly deliver up his commission, trust, and charge, to God the Father, from whom he received it,—and present all his members together, as one glorious church. 25. For, according to the purpose, covenant, and promise, of the Father, Christ, as Man and Mediator, must sit at his right hand, and reign over all persons, causes, and things, till all his enemies, temporal and spiritual, be placed in absolute and actual subjection to him, as captives of war, trampled under his feet. 26. And the last enemy, which, for the sake of his people, he shall utterly destroy and abolish, is death, which now prevents the complete happiness of their persons, and must be destroyed by the raising of their dead bodies to immortal life. 27. For Christ must reign till all, except JEHOVAH himself, who delegated to him his mediatorial power and authority, be manifestly subdued by, or subjected to, him. 28. And when his mediatorial methods of government have had their full effect, in the conversion, sanctification, and complete glorification, of his mystical body, and the conquest of all his incorrigible enemies, he shall lay aside the present forms of administration as the appointed mediatorial governor of the world, and shall surrender up himself as such, and his whole church, to his Father, to be for ever honoured and blessed, each in their due order, with the full and immediate enjoyment of the Godhead as their ALL and IN ALL. 29. Moreover, to return to the point in debate, if there be no resurrection of the dead, to what purpose are professed believers baptized in the name of Christ, in hopes of a happy resurrection through him? Or why are they induced to it by what they have seen and heard of martyrs dying triumphantly for Christ in the assured hopes of such a resurrection? Or why are the children of the deceased baptized on their parents' account, in order to fill up their room in the church? 30. And, if the dead rise not, how weak and absurd is it for us Christians and ministers continually to expose ourselves to the greatest losses, hazards, and troubles, for his sake, in hopes of an eternal life and reigning with him in glory! 31. I solemnly protest that, as really as the blessed Comforter dwells in our hearts, and makes us to rejoice in God through Christ in hopes of eternal life, I am daily exposed to, and stand ready for, sufferings of every form and degree for Christ's sake. 32. Now to what purpose have I struggled with men, outrageous, malicious, furious, and unreasonable, as beasts, or been exposed to, or am ready to encounter, devouring wild beasts for the sake of Christ and his cause, if there be no future blessedness, no resurrection to eternal life? I had much better act the epicurean, indulging myself in sensual pleasures, as I know not how soon death may deprive me of every opportunity. 33. But let no seducer thus decoy you from the faith of the first principles of all Christianity, nay, and of morality.—Frequent and familiar conversation with persons of an atheistical and luxurious turn will insensibly and deeply corrupt your minds and morals, and destroy every principle of religion and virtue. 34. Be therefore sober, and rouse up yourselves to serious and just consideration, and to a righteous and holy life; and beware of being seduced into delusive errors and sinful practices: for, by their denying the resurrection of the dead, I perceive that some of your teachers are ignorant of God and his perfections, manifested in the gospel. And this hint ought to make them ashamed of themselves, and you ashamed of countenancing them. 35. Perhaps, indeed, some of your self-conceited doctors will ask me how men's dead bodies can be raised to life, after rotting into dust and being scattered and intermingled with bodies unnumbered? Or in what form, power, or capacity, they will be raised, answerable to the happiness of the glorified souls reunited to them? 36. How foolish and absurd is it to set up your weak notions in opposition to the power and wisdom of God!—Even in common things, do we not see that seeds cast into the earth spring not up till they first rot and die under the clods? 37, 38. And do we not see that, however many forms God causes the bare grains of wheat, &c. to assume in their growth and ripening, yet they at last produce a body answerable to the seed? 39—41. And is it not evident that out of the same original dust God forms animals, whose flesh and qualities are extremely different; and that of the same matter he hath formed bodies, some grosser, others more refined; and that the properties and glories of the heavenly luminaries, though all sprung from one original, are extremely different? 42, 43. In like manner, the wisdom and power of God operate in the resurrection of the dead, particularly of the saints, rendering their bodies fit companions for their souls in the glorified state. In this world their bodies are frail, mortal, and, by death, subjected to putrefaction; but they shall be raised free from all corruptibility, dissolution, or decay, and rendered immortal, never more to die. In this world they are mean, contemptible, liable to deformity and defilement, and feeble and weak, liable to sickness, pain, weariness, fainting, and death, incapable of defending themselves from surrounding evils;—and, being laid in the grave, become loathsome carcases, an easy prey to the weakest worm; but they shall be raised beautiful, glorious, and shining, as the sun or stars; and with such vigour, health, and strength, as will enable them to keep pace with their glorified souls in every operation. 44. In this world they must be maintained by food, sleep, and air, as the bodies of brutes, and in the grave they are quite destitute of sensation: but, in their resurrection, the Holy Ghost dwelling in them shall so refine them, as to make them need no animal refreshment, and render them inexpressibly light and active. 45. Thus the diversified conditions of our bodies will answer to our two different covenant heads; the first Adam being made a living soul, which could communicate sensitive life to his own body, or that of his seed; whereas Christ, the second Adam, is a quickening spirit, who conveys spiritual and immortal life to the bodies of his saints at the resurrection, by his Spirit dwelling in them. 46. Nay, these conditions of our bodies will answer to the very order in which Adam and Christ

46 Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural;
and afterward that which is spiritual.

47 The first man is of the earth, earthy: the second man is the Lord from heaven.

48 As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy: and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly.

49 And, as we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly.

50 Now this I say, brethren, that 'flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption.

51 Behold, I shew you a mystery:
'We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed,

52 In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed.

53 For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality.

54 So, when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written,
'Death is swallowed up in victory.

55 O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?

56 The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law.

57 But thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

58 Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always stand connected with us; that which is natural, and less excellent, according to God's ordinary method, preceding that which is spiritual and inexpressibly excellent and glorious. 47. For the first Adam was formed out of the dust, and was of an earthly constitution; whereas the second Adam is the eternal Son of God, who, descending from heaven, assumed our nature into an union with his person, and who will at the last day descend from heaven to raise the dead bodies of his saints, and receive them to himself. 48. They who descend from the earthly Adam derive from him an earthly, animal, and mortal body, such as he had in his fallen state: and they who are spiritually begotten by Christ, born from above, and formed with heavenly dispositions for heavenly enjoyments, shall derive a spiritual, heavenly, and immortal, body from him, such as he has in his exalted state. 49. And, as we believers bear the debased image of our first father and covenant head, in the earthly, animal, sickly, and mortal, state of our bodies, and in their putrefaction and corruption in the grave; so, by virtue derived from Christ our new covenant Head, our bodies at the resurrection shall be conformed to his immortality, strength, glory, and honour, that we may for ever bear his image in our whole person. 50. And indeed this great alteration of our bodies is absolutely necessary, as, in their present gross, animal, sluggish, and corruptible nature, they could neither share the visions and pleasures, nor join in the services, of the heavenly state, where God is ALL and IN ALL. 51—54. And, to inform you of a thing never before plainly revealed, the bodies of all believers shall not die or rest in graves, but some shall undergo a surprising and glorious change, equivalent to dying and rising again. For in that moment in which Christ shall awfully and efficaciously call up the dead bodies from their graves, the living ones shall be changed from corruptible and mortal to incorruptible and immortal, answerably to the everlasting glories designed for them.—And, when our bodies shall be thus glorified and immortalized, death, that formidable tyrant, who had so long conquered and reigned over the believers' outward man, shall, with respect to every one of them, be finally conquered and totally abolished. 55. In the view of these things, all real Christians may now, by faith, triumph over death and the grave, as things which can do them no real hurt, and which shall be obliged, by Jesus Christ, to restore them back with inexpressible advantage. 56. It is the unremoved guilt, power, and pollution, of sin which renders death either hurtful or painful; and it is the holy law of God, which, by condemning to death spiritual as well as temporal and eternal, in a mysterious but awful manner, founds and fortifies the reigning, enslaving, and destructive, power of sin. 57. But thanks be to God, who, through the merits and power of Jesus Christ as our new covenant Head, gives us deliverance from the guilt, power, and pollution, of sin, and a complete victory over death and the grave, and every other opposer. 58. In the views then of all that has been taught you concerning the death and resurrection of Christ, and our glorious resurrection to eternal life through him, let me beseech you, as beloved of God and dear to my soul, to excite, animate, and encourage, yourselves to a firm and constant steadfastness in the faith, hope, and holy profession, of the gospel, and to be invariably increasing and abounding in every good work towards God or men;—fully persuaded that your almighty, gracious, and faithful, God will, through Christ, assist you in your obedience and suffering, and freely reward you with endless life and glory.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XV.—How fully confirmed, and infinitely important and delightful, are the doctrines of Jesus' atoning death and glorious resurrection, and of our resurrection to eternal life through him! The scriptures of the Old Testament, and the witnesses of the New, join to attest them.—God's grace can make a most wonderful change on the most perverse transgressors. And many sorrows do they escape who are the earliest partakers of it.—All true ministers harmoniously determine to know and preach nothing but Christ, and him crucified and glorified. And wonderful are the methods of God's grace; that, as by a sinning man came death, so, by a dying and rising God-man, came the happy resurrection of the dead! It is highly absurd to deny these fundamental principles of our Christian religion; for, if these be false, all apostles are downright deceivers; Jesus' death, and all our faith and hope, and all our services and sufferings, are in vain; yea, all morality and religion are an unavailing farce. But certain is his glory and high exaltation; and no less certain our resurrection and future glory together with him. Wonderful are the works of God in creation and providence, and much more in redemption, of which the former are but emblems. And marvellous is the change that shall be made on our bodies, to qualify them for their heavenly glories. With what joy may we even now, through Christ, triumph over death and the grave! And the believing views of our future, our eternal, glories should animate our hearts to unremitting activity in Christ's service.

CHAP. XVI. Ver. 1. As to the charitable collection desired of you for the Christians in Judea, who, through persecution and the public calamities of their nation, have been reduced to great poverty, I give you the same directions which I gave to the Christian brethren of Galatia, whose ready compliance therewith will I hope excite you to benevolence, who are much their superiors in temporal wealth as well as in spiritual gifts. 2. Upon every first day of the week, when you, as other Christians, assemble for public worship, in commemoration of our Saviour's resurrection, let every one of you, according to his income or the success of his business, lay by him a certain proportion, and put it into the common stock for the poor, that when I come to visit you and receive it, every thing may be ready. 3. And whomsoever of your brethren ye think most proper, prudent, compassionate, and faithful, I will readily concur in their being appointed to carry into our brethren in Judea: 4. And, if it be thought of any advantage to that benevolent and pious design for me to accompany them, I shall readily grant them all the assistance and encouragement I am capable of. 5. Now, if the Lord will, I am determined to visit you whenever I have finished this tour through Macedonia, which I intend to begin as soon as I can have finished my present work at Ephesus. 6. And I hope that, after I have continued among you a considerable time, for our mutual edification and comfort, some of you will kindly and respectfully accompany me to some other place. 7. For such is my ardent affection towards you, and concern for your welfare, that I cannot think of paying you only a transient visit, but wish and expect, through the sovereign disposal of the Lord, to continue some time to assist you in your spiritual affairs. 8. But I find it needful for me to stay here at Ephesus till I shall have but just enough time to go up to Jerusalem at the feast of Pentecost, which I purpose to attend, that I may make known what I have preached, and with what success, to the multitudes of Jews and proselytes who that he may be with you without fear: for he worketh the work of the Lord, as I also do.

assemble there on such occasions. 9. For here at Ephesus the Lord has given me a great opportunity of boldly and successfully preaching the gospel; and I am called to make a resolute stand against the subtle and furious enemies of my person and ministrations. 10. Meanwhile, if Timothy, my dearly beloved and faithful fellow labourer, whom I have sent to you, arrive safe, see that ye receive and treat him in a friendly, peaceable, and orderly, manner; and let him not be discouraged or insulted by any of your factious preachers, for he comes to you upon the same important business, and with the same temper and sincere affection for you, as I wish to come. 11. Let none of you think to behave disrespectfully towards him, or slight what he delivers to you in the name and authority of Jesus Christ, because of his youth or bodily infirmities, but use him kindly: and when he returns to me, which I long for, I expect that you will furnish him for his journey, and some of you attend him for his protection. 12. I entreated our dear and eloquent brother Apollos, whom some of you admire, to come to you with the bearers of this letter, in hopes of his exerting himself to extinguish your party divisions; but, being afraid that his presence might rather encourage the party which is zealous for him, or be interpreted as an attempt to ingratiate himself, he absolutely refused to come just now, but intends to see you whenever it may appear more seasonable. 13. And, to conclude my directions at this time, I beseech you to keep a watchful eye upon all those that would, either by craft or terror, seduce you from the truth or holiness of the gospel; watch over your own deceitful and inconstant spirits; watch unto prayer, and every other duty; stand fast in the knowledge, faith, love, profession, and practice, of the important truths which have been preached unto you, living by faith on them, and appearing zealous in their defence. Notwithstanding all opposition or danger, prudently, boldly, and resolutely cleave to the truths and ways of the Lord, resisting sin, and every temptation thereto, and performing duty like men ripened in judgment, strong in grace, and firmly established in Christ. 14. And see that whatever ye do, in the maintenance or practice of the truths of Christ, be done with meekness and love, for promoting the peace, holiness, and edification of others, as well as your own. 15. And I earnestly beg that you will shew a particular respect to the family of Stephanas, which were the first converts to Christ in your country, and a pledge and earnest of the great multitudes which have since been converted, and which have all along behaved themselves as the sincere disciples and faithful servants of the Lord Jesus, and have, in an orderly manner, devoted themselves to assist and supply his ministers or poor members. 16. Instead of being carried away by new upstarts, take your direction or pattern in a respectful manner, from such as have already signalized themselves in faithfulness to Christ and his church, or in the laborious spread of the gospel. 17, 18. I am extremely glad that ye sent me your letter by such prudent and worthy brethren, who gave me a more clear and comfortable account of your church affairs than your letter did, and who, to your honour, by their Christian behaviour, as well as by their candid and charitable representations, exceedingly quieted and refreshed my spirit. I hope that ye will shew to such valuable, faithful, and affectionate, brethren the highest regard. 19—21. The Christians here in Lesser Asia, particularly Aquila and Priscilla, and their pious family, along with me, send you their Christian good wishes of all temporal or spiritual prosperity: and see that ye in every pure, tender, and affectionate, manner express your regard one to another.

duty of great importance; and ministers ought to encourage and promote it, and see that the liberality of churches, under their care, be duly applied. And, in proportion as God succeeds our temporal affairs, we should join in it, and even beforehand provide for it; yea, all ought cordially, and from love to Christ, to vie with one another in it according to their ability. And as a part of worship, collections for the poor should attend our public devotions. Ministers ought to go or stay wherever Christ in his providence calls them; and to rejoice in great opportunities of preaching the gospel, whatever opposition from adversaries attend them. Devoid of jealousy or envy, highly should they honour one another, and readily receive such as appear faithful and heartily devoted to the service of Christ. Inexpressible need have real Christians to be always watchful and steadfast in the faith, profession, and practice, of the gospel. And it is delightful when in all their conduct they appear closely united in cordial affection one to another, and when the gracious influences of Christ qualify them for every necessary duty. But, alas, dreadful is the vengeance which awaits those who under the gospel dispensation continue enemies to our gracious Redeemer! And most terrible to such is his second coming.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE

TO THE CORINTHIANS.

Informed by Titus; chap. ii. vii.: of the good effects of his former epistle upon the generality of the Corinthians, Paul, about a year after, wrote them this second letter, probably from Philippi, after his return from Troas in Lesser Asia, and while Timothy was with him; chap. ix. 2: and i. 1: and ii. 12, 13: with Acts xix. 22: and xx. 1—4.—After a preface, he apologizes for delaying his visit, and recommends the restoration of the penitent incestuous person to church fellowship; i. ii.:—boldly exhibits his apostolic character, labours, success, sufferings, and encouragements, for the confutation of their false teachers; iii. vi: and shews himself every way superior to those proud calumniators; x—xiii.—4: inculcates practical holiness, evangelical repentance, cheerful collection for the poor, self-examination, and other necessary duties; vii—ix. xiii.

Here, after an assertion of his apostolic office and a Christian salutation; 1—2. Paul (1) Blesses God for comforting him under, and delivering him from, his troubles, for the encouragement of others under trouble; 3—11. (2) Asserts his own and his fellow labourers' integrity of conduct; 12—14. (3) Vindicates himself from levity or inconstancy in his purpose to have visited them sooner; 15—24.

PAUL an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, unto the church of God which is at Corinth, with all the saints who are in all Achaia:

2 Grace be to you and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who constituted him our Mediator, and prepared for him his marvellous manhood; and who, in and through him, appears full of the most tender compassion, and is the author of all pardoning and relieving mercies, and bestower of all comfort, temporal, spiritual, or eternal; 4. EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. I. Ver. 1, 2. I, Paul, whom Jesus Christ has immediately called to the high office of apostleship, according to the sovereignly gracious appointment of his Father;—and Timothy, my beloved and faithful fellow Christian, and minister of the gospel,—to all those at Corinth, and the places adjacent, that appear effectually called, graciously regenerated and sanctified, and set apart to the holy services of Christ,—wish the most abundant manifestations and fruits of God's free favour and mercy through Jesus Christ. 3. Magnified, adored, loved, and praised for ever, be that infinitely great and gracious JEHOVAH, who from eternity, in an inconceivable manner, begat our Lord Jesus Christ, who constituted him our Mediator, and prepared for him his marvellous manhood; and who, in and through him, appears full of the most tender compassion, and is the author of all pardoning and relieving mercies, and bestower of all comfort, temporal, spiritual, or eternal; 4. Who, by his word, Spirit, and providence, supports, assists, and comforts, us ministers and Christians in all our painful and pressing troubles, outward or inward, particularly in such as we endure for adhering to his truths;—and that not merely for our own benefit, but that we may be thereby experimentally taught, disposed, and qualified, to sympathize with, and administer suitable and seasonable encouragement and comfort to, others in their afflictions, for animating their faith and hope to expect the like refreshment and deliverances. 5. For, as we have been uncommonly troubled and persecuted for the sake of Christ, so, through union to and intimate fellowship with him, we have been proportionally filled with spiritual comforts to balance it: 6. And all these things are divinely intended and ordered for your unspeakable advantage. If we be pressed with troubles, it is that ye, beholding us enabled to bear them with Christian courage, patience, and joy, may be emboldened to persevere in your holy profession and practice unto complete salvation, and to undergo similar troubles on Christ's account. 7. And, from what I have heard of my former epistle, I rest assured that, as God has the sufferings, so shall ye be also of the consolation.

8 For we would not, brethren, have you ignorant of our trouble which came to us in Asia, that we were pressed out of measure, above strength, insomuch that we despaired even of life:

9 But we had the sentence of death in ourselves, that we should not trust in ourselves, but in God who raiseth the dead:

10 Who delivered us from so great a death, and doth deliver: in whom we trust that he will yet deliver us:

11 You also helping together by prayer for us, that for the gift bestowed upon us by the means of many persons thanks may be given by many on our behalf.

12 For our rejoicing is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity and godly sincerity, not with fleshly wisdom, but by the grace of God, we have had our conversation in the world, and more abundantly to you-ward.

13 For we write none other things unto you than what ye read or acknowledge; and I trust ye shall acknowledge even to the end.

14 As also ye have acknowledged us in part, that we are your rejoicing, even as ye also are our's in the day of the Lord Jesus.

15 And in this confidence I was minded to come unto you before, that ye might have a second benefit:

16 And to pass by you into Macedonia, and to come again out of Macedonia unto you, and of you to be brought on my way toward Judea.

made you willing to sympathize with and share in our sufferings for Christ, he will, in his rich grace and faithfulness, make you partners with us in our abundant comforts, as your condition shall require it. 8. Passing over many other afflictions which we have met with, ye perhaps have heard that we were so terribly persecuted and cruelly abused for preaching the gospel in Lesser Asia, that we had scarcely any hopes of escaping with our life. 9. But God reduced us to this apparently desperate extremity that we might learn to live by faith on him, and have no dependance on our own wisdom or strength, or the favour or influence of friends, but only upon his life-giving, preserving, and restoring, power, goodness, wisdom, and faithfulness, for our protection and deliverance. 10. And we firmly trust that this God, who, by marvellous interpositions, did, and still does, preserve us in life amidst the greatest dangers, will continue to deliver us from doing evil ourselves, or being hurt by the wickedness of others, and preserve us safe unto his heavenly kingdom: 11. And that, in answer to your prayers as well as our own, such marvellous preservations and deliverances, procured by many prayers and intended for the spiritual edification of multitudes, may issue in abundant thanksgivings of many to God. 12. For, whatever reproaches and troubles I and my faithful fellow preachers of Christ have met with, we have in our own breasts the heart-ravishing and triumphant testimony of our consciences, in every reflection upon our principles, tempers, motives, views, and conduct, that with an ingenuous undisguised sincerity and singleness of heart, and with the most upright aims to promote the glory of God,—not with any cunning artifices of carnal policy, or selfish or secular designs or motives, but by a governing principle of grace, which God has wrought in our hearts, and by the gracious directions and assistance, which he, in free favour, continually affords us,—we have conducted ourselves in the whole of our ministerial and personal behaviour, and in a particular manner towards you. 13, 14. What I have now hinted is nothing more than ye have read in my former letter, and which I understand ye generally acknowledge to be true; and I hope that, by the grace of God, ye shall never have occasion to think otherwise;—even as the better part of you have already, with great pleasure, honourably acknowledged me and my fellow preachers to have been the instruments of your conversion and spiritual comfort;—and we have rejoiced on account of the gifts and graces bestowed upon you, and expect to see you presented, as the seals of our ministry, before our Lord Jesus Christ in the last judgment. 15. And, being satisfied of our having mutual comfort in one another, I truly intended to have made you a second visit before now, that, by my preaching and conversation, ye might be further refreshed and built up in Christ, and others converted to him. 16. I intended not indeed to visit you on my return to Macedonia, as then I could have merely seen you, but to continue with you some considerable time after my return from thence, and that some of you should help me forward in my way to Judea with the collection for the saints there. 17. In forming this design, which has not yet been accomplished, I did not, as your new preachers pretend, act inconsiderately or lightly, regardless of what I said or did; nor was it a compliment to flatter and deceive you; nor did I alter my resolution without sufficient ground, or as influenced by any carnal and secular considerations; nor did I, like a wicked man regardless of his word, affirm and deny the same thing by turns. 18, 19. No: I dare appeal to the infinitely true and faithful JEHOVAH that, in my whole conduct, I have acted consistently with truth and sincerity, and that the subject of my own and my brethren's ministrations are the stable and unchangeable truths of God!—for with uniform evidence 17 When I therefore was thus minded, did I use lightness? or the things that I purpose, do I purpose according to the flesh, that with me there should be yea yea, and nay nay?

18 But, as God is true, our word toward you was not yea and nay.

19 For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, who was preached among you by us, even by me, and Silvanus, and Timotheus, was not yea and nay, but in him, was yea.

20 For all the promises of God in him are yea, and in him amen, unto the glory of God by us.

21 Now he who establisheth us with you in Christ, and hath anointed us, is God;

22 Who hath also sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts.

23 Moreover, I call God for a record upon my soul, that to spare you I came not as yet unto Corinth.

24 Not for that we have dominion over your faith, but are helpers of your joy: for by faith ye stand.

CHAP. II.

Here Paul (1) Suggests that he had delayed his visit to the Corinthians till he should see if they would, to his great comfort, rectify their disorders before he came; 1—4. (2) Directs them kindly to restore the deeply penitent incestuous person to their church fellowship; 5—11. (3) Informs them of his own labours, success, and joys, in spreading the gospel of Christ in several places; 12—17.

BUT I determined this with myself, that I would not come again to you in heaviness.

2 For, if I make you sorry, who is he then that maketh me glad, but the same who is made sorry by me?

of certainty we preached Jesus Christ, the eternal Son of God, in his person, offices, and benefits, which are for ever invariably the same; 20. For in him, the faithful and true witness, all the great and precious promises of the new covenant, given forth by the unchangeable God, and clearly exhibited under the New Testament dispensation, are infallibly and invariably the same;—all established and put in force by his death, that they may be effectually and completely fulfilled in their proper time and order to his people, to the praise and glory of God's truth, faithfulness, and grace by our ministrations. 21, 22. And it is this great and unchangeable God who establishes and strengthens us, ministers and people, to abide in the truth through virtue of our union to Christ,—and by his Spirit furnishes us with all necessary gifts and grace; who has also graciously distinguished, marked, and secured, us for his own,—confirmed his covenant with us, assured us of our interest in it, and imprinted his holy image upon us, and has given us his Spirit to dwell, and shed abroad his love and influence, in our hearts, as a pledge and earnest of our eternal inheritance. 23. And I dare appeal to him, in the most solemn manner, that I delayed my visit to you merely from tender affection to you, that I might come, not to exercise my power in censuring and reproving you, but in kind and meek encouragement and comfort. 24. Not that I, or any other minister of Christ, have any right to domineer over your faith, by requiring you to believe or practise any thing in religion which is not required by Jesus Christ, the only Head of the church: but we are authorised by God, and sincerely desire and endeavour, to promote your spiritual comfort, by recovering you from what would hinder it, and by establishing your faith in Christ, and the promises which are confirmed in him; for it is by such a divine faith, founded on God's own authority and faithfulness, that ye have stood, and must continue to stand, in your state of grace to eternal salvation.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—An unbounded source of mercies and blessings is a reconciled God in Christ. And delightful is it to have the God and Father of Christ ours also. Faithful ministers and Christians may expect to meet with great troubles on earth. But it is enough if God proportion their comfort to their tribulations, and make all to issue in the edification of his church. Yea, thus God often delightfully prepares his ministers, by their own trials and comforts, to comfort others. It is happy to see all our troubles and comforts wisely ordered by God to draw us off from resting in creatures to a sole dependance on himself; and to be enabled so to live amidst reproaches and persecutions as our consciences cannot but attest our uprightness and holiness.—Joint fervent prayers bring down remarkable blessings upon ministers and others. And, if God answer our prayers in remarkable benefits to many, abundant thanks should be rendered to him for his kindness. Happy is it when ministers earnestly pray, faithfully preach, and prudently vindicate their own character, in order to promote the remarkable edification of the church. And wonderful is the blessed provision which God hath made, in promises and spiritual influences, for the instruction, comfort, establishment, and eternal salvation, of his people.

CHAP. II. Ver. 1. From a tender and affectionate regard to you, I chose rather to delay my promised visit; that your having rectified your disorders before I came, might render it more welcome to you and agreeable to myself. 2. For, if by sharp reproofs and censures I had grieved any of you, nothing but the deep repentance and remarkable reformation of those very persons could

3 And ^cI wrote this same unto you, lest, when I came, I should have sorrow from them of whom I ought to rejoice; having confidence in you all, that my joy is the joy of you all.

4 ^dFor out of much affliction and anguish of heart I wrote unto you with many tears; not that ye should be grieved, but that ye might know the love which I have more abundantly unto you.

5 ^eBut, if any have caused grief, he hath not grieved me, but in part: that I may not overcharge you all.

6 Sufficient to such a man is this ^fpunishment, which was inflicted of many.

7 ^gSo that, contrariwise, ye ought rather to forgive him, and comfort him, lest perhaps such a one should be swallowed up with overmuch sorrow.

8 Wherefore I beseech you that ye would confirm your love toward him.

9 For to this end also did I write, ^hthat I might know the proof of you, whether ye be obedient in all things.

10 ⁱTo whom ye forgive any thing, I forgive also: for, if I forgave any thing, to whom I forgave it, for your sakes for-gave I it [†]in the person of Christ;

11 ^kLest Satan should get an advantage of us: for we are not ignorant of his devices.

12 Furthermore, when I came to Troas to ^mpreach Christ's gospel, and a door was opened unto me of the Lord,

13 ^oI had no rest in my spirit, behave turned my sorrows into joy. 3. And for this reason I did, and do now again, write to you, that all your disorders may be rectified before I come, that I may not have my mind burdened with grief by you, whose steadfastness in the faith, holiness, and order, of the gospel should be a comfort to me; and I hope that every thing relative to the glory of Christ and the good of his church, will be your joy as well as mine.

4. For it was in great distress of spirit, on account of their deplorable and dangerous condition, that I directed you to excommunicate the incestuous person, or other manifest apostates from Christ. And I mention it now, not to awaken and renew your grief, but to manifest my deep concern for you and other Christians, and for the repentance and salvation of the most notorious delinquents. 5. But, if the incestuous person, or others notoriously scandalous, have, by their drawing upon themselves that awful censure, given uneasiness to me, or to such of you as are conscientiously concerned for the glory of God or good of their soul; (for I did not intend, in my former epistle, to charge you all as connivers at his criminal conduct.) 6, 7. Yet now, when the censure passed upon him by your church rulers, according to my direction, has been blessed by God to render him deeply penitent, ye ought to regard him as pardoned by God, and to encourage, comfort, and restore, him to your church fellowship, and behave towards him in the most compassionate manner, lest, through the overwhelming distress of his mind, he sink into utter despair. 8. I did not more earnestly charge you to censure him when he was persisting in his wickedness than I now beseech you to restore him to your religious fellowship, and behave towards him as a brother, that he may plainly see that your censure of him proceeded from your earnest care to promote his spiritual advantage. 9. And by your restoring as well as excommunicating him, you will give full proof of your submission to my apostolic authority, which indeed was a part of my end in writing to you. 10. And, to encourage you to this restoration of him to church fellowship, I, who concurred in his excommunication, hereby declare myself satisfied with his repentance; and, to testify my concern for his and your order, peace, and comfort, I do, in the name, and as in the presence, of Jesus Christ, declare him forgiven by God, and fit to be restored to the communion of the church. 11. And I am the more concerned for his being kindly and speedily restored, lest Satan, who envies the success of my ministry, the recovery of offenders, and the edification and increase of the church, should take occasion to prejudice any against us, as if we were of a rigid and unforgiving temper; or to discourage other offenders, and hurry them into despair or apostasy: for we have had much experience of his malicious designs and subtle stratagems to hinder the success of the gospel, and the peace and prosperity of the church. 12. The remarkable opportunity of preaching the gospel, which has Christ for its author, matter, and end, with the great success which the Lord gave me at Troas, helped also to retard my visit to you. 13. Yet, amidst that comfortable success which I had there, such was my anxiety for the return of my dear brother Titus from you to inform me of your spiritual concerns, and what effect my former epistle had upon you, that it made me set off and travel into Macedonia to meet him; where, to my great satisfaction, I found him, and received from him a comfortable account of your affairs. 14. Now blessed be the Father of mercies and God of all comfort that, notwithstanding all the opposition, trouble, and vexation, which have befallen me and my fellow labourers in the gospel, he enables us always to rejoice in what Christ is to us, and hath done, and will do for us; and that by our ministrations he spreads abroad his precious, heart-captivating, and delightful, declarations and offers of redeeming grace, and makes our labours acceptable to himself through Christ. 15. For in the faithful discharge of our commission we are well-pleasing to God on Christ's account, and through the reference which our doctrines and services bear to him, whether our hearts be effectually wrought upon cause I found not Titus my brother: but, taking my leave of them, I went from thence into Macedonia.

14 ^pNow thanks be unto God, who always causeth us to triumph in Christ, and ^qmaketh manifest the savour of his knowledge by us in every place.

15 For we are unto God ^ra sweet savour of Christ, in them that are saved, and in them that perish:

16 ^sTo the one we are the savour of death unto death; and to the other the savour of life unto life. And ^twho is sufficient for these things?

17 For we are not as many, who [†]corrupt the word of God: but as of sincerity, but as of God, in the sight of: God speak we in Christ.

^u Is. 1. 22. ch. 1. 12. & 4. 2. & 11. 13. 2 Pet. 2. 3. 1 Tim. 6. 5. Tit. 1. 11.

CHAP. III.

Here Paul (1) Appeals to the Corinthians' own experience for the good effects of his ministry, and ascribes all the praise to God; 1—5. (2) Proves the preference of the gospel to the legal administration; 6—11. (3) Shews that his preaching was suited to the excellency and evidence of it, and had an enlightening and transforming efficacy, through the power of the Holy Ghost; 12—18.

DO^a we begin again to commend ourselves? or need we, as some others, epistles of commendation to you, or letters of commendation from you?

2 ^bYe are our epistle written in our hearts, known and read of all men:

3 Forasmuch as ye are manifestly declared to be ^cthe epistle of Christ, ministered by us, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not in tables of stone, but in fleshy tables of the heart.

by it to the salvation of their souls, or whether they obstinately reject it to their everlasting damnation,—he favourably accepting our labours in his Scr not according to our success, but according to the right principles motives, and ends, diligence and integrity, in fulfilling them. 16. As to some, indeed, our preaching of this pure, precious, and heart-ravishing, gospel of Christ is altogether disagreeable to their carnal and corrupt heart; and, through their obstinate rejection and perverse abuse of it, eventually increases their spiritual death, condemnation, and everlasting destruction: but to others it conveys, with inexpressible delight, spiritual quickening, pardon, and comfort, and issues in their complete enjoyment of eternal life.—What man then, without the special assistance of Christ and his Spirit, is able to discharge this important work in a duly humble, holy, disinterested, zealous, faithful, earnest, and affectionate, manner? 17. For we are not like your judaizing or upstart preachers, who adulterate and debase the pure and glorious gospel by mingling with it legal observances and human inventions, to serve their own pride and avarice, but with the utmost integrity and plainness we preach it true and genuine, without any additions, alterations, or secular views;—as by the authority and direction, and in the presence and view, of God himself, and looking for all assistance and acceptance through Christ, who is the great subject of our ministrations.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—What tender love and deep concern ministers ought to have for the edification of their people! And great is the sympathy and charity they ought to exercise towards them. With grief and pain should they observe their faults, or proceed in necessary censuring of them, uniting therewith an earnest care to promote their repentance and restoration to church fellowship. And church censures ought to be taken off whenever the proper ends for which they are inflicted are gained. To deny our forgiveness to such as we have ground to hope God has forgiven, is a disobedience to Christ, and gives Satan an opportunity of rendering the persons censured desperate or profligate, and of representing Christ's followers as odiously rigid. For many are his wiles to dishonour Christ's cause and prevent the salvation of souls. But God, to the joy of his servants, makes the gospel of his grace gloriously triumphant at last, to the salvation of some and redoubled damnation of others. How delightful then on the one hand, and awful on the other, and how important and difficult, is the work of a gospel minister! Great grace from God is necessary to enable men to preach his gospel purely, heartily, candidly, and conscientiously, always dependant on Christ. And, alas, awful is the guilt, the danger, of multitudes, who adulterate it with human inventions, or who preach it in an unfaithful manner, and from carnal motives and ends; or who make the work of the ministry but a secondary business!

CHAP. III. Ver. 1. Do ye imagine that by thus avowing my own and my brethren's integrity I wish, like your vain-glorious preachers, to set forth our own praises? No, it is merely for your sake and the gospel's that I have touched on that point;—Or do we, like your false apostles, need letters of recommendation from one church to ingratiate us with another? 2. No, ye yourselves are the dear seals of our ministry. The grace of God planted in your hearts by means of it, and manifested in your holy conversation, is, to our inexpressible comfort, a demonstrative evidence to all of our divine call to and assistance in our work. 3. In respect of your gifts, graces, and holy conversation, ye are our recommendatory epistle from Christ, formed, through our ministrations, by the almighty Spirit of that God who has all life in himself, and is the Fountain and Bestower of it on others;—an epistle written, not with ink, as is the best we could have from men; nor even on tables of stone, as Moses received the law from God, but in the tender, pliant, living, and sensible, tables

4 And ^d such trust have we through Christ to God-ward:

5 ^e Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think any thing as of ourselves; but our sufficiency is of God;

6 Who also ^f hath made us able ministers of ^g the new testament; ^h not of the letter, but of the spirit: for ⁱ the letter killeth, but ^k the spirit ^l giveth life.

7 But, if ^m the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones, was glorious, so that the children of Israel could not stedfastly behold the face of Moses for the glory of his countenance; which glory was to be done away;

8 How shall not the ministration of the Spirit be rather glorious?

9 For, if ⁿ the ministration of condemnation be glory, much more doth the ministration of righteousness exceed in glory.

10 For even that which was made glorious had no glory in this respect, by reason of the glory that excelleth.

11 For, if that which is done away was glorious, much more that which remaineth is glorious.

12 Seeing then that we have such hope, ⁿ we use great [†] plainness of speech:

13 And not as Moses, ^o who put a vail over his face, that the children of Israel could not stedfastly look ^p to the end of that which is abolished:

14 But ^q their minds were blinded:

^o Exod. 34. 33, 35. ^p Rom. 10. 4. Gal. 3. 23, 24. Col. 2. 17. ^q Ch. 4. 3, 4. Is. 6. 9, 10. Ezek. 12. 2. Mat. 13. 11—15. John 9. 39. & 12. 40. Acts 28. 26. Rom. 11. 8, 25. Ps. 69. 23.

of your renewed hearts, made susceptible and retentive of every spiritual and holy impression. 4. And, as our ministrations have had these effects upon you, we trust in the promise, power, and grace of God that they will continue to have the like effects upon others; to their salvation, our vindication, and his own honour.

5. Not that we pretend to have any power of ourselves to convert or edify any man, or even to think one truly good and spiritual thought; but all our fitness and success are wholly and only of God by the operation of his Spirit;

6. On him alone we depend for it, and to him we ascribe the glory of it, who has graciously furnished us with every needful qualification, and gives us all seasonable assistances, to render us faithful and successful ministers of the gospel, which holds forth the covenant of grace in its utmost evidence, freeness, and fulness, as now confirmed by the death of Christ;—not ministers of the law, which God wrote on tables of stone, and which, in its long-continued dispensation, was comparatively weak and dead, condemning men to death and destruction;—but ministers of the gospel, which, by the marvellous agency of the Holy Ghost, is made effectual, for the quickening, converting, comfort, and eternal life, of multitudes, Gentiles as well as Jews.

7, 8. Now if the law, the ministration of which tended to condemnation, death, and destruction, and which was written on tables of stone, was delivered at Sinai with so much glorious pomp and awful majesty, and attended with a transient impression of glory on the face of Moses, who conveyed it to the people, how much greater glory, and that of a spiritual nature, must there be in the delightful dispensation of the gospel, by which the Holy Ghost conveys his enlightening, quickening, sanctifying, and saving, influences into such multitudes of souls; and how much more excellent that abiding glory which it imprints upon the duly qualified, authorised, and faithful, ministers, of it? 9. For, if the ministration of the law and legal ceremonies, which left men under a sentence of condemnation and death, was attended with such awful glory and majesty, the ministration of the gospel, in which the righteousness of God for the justification of believers is revealed and offered, and by means of which the faith whereby we believe unto righteousness is wrought in our heart, must be much more abundantly transcendent in its endearing excellency and honour.

10. Nay, the legal dispensation, which was introduced with so much glorious pomp at Sinai, has no glory at all when compared with the glory of the gospel dispensation of light and grace. 11. For if that legal dispensation, which is now abolished and set aside as weak and imperfect, was so glorious, much more must the New Testament dispensation, which is so excellent in itself, and abides till the end of time unalterable in its privileges and ordinances, be truly, emphatically, and beyond all comparison, glorious! 12. Being therefore, upon such considerations, fully persuaded of the superior worth and excellency of the gospel above the legal dispensation, and humbly trusting to the Lord to make it effectual for the salvation of souls, we are emboldened to use great freedom, openness, and plainness, in our preaching this word of his grace, without any reserve, fear, or disguise, on the one hand, or any embellishments of human art on the other.

13. We do not wish in any manner to conceal its intrinsic native beauties—as Moses covered his shining countenance with a vail, to hide it from the Israelites; intimating that, partly through the obscurity of his dispensation, and partly through the carnal blindness of their own minds, they could not distinctly by faith behold the true scope and design thereof in Jesus and his work, thereby typified.

14. And indeed both the ancient and modern Jews have been generally so blinded and hardened in their hearts that they did not conceive the proper meaning of the Old Testament types and predictions: yea, it is only by the manifestation of these things in the gospel and in the heart that those things can be understood. 15. And even to this day most of the Jews, when they read the laws of Moses and the prophets, do not discern their true reference to Christ, any more than their fathers discerned the glory of Moses' face through the vail that covered it.

16. Nevertheless, as Moses took the vail off his face when he for until this day remaineth the same vail untaken away in the reading of the old testament; which vail is done away in Christ.

15 But, even unto this day, when Moses is read, the vail is upon their heart.

16 Nevertheless, when ^r it shall turn to the Lord, the vail shall be taken away.

17 Now ^s the Lord is that Spirit: and where the Spirit of the Lord is there is liberty.

18 But ^t we all, with open face, beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, ^u are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as [†] by the Spirit of the Lord.

† Or of the Lord the Spirit.

CHAP. IV.

Here Paul declares (1) That, animated by views of the excellency and power of the gospel ministry, he and his brethren had discharged it with unwearied diligence, sincerity, and faithfulness, though not with equal success to all; 1—7. (2) That their sufferings for it were exceeding great, but attended with rich supports and spiritual advantages; 8—12. (3) That their prospects of eternal glory chiefly preserved them from fainting under their tribulations; 13—18.

THEREFORE, ^a seeing we have this ministry, as we have received mercy, we faint not;

2 ^b But have renounced the hidden things of ^{*} dishonesty, not walking in craftiness, nor handling the word of God deceitfully; but by manifestation of the truth commending ourselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God.

3 But, if ^c our gospel be hid ^d it is hid to them that are lost:

4 In whom ^e the god of this world went in before the Lord, so, when the generality of that nation shall be converted to the Lord Jesus Christ, the vail of ignorance shall be removed from their hearts and their understandings shall be enlightened to discern how all the types, figures, and predictions, of scripture have their complete and glorious accomplishment in Christ and his work of redemption. 17 Now the Lord Jesus, who will thus remove their vail of ignorance, is a divine, a quickening Spirit, and the words which he speaks are spirit and life. He is the Spirit and substance of all those ancient laws and ceremonies, and he conveys the Holy Ghost to all his members, to make their dead souls live, by means of the gospel; and wherever the Spirit of Christ dwells, and operates savingly in the heart, there is enjoyed a blessed freedom from natural ignorance of spiritual things,—from the bondage of the legal dispensation,—from the law as a covenant, and from the guilt and power of sin,—and an holy and delightful freedom of access to God and communion with him. 18. And all of us, who are endowed with his Spirit, and brought into the open light and full liberty of the gospel dispensation, do now by faith, in a manner far more clear than under the law, and yet far short of the heavenly vision, behold the unveiled glory of the Lord Jesus, in whom the law is fulfilled, and all the divine perfections illustriously displayed and harmoniously exalted;—and are by these views gradually and effectually rendered more and more like to him in grace and holiness, in a manner answerable to the love, grace, power, and influence, of the Holy Ghost, who is himself a divine Person, and is sent by Jesus Christ to convert and sanctify his people.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—Thrice happy are those ministers whose remarkable success in the conversion of sinners attests their call to their office; whose care is not to please men's humours, but to awaken their conscience and touch their heart; and who, in proportion to the success of their ministry, become more humble and sensible of their insufficiency for their work! And happy are those hearers whose hearts are by the gospel powerfully conformed to Christ! It is a mercy that we live in that period in which the terrible, the servile, the dark, the deathful, the figurative, and legal, dispensation of God's truths is exchanged for the amiable and glorious, the lightful and liberating, the quickening, the substantial, and lasting, ministration of the gospel. The vail of ignorance and error has been already in part removed by the influence of God's Spirit; and a time is coming when it shall be more fully removed from both Jews and Gentiles, and they be converted by multitudes to Christ. And thrice happy are they who, by believing views of him in the gospel, are gradually conformed to his image, till at last they become perfectly like him by seeing him as he is.

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1. Since therefore this dispensation of the gospel, which is so glorious in itself, and so efficacious and transforming in the hearts of true believers, is committed to me and my fellow labourers, we are animated, by the grace of God bestowed on us and his mercy towards us, amidst all our weakness, tribulation, and reproach, to discharge our important trust without despondence, cowardice, or shrinking. 2. And, notwithstanding manifold temptations, we have, with abhorrence, kept at the remotest distance from all secret and dishonourable artifices and contrivances, and all overreaching and ensnaring the souls of men by sly, subtle, and false, pretences; and all attempts to corrupt or falsify the word of God, or to accommodate it to the depraved taste of our hearers; and have endeavoured to preach the gospel, and nothing else, with the greatest simplicity and upright freedom, answerably to every one's case and conscience, as in the sight of that all-seeing and heart-searching God, to whom we must at last give an account of our conduct. 3. But if, notwithstanding our plain and faithful publication of the gospel, any of our hearers still remain ignorant of its attracting glory and saving power, it is merely because, by their wilful obstinacy and unbelief, they continue in their natural, lost, and perishing, estate, in which, if they persist, they must be inevitably undone for ever; 4. because the devil, whom the idolatrous Gentiles worship, and carnal men every where serve and obey, has, by the malignant influence of his allurements, terrors, and delusive suggestions, increased and confirmed the natural blindness and stupidity of their minds, and led them into wrong notions concerning the things of God and their eternal interests, that so the bright discoveries of the glory of Christ, who, as the Son of God, is the express image of his Father's person, and, as Mediator God-man, is the representative image of God, in which all his perfections appear harmoniously exalted and illustriously displayed, may not, by this gospel, penetrate through their natural ignorance and error, enlighten their hearts, and dispose them to abandon the slavery of Satan, and receive Jesus Christ by faith.

5. For, in preaching the gospel, we do not conceal the glory of it, by attempting to promote our own honour or interests, authority or inventions, passions or prejudices, but labour plainly to exhibit the person, offices, relations, righteousness, grace, and government, of Jesus Christ, the only Saviour of lost sinners and Lord of all, and to represent ourselves as no more than servants, who are called by him to consider your weakness, wants, temptations, and dangers, and to labour by all means to promote your spiritual and eternal welfare, to the praise of the glory of his grace.

6. For God, who in the creation of the world did, by his own powerful and efficacious word, cause light to shine out of the dark chaos, has graciously enlightened the minds of us apostles and ministers, and even ordinary believers, with discoveries of his own being, perfections, purposes, and will, relative to our eternal salvation, as they are displayed, with the most endearing lustre, in the person, offices, relations, states, and work, of Jesus Christ our Redeemer.

7. And he has committed the ministration of this infinitely precious and enriching truth and grace of the gospel to us, who are but frail, contemptible, mortal, and sinful men, like yourselves, that the transcendent excellency and infinitely powerful influence which attends it for the conversion, comfort, and sanctification, of men, may appear to be wholly of God, and in no respect or degree from us the preachers of it, who, on account of weakness, persecution, and trouble, need his almighty power to support and preserve us.

8. We are oppressed with manifold afflictions from all quarters, and by all means that men or devils can invent; yet neither straitened in our minds, oppressed with anxiety, hindered from preaching, or irrecoverably entangled.—We often know not what course to take in present dangers, or how to avoid further trials; but are never left to distrust or despair of God's wisdom, power, goodness, and truth, to uphold us under, carry us through, and in due time deliver us from, all our troubles, and make them work for his own glory and our good.

9. We are persecuted for righteousness' sake in our persons, characters, liberties, and properties, by every method of reproach and violence; but never left to ourselves, abandoned by our God, or deprived of his acknowledgment, assistance, and comfort.—In our wrestling with sinful lusts, seducing devils, unreasonable men, or even our own infirmities, we are sometimes dejected, foiled, and cast down; but by faith we rise again, and neither we nor our cause are slain or defeated.

10. In these daily and severe hardships and sufferings, which we endure for Christ, we carry about an external resemblance of those which he endured for the salvation of men; while, by our fellowship with him in the virtue of his death, resurrection, and eternal life, we are enabled to bear them with faith, patience, constancy, and courage.

11. For we, who live spiritually, by quickening influence derived from him as our vital Head, and in conformity to him as our great Pattern, and who by his marvellous providence are still preserved in our natural life, are perpetually betrayed and delivered up by our restless enemies into the hands of secular powers or outrageous mobs, and are always surrounded with dangers and exposed to death for preaching and professing our faith in Christ as the only Saviour,—in order that our wonderful preservations and deliverances, and our continued boldness in preaching the gospel with divine energy, may be an evident demonstration of the great power and glory by and to which our living Redeemer was raised from the dead, and that his holy and heavenly life may be conspicuously exemplified in our holding fast our faith, and holding on in our ministrations and holy practice, with submission, patience, and undaunted resolution, amidst all the infirmities and oppressions which attend our abiding in mortal flesh.

12. Thus we ministers are exposed to distress and danger in the most hideous forms, while ye, my Christian friends, dwell in safety, and enjoy all the comforts of life; and all the troubles which we endure in preaching the gospel, and for the confirmation of it, are, by the power and wisdom of Christ, made means of promoting your spiritual and eternal life. 13. But, whatever difference there be in our outward circumstances, yet, being animated by the same lively principle of faith, wrought by the Holy Ghost, as you and the Old Testament saints were influenced by, we, after their example, having firmly believed the gospel revelations, and experienced them to be faithful and true, do persist in boldly preaching them, and openly avowing our hopes of complete deliverance and eternal life according to them;

(4) The necessity of regeneration,

14. Being fully assured that God, who raised up Jesus Christ from the dead, as an evident testimony of his having perfectly fulfilled his law and satisfied his justice for the sins of his people, will, for and through Jesus Christ, by his Spirit, raise us up to a blessed immortality at the last day, and will solemnly approve and present us faultless before an assembled world with exceeding joy;

15. For all the labours and sufferings of Christ's ministers or people, and every thing else relative to the gospel dispensation, yea all the providential dispensations of God, are by him intended, ordered, and made effectual, for your spiritual edification and eternal salvation, that the overflowing streams of his grace and mercy might, through Christ, issue in abundant grateful acknowledgments, thanksgivings, and praises, of converted multitudes to himself as the Father of mercies and God of salvation.

16. And these realizing views and contemplations of the blessed fruits of our ministrations bear up our spirits amidst every danger or distress; and though, by numberless fatigues and hardships, our mortal bodies and outward enjoyments gradually decline and waste, yet our immortal souls, as regenerated by the grace of God, are daily revived and strengthened in holiness and comfort by fresh supplies from Christ's fulness of grace, and gradually increase in desire of, and meetness for, the heavenly perfection.

17. For, however burdensome and tedious our multiplied tribulations may appear to carnal men, yet to our faith, and in comparison of that important and endless happiness which we look for, they appear extremely light and momentary: and meanwhile, by the all-gracious management of Providence without us, and the sanctifying influence of the Holy Ghost within us, they all, in a marvellous connexion, issue in, and prepare us for, an incomparable, inexpressible, inconceivable, and everlasting, glory and happiness, in the full enjoyment of God in Christ as our ALL and IN ALL.

18. While, in order to promote this astonishing co-operation of our troubles, we, by faith, overlook the visible and transient things of this world, as altogether unsuitable, and insufficient to be a portion for our souls, and intently look at, desire after, and hasten towards, the invisible things of heaven, which, like God himself, shall for ever endure in their glory and delightful usefulness.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—Happy are they who are divinely called to, qualified for, supported under, and rendered faithful in the gospel ministry! It is not enough to begin well, but they must courageously persevere unto the end. And in all things they must recommend themselves to the gracious approbation of God and to the consciences of their hearers, by a candid and open publication of truth. Not themselves but Christ in his new covenant characters, must be the matter and end of their preaching; and they must take pleasure in serving the spiritual and eternal interests of his church for his sake. How excellent is the gospel treasure, which is put into weak, despicable, mortal, and sinful, ministers, for the enriching of themselves and others! And wisely hath God thus ordered it, that all the good found in or done by them may appear to be of himself. With great subtilty, labour, and force, Satan strives to hold fast his slaves of mankind through their ignorance of the gospel. And nothing can more clearly discover men in a lost and perishing estate than obstinate ignorance of gospel truths. Thrice happy then are those who have had its illustrious, amiable, and penetrating, light shed abroad in their hearts by the Holy Ghost! Like Christ, their sufferings may be great and many, but they shall be supported and honourably carried through them all. If, like the ancient prophets and saints, they stand fast in the faith, no tribulation shall overwhelm or cause them to faint. While bodily troubles waste their outward man, Jesus' Spirit makes their inward grace increase, and their souls to advance in spiritual strength and ripeness for glory. Never should saints murmur at their troubles, when they are so light and transient, and yet so inexpressibly useful. But how inconceivably delightful and glorious is our eternal felicity: And the more we set our eyes and affections on things above, the more remarkably will our troubles prepare us for, as they bring us nearer to, this eternal happiness.

FOR^a we know that, if ^bour earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have ^ca building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

2 For ^din this we groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven :

3 ^eIf so be that being clothed we shall not be found naked.

4 ^fFor we that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened : not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life.

5 Now he that hath ^gwrought us for the self-same thing is God, who also hath given unto us the earnest of the Spirit.

6 Therefore we are always confident, knowing that, whilst ^hwe are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord :

7 ⁱ(For we walk by faith, not by sight) :

8 We are ^kconfident, I say, and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord.

9 Wherefore ^mwe ⁿ*labour, that, whether present or absent, we may be accepted of him.

11 ^pKnowing therefore the terror of CHAP. V. Ver. 1. What encourages us thus to look at things eternal, and to bear up cheerfully and labour diligently under our innumerable afflictions, is that, from the testimony of God's word and the witnessing of his Spirit with our spirits, we are assured that, whenever this frail, mean, and changing body, in which our soul dwells during our present state of pilgrimage and warfare, shall be dissolved by death, our soul shall immediately enter into a far more fixed, lasting, glorious, and happy, state prepared by God, in his infinite wisdom, power, and grace, in his own immediate presence in heaven ; and at the last day our body, being raised in glory, shall be rendered immortal, that, in union with our soul, it may be for ever with the Lord. 2. And, in the believing views of this inconceivable happiness, we, being oppressed by manifold troubles and indwelling corruptions, do often, in extreme anguish, sigh, mourn, and groan, under them, and vehemently desire and long for our heavenly home, in which we shall be clothed with light, holiness, and joy, and our body at last put on immortality and honour : 3. And the rather because, being then surrounded, adorned, and rendered safe and happy, with his glory, we shall never more be exposed to any want, misery, defilement, or shame. 4. For, in our present mortal state, we cannot but earnestly long to be fully delivered from all our burdens of trouble, and especially our sinful corruptions, which so offend our gracious God, and hinder our fellowship with him : not that we would be rid of our body, or chiefly desire to get out of this evil world, but that we may enter into the full possession of perfect holiness and happiness ; and that all our natural and sinful infirmities may be, as it were, drowned and lost in the transcendent and undefiled felicities and glories of the future state. 5. Now, for the further confirmation of our faith and hope, God hath not only revealed and promised this future blessedness, but by his regenerating and sanctifying grace, hath formed in our hearts spiritual and holy dispositions and desires, to make us meet for it ; and by the inhabitation, comforts, and witnessing, of his Spirit in us, hath given us an earnest, pledge, token, and foretaste, of it, to ascertain our speedy entrance on the full enjoyment of it. 6. And in the views, and under the influence of these things, we are always enabled to face our trials, sufferings, or death, with undaunted courage, and unshaken hopes of a glorious deliverance from them ; knowing that, while we continue dwelling in these mortal bodies, we live like persons in a state of pilgrimage and warfare, at a great distance from the immediate presence of our dear Husband, and Lord, Jesus Christ. 7. For, in this present mortal state of afflictions, we live and regulate all our behaviour by faith in Christ and his promises, which overcomes this world, and is the evidence of things not seen ; and not by the immediate sight and enjoyment of God, any more than by carnal sense or spiritual feelings. 8. But, bearing up under all our hardships and dangers, and having unshaken hopes of their happy issue, we would be glad to leave our present mortal body and life, with all the natural and sinful infirmities attending them, in order to enter into the immediate presence of Christ, and be perfectly transformed into his image, by seeing him as he is. 9. Having therefore these satisfying hopes of, and earnest desires after, the heavenly blessedness, we zealously labour that, whether we die or live, all our services and sufferings, as well as our persons, may be graciously accepted by Christ, through his own righteousness, at his tribunal. 10. For, in a little time, all of us, ministers or people, Jews or Gentiles, must personally appear before him at the last judgment, when our whole state, qualities, and works, shall be impartially laid open before the world, and our own consciences, that every one of us, saint or sinner, may have the eternal gracious reward of our good deeds, or the just punishment of ~~our~~ sins, assigned to us, in proportion to the degree of the the Lord, we persuade men ; but ^a we are made manifest unto God, and I trust, also are made manifest in your consciences.

12 For ^rwe commend not ourselves again unto you, but give you occasion to glory on our behalf, that ye may have somewhat to answer them who glory ^s† in appearance, and not in heart.

13 For whether we be ^tbeside ourselves, it is to God ; or whether we be sober, it is for your cause.

14 For ^uthe love of Christ constraineth us ; because we thus judge, that, if one died for all, then were all dead :

15 ^vAnd that he died for all, that they who live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him who died for them, and rose again.

16 ^wWherefore henceforth know we no man after the flesh : yea, though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more.

17 Therefore, ^xif any man be in Christ, ^y*he is* a new creature : old things are passed away ; behold, all things are become new.

18 ^zAnd all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, ^aand hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation ;

19 To wit, that ^bGod was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them ; and hath ^ccommitted unto us the word of reconciliation.

habitual and governing turn of our thoughts, words, or actions in which we lived and died. 11. Being therefore convinced, from the word of God, and our own experience, of the inexpressible terribleness of that future judgment to hypocritical and unregenerate men, we compassionately labour to beseech and persuade men to flee from their natural, sinful, and dangerous estate, by receiving Jesus Christ the Judge for their full and everlasting salvation ; and, whether they hear or forbear, we can appeal to God that we have been sincere and earnest therein ; and can appeal to many of your consciences who have observed our preaching, sufferings, and conduct. 12. Indeed, after the experimental knowledge which ye have had of our faithfulness and diligence, we have no need to recommend ourselves to you ; but we suggest these things, that ye may have occasion to rejoice and glory in the favour which God hath vouchsafed to us, and may thereby silence the vain boasts of your judaizing teachers, who, without any just consciousness of their own sincerity, talk proudly of their mere appearances of religion. 13. For in my own, and my faithful fellow ministers', zealous vindication of our character, and fervent contentings for the equal admission of believing Gentiles, as well as Jews, to all the privileges of the gospel-church ; and in our self-denial, and calm instructions and entreaties, we have only aimed at manifesting the riches of God's grace, and promoting men's eternal salvation, particularly that of the Gentiles. 14, 15. For the faith and sense of the exceeding greatness, freeness, and endearments, of Christ's dying love, powerfully draw, excite, incline, and oblige us, as it were, by a holy and delightful constraint, to do all that we can, in imitation of, and obedience to, him, for the glory of God, in the salvation of Gentiles as well as Jews : for we thus think and judge, that if, according to the gospel revelation, Christ, the only Saviour, died in the stead, and for the salvation of sinful men, Gentiles as well as Jews, then both parties were, by nature, equally condemned in law, and dead in trespasses and sins, none having more right to, or fitness for, gospel privileges than another ; and that he died for sinners of all nations, that all they who are judged to life in justification, and spiritually quickened by the Holy Ghost, should no longer pursue their own carnal, selfish, or secular aims, nor indulge their own lusts and passions, nor make their own honour, ease or pleasure, the chief end of their living in this world, but wholly devote themselves to the service and glory of their great Lord and Saviour, who died to atone for their sins, and rose again for their justification and eternal life. 16. For this reason, we, faithful ministers of the gospel, think ourselves bound to preach it to all nations, Gentiles or Jews, poor or rich ; nay, though some of us once viewed and valued Christ, as a circumcised Jew, or temporal Deliverer, being now enlightened by the gospel, we view and value him only as the spiritual, the divine, Prophet, Priest, and King, of the new covenant of grace, for men's spiritual and eternal salvation. 17. It is therefore the principal point of the Christian religion, that if any man, Jew or Gentile, be in Christ, by vital union, as well as by external profession, an entire change of his state, nature, and practice, hath been effected in him, by the almighty creating power of God ; his former habitual principles, inclinations, motives, ends, and course of conversation are mortified and laid aside, and others, directly contrary to them, and conformed to those of Christ, are implanted and fixed in their stead. 18. And God, the Creator and Preserver of the world, is the Author of all things respecting the new creation and redemption of men, Jews or Gentiles ; and hath, by the incarnation, obedience, and death, of his Son, effectually destroyed sin, and restored friendship between himself and all his people ; and, in infinite condescension and grace, hath honourably entrusted us apostles and ministers to preach and hold forth this method of reconciliation to men. 19. ther with unbelievers: 'for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness? 15 And 'what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel? 16 And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for 'ye are the temple of the living God: as God hath said, 'I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and 'I will be their God, and they shall be my people. 17 'Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, 18 'And will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty.

CHAP. VII.

Here, after urging them to improve the promises in universal holiness; 1. Paul (1) Intreats the Corinthians to shew the like affection and regard to him as he did to them; 2—4. (2) Informs them of his great joy, on account of the good effects his former epistle had upon them, in the censure of the incestuous person, and their own and his repentance; 5—12. And that Titus had found such a kind and comfortable reception among them; 13—16.

HAVING^a therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God.

2^b Receive us: 'we have wronged no man, we have corrupted no man, we have defrauded no man.

3^d I speak not this to condemn you: for I have said before that ye are in our hearts to die and live with you.

What religious fellowship can there be between a savingly enlightened Christian, and one who knows nothing of God, of Christ, or the gospel, but is plainly a subject of Satan, the prince of darkness? 15. What harmony can there be between the true members of Christ and the manifest children of Satan, that lawless arch-rebel against God? Or what comfortable joint portion can one who believeth in Christ have with one who, in profession and practice, rejects him? 16. And what proper agreement can there be between you, who are the divinely-consecrated temples of God, and, according to his promise, honoured with his special presence, as your God, Master, and Lord, and them who are the temples of idols, and devoted to their service? 17. Remember therefore, that as God required his ancient people the Jews to improve their distinguished privileges, in abstaining from all unnecessary connexion with idolaters; so he requires you, and other Christians, whose privileges are much more glorious, to renounce all the unfruitful works of darkness, and have no fellowship with idolatrous or profane persons, beyond what the civil duties of life require. 18. To encourage you to which he promises to make up all your losses, by allowing you the most familiar fellowship with himself here and hereafter, and with all the kindness of a divine Parent, blessing you, as heirs of himself, with all spiritual blessings in Christ.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VI.—It is very honourable to be a faithful minister, a worker together with God, in that glorious cause which is founded on Christ's acceptance with the Father, that sinners might be accepted in him. And earnestly should we improve present opportunities, in receiving Christ and his fulness, since they may quickly be irrecoverably ended and gone. Ministers have need of much grace in them, and much prayer for them, that they may approve themselves faithful to God in all their labours, and under all their manifold sufferings. And it is shameful when their affectionate regard to their hearers is rewarded with neglect and contempt. Great care is necessary in Christians to keep at a proper distance from wicked persons and things. And if God graciously become ours, and make us his, and dwell in and with us, no idol ought to be harboured in our heart.

CHAP. VII. Ver. 1. Having therefore an interest in, and in some measure the possession of, all these exceeding great and precious promises, let us, my dear brethren, in a dependence on God's promised grace, and in hopes of his promised glory, by believing applications of Jesus' word, blood, and Spirit, and by careful watchfulness over our hearts and lives, and impartial mortification of our indwelling corruptions, labour to purify ourselves from all uncleanness, drunkenness, intemperance, and other fleshly lusts, which render us like to brute beasts; and from all falsehood, pride, malice, and other vices which immediately pollute our souls, and render us like devils; and let us press after universal perfection in holiness, under the influence of a holy and filial reverence of God, in his greatness, majesty, and mercy.—2. And, to return to the point in hand, see that ye receive us, faithful ministers into your most cordial affection, embrace the doctrines which we preach in Christ's name, and submit to the authority which we have received from him; for God and your consciences know that we never wronged your persons, characters, or estates, nor ever corrupted your minds, by errors, flatteries, or bribes, nor ever over-reached you for your own secular advantage. 3. I do not mention these things as if I thought the better part of you had ever reproached us with them; for, as I have already hinted, such is our ardent affection to, and intire confidence in,

4 'Great is my boldness of speech toward you, great is my glorying of you: 'I am filled with comfort, I am exceeding joyful in all our tribulation.

5 'For, when we were come into Macedonia, our flesh had no rest, but we were troubled on every side; without were fightings, within were fears.

6 Nevertheless, ^b God, who comforteth those that are cast down, comforted us by the coming of Titus:

7 And not by his coming only, but by the consolation wherewith he was comforted in you, when he told us 'your earnest desire, your mourning, your fervent mind toward me; so that I rejoiced the more.

8 ^kFor, though I made you sorry with a letter, I do not repent, though I did repent: for I perceive that the same epistle hath made you sorry, though it were but for a season.

9 ⁱNow I rejoice, not that ye were made sorry, but that ye sorrowed to repentance: for ye were made sorry ^mafter a godly manner, that ye might receive damage by us in nothing.

10 ⁿFor godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation, not to be repented of: ^obut the sorrow of the world worketh death.

11 For, behold, this self-same thing, that ^pye sorrowed after a godly sort, what carefulness it wrought in you, yea, what clearing of yourselves, yea, what indignation, yea, what fear, yea, what vehement desire, yea, what zeal, yea, what revenge! In all things ye have approved yourselves to be clear in this matter.

most of you, that we could venture our character and life in your hands; and, if God did not call us to labour in other places, we could willingly spend, and be spent, for you, and cheerfully live and die with you, as our beloved and affectionate friends. 4. It is from a tender concern for you that I so plainly warn you against every disorder; and it is from the firm confidence that I have in the generality of you that I so rejoice in, and glory of, you as my obedient children in Christ: and, amidst all my reproaches and sufferings, it is an inexpressible comfort to my spirits that things are much better among you than I feared. 5. For, when I came in great anxiety from Troas to Macedonia to find Titus, and be by him informed concerning your spiritual estate, the anxiety I felt from not finding him, the fears I had concerning you, and the contests I endured with surrounding adversaries, rendered me, for a time, restless in both body and mind. 6. But at length our gracious God, the Father of mercies, who always takes a peculiar pleasure in comforting those who are dejected and distressed, greatly comforted me by the seasonable and happy arrival of Titus; 7. Not so much indeed by his safe return, as by the delightful accounts of his satisfactory reception among you: and how earnest ye were to comply with the injunctions I sent you, and of your deep lamentations over the offences which had happened among you, and of your affectionate zeal for, and regard to, my person, character, and authority, as an apostle of Christ. 8. For, though it was with no small concern that I wrote my former reproofs, and not without great fear lest some might abuse them to their own hurt, and the dishonour of Christ; yet, now that they have produced such happy effects, I do not repent the freedom which I used, for though it pained you at first, it nevertheless quickly influenced you to rectify your disorders. 9. I therefore now heartily rejoice, not in your vexation and grief, but that it issued in an ingenuous and sincere repentance for the evils amongst you; for, like true penitents, ye mourned with a self-abasing and heart-broken sense of your sin as against God, and with hatred and humble confession of it, and a full purpose to turn from it to him, by the assistance of his Spirit, and to the glory of his name. Thus, instead of being either provoked or discouraged by my letter, ye were greatly profited by it. 10. For spiritual brokenness of heart, like yours, which is produced by apprehensions of the mercy of God in Christ, affects persons with a sense of their sins, as committed against God and his law, and works that thorough change of mind, heart, and life, which issues in, and gradually prepares for, a complete deliverance from sin and misery, and advancement to perfect and eternal holiness and happiness; and so ye will never need to repent of it. but to rejoice in and bless God for it:—but the anxiety, trouble, and vexation of spirit, which unregenerate men have on account of their worldly losses and troubles, or on account of apprehended wrath and damnation for their sins, promote spiritual death, prepare for eternal death, and even hasten natural death, by methods more or less violent. 11. But think what blessed fruits demonstrate the gracious and acceptable nature of your repentance, what care and diligence to rectify what was amiss! what concern to manifest your aversion at the least fellowship in sin! what hatred of, and warm resentment against every thing sinful, and what loathing of yourselves on account of it! what holy awe of God and his righteous judgments! what earnest desire to have your hearts, lives, and church, purged from every thing sinful, and to perform whatever tends to the glory of God, or your own or others' edification! what holy zeal for the honour of God, and the purity, peace, and order of his church! what holy resentment against yourselves, or the scandalous offenders! Thus ye have manifested that your hearts are purged by the blood of Christ; and that, as a church, 12 Wherefore, though I wrote unto you, ^a*I did it* not for his cause that had done the wrong, nor for his cause that suffered wrong, but that our care for you in the sight of God might appear unto you.

13 Therefore we were comforted in your comfort: yea, and exceedingly the more joyed we for the joy of Titus, ^bbecause his spirit was refreshed by you all.

14 For, ^cif I have boasted any thing to him of you, I am not ashamed; but, as we spake all things to you in truth, even so our boasting, which I made before Titus, is found a truth.

15 And his ^dinward affection is more abundant toward you, whilst he remembereth the ^eobedience of you all, how with fear and trembling ye received him.

16 ^fI rejoice therefore that I have confidence in you in all things.

CHAP. VIII.

Here Paul enforces his former recommendation to the Corinthians of a charitable contribution for the poor saints at Jerusalem, (1) From the example of the much poorer Macedonians; 1-8. (2) From the love and grace of Christ in giving himself for poor sinners; 9. (3) By the willingness they had shown a year before, and the advantage they would reap from it; 10-15. (4) From the integrity and affection of Titus, and the two other brethren, whom he had sent to further it; 16-24.

MOREOVER, brethren, ^{*}we do you to wit of ^athe grace of God bestowed on the churches of Macedonia;

2 How that, ^bin a great trial of affliction, the abundance of their joy and their deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their liberality.

3 ^cFor to their power, I bear record, yea, and beyond their power, they were willing of themselves;

4 Praying us with much entreaty ^dthat we would receive the gift, and take upon us the fellowship of the ministering to the saints.

5 ^eAnd this they did, not as we hoped, ye are no more chargeable with your former disorders. 12. This cannot but exceedingly delight me; for, though I wrote to you with some sharpness, particularly about the incestuous person, I did it from no angry resentment at him, or partial regard to his father, who had been so horribly injured; nor was it barely to reclaim the one and do justice to the other, but principally from a deep concern that God and Christ might be honoured, and your church preserved from that infection and reproach which his continuance among you might have occasioned.

13. We were therefore greatly refreshed to hear that, for your own peace and comfort, ye had in an orderly manner excommunicated that heinous transgressor, and rectified your other disorders, and to find that Titus, your most affectionate friend, had been so greatly revived, cheered, and delighted, with your reformation and Christian behaviour. 14. And, as I always, in the greatest sincerity, preached to you the pure truths of the gospel, I am now extremely glad that your conduct hath answered to the high commendations which I had given of you to Titus. 15. Whose very heart and bowels of love are warmed as often as he thinks on your ready obedience to my injunctions, and on my deep concern that he might not meet with any thing to grieve his spirits in any contempt of his faithful, kind, and tender, advices to you. 16. It is therefore an inexpressible pleasure to me that, instead of being disappointed in my expectations concerning you, I have now further evidence that ye will pay a dutiful respect to my character, and religious regard to my apostolic injunctions, when I shall be permitted to visit you.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VII.—Gospel promises afford abundant assistance and encouragement for daily progress in true holiness of heart and life. With boldness and freedom may ministers deliver their messages, and bear their troubles, when their hearers cannot but attest their integrity and disinterested concern for their spiritual welfare. But it is painful to be obliged to distress those whom we wish to comfort. And it is a great honour to Christians, when they are manifestly and evangelically penitent for their sins, and are an honour to Christ and comfort to his ministers.

CHAP. VIII. Ver. 1. Being thus confident of your distinguished love and regard, I must again recommend to your Christian compassion the poor saints at Jerusalem; and for your excitement, inform you, that the powerful influence of God's grace hath determined the Christians of Macedonia to make a very liberal collection for them. 2, 3. And that, notwithstanding their own grievous persecution and deep poverty, they have, with uncommon generosity and gladness, bestowed their part, not only answerable to, but even beyond, their ability: 4. Yea, so far were they from needing any excitement from me or my fellow-ministers, that they importunately urged us to accept their free-will-offering, and take the trouble of conveying and distributing it to their poor brethren; 5. And this they did with the greatest cheerfulness and generosity that could be expected, and not merely so, but, acting herein upon truly religious principles, before they put their contributions into our hands, they made a joint and solemn surrender of themselves, and all that they had, to the honour, but first gave their own selves to the Lord, and unto us by the will of God:

6 ^aInsomuch, that we desired Titus, that, as he had begun, so he would also finish in you the same ^bgrace also.

7 Therefore, as ye ^cabound in every thing, in faith and utterance, and knowledge, and in all diligence, and in your love to us, see that ye abound in this grace also.

8 ^dI speak not by commandment, but by occasion of the forwardness of others, and to prove the sincerity of your love.

9 For ^eye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ: that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that he through his poverty might be rich.

10 ^fAnd herein I give my advice: for this is expedient for you, who have begun before, not only to do, but also to be ^gforward a year ago.

11 Now therefore perform the doing of it; that, as there was a readiness to will, so there may be a performance also out of that which ye have.

12 For, ^hif there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not.

13 ⁱFor I mean not that other men be eased, and ye burdened:

14 But by an equality, that now at this time your abundance may be a supply for their want, that their abundance also may be a supply for your want; that there may be equality:

15 As it is written, ^jHe that had gathered much had nothing over; and he that had gathered little had no lack.

16 ^kBut thanks be to God, who put the same earnest care into the heart of Titus for you.

service, influence, government, and disposal, of the Lord Jesus Christ, as their Head, Saviour, and King; and then, according to the will and directing influence of God, to us as his servants, to conduct them in their spiritual concerns according to the rules of his word. 6. This their excellent behaviour made us to entreat Titus, our fellow-minister of Christ, who had been so acceptable among you, and had begun your charitable collections, to return to you, and by his advices and encouragements, to complete them. 7. And, as many of you, by the grace of God, are remarkable in the knowledge and faith of gospel-mysteries, in eloquence of speech, in earnest endeavours to reform your church, in your affectionate regard to faithful ministers, and in other excellencies, I beg and hope that ye will proportionally abound in this grace of Christian benevolence.

8. And, as I mean that it should be wholly a free gift, I lay no command upon you, nor impose any particular sum; but wish that, by shewing yourselves equally forward with your poor brethren of Macedonia, ye may give further proof of your love to me and to the saints, and especially to Christ, in imitation of, and thankful return for, his unparalleled and endearing love towards you. 9. For, by infallible information and your own experience, ye know the astonishing favour, love, and bounty, of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, who, though he was the eternal Son of God, possessed of all the riches, glory, and blessedness, of the Godhead, and rightful Proprietor of all the riches of the universe; yet, to effect your salvation, assumed our nature in a most debased and impoverished condition, veiled his divine glory, and submitted to poverty, meanness, and suffering, that by this mean ye might be enriched with all the abundant blessings of grace and glory, and even with those temporal benefits which we enjoy in a new-covenant state.

10, 11. Affected with his engaging example, I expect that ye will now complete and put into one sum the collections which ye began to lay by you about a year ago when ye received my former epistle. 12. For wherever there is a cheerful and determined inclination to acts of benevolence, and sincere contrivances and endeavours to be able to distribute somewhat to the glory of God and the necessities of his people, it is acceptable not only to ministers and churches, but even to Christ himself, be it more or less, if answerable to men's circumstances and abilities; 13. For I do not wish that ye should reduce yourselves to poverty by giving too largely to the enriching of these poor saints in Judea, nor that the whole burden of supplying them should fall on you to ease or excuse other churches that are able to assist in it.

14. But I am desirous, that at this time ye, out of your abundance, should supply their extreme necessities, that if ever, by the providence of God, ye should be reduced to like straits, they or others may be able and inclined to supply your need; 15. Of which brotherly communication we have an agreeable example in the Israelites' distribution of the manna, giving whatever they gathered more than enough for themselves to such as, through age and infirmity, could not gather what was sufficient for their daily support. 16, 17. And blessed be God that he hath inspired our beloved brother Titus with the same fervent zeal as myself to engage you in this excellent service, for your own profit as well as the relief of the poor Jews: and indeed, such was his abundant affection for you, and zeal for this work, that he scarcely 17 For indeed he accepted the exhortation; but, being more forward, of his own accord he went unto you.

18 And we have sent with him the brother, whose praise is in the gospel throughout all the churches:

19 And not that only, but who was also chosen of the churches to travel with us with this grace, which is administered by us to the glory of the same Lord, and declaration of your ready mind.

20 Avoiding this, that no man should blame us in this abundance which is administered by us:

21 Providing for honest things, not only in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men.

22 And we have sent with them our brother, whom we have oftentimes proved diligent in many things, but now much more diligent, upon the great confidence which I have in you.

23 Whether any do inquire of Titus, he is my partner and fellow helper concerning you: or our brethren be inquired of, they are the messengers of the churches, and the glory of Christ.

24 Wherefore shew ye to them, and before the churches, the proof of your love, and of our boasting on your behalf.

CHAP. IX.

Paul (1) Shews the Corinthians why he had sent Titus and his two brethren to promote the completing of their collection; 1-5. (2) Directs and encourages them to give bountifully, deliberately, and cheerfully: 6-14. (3) Solemnly thanks God for giving us Christ, and all blessings in him; 15.

FOR, as touching the ministering to the saints, it is superfluous for me to write to you:

2 For I know the forwardness of your mind, for which I boast of you to them of Macedonia, that Achaia was ready a year ago; and your zeal hath provoked very many.

3 Yet have I sent the brethren, lest our boasting of you should be in vain in needed to be urged to promote it. 18, 19. And I and my brethren who are concerned in it have sent along with him, on the same errand, another eminent minister, of great repute in the churches, for his insight into the gospel, and his zeal, faithfulness, and diligence, in promoting the interests of it; and who hath been chosen by the churches here to attend and assist us in distributing their collection to the poor Christians in Judea, to the honour of Christ and of all the cheerful contributors; 20, 21. We being desirous to have some other respectable ministers of Christ joined with us, in bearing and distributing these large collections, that none might have occasion to suspect we had embezzled or misapplied any part of them; for we wish to execute this important trust in such a manner as may approve itself not only to God, who knows our hearts and ways, but also to the consciences of all mankind, whether friends or foes, who may observe our conduct. 22. And with these two brethren we have sent a third, of whose activity and faithfulness we have had the strongest proofs, and who, from the commendations of you which he hath heard from me, will exert himself to the utmost to complete your honourable liberality. 23. If any strangers desire to know the character of these three brethren, let them understand that Titus is my assistant in every thing relating to your comfort and edification, and that of other Christians; and that the other two are approved messengers of the churches here in Macedonia, who also have been greatly instrumental in promoting the glory and honour of Christ. 24. Receive them therefore in such a respectful manner as will manifest to them and to the churches your love to Christ, to them, and to me, and to the poor Jewish saints; and shew that my boasting of you as a generous, faithful, and kind people, hath been perfectly just and well grounded.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VIII.—What an excellent virtue is Christian benevolence! Wrought in us by the power of divine grace, it proves the sincerity of our love to Christ, and to his members for his sake. It is a delightful imitation of him in his redeeming kindness, and never fails to turn out to men's own advantage. But it is shameful to be outdone in it by persons poorer than ourselves. It is highly honourable for professors, first solemnly to give up themselves to Jesus Christ as his members and subjects, and, in consequence thereof, to the direction of his faithful ministers. And happy is it when every thing in charitable benevolences, or other church matters, is managed with such prudence, faithfulness, and disinterestedness, as leaves not the least ground for a suspicion of fraud, partiality, or selfishness; and when ministers and saints so behave as to be generally beloved and extensively commended.

CHAP. IX. Ver. 1. But the pious generosity and compassion of your own tempers renders it altogether superfluous to suggest any other arguments for enforcing your liberality on this occasion. 2. For I sufficiently know your this behalf; that, as I said, ye may be ready:

4 Lest haply, if they of Macedonia come with me and find you unprepared, we (that we say not ye) should be ashamed in this same confident boasting.

5 Therefore I thought it necessary to exhort the brethren that they would go before unto you, and make up beforehand your bounty, whereof ye had notice before, that the same might be ready, as a matter of bounty, and not as of covetousness.

6 But this I say; He who soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he who soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully.

7 Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly, or of necessity; for God loveth a cheerful giver.

8 And God is able to make all grace abound towards you; that ye always, having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work:

9 (As it is written, He hath dispersed abroad; he hath given to the poor: his righteousness remaineth for ever.

10 Now he that ministereth seed to the sower both minister bread for your food, and multiply your seed sown, and increase the fruits of your righteousness):

11 Being enriched in every thing to all bountifulness, which causeth through us thanksgiving to God.

12 For the administration of this service not only supplieth the want of the saints, but is abundant also by many thanksgivings unto God;

13 Whiles, by the experiment of this ministration, they glorify God for your professed subjection unto the gospel of Christ, and for your liberal distribution unto them, and unto all men;

forward inclinations to it, which made me boast to the Christians of Macedonia, that ye, and your neighbours in Achaia, had begun your collections a year ago; and the fame of your fervent zeal herein hath raised a noble emulation in the breasts of many. 3, 4. But, notwithstanding my confidence in you, I thought proper to join in sending Titus and his two brethren to you, that your money may be collected and just ready for us whenever we call for it, lest, if any of the Macedonian brethren come along with me, and find your collection not completed, it should expose both you and me who have boasted of you to shame and reproach! 5. I therefore thought it necessary, for your and my own honour, and the common credit of Christianity, to entreat these brethren to come before-hand, and inform you when ye may look for us, who are to receive, carry, and distribute it, that your bountiful contribution may be fully ready, and appear a grateful acknowledgment of God's kindness to you, cheerfully given, without any importunate instigation, on your side. 6. And, though the quantity to be given must be left to your own consciences, yet remember that, in allusion to the niggardly or plentiful sowing of seeds in the earth, God will ordinarily proportion his kind blessings to the straitness or liberality of your charitable contributions. 7. In view of this, let each of you give what he thinks proper in his circumstances, and that cheerfully, not like persons who grudge to part with it, or wish to be excused; for the infinitely bountiful God takes pleasure in them who give with an open hand and heart, and cheerfully improves every opportunity of making their condition comfortable. 8, 9. And this all-sufficient God, who delighteth in mercy, is able to make a liberal disposition, as well as all other gifts and graces, to abound in you, that ye, being content with what ye have, and plentifully supplied with every thing pertaining to life and godliness, may be still more and more engaged in such charitable work, and thus attain to the inspired character of the merciful man, who, by his liberal distributions to the poor, procures himself lasting honours before God and men. 10. May therefore God, whose blessing maketh rich, and who multiplies grain to the sower, and supplies the necessity of liberal persons, and inclines them to supply others, give you always whatever is needful, restore your present liberality an hundredfold into your bosoms in both spirituals and temporals, and enable you more and more to abound in all the fruits of righteousness. 11. May he plentifully enrich you with every blessing of time and eternity, and make you more and more inclined and able to abound in such disinterested liberality as may engage many souls in thankfulness to God for raising up, by our means, such instruments of supplying their wants. 12. For the proper distribution of this collection will not only be an ample relief to the poor Christians of Judea, but will redound to the honour of God, through the manifold thanksgivings of those who are supplied, and other friends of Christ; 13. While, by this experimental proof of your brotherly affection, the receivers of your charity, and even they who hear of it, will adore and bless God for your unfeigned submission

CHAP. X.

Returning to a necessary vindication of himself against the invidious suggestions of the false teachers, Paul (1) Asserts his authority with great meekness and humility; 1—6. (2) Shews that these teachers could boast of nothing superior to him; and that he abhorred any likeness to them, in their deceit, ostentation, or boasting of other men's labours; 7—18.

NOW I Paul myself beseech you, ^aby the meekness and gentleness of Christ, who ^bin presence am base among you, but being absent am bold toward you:

2 But I beseech you, that ^cI may not be bold when I am present with that confidence wherewith I think to be bold against some, who ^dthink of us as if we walked according to the flesh.

3 For, ^dthough we walk in the flesh, we do not war after the flesh:

4 ^eFor the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strong holds:

5 ^fCasting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the ^gobedience of Christ:

6 ^hAnd, having in a readiness to revenge all disobedience, when ⁱyour obedience is fulfilled.

7 ^kDo ye look on things after the outward appearance? ^lIf any man trust to himself that he is Christ's, let him of himself think this again, that, as he is Christ's, even so are we Christ's.

8 For, ^mthough I should boast somewhat more of our authority, (which the Lord hath given us for edification, and not for your destruction), I should not be ashamed:

9 That I may not seem ⁿas if I would terrify you by letters.

10 For ^ohis letters, say they, are weighty and powerful; but ^phis bodily presence is weak, and ^qhis speech contemptible.

11 Let such an one think this; that, such as we are in word by letters ^rwhen we are absent, such ^swill we be also in deed when we are present.

12 For ^twe dare not make ourselves of the number, or compare ourselves with some that commend themselves: but they, measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves amongst themselves, ^uare not wise.

13 But ^vwe will not boast of things without ^wour measure, but according to the measure of the ^xrule which God hath distributed to us, a measure to reach even unto you.

14 ^yFor we stretch not ourselves beyond ^zour measure, as though we reached not unto you: for we are come as far as to you also in ^{aa}preaching the ^{ab}gospel of Christ:

15 ^{ac}Not boasting of things without ^{ad}our measure, ^{ae}that is, of other men's labours; but having hope, when your faith is increased, that we shall be ^{af}enlarged by you according to our rule abundantly, 16 ^{ag}To preach the gospel in the ^{ah}regions beyond you, and not to boast in another man's ^{ai}line of things made ready to our hand.

17 ^{aj}But he that glorieth, let him ^{ak}glory in the Lord.

to the authority of Christ in the gospel, and your affectionate and liberal love to his poor members.

14. And it will even turn to your own advantage, as the receivers will pour forth their prayers to God that he may abundantly recompense your kindness with all blessings, spiritual, temporal, and eternal: 15. Yea, indeed, my own heart joins in their praises as well as their prayers. Blessed be God for his free and bountiful alms; which turns out so inexpressibly to his glory, and your own and others good, and for the unutterable gift of his grace, in making you both able and willing to honour him with your substance, and in filling the receivers with such abundant gratitude to him and to you: and, above all, thanks be to God for Jesus Christ, to whose authority ye have thus shewn such subjection, and through whom all the rich blessings of grace and glory come to you, and who, in his person, offices, relations, fulness, and work, is such a transcendent, and all-comprehensive gift of God, that no created heart can conceive, or tongue express, its contents, excellencies, extent, or value.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IX.—It is honourable to be so forward in acts of charity, as to need no excitement. But the most liberal may need directions relative to the extent, time, or manner of their donations; and whatever charity we give should be with prudent consideration and bountiful cheerfulness without any grudging. It is the most advantageous method in which we can dispose of our wealth. It honours God, and entails his gracious favour and rich recompence, secures the prayers of the relieved, and thus brings lasting profit and honour to ourselves. It is a mercy for our world that God gives some ability and inclination to give, and others an heart, in a Christian manner, to acknowledge their kindness; but unspeakably gracious that God thus loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son for and to sinful men!

CHAP. X. Ver. 1. But that I may return to my self-vindication: I, who am reviled by them as an abject, pusillanimous creature, of low stature, and despicable appearance, when present; but very assuming, magisterial, and severe, when absent; beseech you, by all the kindness and love that appeared in Christ our Saviour, and after the example of Christ, with all that lenity, calmness, and benevolence of temper wherewith his Spirit hath endowed me, to regard my admonition. 2. And I beg that such care may be taken to rectify every disorder, that I may not, contrary to my own inclination, be obliged to rebuke and censure some of you, when I come to you, for their maliciously reproaching me and my faithful brethren, as if we conducted our ministrations by carnal views or motives. 3. For though we still remain in our mortal bodies, and are liable to the common infirmities and troubles of this life, yet we can appeal to God that in the manner of our struggling against manifold opposition, we do not act under the influence of sinful principles, nor by carnal means, nor to carnal ends, but with simplicity and godly sincerity by his grace. 4. For, in our difficult and dangerous work of preaching the gospel, we make use of no external force, of nothing furnished by carnal wisdom or calculated to promote carnal interests; but merely of the truths of God, dispensed with light, zeal, and courage, in their native simplicity, which, by the almighty influence of God, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, are made effectual to demolish the strongest forts of sin, Satan, and the world; all the ignorance, pride, prejudice, unbelief, sensuality, stubbornness, and enmity, which lie fortified in the hearts of men against God; 5. And to confute and overthrow the corrupt reasonings of Jews and Gentiles, and every proud conceit of self wisdom, righteousness, and strength; and all the power and policy of earth and hell, which stand in opposition to the light, grace, and holiness of the gospel, and the discoveries of the divine perfections made therein; and to reduce all the power, faculties, and actions of men to a cheerful and obedient subjection to the authority and commands of the Lord Jesus Christ. 6. Yea, I am furnished with apostolic powers to censure or even inflict temporal punishments on such as shall obstinately continue to contemn and vilify my office, whenever I see how many of you return to your obedience to Christ and to his authority in me. 7. But if my inveterate opposers conceive disadvantageously of me, from the meanness of my aspect, my poverty, or the humility of my behaviour, will ye also inconsiderately judge of me by outward appearances? If even the chief of your factious preachers be confident that he is a member and minister of Christ, and owned by him as such, let him, for his humiliation and caution, seriously remember that I am every whit as much Christ's, and as much owned by him, as he can pretend to be.

8. For if, in my present circumstances, I should even boast of the apostolic power with which the Lord Jesus hath entrusted me, for promoting your conversion, faith, holiness, order, and repentance, I should have no reason of being ashamed as though I had gone beyond either truth or decency. 9. But I will not say what I might, lest it should be pretended that I am desirous of terrifying my opposers by my letters, while I dare say nothing face to face. 10. For they have already reproachfully derided me, as if I wrote letters in a high, solemn, authoritative, and threatening strain, while, when personally present, I appear most weak and contemptible, and my discourse quite despicable, without either elegance of language, or a graceful utterance.

11. But let these mockers know, that if God bring me again among you, they shall find me every whit as severe in the practical execution of my apostolic authority against impenitent offenders, as I appeared in my letters. 12. While they think me quite unworthy to be compared with themselves, my conscience restrains me from imitating them in self-conceit, and in groundless and indecent boasting, to the decrying of every body else. And indeed it but manifests their weakness and folly, to form their opinion of themselves from their own fancied excellencies, or comparison with some of their own party.

13. For my part, I abhor assuming to myself the honour of other men's labours, or of doing that which God never appointed or directed me to in my ministrations; but merely mention what God really did by me in the exercise of my apostolic office, all along from Jerusalem to your city. 14. I did not, like your factious preachers, hasten from place to place, where I might best gain honour or wealth to myself; but came all along gradually, and was the first who preached the gospel to you. 15. And, as I abhor boasting of any thing done by others, or done out of the line prescribed me by providence, I hope that when your faith, which has been shaken by these false teachers, is re-established and strengthened, I shall be encouraged and assisted by you to preach the gospel in places where it has not been heard;

16. I mean, to preach in the countries to the north and west of you, for the conversion of the Heathens to Christ, without encroaching on the province of any other, or taking the honour of any man's labours. 17. But, after all,

Paul (1) Hints that his boasting of his labours was necessary to counterbalance that of the false apostles; 1—4, 16—21. (2) Shews that, in preaching the gospel, he had laboured as freely as any of them; 5—15; and that, while he was equal to any of them in external privileges, his qualifications, labours, cares, sympathy, sufferings, dangers, and deliverances, were superior to theirs; 22—33.

instead of boasting of our own accomplishments, labours, and success, or of claiming the honour of other men's works, let every one of us glory in the Lord Jesus, by whose gracious direction and influence we act for the honour of God or good of souls.

18. For it is not he who has a high conceit and boasts of his own abilities and performances, but he whom the Lord honours with his gifts, graces, presence, and blessing, and bears witness to as sincere, humble, and faithful in his work, that is now, or shall at the last day, be approved by God.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. X.—The best of men, and especially ministers, may expect malignant traducers. But with meekness and condescension they should endeavour to gain the unreasonably prejudiced, and yet with authority vindicate the honour of Christ in rebuking the obstinate. And though they have their natural infirmities and passions, they must never be governed by carnal principles or aims in their work. Alas, how fixed is the power of sin and Satan in men's hearts! and yet the gospel, attended by the influence of God's Spirit, effectually triumphs over all opposition, and subdues men to Christ. It is necessary that ministers sometimes vindicate their conduct, and shew the integrity, self-consistency, and order of it. But as ever either ministers or Christians would be approved by God, they must beware of pride, and glory only in Christ.

CHAP. XI. Ver. 1. But as a little glorying, in opposition to these pretended apostles among you, is necessary for my vindication, and for enabling you to silence their proud boasts, I beg and hope that you will bear with me a little in this, which without necessity would be extremely foolish. 2. For, with a holy and religious fear I am deeply concerned, lest any of you be drawn off from Christ and his gospel, or even a due regard to me his apostle, and the instrument by which ye were savingly turned and united to the Lord Jesus Christ; and that I may have the honour and pleasure of presenting you to him, as a pure, uncorrupted, and faithful spouse. 3. But, considering the artifices of your new teachers, I am afraid lest the devil, who in the form of a serpent beguiled our first mother Eve to the general ruining of mankind, should pervert you in your principles, tempers, and practices, and turn you aside from the purity of doctrine and sincerity of manners becoming persons vitally united to Christ. 4. Indeed, if any of your new preachers exhibit to you a more excellent Saviour than I and Apollos preached to you; or if by their ministrations ye have received a more excellent spirit, and more eminent gifts and graces, than ye did by ours; or if their gospel be more worthy of God, or more answerable to the condition of fallen men, than what we preached; ye may very justly own them, and prefer them to me. 5. It is nevertheless certain that I am not inferior to any of Christ's inspired apostles—no, not to Peter, of whom some of you boast. 6. And though my style be plain and simple, and my pronunciation less graceful than that of Apollos, my knowledge of the mysteries of for that which was lacking to me, the brethren who came from Macedonia supplied: and in all things I have kept myself from being burdensome unto you, and so will I keep myself.

10 ^mAs the truth of Christ is in me, no man shall stop me of this boasting in the regions of Achaia.

11 Wherefore? because I love you not? God knoweth.

12 But what I do, that I will do, that I may cut off occasion from them who desire occasion; that, wherein they glory, they may be found even as we.

13 For such are false apostles, deceitful workers, transforming themselves into the apostles of Christ.

14 And no marvel: for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light.

15 Therefore it is no great thing if his ministers also be transformed as the ministers of righteousness; whose end shall be according to their works.

16 I say again, Let no man think me a fool; if otherwise, yet as a fool receive me, that I may boast myself a little.

17 That which I speak, I speak it not after the Lord, but as it were foolishly, in this confidence of boasting.

18 ^zSeeing that many glory after the flesh, I will glory also.

19 For ye suffer fools gladly, seeing ye yourselves are wise.

20 For ye suffer if a man bring you into bondage, if a man devour you, if a man take of you, if a man exalt himself, if a man smite you on the face.

21 I speak as concerning reproach, as though we had been weak: howbeit, wherein soever any is bold (I speak foolishly,) I am bold also.

the gospel, which I received by revelation from Christ, is inferior to none; the efficacy of which with respect to all the principal points of faith and obedience, ye experienced with such power of the Holy Ghost, when I was among you, that I need only appeal to your consciences to attest it.

7. Is it reasonable to upbraid me, that, to shew I had no mercenary views upon you rich people of Corinth, but merely desired that you might be enriched with the blessings of salvation, I humbled myself to labour for my daily bread, and preached to you for nothing?

8. Nay, in pursuit of my studious concern for your spiritual advantage, I took gifts from other churches, that for your greater edification I might minister freely to you.

9. Accordingly, I never complained to you when I was straitened for the necessities of life, nor became less diligent; for whatever I needed more than what I gained by my own labour, my friends in Macedonia supplied; and as I have preached, so I hope I shall ever preach, the gospel to you without putting you to any charge.

10. And this conduct I am so far from being ashamed of, that I reckon it my honour; and I solemnly resolve that neither reproaches nor kindnesses shall stop my continuance in it among you Christians of Achaia.

11. And I can appeal to God that this refusing to take subsistence from you is not because I have taken some disgust at you; 12. But I have preached, and will preach, the gospel freely to you, to stop the reproachful revilings of your false teachers, and to induce them to oppress you as little as I do.

13. For whatever they pretend, they are not real apostles of Jesus Christ, sent and commissioned by him, but falsely claim that high character, and deceitfully corrupt the word of God, and serve themselves instead of him.

14. And it is no wonder they labour to impose upon you by specious appearances, when even the devil, their master, often pretends holiness and kindness, in order to perpetrate the greatest mischiefs.

15. It is therefore nothing strange or impracticable that his servants and emissaries should dissemble their true character, as if they were singularly holy, and taught men the way of righteousness to eternal life. But God will quickly judge and reward them according to their hypocrisy and wickedness.

16. Considering therefore how these pretenders to apostleship set off themselves to the deceiving of multitudes, I hope that ye will indulge me in a little necessary, though foolish, commendation of myself.

17. I do not pretend any express command or example of Christ in it, but their selfish boasting of themselves, and mean insinuations against me and what I preach, oblige me to cry up myself in their foolish manner.

18. For if they boast of descent from Abraham, or of circumcision and other external privileges, I have as much ground to boast on these heads as any of them.

19. And I hope that ye, who are so wise in your own conceits, and can bear so much with their false and foolish boasting, will bear a little with me. 20. For if they attempt tyrannically to enslave your consciences, and subtilly to make a prey of your substance; and exalting themselves, insolently contemn and abuse you, ye can patiently put up with it all.

21. Let them then invidiously paint me out as a despicable

CHAP. XII.

Here Paul (1) Further confirms his apostolic authority from the extraordinary revelations which God had made to him, followed wretch, incapable of apostolic powers and privileges, as they will, I dare boldly compare myself with them in every thing worth mentioning. 22. In external Jewish honours, I am a Jew who speak the Hebrew language—a descendant of Jacob, the prevalent wrestler with God, by his beloved Benjamin—a descendant of Abraham, the friend of God, to whom and to his seed he promised to be a God in all generations. 23. In the honours of the gospel-church, I am a minister of Christ, a distinguished apostle, who have laboured, and suffered more scourging, imprisonment, and imminent dangers of death, in his cause, than any or all of them. 24, 25. Five times the enraged Jews have scourged me to the utmost degree of severity allowed by their law. At three different times I have been whipped according to the Roman law. At Lystra I was, at the Jews' insinuations, stoned by the mob till I was accounted dead. Thrice I have been cast away at sea, and once tossed about a whole day and night by the waves, lying on a part of the wreck. 26. Great and many have been my labours in preaching the gospel, and great my dangers from floods or rivers in the way. Often have I been in danger of falling among robbers who infest the roads—of being murdered by Jews or Heathens—and of being killed by outrageous mobs in cities. In travelling through desolate places, I have been often in danger of being attacked by ruffians, or devoured by wild beasts, or of falling into other mischiefs. At other times I have been in danger of perishing by storms, or of being taken by pirates, or have been insulted, abused, and nearly betrayed, through the treachery of Jews or pretended Christians. 27. In prosecuting my ministerial work, I have undergone the most fatiguing and painful services by day, and been deprived of proper rest and sleep by night. At other times I have been distressed for want of necessary food, and have spent much time in religious fasting. I have been often exposed to the severities of the weather, without sufficient clothing to keep me warm. 28. And, besides all these bodily troubles, my anxious and careful concern for the spiritual welfare of all the Christian churches, and my grief on account of their corruptions or calamities, have not a little distressed my mind. 29. For there is not a member of the church, to my knowledge, afflicted in body or mind, or weak in gifts, graces, or attainments, whom I do not sympathize with and endeavour to relieve. There is none in danger of falling from the faith, hope, or holiness, of the gospel, but my heart burns with grief, godly jealousy, and holy zeal, to encourage, confirm, and recover him. 30. But since my enemies make a kind of boasting necessary for me in the present circumstances, I rather choose to glory in the hardships, persecutions, and reproaches, which I have met with to humble me, and afford Jesus Christ an opportunity to manifest his strength in my weakness, than in my high privileges and the great things which he has done by me. 31. And however ignorant ye be of many of my forementioned trials, or even ready to suspect them as incredible, I dare appeal to the ever-blessed God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, whose I am, and whom I serve, and who has graciously supported me under and carried me through them, that I have said nothing but the truth. 32, 33. Nay, I had not long begun to preach the gospel, when the governor whom Aretas king of Arabia had placed in Damascus, indeed with some humbling circumstances, which yet, through prayer, turned to his advantage; 1—10. (2) Hints that the signs of apostleship, which the Corinthians might have perceived in him, ought to have made them speak well of him, that he might not have been under the necessity of commending himself; 11—13. (3) Declares his intention to make them a friendly, edifying, and, as formerly, an unexpensive, visit; 14—19. (4) Intimates his fears lest he should be forced to use severity in dealing with some of them; 20, 21.

IT is not expedient for me doubtless to glory. I will come to visions and revelations of the Lord.

2 I knew a man in Christ above fourteen years ago, (whether in the body, I cannot tell; or whether out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth); such an one caught up to the third heaven.

3 And I knew such a man, (whether in the body, or out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth);

4 How that he was caught up into paradise, and heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter.

5 Of such an one will I glory: yet of myself I will not glory, but in mine infirmities.

6 For, though I would desire to glory, I shall not be a fool; for I will say the truth: but now I forbear, lest any man should think of me above that which he seeth me to be, or that he heareth of me.

7 And, lest I should be exalted above measure through the abundance of the revelations, there was given to me a thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan to buffet me, lest I should be exalted above measure.

8 For this thing I besought the Lord thrice, that it might depart from me.

9 And he said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me.

resolved to gratify the Jews in murdering me, and shut up and strictly guarded the city, to prevent my escape. But, by the directing providence of God, my Christian friends let me down from one of their houses, which was on the wall, and thus I got out of their hands, to preach the gospel in other places.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XI.—With great care should ministers endeavour to prevent their hearers being seduced by Satan or his instruments, and to promote their spiritual espousals to Christ. To gain those ends, what temporal claims ought they not to forego! And what labours, dangers, and sufferings, ought they not cheerfully to undergo! The devil and his preachers will turn themselves into diversified shapes in order to deceive men. And it is common for seducers to boast of their piety, learning, labours, and sufferings; yet how insignificant are all when compared with those of a faithful minister of Christ!—Seducers will always love the world in some shape or other, and embrace all opportunities of engrossing its riches, honours, or powers; and the world, in return, will always love its own.

CHAP. XII. Ver. 1. In ordinary cases, it is indeed neither proper nor profitable to boast of my privileges and enjoyments; but, since your judaizing teachers have by their reproaches forced me to it, I shall further add, that I have as much ground to boast of immediate intercourse with God as any of them can pretend to. 2, 3. I know a believer in and united to Christ, who, about fourteen years ago, was, in a vision, rapt up to the highest heaven in his apprehensions; but whether his soul was separated from his body, or whether his whole man, soul and body, was carried up, I cannot determine, but must leave the matter to God. 4. But certain I am that this man had such clear manifestations of the glory of God, such clear, intelligible, and transporting revelations of heavenly things, as no words on earth can justly express. 5. Of this man, as so highly dignified, carried out of himself, and favoured with the immediate discoveries of God's glory, I may and will speak honourably: but I will not speak a boasting word concerning myself, except it be of what plainly marks my weakness, and exposes me to the contempt of others, and thus tends to keep me humble, even while, for promoting the ends of my ministry, I seem to vaunt of them. 6. I could mention many other things, in consistence with good sense and strict truth; but I will say no more, either of my sufferings or revelations, lest some of my friends should be tempted to look upon me as more than a man, or greater than I really am. 7. Nay, lest through the unworthiness, vanity, and treachery of my own heart, I should pride myself in these extraordinary revelations, as if I were better than other men, the Lord very graciously permitted Satan and his instruments to afflict me in a very painful and debasing manner. 8. Almost overwhelmed with this trouble, I frequently and earnestly besought the Lord by solemn prayer, that if, consistent with his will, he would rebuke and restrain the tempter, and deliver me from his violent assaults. 9. And, though he did not grant me the very thing

10 ^k Therefore I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses, for Christ's sake: for when I am weak, then am I strong.

11 ^m I am become a fool in glorying; ye have compelled me: for I ought to have been commended of you: for in nothing am I behind the very chiefest apostles, though I be nothing.

12 ^o Truly the signs of an apostle were wrought among you in all patience, in signs, and wonders, and mighty deeds.

13 ^p For what is it wherein ye were inferior to other churches, except it be that I myself was not burdensome to you? forgive me this wrong.

14 Behold, ^q the third time I am ready to come to you; and I will not be burdensome to you; for I seek not your's, but you: for the children ought not to lay up for the parents, but the parents for the children.

15 And ^r I will very gladly spend and be spent for [†] you; though the more abundantly I love you the less I be loved.

16 But be it so, I did not burden you: nevertheless, being ^s crafty, I caught you with guile.

17 ^t Did I make a gain of you by any of them whom I sent unto you?

18 ^u I desired Titus, and with him I sent a brother. Did Titus make a gain of you? walked we not in the same spirit? ^v walked we not in the same steps?

19 Again, think ye that we ^w excuse which I submissively asked, yet he graciously answered my requests, more to his own honour and my real advantage, by assuring me that his favour and love, and the gracious aids and comforts which he would afford me, would be every way sufficient and effectual to support me under, and carry me through, and bring me off with great improvement, victory, and triumph; and that his almighty power should be illustriously manifested in these effects, in proportion to my utter inability to produce them. In the assured faith of this promise, I will rather rejoice and glory in reproaches, persecutions, and troubles, than be discouraged by, ashamed, or afraid of them; that the all-sufficient power and grace of Jesus Christ, to whom I have committed myself, may surround, cover, and defend me, sanctify my tribulations, and enable me to bear them with all becoming submission, patience, humility, and hope, and at last bring me out of them more than a conqueror.

10. In this view, I take pleasure in all the afflictions which come upon me for professing and preaching Christ and his gospel; for when by these means I most see and feel my own weakness, and appear most contemptible in the eyes of others, I find myself most sensibly strengthened in the Lord, by the influences of his Spirit in my inner man, courageously to bear up under and obtain glorious victories over them. 11. In mentioning so many things with an air of self-commendation, I have with reluctance, for the glory of God, the credit of the gospel, and your establishment and edification, done what in other circumstances would have been weak and foolish; but your culpable neglect to do my character justice, according to what he had experienced under my ministrations, and your taking part with those who reproached me, made it necessary: for I appeal to your consciences, if by the grace of God I did not, however insignificant in myself, in conversation, sufferings, ministrations, miracles, and success, far exceed any of your new preachers, and even equal Peter, or any other of Christ's apostles.

12. The unquestionable marks of a true apostle of Christ have been manifest in my ministrations among you, in my patience and meekness under my labours and sufferings, and in the miraculous operations and marvellous success which attended them. 13. Have not ye yourselves by my ministry, been enriched with all spiritual gifts and privileges as much as any other Christian church, whether planted by me or by any other apostle? Wherein have I been wanting to you, unless that, for your benefit, and the honour of the gospel, I took no maintenance from you? and if ye will have this to be a wrong done to you, or to any other church, I hope ye may easily forgive it.

14. I have now thrice intended and prepared to make you a visit. The first time I had the pleasure of accomplishing my purpose, and planted the gospel among you. On the second occasion I deferred my coming till it might better promote your honour and comfort. And now, when for the third time I am prepared to come, I am determined to give you my labours freely; for I do not aim at procuring your temporal good things for myself, but at edifying and saving your souls. Since I have been instrumental in begetting you to Christ by the gospel, I resolve, like a parent, to exert myself to the utmost for your spiritual benefit, without expecting a reward of your worldly substance.

15. I could be glad to spend my time, strength, and labour, and all my temporal ease, honour, and advantages, or even to wear out my life itself, for the good of your souls, even though I were to be slighted, reproached, and abused by you in proportion to my kindness to you.

16. Your new preachers indeed pretend, that, though I took nothing from you myself, I hereby craftily decoyed you to give more liberally to my partners. 17. But I dare appeal to yourselves, if there is the least evidence that I ever made the least advantage of you for myself by means of any of my brethren, whom I sent to promote your comfort, rectify your disorders, and excite your charity, to the poor saints in ourselves unto you? we speak ^y before God in Christ: but we ^z do all things, dearly beloved, for your edifying.

20 For I fear, lest, when I come, I shall not find you such as I would, ^a and that I shall be found unto you such as ye would not: lest there be debates, envyings, wraths, strifes, backbitings, whisperings, swellings, tumults:

21 And lest, when I come again, ^b my God will humble me among you, and that I shall bewail many who have sinned already, and have not repented of the uncleanness, and fornication, and lasciviousness, which they have committed

CHAP. XIII.

Here Paul (1) Threatens to censure obstinate offenders, and gives his reasons for it; 1—6. (2) Prays for their reformation to prevent it, as a thing that would give him great pleasure; 7—10. (3) Concludes the epistle with a solemn salutation and benediction; 11—14.

THIS is ^a the third time I am coming to you. ^b In the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word be established.

2 ^c I told you before, and foretell you, as if I were present, the second time; and, being absent, now I write to them who heretofore have sinned, and to all other, that, if I come again, I will not spare:

3 Since ye seek a proof of ^d Christ speaking in me, who to you-ward is not weak, but is mighty in you.

4 For, though ^e he was crucified through weakness, yet he liveth by the power of God. For we also are weak ^f in him, but we ^g shall live with him by the power of God toward you.

Judea. 18. I appeal to you if Titus, or the respectable brother who attended him, took any thing either for their own labours or my subsistence, and if we did not all act upon the same disinterested plan to promote your spiritual welfare. 19. Nay, as a believer in, and apostle of Christ, I can appeal to the all-seeing God that I did not send them to make any apology for me or my faithful brethren, or to excuse the delay of my visiting you; but that all my conduct towards you has been intended to support my apostolic authority, in order that my ministrations might the more effectually promote your edification. 20, 21. For, as I formerly hinted, I am much afraid that when I shall pay you my intended visit, I shall not find you so orderly and obedient to the authority of Christ in me as I wish, and that I shall be obliged to exercise my power in a manner more severe than ye will relish. I fear lest, through hearkening to seducers, there should be among you fierce and uncharitable disputes, envious tempers and talkers, warm and angry passions, carnal contentions, and revilings of others behind their backs, proud haughty boastings and disdainful insults, and a tumultuous carriage towards one another; and lest my gracious God and Master should call me not to glory of you, or rejoice in beholding your faith and order, but to shame and grief, on account of Christ of being so much dishonoured, and my labours so much lost among you; and sharply to censure such as I find continuing impenitent in their scandalous sins.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XII.—Great are the changes which take place in the comforts and troubles of saints. God often lifts them up and casts them down again. The most ravishing manifestations are succeeded by sharp and fearful trials and temptations: but all is necessary to keep down pride and animate fervent prayer. And though God does not always answer the prayers of his people as they wish, he always does it in that manner which is best calculated to promote their spiritual benefit. If he secure to us his own powerful presence and grace, we may well glory in troubles, as giving him opportunities to perform his promise. And it is delightful to see the greatest ministers the most humble, and behaving in the most prudent and self-denying manner, in order to turn souls to Christ. But how shameful is it for people to break the hearts of their faithful and successful ministers by reproaches and impenitent continuance in scandalous enormities! And with deep impressions of the dishonour done to God, and hurt to souls, ought the unruly to be warned, and offenders to be censured.

CHAP. XIII. Ver. 1, 2. As I am now, for the third time, preparing to visit you, ye may be assured that, if I find any obstinately scandalous, notwithstanding my former admonitions, I will immediately proceed against them with high and solemn censures; 3. And that, in vindication of my sacred office, and for the honour of Christ, of whose commission to me, and speaking and acting in me, some of you insolently demand a proof; yet whose working by me to you-ward has not been weak, but with mighty power and energy, in your effectual conversion, and in the gifts and graces bestowed on you, and miracles wrought among you, and in inflicting sickness and death on some of your disorderly walkers. 4. For though, through the weakness of his manhood and voluntary subjection to death, he was crucified, as if merely a weak and mortal creature; yet, by virtue of his own and his Father's divine power, he arose from the dead, and now lives in his exalted state, to exercise all authority in heaven and on earth: even so we, his faithful servants, are, in the opinion of our adversaries, weak and contemptible, and are exposed to manifold sufferings for his sake; but, connected with him, we shew, by the same power, in remarkable effects, one towards another. Study what makes for peace and brotherly love, that there may be no more party strifes and angry contentions and schisms among you:—and in an attention to these things, ye may expect that God, the Fountain, Author, Giver, Commander, and supreme Approver of all love and peace, will take up his gracious and complacent abode with you, manifest his special favour to you, and bestow his best blessings upon you:—in token of which, let even your common salutations be truly chaste, holy, and affectionate. 13. To set you an example of mutual kindness and respect, all the holy brethren here send you their most affectionate salutations, wishing above all things that your souls may prosper. 14. And, for this end, as well as to mark my apostolic authority, and testify my respect to you, I conclude with solemnly blessing you in the name of the Lord. May the free favour, gracious presence, and influence of our Lord Jesus Christ, through whose merits and mediation all spiritual and eternal blessings are procured and conveyed to men; may the self-moving love of God the Father, which is the original source of all new covenant blessings; and may the richest communications of the Holy Ghost, by whom these blessings are effectually applied, and we are brought into peculiar fellowship with the Father and Son, and unto a participation of their love and grace in all their happy effects—be continually with and abound towards you as a church, and every individual member of it.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. XIII.—Professed Christians are often more given to censure and reproach their neighbours, and especially their ministers, than to try and know themselves. But very important is the certain knowledge whether we be really united to and hold fellowship with Jesus Christ by faith; and it is shameful for us to live ignorant of it. It is very desirable that offending church members should be reclaimed by gentle methods. But if they continue obstinate, they must be sharply dealt with to bring them to repentance. What an honour is it for ministers to employ all their power, care, and labour to promote the edification and comfort of souls! It is only for this purpose they received their authority and commission from Christ; and if he approve them, they need care the less what men think of them. If in conformity to him, and for his sake, they be exposed to suffering and death, it is enough if he support and crown them with a share in his glory. Happy is the church whose members, under the gracious influence of a reconciled God, live together in unity of sentiment and affection, and who hold distinct and intimate communion with Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. And transcendently wonderful is it, and ravishingly sweet, that these divine persons should so harmoniously concur in unceasing mercy and grace to mean and sinful men.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE

TO THE GALATIANS.

Galatia was a province in the north-east of Lesser Asia. Here, as in many other places, the apostles had scarcely planted the gospel of Christ, when some judaizing teachers contended that the Gentile converts should be circumcised, as a token of their obligation to fulfil the whole law of Moses in order to their justification before God: and, as Paul's instructions greatly thwarted their schemes, they insinuated that he had no apostolic authority. To confute these pretensions is the scope of this epistle. Here Paul (1) Represents his apostolic authority as nothing inferior to that of Peter, or any other apostle; chap. i. and ii. 1—15. (2) Reprehends the Galatians for their sudden apostasy from the faith of the gospel, and establishes the doctrine of justification by faith in the imputed righteousness of Christ; chap. i. 6—9.; ii. 16—21.; iii. iv. (3) Directs to the right improvement of the doctrines and privileges of gospel grace; chap. v. vi.

CHAP. I.

Paul, (1) In a preface, asserts his apostolic authority, salutes the Galatians, and ascribes praises to God; 1—5. (2) Sharply reproves the Galatians for their sudden revolt from the gospel of Christ under the influence of detestable teachers; 6—9. (3) Proves the divine authority of his doctrine and mission, by his end in preaching it, and the unexpected and immediate manner in which he had received it from Christ, without any instruction from any man:—to illustrate which, he relates his behaviour before and after his conversion and calling; 10—24.

PAUL, an apostle, (not of men, neither by man, but by Jesus Christ, and God the Father, who raised him from the dead),

2 And all the brethren who are with me, unto the churches of Galatia :

3 Grace be to you and peace from God the Father, and from our Lord Jesus Christ,

4 Who gave himself for our sins, that he might deliver us from this present evil world, according to the will of God and our Father :

5 To whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

6 I marvel that ye are so soon removed from him that called you into the grace of Christ unto another gospel:

7 Which is not another; but there be some that trouble you, and would pervert the gospel of Christ.

8 But, though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.

9 As we said before, so say I now again If any man preach any other gospel

EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. I. Ver. 1. Whatever your false teachers suggest to the contrary, I avow myself an inspired messenger of Jesus Christ, appointed to plant Christian churches in the world, who indeed have received my commission by the instrumentality of no man, but immediately from Christ himself, and by the express commandment of God, who raised him up from the dead, in testimony of his having completely satisfied the demands of the broken law, and brought in an everlasting righteousness for the justification of all that believe in him. 2, 3. And, with the hearty consent of my fellow-preachers and Christians here, I send this admonitory letter to your lately planted, and yet sadly degenerated, Christian assemblies in Galatia; earnestly wishing that the riches of his free, undeserved, and forfeited favour, may be extended to you; and all the blessings of spiritual peace and prosperity be bestowed upon you from God the Father, the first mover in the whole method of our redemption, and from Jesus Christ, the only Mediator between God and men, and the purchaser and dispenser of all the benefits of grace and glory to us; 4. Who, in his infinite condescension and love, freely surrendered his soul and body, as personally united to his divine nature, to be an atoning sacrifice for our sins, who deserved nothing but eternal destruction; that by his righteousness as the price, and by his power as the efficient cause, he might pluck us as brands out of the burning, and rescue us from the men, the vanities, sins, and tribulations of this evil world, and from all the dangerous snares and depraved customs of this present age, and even from the now exceedingly corrupted Jewish constitution, and in due time transport us to the heavenly state; and all according to the eternal appointment and good pleasure of God, our reconciled Father in him, who, on his account, loves and deals with us as his children; 5. To whom be all possible and highly exalted honour, glory, and praise, through all the ages of time or eternity, for his unparalleled work of redemption, in which infinite wisdom, power, justice, holiness, mercy, and truth, shine forth with the most united and endearing lustre. 6. When I reflect on the delightful and transcendent glory of this scheme of salvation, and on its suitableness, high importance, and absolute necessity to lost sinners, I cannot but be amazed and pained to hear that some of you, who but so lately were instructed in the truths of the gospel, and seemed to receive them into your hearts, should be already carried away in your sentiments, affections, and practice, not only from me, who was instrumental in calling you to the fellowship of the gospel, but from God and Christ, who by me called you to partake of all the gracious benefits of redemption, which are discovered and freely offered in the gospel; and that even to quite another system of doctrine, representing the justification of sinners as, at least in part, by the works of the law; 7. Which indeed is really no gospel, no glad tidings of acceptance and salvation at all, as it represents them obtainable only upon impracticable and impossible terms: but your judaizing teachers, who are verily a plague to you, set themselves to overturn that blessed gospel, of which Jesus Christ is the author, subject, and end, and to transform it into a new covenant of works, in which our own obedience must be the necessary condition of justification and eternal life; and they even pretend that Peter and other apostles are of their mind. 8. But I am bold to aver that if any apostle, or even an angel from heaven, could preach to you any other system of doctrine relative to the salvation of sinful men, contrary to, or even different from, that which I, by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, delivered to you, he should, as an accursed person, be rejected of God, and devoted to eternal destruction. 9. I deliberately and solemnly repeat it, as a matter of infinite importance and infallible certainty, that if any man or angel preach up any other scheme of doctrine concerning unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed.

10 For do I now persuade men, or God? or do I seek to please men? for if I yet pleased men I should not be the servant of Christ.

11 But I certify you, brethren, that the gospel which was preached of me is not after man.

12 For I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ.

13 For ye have heard of my conversation in time past in the Jews' religion; how that beyond measure I persecuted the church of God, and wasted it:

14 And profited in the Jews' religion above many my equals in mine own nation, being more exceedingly zealous of the traditions of my fathers.

15 But when it pleased God, who separated me from my mother's womb, and called me by his grace,

16 To reveal his Son in me, that I might preach him among the heathen; immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood:

17 Neither went I up to Jerusalem to them who were apostles before me; but I went into Arabia, and returned again unto Damascus.

18 Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem to see Peter, and abode with him fifteen days.

19 But other of the apostles saw I none, save James, the Lord's brother.

20 Now the things which I write unto you, behold, before God, I lie not.

the salvation of sinful men than what ye, when I was among you, professed to receive in faith and love, he is to be disdained and rejected as one abandoned by God, and richly deserving of excommunication, nay, of everlasting damnation. 10. Can you imagine that, after being so long converted and employed in the ministry, and suffering so many things for Christ, my great aim is to persuade people to embrace the doctrines of men rather than the gospel of God, or to ingratiate myself with the Jewish zealots, or any others of mankind? No; I abhor the thought. Did I, as in the days of my unregeneracy, seek the favour of men, and study to serve their corrupt humours or designs, I had never inlisted in the service of Christ, nor could I be his faithful servant, as I profess and labour to be. 11. And by all the signs of apostleship I manifest that the gospel of men's salvation through the imputed righteousness of Christ, which I have constantly preached, is neither formed according to the natural taste or tempers of men, nor originates from their authority, contrivance, or dictates, nor tends to promote their carnal honours or interests. 12. For I neither received my knowledge of it, nor my commission to preach it, by the instrumentality of apostles, or any other mere men, but by immediate revelation from Jesus Christ, God-man, some time after his exaltation to his heavenly kingdom. 13, 14. For ye cannot but have heard that I was once a furious zealot for the Jewish manner of worship, and outrageously persecuted the Christians, and compelled them to renounce their Lord, under pain of imprisonment, banishment, or death; and that, having an uncommon knowledge of the Jewish rites and ceremonies, I observed them with the greatest strictness, and with uncommon zeal propagated them every where. 15, 16. It cannot therefore be supposed that, without some extraordinary call and influence, I should abandon my darling and deep-rooted sentiments, tempers, and manner of life, to embrace Christ and the gospel in direct opposition thereto, and to all my secular interests; but when God, who, of his mere good pleasure, without regard to any foreseen merit of mine, had set me apart to his service before I was born, did, by an extraordinary miraculous appearance and voice from heaven, and by a powerful and efficacious illumination on my heart, make to me a clear and full discovery of Jesus Christ, his dear Son, in all the glory of his person, offices, relations, righteousness, and grace, that I might know and embrace him for the salvation of my own soul, and preach him to Gentiles as well as Jews; I did not stand to consult the inclinations, ease, or comfort of my outward man, nor the dictates of human policy, relative to honour, interest, reproach, or danger; nor did I advise with any mortal about my duty, which was so plainly prescribed me by God; 17. Neither did I so much as go up to Jerusalem, to receive further instructions or authority from them that had been called to the apostleship before me; but, fully satisfied with the instructions and commission which I had immediately received from Christ, I began to preach the gospel at Damascus in Syria, where I had been converted and called. Thence I went into the adjacent parts of Arabia, and preached it, where no apostle had ever been, and where I had no opportunity of conversing with them; and thence I returned back to Damascus. 18, 19. Three years after my conversion I took a journey to Jerusalem, not to receive any further instruction or commission, but merely to make a brotherly visit to Peter, that great apostle of the Jewish converts, that we might confer together of what the Lord had done by our ministrations. And, being introduced by Barnabas, I was readily received as a faithful minister of Christ, and abode with him but fifteen days, without seeing any other of the apostles, except James the Less, a kinsman of our Lord according to the flesh. Thus I received no instruction nor commission from the apostolic college there. 20. And, as

Here Paul (1) Proves the divine authority of his doctrine and mission, from Peter, James, and John's owning him and Barnabas as apostles of the Gentiles, and receiving Titus, an uncircumcised Greek, into their Christian communion; 1—10. (2) Shews how he had publicly rebuked Peter himself at Antioch for judaizing; 11—14. (3) Thence takes occasion to enter on his proof of the doctrine of justification by faith, without the works of the law; 15—21.

2 And I went up^b by revelation, and communicated unto them that gospel which^c I preach among the Gentiles, but^d privately to them who were of reputation, lest by any means I should run, or had run, in vain.

10 Only they would that we should remember the poor; the same which I also was forward to do.

11 But, when Peter was come to Antioch, I withstood him to the face, because he was to be blamed.

12 "For before that certain came from James he did eat with the Gentiles: but, when they were come, he 'withdrew, and separated himself, fearing them who were of the circumcision.

13 "And the other Jews dissembled likewise with him; insomuch that Barnabas also was carried away with their dissimulation.

Gentile, was admitted as a minister of Christ, and a member of the synod, without ever being circumcised. 4. I even took this uncircumcised minister of Christ along with me to the synod, that I might bear a public testimony against the doctrine of the pharisaical preachers, who, coming from Judea, had insinuated themselves among the converts at Antioch, that, under colour of Christian brethren, they might have the better opportunity of narrowly inspecting our principles and conduct, and of cavilling at that holy freedom from ceremonies which Christ has given us under the gospel, and of imposing circumcision and other abolished ceremonies on the church. 5. This conduct of theirs, being not a mere weakness or honestly-conceived prejudice, but a wicked attempt to reduce believers under the covenant of works, and to rob the Gentiles of the true gospel of Christ, I and Barnabas refused to yield to them in the least. 6. And let Peter, James, and John be as great as they will, it is certain that their call, powers, and success, were wholly owing to the sovereign pleasure and free grace of God, as well as mine; and that, in my conference with them, I received no correction or instruction touching either my doctrine or conduct. 7. But, from the account which I and Barnabas gave them, they with great joy observed that I had been called by Christ to preach the gospel to the uncircumcised Gentiles, even as Peter preached it to the circumcised Jews. 8. For it appeared that manifold miraculous and gracious operations had manifested and confirmed my apostolic mission to the Gentiles as well as his to the Jews. 9. And when Peter, James, and John, whom I, as well as mine enemies, account principal supporters, maintainers, and defenders of the church and truths of the gospel, saw how God had graciously qualified, called, and owned me in my ministrations, they, in the most express and affectionate manner, acknowledged me and Barnabas as their fellow apostles, and agreed that we should principally preach the gospel to the Gentiles, while they did the same to the Jews. 10. The only request they made was, that we should stir up the Gentiles to make charitable contributions for the relief of the poor Jewish Christians, which was a work so compassionate, laudable, and necessary, that, though they had not mentioned it, my natural affection to my countrymen, my impartial love to Christ's indigent members, and my looking on the Gentiles as debtors to the Jews, from whom they received the gospel, had made me forward to engage in it. 11. But when Peter some time after came to Antioch in Syria, where the first noted church of Gentile Christians was formed, and from which I and Barnabas had been sent to the synod at Jerusalem for a determination concerning the necessity of circumcising the Gentile converts, and had received an answer in the negative, I, knowing myself to be in no respect his inferior in office, sharply and publicly rebuked him for his offensively acting contrary to the principles which he had avowed in the synod. 12. For though, at his first coming to Antioch, he, according to his gospel liberty, freely conversed and familiarly ate and drank with the believing Gentiles; yet, when some judaizing zealots came thither from Jerusalem, he, for fear of offending them, withdrew from the Gentile converts, and declined all familiar converse with them; 13. Which, when the Jewish Christians at Antioch, who had almost got over all their prejudices against the uncircumcised believers, observed, misled by his example, they also refrained from their wonted familiarity with them; and even Barnabas, a noted Christian and my fellow apostle of the Gentiles, was, contrary to his own judgment, infected with their dissimulation. 14. But, when I saw their conduct quite contrary to the simplicity and godly sincerity of the Christian religion, and the true spirit and design of the gospel doctrine of justification by Christ alone, filled these hints are of great importance for vindicating my doctrine and authority, which have been traduced among you, I solemnly appeal to God himself, who knows all things, and to whom I must give a final account, that all that I have said is strictly true. 21. Returning from Jerusalem, I travelled northward into the provinces of Syria and Cilicia, attended by some brethren from Jerusalem as far as Caesarea, from whence I was sent to Tarsus in Cilicia, my native city. 22. But all this time I remained personally unknown to most of the Christian assemblies in Judea, which had joined together in the faith and fellowship of the gospel before me, and so could receive neither instruction nor commission from them. 23. All that they knew concerning me was, that Saul, the furious persecutor of Christians, had become a noted preacher of that very gospel which he had before laboured to suppress, and an helper of that very faith for which he had endeavoured to destroy others; 24. Which made them heartily praise and thank God for his marvellous grace to me the chief of sinners, and for the rich advantages that accrued to the church by my remarkable conversion.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—With entire satisfaction may we receive the gospel delivered by the apostles, since they received it immediately from Christ. And delightfully, jointly, and equally, all church authority and spiritual blessings proceed from him and his Father. Infinitely important and beneficial is his death for us: and his resurrection clearly manifests the acceptableness and efficacy of it. And what deliverance from sin, Satan, and an evil world, and what grace and peace, may we not pray and hope for through it! It is detestable and dangerous to apostatize from or pervert the gospel of Christ. And it is no wonder that the doctrine of men's justification by their own works never reforms the world, but increases unto more ungodliness, when it has the curse of God lying on it and its preachers. Ministers have need to be faithful in declaring the truths of God without regard to any carnal consideration. And no man nor minister can at once please Christ and the world—serve God and mammon. Astonishing are the effects of God's grace on the hearts of sinners. Effectually it enlightens the ignorant, attracts the perverse, subdues the obstinately furious, and renders Jesus' inveterate enemies his loving friends and faithful servants. And it is a great comfort distinctly to perceive and feel its operations, and for Christians to hear of its going forth conquering and to conquer.

CHAP. II. Ver. 1. Then, fourteen years after, I and Barnabas went up to Jerusalem, taking Titus along with us. 2. But I went up, not to be instructed or confirmed in my office, but as a deputy from the church of Antioch to the synod which met at Jerusalem, to determine whether the circumcision of the believing Gentiles was necessary to their salvation or not. And this I did by special direction from God, to maintain the truth and purity of the gospel as he had revealed it to me; and was so far from receiving the gospel from the apostles there, that I explained it to them as I had preached it among the Gentiles, and declared what success it had obtained. This I at first did, only in a more private manner, to the principal preachers there assembled, lest, if I had given a full and plain account of it to the Christians in general, the judaizing party might have raised such furious clamours against me, as to have rendered my earnest ministrations less acceptable even to the Gentiles. 3. But, to manifest how stedfastly I adhered to my principles relative to the freedom of the gospel state, and how far I was from giving the least countenance to the supposed necessity of observing the law of Moses as a condition of justification before God, Titus, who was a the gospel, I said unto Peter ^abefore them all, ^bIf thou, being a Jew, livest after the manner of Gentiles, and not as do the Jews, why compellest thou the Gentiles to live as do the Jews?

15 ^cWe who are Jews by nature, and not sinners of the Gentiles,

16 ^dKnowing that a man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ; even ^ewe have believed in Jesus Christ, that we might be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the law: ^ffor by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified.

17 But if, ^gwhile we seek to be justified by Christ, we ourselves also are found ^hsinners, is therefore Christ the ⁱminister of sin? ^kGod forbid.

18 For, if ^lI build again the things which I destroyed, I make myself a transgressor.

19 For I ^mthrough the law ⁿam dead to the law, ^othat I might live unto God.

20 ^pI am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: ^qand the life which I now live in the flesh, I live by the faith of the Son of God, ^rwho loved me, and gave himself for me.

21 I do not frustrate the grace of God: for, ^sif righteousness come by the law, then Christ is dead in vain.

with holy indignation, I solemnly interrogated Peter, as their ringleader, before the whole church,—how he, who, though a Jew, made no scruple on some occasions to converse familiarly with the Gentiles, and conform himself to their innocent customs, without any regard to the ceremonial law, could in consistence with Christian sincerity, at this time, through a slavish fear of the Jews, practically seduce the Gentile believers in a religious observance of the abolished Jewish ceremonies? 15. And how contrary was this to the truth of the gospel, for Peter, Barnabas, I, and other Christians, who were by birth Jews, devoted to God, and who were trained up under the obligations of the Mosaic law, and not Gentiles, strangers to the law, and looked upon as profligate sinners. 16. Being fully convinced that no man can be acquitted from condemnation, and accepted by God as righteous, on account of his own sufferings or obedience to the covenant of works, but only on account of that perfect righteousness which Christ fulfilled in our stead, imputed to us, and received by faith alone,—have therefore believed in Christ as our only Saviour, that through our receiving and resting on him alone for our salvation, we might be justified unto eternal life;—and indeed the strict and extensive demands of God's law, and the manifold defects found in the best, render it absolutely impossible for any man, whether Jew or Gentile, to be justified by any personal righteousness of his own. 17. Now, if, while we thus seek justification through the imputed righteousness of Christ, received by faith alone, we continue under the law as accursed sinners, or live as persons under the power of sin, we practically represent Christ, and his method of salvation, as leaving us under the curse and dominion of sin, and as encouraging us to practise wickedness. 18. Or, if, after so earnestly renouncing the righteousness of the law for justification before God, I should again attempt to establish the method of justification by the works of the law in my doctrine or practice, I could not but grievously offend God, frustrate my own believing in Christ, and reduce myself to a state of guilt and condemnation. 19. And nothing can be more contrary to my inclination; for, by my knowledge and experience of the spirituality, extent, and strictness, of the law as a covenant of works, I am deeply convinced of my own sinfulness, and have lost all hope and desire to be justified by my own righteousness; and, by the grace of God, I am fully delivered from the broken law, that I might live in a state of favour with God through the righteousness of his Son; and that, being divorced from the covenant of works as my first husband, and married to Christ, I might live upon better principles, to better ends, and under new obligations, in all holiness and righteousness according to the law, and to the glory of God, as my reconciled Father in Christ. 20. For having in Jesus Christ my Surety fully satisfied all the demands of this broken covenant of works, I am thereby dead to it and it to me. Nevertheless, I am brought into a state of justification unto life, and thereby enabled to bring forth living fruits of righteousness: yet this life of justification and sanctification is not owing to any thing in me, but only to Christ, who, by virtue of my spiritual union to him, lives in me as a Head of righteousness and sanctifying influence;—and the life of pardon, acceptance, and holiness, which I live in the body, is not by the works of the law, nor after the dictates of carnal lusts, but only by that faith which carries me out of myself in every respect to the eternal Son of God, relying entirely on him, and deriving all vital influence from him,—who in the greatness of his endearing, unparalleled, and distinguishing, mercy and grace, without any desert in me, loved me, and freely gave up himself to obey the law and satisfy justice in my stead, that he might redeem me from sin and all the fearful consequences of it, and bring me to eternal life. 21. In this conduct I adhere closely to my evangelical principles, not daring ungratefully, to despise or reject the gospel of grace, the love of Christ, or the free favour of God, in giving him for and to us, as they do who plead for justification by the works of the law: for, if righteousness, entitling to eternal life, come by our obedience to the law in any form, then Christ's obedience and sufferings were not necessary for our justification, and must be insufficient for it.

(1) Sharply reproves the Galatians for departing from the gospel doctrine of justification through faith in Christ; 1-5. (2) Proves the doctrine of free justification from the example of Abraham's justification; 6-9: from the tenor and severity of the law, and the redemption from it by Christ; 10-14: from the stability of the covenant of promise made with Abraham, and the impossibility of being justified by both the promise and the law; 15-18. (3) Represents the law as very useful to convince men of sin, and to lead and drive them to Christ for righteousness; 19-26. (4) Shews that under the gospel all true believers, without regard to any external circumstances, are one in Christ, and heirs of Abraham's blessings; 26-29.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. II.—With remarkable prudence must the gospel, even in its light and glory, be gradually and seasonably communicated. Persons of note in the church must sometimes be first addressed, that it may have the easier access into the prejudiced minds of others. Ministers have need to adhere firmly to their evangelical principles, and boldly to support the true dignity of their office. And it is comely when they highly esteem and dearly love one another, and are ready to assist each other, and when they are careful for the poor, even such as are prejudiced against them. Alas, how easily the best and greatest of men may be decoyed from their religious integrity if left to themselves. And dangerous are the examples of eminent saints when they take a wrong turn. No man's character, however great, can justly exempt him from deserved public rebuke. With care, earnestness, and accuracy ought ministers to contend for the pure doctrine of justification through Christ's imputed righteousness, without the works of the law. And happy are they who understand it in their own experience! What a heaven upon earth it is to view ourselves delivered from the law as a covenant, and to find Christ's crucifixion for us, and dwelling in us, issuing in a life of holiness and fellowship with God through faith. But infinitely dangerous and criminal is it to apostatize from the truth, or to attempt to render the redeeming grace of God and death of Christ unprofitable and useless.

CHAP. III. Ver. 1. Ye thoughtless and inconsiderate Galatians, let me, with the most tender compassion to your souls, and holy zeal for the purity of the gospel, ask you by what artful insinuations and stratagems has Satan, or your false teachers, his instruments, so far infatuated and decoyed you from your adherence to the gospel doctrine of justification through the imputed righteousness of Christ, who, in his expiatory sufferings and death, has been set before you in his ordinances in the most plain, distinct, and affecting manner! 2. Were ye made partakers of the Holy Ghost, either in his miraculous gifts or gracious inhabitation and influences, by the ministrations of the law, and by your obedience to it? Or was it not by hearing and embracing the doctrine of faith in Christ alone for justification and complete salvation? 3. Since then ye certainly received him before many of you so much as heard of the law of Moses, and had set out in your Christian course under his light and direction, and in the exercise of faith in him for your justifying righteousness, how absurd is it to attempt finishing your religion in seeking justification by sinful performances, carnal observances, or any thing correspondent to your carnal wisdom or pride! 4. After ye have suffered so much persecution and reproach from your Jewish neighbours for professing the doctrine of justification through his righteousness alone, without any obedience of yours to the law, ceremonial or moral, will ye by your apostasy, prove all your professions and sufferings perfectly absurd and groundless? 5. Did Christ, by my ministrations, communicate to you your gifts and graces, or work the miracles attesting my mission and doctrine, through my preaching, or your performing, the works of the law, in order to your justification before God? Or were they not rather conferred upon you by means of your hearing and embracing the doctrine of faith in Christ?—And was not this God's testimony, that your justification is in no respect owing to the works of the law, but only to Christ and his righteousness? 6. Even as Abraham, that eminent pattern of believers, gave credit to and trusted upon God's promise of the Messiah; and what he believed and apprehended in the promised Saviour was imputed to him for his justifying righteousness. 7. Know therefore that all true believers in Christ according to the promise, are, in a spiritual sense, the children of Abraham, whom God owns and accepts as such, that they may be blessed together with him. 8. And, to manifest that there is but one method of justification of sinners to eternal life, the Holy Ghost, who knew the whole purpose of God relative to the Gentiles, intimated to Abraham, long before either circumcision or any Mosaic ceremonies were instituted, that, through the obedience and sufferings of his seed, the Messiah, all nations, Jews or Gen-

Abraham, saying, 'In thee shall all nations be blessed.

9 "So then they who be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham.

10 "For as many as are of the works of the law are under the curse: for it is written, "Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them.

11 But "that no man is justified by the law in the sight of God, it is evident: for, "The just shall live by faith.

12 And "the law is not of faith: but "The man that doth them shall live in them.

13 "Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us: for it is written, "Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree:

14 "That the blessings of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ; that we "might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

15 Brethren, "I speak after the manner of men; though it be but a man's "covenant, yet, if it be confirmed, no man disannulleth, or addeth thereto.

16 Now "to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, And to seeds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy seed, which is Christ.

titles, should be justified and blessed with all spiritual blessings. 9. From whence it is evident that all men, of whatever nation or rank they be, who are partakers of a true and lively faith in Christ, and seek justification on his account, are blessed with the same blessings, and on the same foundation of imputed righteousness, as Abraham, that celebrated believer and friend of God; 10. And that this cannot be on account of their personal obedience to the law is evident:—for, all men being sinners, as many of them as remain under the covenant of works, and seek justification by their own righteousness, are fixed under the curse of God, who has expressly declared every person of mankind by law condemned to everlasting punishment, who does not personally, universally, perfectly, and perpetually, in thought, word, and deed, bear, observe, and perform, whatever is demanded by his law. 11. And that no man can be justified by his own personal obedience to this law as a covenant, is further evident from God's appointment of another method of justification, in his declaring that the man who becomes righteous by faith, enters into, and continues in, a state of life and salvation, and, by means of faith exercised on Christ, lives in favour and fellowship with, and conformity to, God here and hereafter. 12. Now it is certain that the method of justification prescribed by the law is not of faith, but by personal, perfect, and perpetual, obedience to the whole of its demands. 13. Therefore according to these terms, none can procure himself justification, or even freedom from the condemnatory sentence of the law,—but Christ, in his infinite love, has redeemed us out of the hands of offended justice, and from all the condemnation and misery incurred by our sins, by taking them upon himself and bearing them in our stead, particularly while he hung on the cross as a most execrable offender, forsaken by God and devoted to death. 14. And this he did that, instead of the curse being executed upon us according to our deserts, we Gentiles might in him be blessed with the free justification and other spiritual blessings conferred upon, and promised to, Abraham and his spiritual seed; and, as well as the Jews, receive, through faith in him, a plentiful communication of the Holy Ghost, as the pledge, token, and earnest, of our eternal inheritance. 15. To illustrate this point by a common and familiar similitude, we know, from the very nature of a covenant of promise, like that made with Abraham, that, if it be but an engagement made by short-sighted and changeable men, yet, if it be duly ratified, signed, and sealed, none can either disannul, alter, or add to it. 16. Now to Abraham and to his spiritual seed were the promises made by the all-knowing and unchangeable God, who cannot lie; and to shew that these were directed to one particular sort of seed, God did not use therein the term SEEDS, as if all his posterity, natural and spiritual, had been meant, but SEED, by which he signified his spiritual seed, and primarily Christ their mystical Head. 17. Now this covenant being made with, and relating to Christ, to be fulfilled and confirmed in his incarnation, obedience, and death,—and being confirmed by the repeated promise and oath of an unchangeable God, and by the seal of circumcision,—the law of Moses, which was not given till about 430 years after, cannot, in any consistency with the wisdom or faithfulness of God, make void or disannul it, in order to introduce another method of justification and salvation. 18. And this plainly manifests that a right or title to eternal life cannot be obtained by the works of the law, but only by faith in Christ; for, if a title to the heavenly inheritance, typified by the promised earthly Canaan, could be obtained by our obedience to the law, it could not be the matter of a free promise,—grace and works being, in this view, quite eversive the one of the other: but it is manifest that God gave it to Abraham and his seed, not through the law, but by an absolutely gracious and free promise, through the righteousness of faith, that it might be free to all the seed. 19. And the law of Moses was annexed to this gracious promise, not to bring in a new method of justification, but to be a mean of restraining sin, and convincing men of their pollution and danger, and of their absolute need of free justifica-dred and thirty years after, cannot disannul, that "it should make the promise of none effect.

18 For, "if the inheritance be of the law, it is no more of promise: but God gave it to Abraham by promise.

19 Wherefore then serveth the law? "it was added because of transgressions, till the seed should come to whom the promise was made; and it was ordained "by angels in the hand of "a mediator.

20 "Now a mediator is not a mediator of one; but God is one.

21 Is the law then against the promises of God? God forbid: for, if there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteousness should have been by the law.

22 But the scripture hath concluded "all under sin, "that the promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe.

23 "But, before faith came, we were kept under the law, shut up unto the faith which should afterward be revealed.

24 Wherefore the law was "our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ that we might be justified by faith.

25 But, after that faith is come, "we are no longer under a schoolmaster.

26 "For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus.

27 For "as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ.

28 "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is tion in Christ, in whom Jews and Gentiles should be united,—and to cause them to look for him, the promised seed, as the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth.—Nor was even this law, like the promise to Abraham and his seed, given immediately by God himself, but was conveyed by the ministry of angels into the hand of Moses, as the typical mediator of the Israelites, to represent their absolute need of the promised Messiah, effectually to mediate between God and them. 20. Now a mediator is one that interposes between two parties, and does not merely transact for any one, to the exclusion of the other; but God, who delivered the law to the Israelites, and who is immutably faithful to his promise, was one party;—and Gentiles as well as Jews, were concerned in that antecedent, free, and absolute promise made to Abraham. 21. It is therefore absolutely impossible that the law of Moses could, in the intention of God, be opposite to the design of the gospel promise made to Abraham and his spiritual seed, or that ever God should intend to justify men by the one as well as by the other; for if any law had or could have been given, by obedience to which men in their fallen condition could have been entitled to eternal life, it is certain God would have spared his Son, that singularly eminent seed of Abraham, and righteousness for justification to eternal life should have consisted in men's own conformity to that law. 22. But, on the contrary, the writings of the Old Testament have, in their general tenor, pronounced all men, Jews and Gentiles, sinners shut up under a sentence of condemnation, and absolutely incapable of making atonement for their past offences, or rendering themselves acceptable to God by any obedience of their own,—that, none having any ground to seek or expect justification by their own works, the free promise of pardon, life, and salvation, through faith in Christ might be graciously fulfilled in every believer. 23. But, as we are naturally strangers and enemies to this important truth, and it was anciently intimated in an obscure manner; so, till Christ, the object of faith, and the doctrine of salvation through faith in him, came to be fully manifested in the gospel, and till we were brought to believe in him, even those of us who were educated in the Jewish religion, though preserved from heathenish idolatries by the law of Moses, were held, like captives and prisoners, under its commanding, condemning, and convincing power, and shut up on every side, that we might be ready to receive Christ as revealed in the gospel with more abundant manifestation of light and grace. 24. We ought therefore to consider the moral law as a covenant, and the ceremonial law as a schoolmaster, intended to direct, lead, and scourge, us to Jesus Christ, that, renouncing all dependence on our own good works for justification, we might seek it alone through faith in his meritorious obedience and sacrifice. 25. But now under the gospel, when Christ, the object of faith, and the doctrine of justification by faith in him, are fully manifested, and we are brought to believe in him, we are no longer, like children, in a state of ignorance, weakness, and servile fear, under either the moral law as a covenant, or the ceremonial dispensation. 26. But all of you, Gentiles as well as Jews, who have believed in Christ alone for justification, according to the tenor of the gospel, are rendered adult children of God, and are admitted to higher privileges in the anointed Saviour, who has come in the flesh, and obtained eternal redemption for you. 27. For as many of you as have been baptized in the name, and into the faith, profession, and obedience, of Jesus Christ; and, answerable to the signification of baptism, have been made partakers of spiritual union and communion with him; have not only in profession, but by faith, put on Jesus Christ as the Lord your Righteousness and Sanctification, and hence have no need of circumcision to recommend you to God's favour, or manifest you his children. 28. There is now under the gospel no distinction of nations, ranks, or sexes, with respect to spiritual privileges or blessings: but, by the enlargement of God's grace, all true believers are equally members of Christ's mystical body, and he is equally their Head, for all spiritual and saving purposes. Circumcision therefore, which was

CHAP. IV.

Here Paul (1) Shews the Galatians their folly in returning to legal observances, as the Jews themselves have far greater privileges under the gospel than under the law; 1—7: and they themselves had experienced, by the gospel, a marvellous change wrought upon them; 8—11. (2) Shews them the absurdity of their uniting with their false teachers, as they had once discovered such affection to him; 12—16: as these teachers, from selfish ends, studied to alienate their minds from him; 17, 18: and as he continued as tenderly affected towards them as ever; 19, 20. (3) By the emblem of Hagar and Sarah, and their respective posterity, he suggests what is to be expected from the law and the gospel, and from those that are under the power of them; 21—51.

NOW I say that the heir, as long as he is a child, differeth nothing from a servant, though he be lord of all:

2 But is under tutors and governors until the time appointed of the father.

3 Even so we, when we were children, were in bondage under the elements of the world:

4 But, when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law,

5 To redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons.

6 And, because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father.

7 Wherefore thou art no more a ser-peculiar to males, and distinguished Jews from Gentiles, is of no further use in the church. 29. And, if ye be really united to Christ, and interested in and devoted to him, ye, though uncircumcised, are the true children of Abraham, and heirs of all new covenant blessings, according to the promise made to him and his spiritual seed.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. III.—Great is the folly of turning away from Jesus Christ, and the doctrine of his imputed righteousness, to rest on our own works for justification before God; and especially after clear manifestation of him and his truth, and suffering for his sake. It renders him and all his fulness, yea, all our profession of him, or sufferings on his account, altogether unprofitable; and is contrary to the oracles of God, and the observation and experience of every believer. But infinite is the mercy that, when God's law condemned us to eternal misery for the very least transgression, Jesus endured the curse in our stead, that we might receive the promise and inheritance of eternal life; and that, while the law excludes us from life on account of our sin, the gospel brings relief, and offers to us an almighty and all-sufficient Saviour. The law now cannot hinder, but is subservient to, our redemption through him. Yea, Moses and all the ancient types now appear figures of our incarnate Redeemer: and we Gentiles, as well as Jews, have an equal access to him and to his church, and to all the blessings of the new covenant. Be not slack, my soul, to possess what the Lord thy God giveth thee.

CHAP. IV. Ver. 1, 2. Now to illustrate the preference of the gospel dispensation to the legal by a familiar similitude, ye know that the heir of a rich estate, during his minority, has no more liberty of enjoying the inheritance, to which he has a full right, than if he were a mere servant, but is under the direction and discipline of masters to educate him, and the government of guardians and tutors, and of trustees, to manage his estate for him, that he may be fitted to enter upon the possession of it at the time appointed by his father. 3. In like manner we, who are Jewish believers, during the infant state of the legal dispensation, were, like minors, subjected to its servile and obscure discipline, enslaved by its terrors, and tied down to its typical observances, which consisted of dim and obscure resemblances, taken from worldly things, and which were in their nature carnal and earthly, little calculated to carry our thoughts, hopes, or affections, beyond the things of this world to our spiritual and eternal inheritance. 4. But when the time appointed in his purpose, and marked in his promises and predictions, was arrived; the time when men's degeneracy and wickedness, which was come to the greatest height, and their extensive expectations, rendered the superaboundings of mercy and a reformation peculiarly necessary, God, in the riches of his infinite wisdom and grace, sent forth his own eternal pre-existent Son by special manifestation into our world, that he might, in a marvellous manner, assume our nature into a personal union with his own divine nature, being conceived and born of the Virgin Mary; and that he, as God-man, might be placed under the precept of the law as a covenant of works, which we had broken, and under its curse and penalty which we had incurred; 5. That, by his obedience and sufferings, he might fully satisfy all its demands, and perfectly deliver us from it as a covenant in its commanding and condemning power, and even from the rigorous ceremonial dispensation; and render us abundant partakers of all the privileges of the gospel state which pertain to the adult children of God. 6. And, in consequence of his graciously adopting you, Jews or Gentiles, into this dignified state of sonship, he has sent forth his Holy Spirit, which proceeds from, and is communicated by his Son, to dwell in your souls with far richer abundance of gifts and graces than were ordinarily vouchsafed under the Mosaic dispensation, to form you into the temper of his children, and bear witness with your spirits that ye are such;—and to give you an humble liberty and familiar boldness in your dealings with him-vant, but a son; and, if a son, then an heir of God through Christ.

8 Howbeit, then, when ye knew not God, ye did service unto them who by nature are no gods.

9 But now, after that ye have known God, or rather are known of God, how turn ye again to the weak and beggarly elements, whereunto ye desire again to be in bondage?

10 Ye observe days, and months, and times, and years.

11 I am afraid of you, lest I have bestowed upon you labour in vain.

12 Brethren, I beseech you, be as I am; for I am as ye are: ye have not injured me at all.

13 Ye know how through infirmity of the flesh I preached the gospel unto you at the first.

14 And my temptation, which was in my flesh, ye despised not, nor rejected; but received me as an angel of God, even as Christ Jesus.

15 Where is then the blessedness ye spake of? for I bare you record that, if it had been possible, ye would have plucked out your own eyes, and have given them to me.

16 Am I therefore become your enemy because I tell you the truth?

17 They zealously affect you, but not well; yea, they would exclude you, that ye might affect them.

self, and enable you to claim and call upon him, and stand affected towards him, with faith, love, desire, delight, reverence, filial obedience, and holy confidence in his care and kindness, and with zeal for his honour as your heavenly Father. 7. Whoever of you therefore truly believe in Christ are no longer, as servants, kept at a distance, and subjected to severe discipline, but, as children of riper age, are entered on a large possession of your inheritance, as an earnest of your quickly enjoying the full riches and glory thereof,—yea, are heirs of the all-sufficient God himself as your portion, in the right and for the sake of, and together with, Jesus Christ, who as his eternal Son, is heir of all things.—Why then should ye abandon these high and sure privileges, to seek happiness by your works of obedience to the law as a covenant? 8—11. Since God, in his infinite mercy, pitied you while ye were plunged in the grossest ignorance and most shocking idolatries, slavishly worshipping stocks and stones, or other creatures real or imaginary, even the most base or abominable, instead of the true God; and, by the light and power of his gospel, found you out, brought you to the knowledge of himself through Jesus Christ, owned you as his, and rendered you accepted in the beloved; what must be your infatuation and ingratitude, if ye turn from this light and grace of the gospel, and all its holy and delightful liberties and honours, to a state of servile subjection to the dark hints and severe injunctions of the Mosaic law, which are utterly insufficient to make your peace with God, purge your conscience from guilt, secure you from wrath, procure your acceptance to life, or to enrich you with any spiritual knowledge, grace, or comfort! Has God delivered you from Heathen bondage, that ye, who had originally no attachment to the Jewish ceremonies, should, in contempt of Christ's fulfilment of them and of the gospel deliverance from them, be fond of such servitude, and be zealous to observe their sacred seasons, and other rites, in order to render you accepted with God! Truly, when I think on this your conduct, I am greatly afraid that all the pains I took to acquaint you with and persuade you to embrace the gospel, have been lost upon most of you, and will only serve as an occasion to enhance your guilt, and increase your eternal misery. 12. Let me therefore earnestly beseech you, my beloved brethren, by every thing serious, solemn, or endearing, to abide in the same sentiments, relative to the justification of a sinner before God, which I, who was once as proud and obstinate a legalist as any of you, now heartily embrace; and exercise the same affection towards me as I do towards you; for I am ready to bear with you in every thing consistent with the truth of the gospel and the welfare of your souls; and indeed I have no reason to disregard you, as ye never injured me; or, if ye did, I have heartily forgiven it. 13, 14. Such, ye know, was my affection to you, that, with the utmost concern for your salvation, under great difficulties, sufferings, reproaches, and much bodily weakness and despicable appearances, I laboured in explaining and recommending to you the gospel of Christ; and, such was your affection to me, that notwithstanding these infirmities and humbling circumstances, ye neither slighted my person nor rejected my doctrine, but entertained and embraced it, and me for its sake, with readiness and pleasure, as an ambassador of Christ, yea, as if I had been an holy angel sent down from heaven, or even the Messiah himself. 15, 16. Where are now those expressions of gratitude to me for my labours? or that happiness ye then professed to have and hope for in my ministrations? For such was your fervour of love and joy, that, if it could have been of any advantage to me, ye would have gladly undergone the most painful severities and inconveniences for my sake. Why then are ye now giving up those very doctrines which ye then so much esteemed? why are ye become so cool in your affection to me, who still affectionately regard you? I appeal to your consciences, if ye ought to hold me as your enemy because I have plainly and faithfully maintained the truth and importance of gospel doctrines, and warned you of your infinite danger in mixing the works of the law with faith in Christ for your justification. 17. As for these your new teachers, who pretend so great concern for your welfare, they act with no Christian candour or honour, but seek to decoy you from all regard to me or my apos-

Anno Domini
cir. 58.

18 But it is good to be zealously affected always in a good thing, and not only when I am present with you.

19 My little children, of whom I travail in birth again until Christ be formed in you, 20 I desire to be present with you now, and to change my voice; for I stand in doubt of you.

21 Tell me, ye that desire to be under the law, do ye not hear the law?

22 For it is written, that Abraham had two sons; the one by a bond-maid, the other by a free-woman.

23 But he who was of the bond-woman was born after the flesh; but he of the free woman was by promise.

24 Which things are an allegory: for these are the two covenants; the one from the mount Sinai, which gendereth to bondage, which is Agar.

25 For this Agar is mount Sinai in Arabia, and answereth to Jerusalem which now is, and is in bondage with her children.

26 But Jerusalem, which is above, is free, which is the mother of us all.

27 For it is written, Rejoice, thou barren that bearest not; break forth and cry, thou that travailest not: for the desolate hath many more children than she who hath an husband.

28 Now we, brethren, as Isaac was, are the children of promise

29 But, as then, he that was born after the flesh persecuted him that was born after the Spirit, even so it is now.

30 Nevertheless, what saith the scripture? Cast out the bond-woman and her son: for the son of the bond-woman shall not be heir with the son of the free-woman.

31 So then, brethren, we are not children of the bond-woman, but of the free.

CHAP. V.

Applies the preceding discourse in an earnest exhortation enforced by several arguments, (1) To stand fast in the liberty of the gospel; 1—12. (2) To be aware of abusing that liberty, by indulging sinful tempers, contrary to the great law of love; 13—15. (3) To walk in the Spirit, and not fulfil the lusts of the flesh:—the nature and works of which are represented as altogether contrary; 16—26.

STAND fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage.

2 Behold, I Paul say unto you, that if ye be circumcised Christ shall profit you nothing.

3 For I testify again to every man that is circumcised, that he is a debtor to do the whole law.

4 Christ is become of no effect unto you, whosoever of you are justified by the law; ye are fallen from grace.

5 For we through the Spirit wait, for the hope of righteousness by faith.

6 For we are heirs of the promise, as Isaac was, and not as Ishmael.

7 For the law was our schoolmaster, to bring us to Christ, but now that we are justified by faith, we are no longer under the law.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. IV.—Great and glorious are the advantages of the New Testament church, brought in by the incarnation, obedience, and suffering, of the Son of God, above the dark and servile state of the Old. What a large and firm foundation of mercy and hope is the manifestation of God in our nature, and in our law, room, and stead! Happy are they who are marked as his fellow heirs of eternal life by the inhabitation and influence of his Spirit; and who are hereby enabled to enjoy the most familiar intimacy with God. Marvellous is his grace in calling gross idolaters to his favour and service! and base their ingratitude, and dreadful their danger, who, after making a fair profession of his gospel, apostatize from him, and deny the imputation of his righteousness for our justification before him. It is painful for faithful ministers to behold such events. But highly necessary at such a time honestly to contend for the truth, though it should make our kindest friends become our furious enemies. For artful are the methods, and high the pretences, of affection or piety by which seducers alienate men from the truth, and from their faithful, beloved, and affectionate, ministers.—With great concern ought ministers, by prayers and instructions, to promote the conversion and edification of their hearers. It is vain to think that Christ can be formed in the heart where self-righteousness and self-dependance habitually prevail and reign. Whatever we may wish, we ought never to think all well where what we see is evidently evil. Ministers ought carefully to explain and apply the law of God to the consciences of those who are disposed to trust to their own works. And it is needful to look further than the letter, in order to understand the scripture. It is not according to our external privileges, but according as we rely on our own works, or adhere by faith to God's free promises, that we shall be damned or saved. The true children of God are generally persecuted by legal hypocrites. But it is enough to make them rich and everlasting amends, that they may rejoice in hope of the glory of God.

CHAP. V. Ver. 1. Since true believers are thus the children of God and heirs of promise, and the danger of self-justiciaries is so terrible, let me earnestly beseech you to abide steadfastly in the belief, profession, and practice, of that holy, happy, and delightful freedom from the law as a covenant of works, and from all obligation to its ceremonial precepts, wherewith Jesus Christ, by his finished righteousness, gospel establishment, and your effectual calling to himself, has made you free: and let love, gratitude, and obedience, to him, as well as concern for the welfare and safety of your own souls, make you to avoid all further incumbrance and oppression from the servile yoke of the law or its ceremonies. 2. For, as an inspired apostle of Christ, I, who it seems am said to preach up circumcision, solemnly assure you that, if ye receive circumcision as a thing necessary to your acceptance with God, nothing that Christ has done or suffered, or which the gospel reveals, will be of any saving advantage to you. 3. I now repeat, what I have always maintained in my ministrations with the greatest earnestness as a most convincing truth, to every man, Jew or Gentile, who is circumcised with this view, that he is thereby obliged under pain of eternal damnation, perfectly, without the least failure, to satisfy the whole demands of the divine law as a broken covenant of works. 4. The person, righteousness, gospel, and Spirit, of Christ, will avail you nothing, who, renouncing him, seek justification before God, in whole or in part, by your own works, and thus practically renounce the gospel, and the free justification and salvation therein bequeathed. 5. For, through the light and influence of the gospel, we believers, Jews or Gentiles, earnestly desire and expect, and patiently look on wait for, everlasting life, that great object of our hope, as a thing we are entitled to and shall partake of, not for any righteousness of our own, but merely through the imputed righteousness of Christ, received by faith. 6. For, with respect to our union with Christ and justification through him, neither circumcision nor other ceremonial observances, nor the want of them, do in the least promote or confirm our happiness; but we must have a true faith, receiving and resting upon Christ alone for salvation as offered in the gospel, and working in a sincere and ardent love to his person, offices, relations, Father, Spirit, word, ordinances, ways, and people. 7. Ye, my brethren, for a time appeared cordially to believe and earnestly to profess this doctrine of justification through Jesus' righteousness alone. Think seriously then what has turned you aside from your faith in, and your obediential regard to, the authority of Christ in this leading truth of the gospel, on which all the rest depend. 8. Certain it is that your present judaizing sentiments, so directly contrary to the very foundation of the gospel, are in no respect derived from God, who called you to the knowledge of Christ and the way of salvation through him alone; nor from me, who, as his instrument, preached the very contrary to you. 9. Some corrupt influence from Satan and his instruments must then have insinuated itself among you, which, unless timely prevented, will gradually infect your whole church and whole scheme of principles. 10. Notwithstanding, therefore, my great fears about you, I would fain hope that, upon your serious consideration of what I now write, ye will perceive your danger, and the necessity of making a full and speedy stand for the truth, and of censuring the principal instruments of your present perplexity and confusion: and sure I am that, except they repent, the righteous and terrible judgments of God will overtake them. 11. And as for myself, the furious persecution, which I every where patiently suffer from the bigotted Jews, manifests that I never preach up circumcision as necessary to salvation, or induce any Gentile believers to receive it: for, could I agree to superadd the works of the law to the merits of Christ, the chief ground of their offence at the doctrine of salvation by a crucified Saviour, and of their persecution of me for preaching it, would naturally cease. 12. I heartily wish that these new teachers, who have so grievously perplexed and disturbed you, and subverted the faith of some of you, were solemnly excommunicated from all fellowship with the church, and delivered over to Satan; or that God, in his own way, would restrain them from bringing any further reproach upon his name, church, and gospel. 13. And, as ye, my Christian brethren, have been by the gospel called to a glorious freedom from ceremonial observances, and from the law as a broken covenant of works, and to a noble liberty of spirit in fellowship with God as our gracious Father in Christ, abide by it as a thing more valuable than your lives, and remember to improve it, not as an encouragement to pride, passion, sensuality, or other sinful corruptions, but as an additional obligation to the most perfect obedience to the whole law of God as a rule of life, and in all kind and brotherly affection and friendly offices one to another. 14. For all the commands of the second table, relative to the mutual duties of life, to chastity, honesty, truth, contentment, and charity, are fulfilled in loving your neighbours, as rational creatures and Christians, with such sincere and active affection as ye owe to yourselves. 15. But if, in defiance of this great commandment, ye, like ravenous beasts rather than men or Christians, fight and quarrel, reproach and abuse one another, ye have reason to fear that the God of peace and love will abandon you to your own lusts, that, by mutual heats and feuds, ye may ruin one another in your church, state, privileges, and best interests. 16. To prevent these and other dreadful irruptions of your indwelling corruption, I charge you, in the name of Christ, to labour always, and by all means, to live and act towards God and men under the influence of his good Spirit, and of that supernatural habit or principle of grace and holiness which he has implanted in your heart; which will effectually prevent your yielding up yourselves to the inclinations and practices of sinful lusts. 17. For, in regenerate persons the remains of indwelling corruption, on the one hand, struggle against, and labour to suppress, this inward gracious principle, and all its holy actings, and even to expel the Holy Ghost from the heart—and, on the other hand, the spiritual habit or vital principle of grace, wrought in them by the Holy Ghost, as living and acting under his direction and assistance, earnestly desires and labours to effect the entire destruction of sin. And these two inward principles of corruption and grace being directly opposite in their nature, tendency, and actings, ye can neither commit sin with the full and deliberate consent of your heart, nor perform duties with perfect freedom, constancy, and fervour. 18. But if, under the direction and influence of the Spirit of God, according to the rule of his word, and the inclination of an implanted principle of grace, ye, in the habitual frame of your hearts and course of your lives, be led from the ways of sin into the paths of righteousness, it is manifest that ye cannot be under the law as a covenant of works, the spirit being received only by means of the gospel; 19—21. Nor are these principles of inward corruption and grace more contrary than the tempers and practices which proceed from them. Those which proceed from the carnal corruption of nature are manifestly odious and wicked; such as whoredom in thought, word, or deed, whether between married or single persons, with all lewd, immodest, and wanton, inclinations and behaviour; all idolatrous worshipping of false gods, or by images; all enchantments, divinations, magic, and pretended or real intimacy with evil spirits; all ill-will towards God or men; litigious contentions, bitter zeal, and rancour; a swelling and revengeful temper; scoldings, wranglings, and provocations to evil; a riotous and turbulent behaviour; fundamental errors obstinately persisted in; uneasy envyings at the gifts, graces, honours, or prosperity of others; malicious and wilful attempts to take away men's lives without just cause; excessive drinking of liquors; gluttonous feasting, ranting, and raving; with many others of the like nature, which, as I formerly assured you, will, if persisted in, effectually exclude you from all fellowship with God here or hereafter. 22, 23. But, in opposition to these detestable and damning works of the flesh, the effects produced by the implanted principle of divine life, under the supernatural influence of the Holy Ghost, pleasing to God and profitable to ourselves, are—universal love to God, to Christ, his words, ordinances, and people, and to our fellow creatures; rejoicing in God through Christ, and in the happiness of our neighbours; peace of conscience, flowing from peace with God through Jesus' blood, and issuing in a peaceful temper towards our fellow Christians and creatures; a patient bearing of affronts, injuries, and offences; an affable and courteous disposition and carriage towards all with whom we have to do; a benevolent temper and beneficent practice; fidelity to every trust committed to or engagement made by us, flowing from faith in Christ, and in God through him; a meek, calm, and quiet frame of spirit; a regular moderation of our passions and appetites, in meats, drinks, pleasures, or the like. Against such virtues, and the persons endowed with them, there is no law, to condemn them. 24. And all they who truly belong to Christ as members of his mystical body, united with, interested in, and devoted to him, are obliged earnestly to endeavour, and have been actually enabled by his Spirit, in virtue of his crucifixion, and, in conformity to him therein, gradually to subdue the power and strength of indwelling corruption, that it may not reign in their mortal body, and to break the force of their base and defiling corruptions, whether of the flesh or mind. 25. And, if we are indeed quickened and made alive to God by the power of the Holy Ghost, let it be our daily and earnest study, under his direction and influence, to act up to our Christian character, obligations, and advantages, by departing from all iniquity, and walking in all holy conversation and godliness. 26. And, as we are indebted to him for all the good that is in us, let none of us overrate our own endowments or performances, or aim at making a vain-glorious shew of them. Let us never, by our pride, passion, or self-seeking, provoke one another to angry resentments, nor stir up envious passions in or against each other.

manner they, by faith, live in love and hope for glory. But it is dangerous to condemn, reject, or forsake, these liberties; and infinitely dangerous to turn aside from the true doctrine of justification by free grace through the imputed righteousness of Christ, received by faith, after we have professed and seemingly believed it. It is to lose all benefit by Christ, and to bind ourselves to the impossible condition of keeping the whole law. No persecution, no seduction, ought ever to draw us into this ruinous snare. And seducers to such wickedness should be esteemed as plagues of the church and quickly cut off from her fellowship.—True Christians should carefully avoid every thing tending to strife and contention, which are so sinful and ruinous. And, though believers be perfectly freed from the moral law as a covenant, they continue still, and to eternity, under it as a binding rule of conversation. Yea, if we be Christ's we must evidence it by our earnest mortification of inward lusts; and by avoiding, and practically testifying against, outward abominations. But, in order to maintain the implanted principles of grace, or bring forth the fruits thereof in an holy life, we must live under the almighty and gracious influence of the Holy Ghost.

CHAP. VI. Ver. 1. According to the rule of Christian love, already mentioned, if any one among you, through ignorance, unwatchfulness, human frailty, plausible temptations, or enticing examples, fall into an erroneous notion or immoral act, I beseech those of you, who are more advanced and confirmed in knowledge and grace, to do your utmost, in a meek, patient, and tender, manner for convincing and reclaiming him by repentance, and reducing him to his proper place in the mystical body of Christ:—and to induce you hereto, ponder seriously your own weakness and sinfulness, and the danger of meeting with and falling before temptations yourselves; and be not therefore too severe upon others. 2. Instead of imposing heavy yokes on the one hand, or refusing any offices of kindness on the other, sympathize with, pray for, and assist, one another; and by lightening and relieving one another under your burdens, grievances, trials, and exercises, practise Christ's great commandment of loving your neighbours as yourselves. 3. For, if any of you have high thoughts of your own abilities to resist temptations, and to do great things in religion, and so despise and insult others, ye dreadfully deceive your own souls. 4. But to prevent your being forward to judge and censure others and deceive yourselves, let every one of you narrowly search and try his own principles, motives, ends, temper, and behaviour; and, if they be thus found correspondent to the truth of the gospel, and your profession of it, ye will have great matter of humble joy in what God has wrought in you, and enabled you to do, and on account of the testimony which the Holy Ghost and your own consciences bear to your sincerity and God's acceptance of you through Christ; and you need not then regard the applause of others, your number of proselytes, or that your character is more exalted than that of others. 5. For at the judgment seat of Christ every man will be adjudged to eternal happiness or misery; not according to what he thinks of himself, or what he is in comparison of others,—but according to what he really is, in heart and life, before God. 6. And, as a standing ministry is necessary for your instruction and establishment in the truths and paths of the gospel, let every church member, who receives these spiritual instructions, cheerfully and liberally contribute of his worldly substance for the comfortable maintenance of his instructor, who spends his time and strength in preaching the gospel to him, and thus brings him blessings far better than any thing temporal. 7. Never let a covetous temper, or plausible suggestion, seduce you from the faithful performance of this duty. God, who searches your hearts, and has a right to your obedience, will not suffer himself to be imposed on, or any of his commandments contemned. But (to allude to the crops of husbandmen and gardeners) your reward at his hand shall be according to the nature, quality, and extent, of your work. 8. He, who uses his temporal enjoyments, or spends his time and strength, with selfish and corrupt views, shall have, for his reward, perishing things here, and eternal destruction hereafter; but he, who, through the power of God's grace on and in his heart, employs his substance and talents for promoting spiritual purposes, in subserviency to the work and design of the Holy Ghost, shall reap glorious fruits of holiness in this world, and eternal life as the free gift of God through Christ in the next.

9. Animated by these comfortable views, let us never grow remiss and negligent, far less cease from doing good to others, by every mean in our power; for, if not in this life, we shall in the next be rewarded with plentiful blessings, if we do not, through unbelief and discouragement, covetousness, impatience, or the like, desist from our duty as an irksome task. While therefore God gives us abilities and proper opportunities, let us exercise ourselves in works of beneficence towards the necessitous, and all our fellow creatures, especially to such as, in the judgment of charity, have cordially embraced the gospel of Christ, and become his children and servants.

11. I hope ye will seriously ponder those things which I have written to you in this affectionate letter, and that not by an amanuensis, as ordinarily, but with mine own hand. 12. And, believe me, your new preachers, who attempt to recommend themselves by external flourishes of profession, or zealous observation of carnal ceremonies, are not actuated, in urging you to be circumcised, by any true love to you, or concern for your salvation, but merely desire that they may escape that persecution and outrage from the unbelieving Jews, to which the preaching of a free justification through Christ's imputed righteousness would expose them.

13. For, notwithstanding their being circumcised themselves, and under an obligation thereby established to keep the whole law, they are not really careful to keep that law at all, but they would have you circumcised, that they might boast of you as their proselytes, and thereby recommend themselves to the favour of the unbelieving Jews.

14. But God forbid that I should ever be ambitious of human applause, or boast of, or rely on, any thing as the ground of my acceptance with God, except it be the atoning sacrifice of our crucified Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, by faith in and virtue derived from, with and whom, I am, in conformity to him, dead to all the allurements, interests, and honours, of this world, and to all its terrors, persecutions, and reproaches, so as to be little moved by the one or the other; and on account of my preaching of which, as the alone ground of justification and eternal life, the men of this world condemn me, and would gladly crucify me.

15. For, with regard to union with Christ and justification to life through faith in him, circumcision, and all such external distinctions, are now under the gospel entirely useless. The only thing that can effectually prove our interest in him is the universal and almighty renovation of our heart and life, after the image of God, in knowledge, righteousness, and true holiness.

16. And to all those professed Christians, Jews or Gentiles, who according to the directions I have given, rely on the righteousness of Christ alone for justification, and improve it in a steadfast maintenance of gospel liberties and study of gospel holiness; and to all those spiritual Israelites, whom God hath formed for himself; I earnestly wish and declare peace with God, their consciences, and one another, and all other mercies and blessings of the new covenant.

17. Let no one give me any further trouble with injurious reproaches and angry quarrels about circumcision and other observances of the law: the persecutions which I have already endured, and of which I retain the marks in my body, are sufficient proofs of my being Christ's devoted servant, and faithful preacher of justification through his blood.

18. Finally, brethren, my hearty prayer to our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ is, that his free love and favour, with all its blessed manifestations, fruits and effects, may plentifully abound towards you, and sensibly rest on your souls, to lead you in the way of faith, comfort, and holiness, till ye arrive at the complete possession of eternal life.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. VI.—With meekness, humility, and compassionate sympathy, ought Christians of superior attainments to recover their offending brethren. A sense of their own sinfulness, weakness, and readiness to slip, should induce them to it. And a regard to their deliverance from the law as a covenant, and the law of ceremonies, and their being still under Christ's law of liberty and love, should effectually animate them to it. It is dreadful to deceive our souls through self-conceit and hypocritical mocking of that God who neither will nor can be imposed upon. But it is delightful to have our consciences attesting us as approved of God in Christ; and to be enabled to improve our worldly substance in acts of piety and charity. It is highly necessary to be active and exact in our conduct, when our eternal happiness or damnation is so closely connected with it; and very unprofitable to make fair shews of religion, while we remain ignorant of its power; or while, to shun persecution, we are afraid or ashamed to own a crucified Christ, and the doctrine of salvation through him alone. It is Christ crucified in whom we must boast, and from whom we must derive all grace to wean us from worldly things. And no profession, denomination, or external privilege, will avail to our salvation, unless our hearts be renewed and planted with a living principle of grace. Nor must we expect spiritual or eternal happiness, unless we walk according to the gospel in our dealings with God and men, and are ready to suffer for the doctrines of Christ which we profess.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE

TO THE

E P H E S I A N S.

Ephesus was the chief city of Proconsular Asia, famed for human wisdom and knowledge, but more for idolatry, lasciviousness, and magical arts. Here Paul planted a Christian church, to the elders of which he afterwards gave a solemn charge to attend to their work; Acts xix. xx. To caution them against those seducers, who very early crept in among them, and to confirm them in the doctrines which he had preached to them, he, while a prisoner at Rome, wrote them this excellent letter. In the three first chapters of which he represents to them, in the most enraptured and affecting manner, the riches of God's grace, in their election, effectual calling, fellowship with God and with his church. In the three last, he exhorts them to improve their mercies, in the conscientious performance of all necessary duties, personal and relative, religious and civil, answerably to their Christian character, privileges, assistances, and obligations.

EXPLANATORY NOTES. CHAP. I. Ver. 1, 2. Being, according to the sovereign will and mere favour of God, immediately authorised and qualified by Jesus Christ to publish his glorious gospel, I earnestly wish and announce to you—members of the church at Ephesus, who are by profession, and I hope many of you really, sanctified by the Holy Ghost, and to all the believers every where, who, through union to and fellowship with Christ, have obtained mercy to be faithful to their light and obligations in adhering to the truth as it is in him—all the riches of divine grace, in all its happy fruits, manifestations, and effects, from our Covenant God and Father in Christ as the fountain and moving cause, and from Jesus Christ as the purchaser, store-house, and dispenser, of them. 3. May all possible glory, thanksgiving, and praise, be cheerfully ascribed to that ever-blessed God, whose ancient endearing character was, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; but who now manifests himself as the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, his only begotten Son and mediatorial Servant;—that in and through him, as our new covenant Head and anointed Saviour, in the immense riches of his love and grace, he has freely and bountifully bestowed upon us all manner of spiritual and eternal blessings. 4. According to, and in the execution of, his gracious and unchangeable decree, in which we were from all eternity freely and sovereignly chosen in him as our Head and Representative, not because of our foreseen holiness, but that, through the application of his blood to our conscience, and the Holy Ghost renewing our heart, we might be made truly holy, and enabled, as in his sight, and acceptably to him, to walk in love to God and to one another, in obedience to his law, and as the fruit of his having first loved us: 5. In which eternal purpose we were graciously separated from the rest of mankind, and fore-ordained to be his new him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before him in love:

5 ^gHaving predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself, according to the good pleasure of his will;

6 ^hTo the praise of the glory of his grace, wherein he hath ⁱmade us accepted in ^kthe beloved.

7 ^lIn whom we have redemption through his blood, the ^mforgiveness of sins, according to the ⁿriches of his grace:

covenant children, and joint heirs with Christ, of himself, and all his inestimable fulness and privileges;—that through the merits, and being united to the person, of Christ, and according to his free favour and sovereign will, we might be brought into the most intimate union to, and fellowship with, him, as his peculiar people, formed for, and consecrated to, his honour and service: 6, 7. All which is done by him, that there may be abundant and everlasting praises in the church on earth and in heaven, to the honour and glory of his free grace and mercy, which is so illustriously and endearingly displayed in the whole of our salvation, particularly in rendering us acceptable to himself in and through the person and mediation of his dearly-beloved and only-begotten Son Jesus Christ,—in whom we, who are chosen, predestinated, and accepted, have a complete and glorious deliverance from all evil, and recovery to all possible happiness, in time and eternity, through the inestimable price of his atonement so fully satisfying to divine justice, and his righteousness so magnifying to the holy law; having all our sins, however many and aggravated, freely, fully, and irrevocably, forgiven us, not on account of any worthiness in us, or our works, but merely from the inexhaustible fulness, excellency, liberality, and unbounded overflowings, of JEHOVAH's free mercy and favour. 8. In the breaking forth and plentiful effusions of which grace he has abundantly manifested to us the highest wisdom and counsel, both in contriving and executing his eternal scheme of redemption, to the united and highest honour of all his perfections; and in giving us the spirit of wisdom and knowledge, making us wise unto salvation, and to know and practise our duty with understanding, prudence, and discretion, 9. his Spirit, he opens before us his gracious scheme of redemption, which is so much hid from creatures, and so marvellous and incomprehensible in itself: and which, influenced by nothing but his own sovereign grace, he formed and fixed in his own breast, and for his own glory. 10. That, in the last and most glorious period of his gracious transactions on earth, fixed in his eternal purpose, and marked in his ancient promises, and when the exceeding sinfulness of mankind had given his free grace the largest opportunity for magnifying its own power and glory, he might in, and by means of Christ incarnate, obeying, suffering, dying, interceding, and preached to the nations, gloriously reconcile Jews and Gentiles into one mystical body, bringing them into a new state of peace and friendship with himself, and with one another: and even angels and men into one delightful society and new state of peace and friendship; and, in fine, connect all things, in and under Christ, as Head over them to his church: 11. In whom also, for the accomplishment of this great design, we believing Jews have, in our effectual calling, received a title to, and some anticipation of, that inheritance of eternal life to which we were, as his children, predestinated in the free and unchangeable purpose of God, who, by an almighty influence, works all things exactly according to the direction of his infinite wisdom and the plan of his sovereign decree; 12. That, we, the natural seed of Abraham, to whom the gospel was first preached, and who were first brought to believe and depend on and hope in Christ for all salvation, might, as distinguished monuments of his grace, for ever glorify him for his mercy in making, and for his truth, power, wisdom, and love, in fulfilling his promises; 13. In whom also ye Gentiles, after he had heard the infallibly certain and infinitely important truths of the gospel, by which that eternal salvation is offered and applied to sinful men, believed; and, in consequence thereof, were, by virtue of your union with him, further sanctified and conformed to his image, and comfortably certified of your personal interest in him as your eternal inheritance, by the Holy Ghost, whom he so emphatically promised, and, who, with infinite light and power, applies all the promises to our souls: 14. Which Holy Spirit, as given to us, and working faith and love in us, is a security, pledge, and earnest, of our heavenly glory, and a joyful foretaste of it, till we, and they whom Christ hath redeemed, and for whom he purchased it, arrive at the full enjoyment of it, that, as monuments of his amazing grace, we may for ever praise him in the highest manner for the manifestation of it upon us. 15, 16. In reflection upon this grace of God, in choosing, redeeming, calling, and sanctifying, you, Gentiles as well as us Jews, and having received an account of your remarkable trust and hope in the Lord Jesus Christ, and love to all them that bear his image, I have been thereby encouraged, in my frequent prayers, to bless and thank him for his favours bestowed on you, and to supplicate that he would still grant you more abundant mercies: 17. Particularly that he—who is the Covenant God of our Lord Jesus Christ, who chose and called him to his mediatorial work, qualified and rewarded him for it—and who, being infinitely glorious in himself, is the fountain, author, and bestower, of all the glory communicated to angels, men, or any other creature, and is the eternal Object of all admiration and worship—would, by his Spirit, give you still more bright, sweet, and assuring, manifestations of Christ, in his person, offices, righteousness, and love, and lead you into a still more clear and experimental acquaintance with the exercise of faith, love, and other graces; 18. That, through his enlightening influence, by the word of God and daily experience, your minds may perceive with the utmost certainty and light what a sincere and genuine hope that is to which God has effectually called you by the gospel; what excellent objects mystery of his will, according to his good pleasure which he hath purposed in himself:

10 That, in the dispensation of the fulness of times, he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth; even in him:

11 In whom also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will:

12 That we should be to the praise of his glory, who first trusted in Christ.

13 In whom ye also trusted after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation: in whom also, after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that Holy Spirit of promise, 14 Which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory.

15 Wherefore I also, after I heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus, and love unto all the saints, 16 Cease not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers;

17 That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of him:

18 The eyes of your understanding being enlightened; that ye may know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints,

19 And what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power;

20 Which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand in the heavenly places,

21 Far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come:

22 And hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the church, 23 Which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all.

CHAP. II.

To magnify the riches of God's free grace, the apostle here represents (1) The miserable estate of the Ephesians and others by nature; 1—3, 11, 12. (2) What God had done for them in their conversion; 4—10: and in making them partakers of all the blessings, and privileges of the gospel church equally with the believing Jews; 13—22.

it hath in view, and what solid and never-failing grounds ye have for it;—and that, by the realizing views of faith, by spiritual meditation, and by gracious foretastes, ye may know, in an animating and extensive manner, what is the true nature and transcendent excellency of the invaluable treasures of blessedness, which God, for his own glory, bestows on, and places in, his saints, whom he has taken for his inheritance and peculiar people; 19, 20. And that ye may further understand and experience what is the superabundant and all-conquering greatness of his power, which he exercises towards us who believe, Jews or Gentiles, in quickening our dead souls, working faith in us, subduing our inward corruptions, supporting and preserving us through all dangers, comforting us against all griefs, and raising us up to complete and eternal blessedness, and that in a manner like to the almighty exertion of it in the resurrection and high exaltation of Jesus Christ. 21—23. In which the Father hath advanced him, as God-man Mediator, to the highest dignity and authority, inexpressibly beyond the reach of angels and men, and has invested him with uncontrollable dominion over all angels, good or bad, and all rulers in either church or state; and has placed all his enemies in a state of subjection to him, that he may dispose of them, subdue and destroy them at his pleasure; and has given him an absolute and universal dominion, in the kingdom of providence and grace, over all persons and things, that he may manage, overrule, restrain, and order, all events for the spiritual and eternal benefit of the Catholic church, to which he is the Head of direction and government, life and influence, tender care and protection; and which is his mystical body, receiving all life, activity, growth, and strength, from him; and in his relative fulness, comprehending all the members, given to him by his Father for the perfecting of his family and glory;—who, by means of his word, offices, and ordinances, attended with his presence, are filled by him with all gifts, graces, and fruits of righteousness.

REFLECTIONS UPON CHAP. I.—Abundant is the grace we receive from Christ. It is only in a state of union to him that we are rendered holy or faithful. And it is only in him that we are blessed with either spiritual or eternal blessings. Delightful is the influence, and sweet the character, of a gracious God. Marvellous is the sovereignty, the freedom, the antiquity, the rich abundance, and powerful efficacy, of his redeeming grace. To it we owe our election, our adoption, our justification, our spiritual knowledge, our eternal happiness, and our present assurance of and security for it. Influenced by it, how delightfully Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, co-operate in our eternal redemption! Actuated by the faith of it, cordially ought we to pour forth our praises and thanksgivings, and to admire his kindness in bringing us Gentiles into the fellowship of the gospel. And earnestly should we pray for further influences of the Holy Spirit, to enlighten our minds and quicken our souls. But, above all, let us admire the power, the grace, the wisdom, which have so exalted our Redeemer for the welfare of his body the church. And since God hath set him so high at his right hand, let him be for ever exalted in our hearts.

CHAP. II. Ver. 1. And as God, by the exceeding greatness of his power, raised up Christ, as a public person, from the dead, he has also bestowed upon you a life of justification, freeing you from your guilt and condemnation, and quickened you to a life of holiness, by the renewal of your nature, who, as Gentile sinners, were under the dominion of both legal and spiritual death: and, as it were, condemned and killed by a multitude of sins original and actual. 2. In which, while ye continued unregenerate Heathens, ye, with great eagerness,
